GRANDMA'S ATTIC
"A Country Shop"
The greatest collection of country handcrafts and collectibles under one roof!

Grandma's comment of the week:
Remember us when you're looking for a special gift for your mother. All Grandma's treasures are handmade, one-of-a-kind things that your mother will treasure too. Happy Mother's Day to all.

Grandma's thought for the week:
Success is measured not by what one has but by the distance one has come from where she started.

When you graduate to the Air Guard, your future's looking up.

And so is our country's. Because the professional men and women of the Air National Guard do more than provide the major portion of our national air defense. They provide aid in state and community emergencies as well.

Great benefits. Now and for your future.

By joining the Air Guard now, you'll be doing more than helping protect your community, state, and home town. You'll be helping yourself.

Because the Air Guard is a part-time military job, you'll have plenty of time to pursue a civilian career. Or further your education which we may help you pay for.

What's more, we'll provide valuable technical training. The kind of training you could probably use to get a good civilian job or to advance in your chosen career.

Of course, you'll also receive low-cost life insurance, a retirement plan, base exchange privileges, and more. All for your part-time work in the Air Guard.

If you're ready to move ahead with your future, learn valuable job skills and earn extra income, call your Air Guard recruiter today.

You'll find out why we say, "In the Air Guard, the sky isn't the limit."

We Guard America's Skies.

Selectmen briefs . . .

DRAINAGE PROBLEMS

Selectmen will meet with the drainage advisory committee to discuss new plans to protect residents from poor drainage and flooding caused by new construction.

The concern over new construction in wet areas was proposed by resident Diane Sullivan who acknowledged "I am not an engineer."

Building Inspector Bob Dennis said the town has control over wetlands but the town has no regulations for single house lots. "We can't require the builders to put the drains in unless it comes under the conservation commission. The drainage advisory committee meets infrequently and has discussed drainage problems on town owned property.

Selectmen plan to meet with other boards such as the board of health, planning board and conservation commission to discuss any regulation plans.

Executive Secretary Mark Lanza said the problem is other communities have town engineers but Cohasset has "no in-house expertise." He said county engineers are excellent but their time is limited.

The future goal, selectmen agreed, would be to develop a bylaw so builders will be required to install proper drainage systems.

TOWING CONTRACT RESCINDED

Selectmen voted to rescind its towing contract with Anthony Abromowich, owner of Cohasset Craftsmen because an error was made in the opening of the advertising bids for the contract.

Selectmen plan to begin the advertising process again which will award a contract to a firm which will tow illegally parked cars, those involved in accidents or cars left vacant after an arrest.

The current operator, Francis Mitchell (who has had the contract for 20 years) protested the contract award.

Selectman Frank England asked Executive Secretary Mark Lanza to provide the board with a complete set of advertising guidelines. Selectmen later decided not to approve a joint contract to Mitchell and Abromowich.

CEMETERY STUDY

Selectmen plan to study how much lot space is left at Woodside and Beechwood cemeteries and also plan to meet with the cemetery study commission to discuss committee goals. Selectman Rocco Laugelle said the previous board met with the committee which wanted to purchase various sites. He said at that time selectmen were not interested because of the expense of the land purchase and as a result the committee stopped meeting.

The chairman of the committee in which the vacancy occurs, shall inform the appointment chairman and the executive secretary as soon as possible. If a vacancy occurs less than 30 days before the term normally expires, then no appointment shall be made until the term expires, unless the committee cannot carry out its charge while the vacancy exists.

If there are two candidates or less on file, the board of selectmen may direct the executive secretary to undertake further recruitment efforts. All applicants will be interviewed by the entire board of selectmen or by a special sub committee. A standard form will be developed which will include the questions to be asked candidates for a committee.

If one candidate is the incumbent seeking re-appointment, he or she will automatically be qualified for an interview. All applicants will be notified of the interview and shall be supplied a copy of infomation pertinent to the work of the committee.

Upon appointment or re-appointment to a committee, the appointee will be issued an appointment card stating the day of appointment, date of expiration and naming the committee. The executive secretary will prepare the card. Selectmen also decided that a certificate should be issued to a retiring member of an appointed committee, and a plaque be given to a retiring committee chairman in honor of his service to the town.

Scituate Hill pollution may endanger water

By Moira McCarthy and Mike Berger

The environmental future of Scituate Hill is still up in the air.

Several weeks ago state and local health officials studied Lily Pond and gave Cohasset's main drinking supply a clean bill of health.

But now a water commissioner is hinting there may be a potential pollution source to Cohasset's water supply from the nearby Cohasset Heights landfill of Route 3A.

Newly elected commissioner Peter Pratt is launching an investigation into the landfill's impact on a Lily Pond tributary pond.

He promises when it comes to drinking supplies, the power of the water commission can supercede any other board or committee in town.

He is calling for a cooperative study with the board of health.

The commercial landfill, regulated by the board of health, may be a potential pollution source to Cohasset's water supply, Pratt told the Mariner this week.

"That whole dump is something that fell through the cracks. No one ever stopped to say, "My God, that's located in the watershed!" Pratt said.

The dump, which Pratt called a "glaring problem on a whole raft of problems" facing the water commission, came into notice about a month ago when Nortolk Conveyor reported a small hazardous waste spill.

Fire chief Martin Dooley went to the scene to investigate and discovered "50 to 60 rusting drums, to his credit," Pratt said.

The State Department of Environmental Quality Engineering was called in to investigate what happened.

"They identified that area as being in the watershed, and the dump is only 100 yards away."

Merilyn DeVos is a pizza winner

You don't normally expect to find Cohasset-style clams on top of a pizza, or jalapeno peppers, tequila and sour cream.

But that's exactly what judges found to be the key ingredients in the two top-winning entrants in "LOOK's" best pizza contest, held April 27 at the show's studio at WNEV-TV.

Merilyn DeVos made up her fresh clam and fennel seed pizza recipe about a week before she saw information about the contest on "LOOK." "I do enjoy seafood, but I've never eaten it so often as when I started working in the North End, right across from the fishmonger—Frank Giuffre and Son—on Salem Street," she said.

The five judges selected the tie winners on the basis of taste, looks, originality and crust.

DeVos works at "Il Bongustaio," a cookware store in the North End.

"It was clearly offbeat," said DeVos, when asked if she thought her recipe might have a chance. "It has a very mild garnish—the spices came through more than the clams."

Co-winner of the first prize is Sandy Sullivan of Andover, who devised her Jalapeno Pizza recipe specifically for the contest.

Another entry, a chocolate and peanut butter pizza, won the funniest category.

Judges for the April 27 event were Jeff Jarvis of "People" magazine; Larry Goldberg of Goldberg's Pizzeria in New York City and the author of "Controlled Cheating;" Aaron Spencer, president of the Pizzeria Uno chain in Boston; and John Polcari, owner of Regina's Pizzeria in the North End and Polcari's Restaurant.

The first prize winners received silver-plated "best pizza" plaques and a variety of prizes.

MERILYN DE VOS's CLAM PIZZA

8 to 10 ounces shucked clams
1 16 ounce can plum tomatoes
1 fresh ripe tomato, diced
2 cloves garlic, minced
¼ cup coarsely chopped, flat-leaf parsley
¾ teaspoons dry basil

Mitman will make the commitment

By Jane Lane

Selectman Cliff Mitman cracked a joke after he was elected selectman in April.

It is analogous, if not a bit irreverent of his position as a new board member.

"How many selectmen does it take to screw in a lightbulb?" His answer, "I don't know, but I think we're getting close."

Mitman is aiming to put a lot more organization into the board. He wants better communication and cooperation between selectmen and the departments and committees that serve the town.

He is a confident man, a professional who intends to have the town operate on an equally efficient basis. He does not tolerate incompetence and confusion well.

A management condultant for the past 20 years with Tower, Perrin, Forster and Crosby, the new town official expects his business experience will assist him in his municipal endeavors.

"I have felt in the past few years, that the job of selectman could have been done better. In the time I have been in Cohasset, there have not been many people on the board with a lot of business experience," he says, "I think my candidacy suggested there may be more logical, rational approaches to the way town government functions."

Another reason for Mitman's candidacy, is his belief "that as long as you live in town, it is important to make a committment to it." The 14-year Cohasset resident also intends to prove "that a full time businessperson-commuter might have a better perspective on issues, and is able to do the job well while holding down another demanding job."

His candidacy, and election ot the board, he suggests, may serve as an example for other local professionals to run for public office.

Water commissioners plan delinquent shutoff

The water department is preparing to shut off water for all homes with delinquent water accounts until their bill is paid.

The plan, according to newly elected water commision member Peter Pratt, is to get all the delinquent accounts paid by June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

There are presently 152 delinquent accounts outstanding in excess of 60 days. These total $26,000.

In addition, delinquent accounts under 60 days total $70,000.

The commission planned to make the shut off procedures the priority for water superintendent Ben Curley right away but due to a shortage in personnel and meter reading time, Curley had to postpone until later in the month.

But he said, his secretary is already checking over the delinquent list, and his staff is locating the shut offs.

"That will be a big push in June," he said.

Studds releases income

Congressman Gerry Studds released a complete disclosure of his 1982 income, assets and liabilities.

The newly released Studds' statement shows that in 1982 the Congressman received less than $2,200 from all sources of income outside his Congressional salary. The report also reveals he paid $15,147.42 in federal, state and local taxes during the year.

Studds' financial disclosure statement — which will be printed in the May 10 Congressional Record — includes a detailed four-page account of his assets and liabilities. Copies of the full statement are available from his Washington office upon request.

Library book sale

The Friends of the Cohasset Library will hold their annual book sale at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library Friday and Saturday, May 20 and 21, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Thousands of books have been donated to this sale. Hardcover books will sell for 50 cents and paperbacks for 25 cents. There are also bundles of magazines, and some used phonograph records and art prints.

Book sale chairman is Lucille McLoughlin, President of the Friends.

Aerial mosquito spraying

The Plymouth County Mosquito Control Project will aerially spray certain areas in Cohasset and the surrounding area until May 15. It is anticipated the spraying will be done in Cohasset after May 11, contingent on favorable weather conditions. All spraying will take place between the hours of 5 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Abate 4E with an application rate of 1½ ounces pe acre will be used. No spraying will be done over residences, only over swamps where mosquitoes breed.

Rescue equipment sought

The Cohasset Firemen's Benefit Association is asking for citizen participation in a program to provide water rescue equipment for the department. Specific items include two rescue suits to be used in quick rescue efforts in cold water and two skin diving outfits for search and rescue work and other underwater emergencies.

The equipment, which they consider essential in a coastal community, has already been tested in Cohasset waters. Further drills will be held when the materials have been obtained. Firefighters will be thoroughly instructed in the proper use of the survival equipment.

Bernard Salvador, association president said the fire department does not have skin diving equipment or survival suits. The goal for this fund is $10.000. Contributions in any amount will be sincerely appreciated. Donations are tax decuctible.

Checks should be made payable to Water Rescue Equipment Fund and sent to Central Fire Headquarters, 44 Elm Street, or to the Pilgrim Cooperative Bank, 48 South Main Street.

The association, Salvador said, has raised money for $500 scholarships for Cohasset High seniors. They also bought the "jaws of life" a backboard for the ambulance and a camera for training purposes for the Fire Dept. in recent years, he added.

Gypsy Moths to be sprayed

The tree and park department will start spraying shortly for Gypsy Moths, Eastern Tent Caterpillars and other insects. It is expected to be a very heavy year for Eastern Tent Caterpillars. The Gypsy Moth infestation is predicted to be light and the department will ground spray only on road sides on town property.

All pesticides being used are registered by E.P.A. and there is a brochure describing all materials which can be viewed at the board of health or the board of selectmen's office. They include Malathron, Dipel 4-L, Sevin SLR, dormant oil spray and methoxychlor 25.

The department will try to give ample warning if there is any anticipated wide spread infestation of any insect pests.

Town Hall Hours

Selectmen changed the current Town Hall business hours from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday to: Monday through Wednesday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and 5:30 pm. to 8 p.m. Friday hours are 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Cancer fundraising

The annual house-to-house cancer fundraising campaign is being conducted throughout the town. Persons who have not been contacted may leave their donations at the Pilgrim Co-operative Bank, So. Main St.

A local unit of the American Cancer Society is presently in the process of being established in the South Shore area towns. Its principal purpose is to promote an increase in educational activities for both adults and children, in addition to fundraising, through a formal organized volunteer staff.

Drop spots

The Cohasset Mariner is adding a local drop spot for Cohasset news and advertising. Items can be left at the Cohasset Pharmacy as they have been in the past, or they can be dropped at Hennessey News, 3 Brook St. Both locations are in Cohasset Village.

The deadline for classified ads is Monday at 9:30 a.m. and for news copy, Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

The Mariner will pick up on Friday, Monday and Tuesday. Hennessey's hours are 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week.

Fire Prevention Week pays off

Saturday's Fire Prevention day was a valuable experience for the Grafton family. Thirteen year-old Eddy saved their house from a kitchen grease fire the following day.

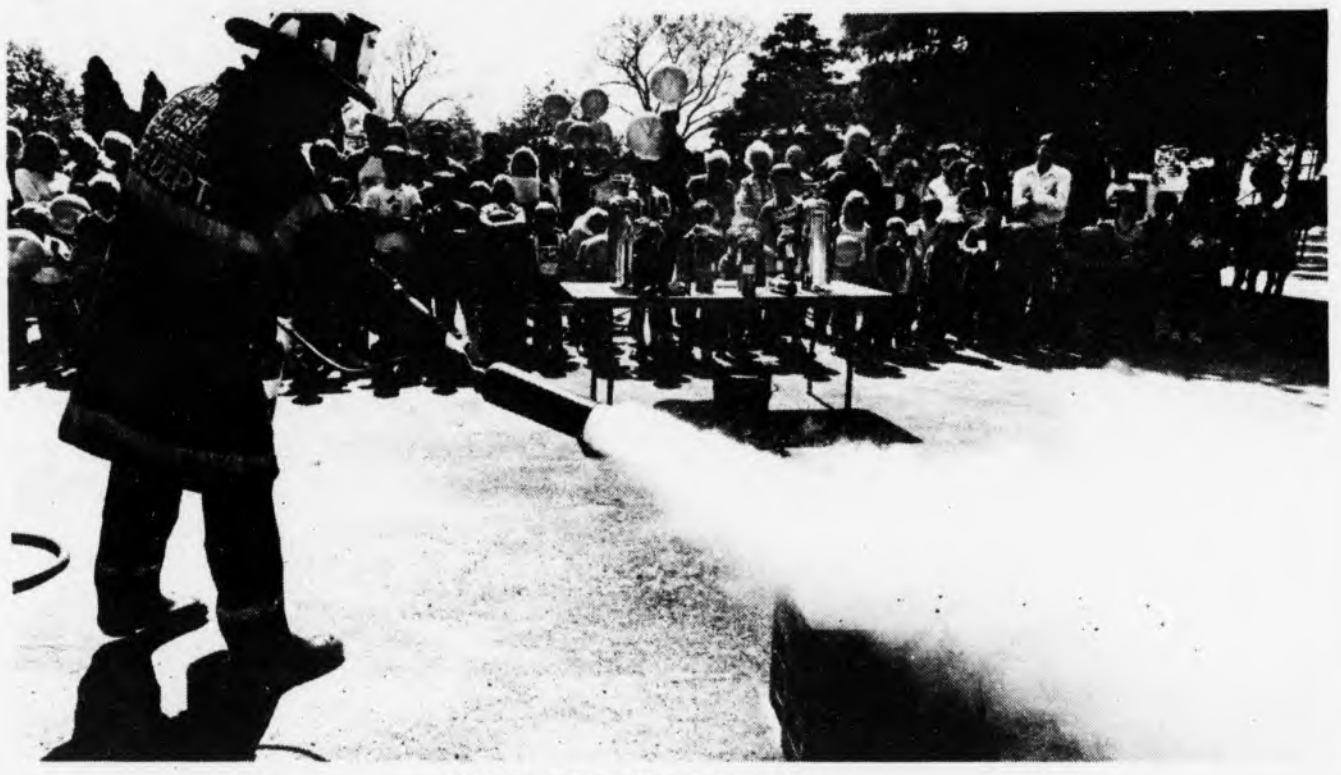
Eddy was instructed how to use an extinguisher by firefighters at the special fire prevention program on the Town Common. The family purchased a dry powder extinguisher for the kitchen.

At 1:08 p.m. Sunday, firefighters received a call from the Grafton home at 26 Hammond Ave. about a working kitchen stove fire.

Firefighters said the fire was caused by grease on a heating element.

When firefighters arrived the fire, for all practical purposes, was out.

Saturday's program was co-sponsored by the Cohasset Social Service League and its purpose was to better acquaint residents with modern fire prevention methods and equipment.



The theme suggested to residents that they should look around their homes and do everything possible to make them safe places.

Posters told residents about safety precautions for gasoline and the importance of regular home fire drills.

Home smoke detectors were distributed and posters told residents where home smoke detectors should be located and that fire extinguishers should be checked by a qualified dealer once a year.

Blood pressures were checked and residents climbed aboard the five-town ambulance which provides back-up service for area towns.

Explorer Scout Troop 28 provided refreshments from an emergency field kitchen which can be manned at fires and other emergencies.

Capt. Trask applies the pressure.

Library Information Line

The libraries in Cohasset, Marshfield and Scituate are providing this column on questions asked at the libraries and on new information sources acquired. This week the column is written by Richard Hayes, director, Paul Pratt Library in Cohasset.

Q. Which are the "seven sister" colleges?

A. They are Mount Holyoke, Vassar, Smith, Bryn Mawr, Barnard and Radcliffe. They formed a Seven College Conference in 1926. Read all about it in "Peculiar Institutions, an Informal History of the Seven Sister Colleges," by Elaine Kendall (1976).

Q. Are microwave ovens dangerous?

A. "The Harvard Medical School Health Letter," August, 1982, says research to date has been inconclusive concerning the danger, if any, to humans exposed to small amounts of this radiation. Animal experiments have shown that large amounts of microwave radiation may lead to cataracts, central nervous system impairment and chromosomal blood and immune system changes.

Q. How much have home energy costs gone up since 1975?

A. "The World Almanac and Book of Facts 1983" gives average consumer costs, in 1972 constant dollars, for the years 1975 through 1981. Heating oil costs (in 1972 dollars) rose from 29.3 cents a gallon to 120.5 cents. Natural gas rose from 132.8 cents per million cubic feet to 455.7 cents. Residential electricity rose from 2.73 cents per million kilowatt hour to 6.2 cents.

Q. Will the library be doing anything with cable television?

A. The library will be connected to the cable network, as will the schools and other town agencies. Two-way communication is possible among agencies, either video or computer data communications. One possible use for some town administrative tasks.

The library, as well as other town agencies, can transmit programs to homes on the cable. The cable company estimates that half the homes in Cohasset will subscribe. The library will plan to regularly transmit programs of interest to adults, young adults and children.

The cable system will provide subscribers a continuous listing of community announcements and events. In past years the community center or the library have tried to maintain a community calendar. Now the cable company will do it. The library will announce events, services and perhaps important new materials on this electronic bulletin board.

Our cable system will be interconnected with a number of other towns. The library is exploring use of this system for sharing library data between town libraries. Perhaps a number of libraries can share a computer and access it by cable.

The cable company is giving the library a free one-year subscription to "Keyfax, National Teletext Magazine," a continuously updated 24-hour-a-day selection of international, national and regional news; sports; business; weather; book reviews; special reports. This service is part of a teletext marketing study by American Cablesystem's New Services Division.

The cable company believes this is an important first step in educating library patrons, community organizations and students to data retrieval systems.

Tinory's 'Ol' Scollay Square'

The songs, "Remember Ol' Scollay Square" and "Boston The Only Place For Me," composed and recorded by Rik Tinory of Cohasset, will be released for worldwide distribution in sheet music form by The Boston Music Company.

The Boston Music Company is a division of Hammerstein Music & Theater Company, Inc.

In 1977 The House of Representatives and The CIty of Boston presented official Resolutions to Rik Tinory for his efforts in preserving the memory of Scolley Square.

April 21, 1977 a celebration entitled Scollay Square Day, was held in honor of Mr. Tinory's song "Remember Ol' Scollay Square." A bronze plaque was erected in Scollay Square (formerly known as Government Center) at One Center Plaza.

The song "Remember Ol' Scollay Square" was released in 1977 as a 45 R.P.M. recording and sold thousands of records. The recording also features a very rare antique photo of Scollay Square, a collectors item. The sheet music will also contain the same photo.

Rik Tinory a performer turned producer is president of Rik Tinory Productions and Old Boston Music Publishing. He operates a recording studio in Cohasset.

'Gracious Lady' to return this week

By Mike Berger and Moira McCarthy

A dispute between the owners of the area's two commuter boats threatened to keep the "Gracious Lady" out of commission for an indefinite period of time.

However, Charles English, Sr., owner of the Gracious Lady and Bill Spence, owner of the "Vineyard Queen" and "Freedom" and the Boston Redevelopment Authority reached agreement Monday night.

English said if enough personnel is available Tuesday to construct his floats, the "Gracious Lady" will be ready for service Wednesday or Thursday.

Last week a final agreement between the state transportation department and the BRA was reached securing docking space at Rowes Wharf for all the commuter boats. Rowes Wharf is located near the Boston Aquarium.

Mass. Bay Commuter Services, owned by English, obtained needed docking space for the "Gracious Lady." Under the agreement the Rowes Wharf facility could be leased to English by the state.

However, there is limited space for docking and Spence owns several boats.

Spence had refused to give his access to a space at Rowes Wharf.

"They won't even let a crane come in to do repairs," English said.

But an employee of Spence, who wished to remain anonymous said a permit to dock from the transportation department hasn't been seen.

English needs this permit to legally dock at Rowes Wharf.

"There's a lot of unanswered questions," the employee said. "We've had that boat there for 20 years. If you were getting thrown out of your apartment, wouldn't you like to know where you were going?"

But English said that his only problem is that Spence will not give him access to the docking area. "We're cancelling all our trips until we have access to the area."

The space problem is resolved temporarily, but the Spence employee questioned what will happen to the balance of Spence's boats in the future.

The "Gracious Lady" makes the trip from Hingham to Boston in about 20 to 30 minutes. Tickets are $3 and $2.70 for senior citizens and students.

The boat has been out of service since March 29 when a strut holding a propeller was damaged and the propeller bent. The boat apparently struck submerged debris on a trip a week earlier.

The "Gracious Lady" departs Hingham at 6:15 a.m. and every hour following except for 12:15. The boat departs Rowe's Wharf at 6:45 p.m. and every hour, quarter to the hour.

The "Gracious Lady" departs Hingham Saturday at 7:15 and 10:15 a.m. and departs Boston at 8:15 and 4:15 p.m.

Scituate Hill pollution

Pratt said. "So why wasn't an environmental impact statement done? And if it was done, why didn't it speak to the issue of the dump being in the watershed?"

The commissioin, Pratt said, will be looking into those questions right away.

We're not going to make wild statements, or sue anybody, or trespass. We're going to investigate properly, and build one building block at a time.

"We (the water commission) in a sense own the water supply . . .our powers are incredible. We're not playing junior G-man, but we're taking it very seriously. We have some bylaw catching up to do."

Pratt pointed out that because Cohasset's watershed runs six to ten square miles, the commission has a lot to examine.

"We take a pessimistic attitude. We have to. There's too much at stake.

"The protection of the public water supply is vital to our ability to raise kids, and to life. We must protect these areas for everybody.

"Private industry cannot and will not take precedence over the welfare of the people of Cohasset. We're going to make sure this town has the most rigorous bylaws allowed by the state to protect our watershed."

Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulous reported recently test results of Lily Pond show no "volatile organisms."

These tests were taken when health officials investigated a site behind Norfolk Conveyor Company for possible hazardous waste dumping and after a fuel oil tank spill. Tests were taken to determine the spill's effect on Lily Pond, the town's main drinking and water supply.

Eliopoulous said more followup studies will be taken. Chief Dooley said the spill happened two months ago and "it was of a minor nature. The oil was not highly flammable," he said.

around town

☐The Brown's Foreign Auto has moved from 3A to Depot Court, in the heart of town.

Also, Jason Richard Brown, son of Richard (Hermit) Brown and Gina Brown of Foreign Auto, was christened recently with a big "to do" at the Warrich Mansion.

☐Coleman's Sporting Goods held a contest recently, the purpose of which was to find the "Ugliest Shoes" around. Believe it or not, there were over 2,000 entrants (how would you like to judge that?) Cohasset's own Peter Buckley came in fifth place and won $50...more than enough to buy himself a pair of the niftiest shoes around town.

☐Last Saturday marked the beginning of the Little League season. After a parade through town and Jimmy Gallagher throwing the first pitch, the season was officially underway. There are only four teams competing this year, but it should be an exciting season.

Among the stats that were compiled, one other should be noted...Paul St. John began his 22nd year as a coach. That's dedication. Paul is sure to have many years left, as his youngest son hasn't even started in the program. By then people will really think that he is Harold Barnes.

☐Beth Goff has another reason to be excited this month. Her daughter, Rhonda, and her family will arrive from Sarasota, Fla., for a 10 day visit soon.

☐The Cohasset Firemen's Benefit Assn., Inc., is seeking donations for water rescue equipment, including two rescue suits for rescue efforts in cold water and two skin diving outfits for search and rescue work and other underwater emergencies. The equipment is considered a must in coastal areas and has been tested here. The goal is $10,000; any amount is welcome. Send checks to Water Rescue Fund, Central Fire Headquarters, 44 Elm St. (tax deductible).

☐While on the subject of Cohasset students and their efforts, must mention Paul Dormitzer who was named a National Merit finalist. Paul is the second member of his family to receive the award, his brother, Philip, won in 1981.

☐William K. Brothers, Assistant Vice President of Cohasset Savings Bank, has earned designation as a Tax-Deferred and Retirement Savings Consultant from Thrift Industries Retirement Services of Boston.

Mr. Brothers has been awarded an Advanced Certificate of competency in the field for completion of over 24 hours of classroom work on savings bank tax-deferred savings services, including Individual Retirement Accounts. The presentation was made by Jack A. Marshall, President, Thrift Industries Retirement Services.

The Advanced Certificate program assists savings bankers in offering the various tax-deferred savings plans and included in-depth consideration of the upcoming impact of the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 on such services.

☐Cohasset Garden Club members JoAnn A. Ford and Patsy Dean and Scituate Garden Club members Mrs. Oliver W. Woodburn and Mrs. William H. Morse will be arranging flowers for "Art In Bloom," to be held at The Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, May 3,4 and 5.

Many of the Museum's most beautiful floral paintings "spring to life" as the Museum of Fine Arts presents its annual three-day festival of flowers. Almost every gallery will be filled with flowers arranged by members of the Ladies Committee and area garden clubs. Some displays have been inspired by various works of art in the museum; others are original designs.

"Art In Bloom" is the Ladies Committee's annual fundraising event. The itinerary features walks through flower-bedecked galleries, daily luncheons and fashion shows, varied talks and demonstrations, a "Fine Art of Living" benefit featuring prizes worth over $32,000, and the first Art In Bloom Gala.

☐The next time you run into Nancy Anderson and Marie Dolan, you'll note a huge grin on their faces. The reason? They are both grandmothers.

On April 16, Maribeth (Dolan) and Barry Butman became parents of a daughter at St. Margaret's Hospital in Dorchester. Her name is Abigail Dolan, and Abigail is a lucky little girl. Both sets of grandparents are Cohasset natives, Joe and Marie Dolan and Charles and Lois Butman.

Cohasset Knoll Nursing Home patients' names were sent aloft on Mother's Day at the Knoll. State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, center, and staff lift the balloons for takeoff.

☐On May 1, Marie (Anderson) and Greg Robinson became the parents of a so, N cholas David. Nicholas was born at Sturdy Memorial Hospital in Attleboro. Tom and Nancy Anderson are delighted grandparents.

☐David Londergan, Jr., has been elected assistant vice president, corporate loan department of Bay Bank Middlesex, Burlington. Prior to joining Bay Bank in 1983, Londergan served as commercial loan officer for the National Bank of Detroit and was a CHS graduate.

☐Rosee Duffy and her fellow Boosters have come up with a grand idea to take the place of the Spring Boosters Club Awards Banquet this year. Knowing what a busy time it is for everyone, they have decided to have the athletes make their own sundaes and are inviting the parents to do the same (parents will be charged a fee of one dollar.) People not wishing to indulge in the "yummies" are invited to attend the awards, which begin at 8 p.m. The date is May 22, the time is 7 p.m. for the sundaes, awards to follow, and the place is the high school cafeteria.

☐Midshipman 2nd Class Charles

☐Talk about the endurance of youth — last Friday while going by the high school track, I saw Katie Clinton running like the wind. Later on that afternoon she was busy mowing her lawn, then appeared in the class play Friday night! Whew!

☐While on the subject of the Senior Class Play it was deemed a grand success by all. The costumes, made by Grace Wilkin and her able crew were thought to be "the best yet," the music, under the direction of Sandy Cravatte, was outstanding and Scott Ketchum and Jo Fictner outdid themselves. Broadway's loss is surely Cohasset's gain. The cast was superb. There was only one common complaint: it should have run longer.

☐Ellen Southerland is a happy little girl. She has her very own baby sister whose name is Megan. Ellen is grinning from ear to ear over the idea she has such a great sister (so are Mom and Dad). The Southerland family lives on Parker Ave.

☐The Little League field is a sign of the times this year. There are games every other night instead of every night as in years past. The reason for this is that there are only four teams, due to the decline of boys in the age group.

Marilyn DeVos is a Pizza Winner

1 teaspoon fennel seed
½ cup Romano cheese
½ teaspoon crushed red pepper salt and pepper to taste oil, preferably olive oil
1 pound pizza dough, home made or from a pizza shop
Cornmeal, a sprinkling

Brush 14 inch round or 10 by 14 pan with oil. Sprinkle with corn meal. Stretch dough to cover prepared pan.

Drain canned tomatoes. Transfer to medium bowl. Chop coarsely. Add diced fresh tomato to bowl, minced garlic, chopped parsley, basil, fennel, crushed red pepper and salt and pepper. Mix well and spread over prepared dough. Sprinkle with Romano cheese. Drizzle (olive) oil over surface, especially near outer edges of pizza using two to three tablespoons in all.

Put on lowest shelf of pre-heated, 450 degree oven. Bake 10 minutes. Remove.

Meanwhile, clean, drain and coarsely chop clams. Place over partially baked pizza. Return to oven on middle shelf. Bake 10 to 15 minutes more or until the crust is browned.

LIGHT UP YOUR LIFE

by Christopher O'Halloran

Kitchens, it seems, are one of the most difficult rooms in the house to light properly. They can very easily be overlit or underlit. Down at the Flagstaff Lighting Showroom we have a large variety of kitchen lighting. Flourescents will brighten up that dull counter area just by putting in an undercabinet light. If your kitchen seems to be too bright just come down and pick from our wide variety of dimmers to tone down that harsh brightness. If you seem to shy away from flourescent because of the bright white light it gives out, we can show you the many different types of flourescent light that are available. So come and see whats new at the Flagstaff Lighting Showroom at NORTH RIVER ELECTRIC SUPPLY. Open 9-5 Monday - Saturday; 9-9 Thursday, 433 Washington St., Norwell We accept Master Charge and Visa. We can be reached at 659-2272 or 749-5524.

Fire vacancies

If you flip back to the Mariner issues of September and October, you will read that selectmen and the fire department were still trying to obtain a state Civil Service list for two fire vacancies.

Now, with the flowers of May around us, Executive Secretary Mark Lanza estimates it will probably take another six weeks to obtain the list from the state.

That is a disgrace and prompts the obvious question.

Why is Cohasset still waiting for two firefighters?

Bureaucracy and not the streamlined kind — explains most of the reason.

One list came down last fall carrying the name of one firefighter who it was noted had lost his EMT certification. Selectmen then rescinded their appointing vote and there has been a vacancy since that time.

Since October, Cohasset has spent nearly $30,000 in overtime pay because the fire department is lacking personnel.

In someone's defense it should be noted that since October, Cohasset has appointed a new fire chief and executive secretary and elected three new selectmen. We realize that in the transition this matter has fallen through the cracks.

One reason we urged voters not to go back to Civil Service for police chief is the state Civil Service. That agency is a mess and it is common in other communities to wait and wait for a list. When the list finally arrives, it is inaccurate.

The time has come for Cohasset to call upon State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray and State Sen. Allan McKinnon to crash through the walls of state bureaucracy and get a list to Cohasset.

Their years of experience and contract contacts with state officials are needed.

We will review the situation in eight weeks. We hope there is better news for the taxpayers regarding the manpower situation in the fire department.

While we are on the subject of elected representative muscle, it's time to hear some of their comments about Cohasset's sewer problems. They have been quiet to this point.

Tuesday, Executive Secretary Mark Lanza was hoping he didn't see the sheriff coming through his door with a state contempt citation regarding the sewer situation.

Sewer Commission Chairman Charles DeSantis will soon be meeting with federal environmental officials to plead his case.

We know Charlie and sewer commissioners are trying hard and we feel they have a good idea in the alternative plan.

The state does not share their opinion.

It is obvious a strong majority of Cohasset residents stand behind DeSantis and it is time to call Cohasset's muscle through elected representatives State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, State Sen. Allan McKinnon and if need be, Congressman Gerry Studds.

We feel the federal officials will agree with DeSantis's arguments because a federal environmental review was not conducted when the state came through with a last minute offer days before the April Town Meeting.

We want to let Charlie know Cohasset is behind you and so should be our elected officials, both local and state.

Expressway sometimes isn't

By Claire McDonough

I hate to contradict another newspaper, but if you read an account in a local daily of an incident that occurred on Quincy Shore Drive last Monday, you were misinformed.

According to that paper, a truck driver caused a power line to fall at 8 a.m. This resulted in a massive traffic tie-up until the 8:15 arrival of the MDC police who quickly put the matter to rights.

Well, I don't want to sound like a nit-picker, but the incident was a good deal closer to 7:30 a.m. than it was to 8. Furthermore, it wasn't a truck, it was a bulldozer. I should know. I saw it happen.

There were two cars ahead of our van, and we were stopped for a red light. This was fortunate, because if the traffic had been moving, there's a pretty fair chance that when the 'dozer hit a utility pole causing the power lines to land in the street they would have hit a vehicle — maybe ours!

And while the MDC doubtless provided its usual efficient service, the true heroes of the incident went unsung. No sooner had we realized what had happened than Terry Gorman's hand was on the door. He was quickly joined by Bernie Kiley, and the two civic minded stalwarts set to with a will to restore order.

Because Terry has previous experience in extemporaneous traffic control, he was dispatched to the end of the line.

"Power line's down," he explained at least 70 times. "You'll have to back up."

Bernie, meanwhile, directed cars nearest the entrance to Louisburg Square South into that complex. Upward of 20 motorists obediently followed his command. Some time later a lady commuter returned, looking somewhat harried. "There's no way out of there," she stated with what might be considered unnecessary stridency.

We have no idea what happened to the other cars.

By that time Terry had rerouted about 100 cars — we're not sure where — and because Bernie didn't want to chance facing the wrath of any irate motorists who might emerge from Louisburg South, he offered to drive the van.

He may have had another reason. At that point I had backed it onto a traffic island and was pounding the dashboard and wailing, "I hate driving backward. I positively hate it!"

Bernie took over the controls and skillfully backed up around a half mile to where Terry was still looking authoritarian and directing traffic. We scooped him and exited down a side street, only slightly aware that a convoy of cars was following us in hopes of getting to Boston, or at least out of the disaster area.

There was still no sign of any police.

Because of Bernie's suspiciously complete knowledge of side streets (Did he put himself through college by moonlighting as a second story man?) we were through Neponset Circle and on to Boston in no time.

For the record, there was so little traffic beyond the accident site that we were only five or ten minutes late for work.

Now, isn't that much more exciting than the account in the other paper?

CHS director spreads the thanks

Letters

To the Editor:

In any theatrical production there are many who do copious amounts of work for little or none of the glory. Without these unsung heroes, no production could get off the ground. The Senior Class revue, "Kaleidoscope," last weekend was no exception, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank some people.

Costumer, Grace Wilkin, and her crew, Elizabeth Glasfeld, Irene Lowe and Midge Kuntz, deserve special appreciation for hundreds of beautiful costumes and countless hours of tedious work. Thanks to Dr. John Packard and Jeff Rynd for efficient and unobtrusive sound engineering and to Clark Young and the lighting crew who solved numerous lighting problems. Thanks to Elizabeth Glasfeld, props, and to the set construction crew, especially Bob Driscoll, Chris Winn and Maureen Kelly, Lorri Finnigen and Mike Lanta and stage hands for very successful scenery and changes. Special recognition should go to Sean O'Connor, stage manager, who ran a tighter show than I have ever seen or thought possible.

Also deserving of thanks are Emily Glasfeld, stage secretary; Beth Goff, tickets; Janet Ditmar and the makeup crew; Betty Driscoll, publicity; Jim Lagrotteria, printing; all of the ushers and all of the staff and teachers of Cohasset High School for their cooperation.

Much gratitude and respect must go to my fellow directors. Jo Ann Fichtner not only provided dynamic choreography but also production assistance as well. Sandy Kravette prepared an extremely polished orchestra as well as furnished original arrangements of much of the band music. Of great service to me was Jean Birmann, without whose accomplished piano accompaniment and helpful hints I could never have prepared the singers or chorus.

Last, but certainly not least, many thanks to the talented, cooperative and hardworking Class of 1983 who endured my impatience and my bellowing. Their enthusiasm and energy never ceased to amaze me, and I wish them all good luck in all future endeavors.

Thanks to you all.

Treatment plant

To the Editor:

Through the joint effort of the Board of Sewer Commissioners and Chief Operator Manny Salvador, the operation of the Cohasset Sewer Treatment Plant has been upgraded very substantially.

Salvador was able to locate seven major breaks in the sewer lines during the heavy rains of the last few months.

These breaks were the source of very substantial infiltration flow which resulted in flow through the

Murray's memos

Report from the state house

Last week, a little noticed attempt to again undermine Proposition 2½ was halted in the House. This time it was bills from the Committee on Education that would have severly restricted a mayor's budgetary authority.

Though we succeeded in sending the legislation back to committee this time, the issue is not likely to disappear.

The legislation would have required a mayor to include the school committee's budget request, as presented, in the mayor's budget submitted to the city council. Even if the mayor believed that the amount budgetted for the schools should be increased or decreased, he would be legally bound to stay with the school committee request. The bill says the mayor may advise the city council on school funding, but that such advice would not be binding.

The effects of this, of course, would be to destroy the mayors' fiscal authority provided in Proposition 2½ and force them to bow to the school committees.

This would have a greater anti-2½ effect than the recently debated, highly controversial, local aid package taking the override from the voters and giving it to local officials. Proposition 2½ make the schools no different than any other department in terms of the budget process. This legislation would give the school committee disproportionate budget power. If, for example, the school committee proposed a 10 percent increase and that was equal to the amount of new money the city had to spend, the mayor would still be forced to submit a budget giving all the new money to the schools and short changing other municipal departments.

It's not just bad management practices. It's plain unfair.

Last week I described S1910 which changed a major provision in 2½ for 10 cities and one town "a betrayal of voters."

I fought for four days to re-instate the referendum to the people for an override of 2½.

"There were 70 courageous members in the House chamber who stood with their people and voted for the amendment," Murray said.

"We have disenfranchised the voters of these 10 cities and one town. These same voters supported 2½ seeding property tax relief and fiscal responsibility in their local governments. Should these selectmen and city counselors vote to override 2½, they will have gone against the will of their people," Murray said.

Presently any city or town with a two-thirds vote of a board of selectmen or city council may now call for a special election for the question of override of 2½. Rep. Murray introduced an amendment to the house resolution and to S1910; both bills changed the intent of the voters on the 2½ law.

During debate, the opponents of the Murray amendment implied that the local aid money was in S1910. There was no money in S1910.

Mark Lanza on Town gov't structure

By Patricia Anne Walsh

Cohasset's new Executive Secretary to the Selectmen Mark Lanza gave his opinions on Cohasset to the committee to study town government structure last week.

Lanza stressed that these are his personal opinions and in no way represent the selectmen.

Lanza was asked in his observations of town government what he felt should be restructured.

Lanza said the financial structure should be under a central control.

He said the treasurer-collector, assessors, town accountant and budgeting should be centralized. The selectmen could designate him to control it, or "more appropriately" have the town accountant coordinate them all.

Budgeting is now under the advisory committee.

Assessors and the treasurer-collector are now elected, and are not directly responsible to the selectmen. The town accountant is appointed by selectmen under Civil Service rules.

The advisory committee members are appointed by the "Troika" — the chairman of selectmen, chairman of advisory committee and town moderator.

Lanza said public works functions could be centralized. He would include the highway department, tree and park department, cemetery, pest control, sewer department, water department and building maintenance.

Now the highway department is under the elected highway surveyor. Selectmen are responsible for the tree and park commission with Peter Laugelle as their designated superintendent.

Laugelle is the elected local superintendent of pest control.

The cemetery caretakers come under the tree and park department and also selectmen.

There are three elected sewer commissioners and a chief operator of the plant, Manuel Salvador.

There are three elected water commissioners, and a superintendent of the water department, Benjamin Curley. The building inspector, zoning officer and public buildings inspector Robert Dennis are appointed by selectmen.

Donna McGee, chairman of the government structure committee, noted that Lanza gave as an example of non-centralization his telephone conversation with health inspector, Elaine Eliopoulos.

According to McGee, Lanza said he telephoned to complain of the difficulty the Mariner was having with Eliopoulos in obtaining or seeing the minutes of the board of health meetings. Eliopoulos told him he had no jurisdiction "because she came under the board of health" (who are elected, and not directly responsible to the selectmen).

The government structure committee questioned Lanza about public safety. Lanza favors having a joint civilian dispatcher because it frees up police and firemen "to do police and fire work."

At this time he does not see the need for a public safety officer in Cohasset "because the two chiefs now come under selectmen."

Lanza says the government structure committee told him when they supported the creation of the position of executive secretary (it was first proposed under the Charter movement, which failed), they intended to make it a professional administrative position with considerable authority in the day-to-day administration of the town.

However, they said, the previous selectmen established it with very limited authority in the day-to-day administration of the town.

Lanza who lives in the "old Beechwood School House" at 472 Beechwood Street has a B.S. from Bridgewater State College and a masters degree from Suffolk University in public administration with a concentration in financial administration.

Before coming to Cohasset Lanza was assistant executive secretary in Yarmouth, administrative assistant to the executive secretary and administrator for financial services and personnel in Wayland and administrative assistant to the executive secretary of the selectmen in Sharon.

McGee says the next meeting of her committee will be May 16 when they "will talk about the agendas for the next year."

CHS Senior Class play delightful

Letters

To the Editor,

With regard to Cohasset High School's Senior Class Play, as it is traditionally called, I should like to share some thoughts.

In perusing the performance programme and reading "A Musical Revue - conceived by Scott Ketcham and Jo-Ann Fichtner . . . Director, Scott Ketcham; Choreographer, Jo-Ann Fichtner; Music Director, Sandy Kravetle , , ,"I fell to musing (no, not during the show!)

In the years during which I've been involved, there has been A Musical. This year we've had several musicals, as it were, all within two hours. We've had most everything - from blues to jitterbug to opera; from French cabaret to barbershop to square dance - in solo, chorus and dance, plus combinations of these - not forgetting the romantic element and comedy sketch. A most varied "Play" indeed.

Scott wore several "hats" and I should like to suggest that to director, must surely be added vocal coach and drama coach. I personally most warmly commend him for the hours and hours he so unstintingly gave to every aspect of this year's production - from the minutest details of vocal accuracy and interpretation, to the visibly larger tasks of staging and set-designing (much of which, I understand, he did himself) - not to mention the encouragement given, and the patience demonstrated all along!

I write chiefly of Scott, since I was there on the piano bench for much of the time, but tributes too, to Jo-Ann, whose energy, enthusiasm and flair for inspired dances always leave me gasping! To Sandy also, who joined us a little later on in the proceedings, for combined rehearsals and directing the performances. Thank you, Sandy and band, for so ably - and kindly - pulling us all and keeping us together.

Finally, without cast and crew (not least, the costume-makers,) there would be nothing. Congratulations to all - you packed much, much, much talent into two delightful hours!

Education money

To the Editor:

Higher education in America suffers from the Chicken Little syndrome. Two years ago when the administration in Washington proposed severe cuts in financial aid for college students, headlines followed everywhere suggesting that the sky was falling. It did not turn out this way, but the corrective headlines about this fact have been few, illustrating a media rule: good news is no news.

Unfortunately, substantial numbers of high school students and their parents, still under the influence of those earlier reports, appear to believe that financial aid has become very scarce and that they may be denied the higher education they need.

The picture is actually more encouraging. Federal aid this year is up over last year and will rise again next year. Although eligibility rules for federal loans have been somewhat tightened, many middle-class families will still be eligible. In fact, the average family of four with an income of $60,000 will be eligible for a guaranteed loan of $2,500.

Moreover, in our state the new Massachusetts College Student Loan Authority will make loans to students and parents jointly — at manageable rates and with extended repayment schedules. The typical after-tax cost of a $5,000 loan under this program would be $50 a month.

At Boston University alone, this program will make $8 million available. In addition to these well-funded loan programs, the governor and the legislature have recently increased the badly funded state scholarship fund by $15 million. Students and parents should not lower their educational sights, for substantial financial aid continues to be available.

Elm Street Sewer Plant in excess of its permit limit.

Five of these breaks were repaired April 26.

The results which are tabulated below are striking comparing the date and the flow in gallons per day.

April 25, 169,000; April 26, 127,000; April 27, 114,000; April 28, 121,000; April 29, 105,000; April 30, 103,000; May 1, 91,000; May 2, 82,000; and on May 3, 80,000.

The plant permit is for 72,000 gallons per day.

Although the water table is still at or near record levels, daily flow is now below 80,000 gallons per day. The remaining two major leaks will be repaired within the next week, and further substantial improvements is expected.

The Sewer Commissioners plan a continuing offer to reduce infiltration from breaks in the mains and to reduce inflow which is water that is illegally pumped into the sewer system from cellar sumps.

Cellar sump water should be pumped into street storm drains, not into the sewer system.

Costs to drain Cedar St. pond estimated at $55,000

By Patricia Anne Walsh

A board of health engineer estimates it will cost about $55,000 to drain the pond at the Cedar Street landfill.

The pond is causing problems for the adjacent 18-unit Cedarledge cluster development site.

Fred DeFeo, who engineered the partial capping of the landfill for the board of health, estimated $5,000 for engineering and $50,000 for blasting and excavation.

The pond reached an elevation of nearly 57 feet in March. This is 7.3 feet above U.S. Geological Survey maps of 1977 and prior maps according to engineer John Modzelewski.

Modzelewski examined the area at the request of the board of health.

Arthur Munroe of Perkins Engineering, who furnished maps for C. and L. Realty Trust, developers of Cedarledge, agreed with the evaluation determination.

In addition to the engineers, selectmen Mary Jane McArthur and Cliff Mitman, Town Counsel Richard Henderson and John Slater, planning board members John O'Toole and Robert Sturdy, developers Joseph Crossen and John Lanata and Atty. Richard Land attended a health board meeting May 3.

DeFeo said his capping of the dump did not cause the ponding, but engineers said the unplanted impervious clay barrier might have caused some runoff problems which may have contributed to the water.

Modzelewski suggested borings of the area, spaced a few feet apart, might determine the extent of filling and movement of earth and establish causes.

DeFeo said he would refuse to allow drilling in the capped area unless under court order because he did not want to be responsible for the results.

Tree and Park Superintendent Peter Laugelle, a 49-year-old native who remembers when he bicycled and walked through the dump area as a youth, emphatically said that there was no pond there 30 to 40 years ago. "The only wet area was on the other (west) side of the capping near the well," he said.

Crossen said, "I have been asking since last November that all the refuse from the dump littering my property be cleaned up!"

Board of health member Michael Bliss said, "The litter is our problem, but do you expect someone to swim across (the pond to retrieve it)?"

Bliss was the only member of the board to suggest the operations of the dump over the last 40 years might have caused the problem. He suggested the board had some moral responsibility.

DeFeo said the ponding caused the dump to be in serious violation of D.E.Q.E. regulations which prohibit land fill within 60 feet of water. He said there were two alternatives: to fill for 60 feet from the capped area on the dump property, which would eliminate DEQE problems; or to drain the area with a pipe, engineered so there would be no problems for downstream abutters of Rattlesnake Run and Straits Pond.

Health board Chairman, Marilyn Sweeney suggested they "just fill the 60 feet."

It was suggested water displacement might cause even more water on the Cedarledge development, and Bliss objected.

Modzelewski said he wrote a letter stating the water problems this year of heavy rainfall "were unusual—in the order of a 100 year event.

"It appears to us that at one time prior to 1981 there was a surface outflow from the condo site across the landfill site. To restore this surface water outlet we recommend that a pipe through the landfill be installed . . .It appears that some time after 1974 and prior to 1981 surface water drainage from the condo site was interrupted by filling activities at the Cohasset landfill.

"Groundwater flow from the swamp on the condo site across the landfill site may have been affected by recent work at the landfill site—this may never be definitively decided.

"In a conversation with Joseph Laugelle, landfill supt., he indicated the water elevations presently at the site were higher than he's ever remembered them. He also indicated the area presently flooded on the landfill site contained refuse.

"A site visit to the landfill April 4 and other dates indicates that work has been done on the area of the landfill abutting the condominium property (and possibly on portions of the private property). Whether this work involved raising the land elevation is not known at this time, although we speculate that it did," Modzelewski wrote.

Health board member Barbara Kern said the board should send an engineer to examine any maps or documents that the state or DEQE may have from 1971 to the present regarding the landfill site and the board so voted.

Lanza seeks civil service list for EMTs

Executive Secretary Mark Lanza requested a Civil Service list of all certified EMT-firefighters so selectmen may make appointments to the fire department.

It will probably take six weeks to obtain the list from the state, Lanza predicted. Selectmen will make the appointments as soon as the list is available.

In the meantime, selectmen requested Chief Martin Dooley inform them in writing of the exact number of vacancies within the department.

According to union president William Protulis, there are only 22 firefighters in the department, although the union contract specifies there must be 24 employees. He said the union is confident selectmen will make the two necessary appointments soon, and he foresees "no problem" regarding the contractual agreement.

Selectman John DeBassio requested that Chief Dooley notify selectmen in writing about the number of vacancies, and formally request a new Civil Service list. Selectmen must be sure what appointments must be made to the department, he said.

Protulis told selectmen last week that according to the town regulation, all firefighters must be certified EMT's.

Rudolph Capparotta of Hingham, who was appointed a firefighter last October by selectmen, came before the board last week.

Although he was listed by Civil Service as a certified EMT, his certification had expired, he told selectmen last fall following his appointment to the department. Selectmen then rescinded their vote, and there has been a vacancy since that time, Lanza explained.

Since October, it has cost the town approximately $30,000 in overtime compensation because the fire department is lacking personnel, he said.

Capparotta told selectmen last week he had since been re-certified and would like to be appointed a Cohasset firefighter.

His attorney, Joseph Duffy Jr. of Hingham, told the board Capparotta had been on the job two months before the previous board of selectmen voted to rescind their vote. Since that time, his client went back into training and received his EMT certification.

Selectmen will make a determination when they receive notification of the vacancies from Chief Dooley, and after the Civil Service list is made available.

Harmonizing at the Senior Class Play "Kaleidoscope" are Barbershop Quartet members John Kuhn, Fred Zotos, Paul Johnson and Guy Martin.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

Our South Shore has been called "the land of legends, where the old meets the new." Here, where the Mayflower keel first furrowed our waters, we find grist mills, museums and antique homes nestled among our malls, condos and highways. Customs change, too, and it's hard to believe that Puritan children never sat down at the dinner table, but stood to eat their food and also remained standing when there were guests calling. Little six-year-olds were put to work around the farm, taught to knit their own stockings and help to spin the cloth for their bedsheets. Not for them a hop, skip and jump to home from the school bus with a snack awaiting of Peggy Beal's sugar-free, nourishing

GRANOLA

Heat and stir in saucepan:
1/2 c. vegetable oil
1/2 c. molasses or honey
1½ tsp. vanilla
2 T peanut butter
1/2 c. fruit juice
Mix in big kettle:
7 to 10 c. rolled oats
1 c. coconut shreds (unsweetened)
1 c. peanuts, or broken nuts
1 c. each wheat germ, sunflower seeds, banana chips and powdered milk.
1/2 c. sesame seeds and if desired, chopped dates, other flakes, seeds, dried fruits,
2 T brewer's ~~yeast~~

Pour oil mixture over dry mixture, stirring together. Bake at 250 degrees, spreading mixture in big, flat pans. Stir every 15 min. until it's all golden brown, usually about 1½ hrs. And 1 c. raisins, 1 c. carob chips. Let cool overnight. Store in tightly covered jars. May also be used as breakfast cereal with milk.

The heart of every home was the kitchen, with a huge fireplace that could hold logs five or six feet long. Around this immense hearth the Puritan women kept their big iron kettles, skillets, long forks, tongs and the very important warming pan. A narrow bench with a very high back to keep out drafts was set next to the fire and along the wall were shelves where the Puritans kept their precious pewter plates and mugs. How lucky we are to have no more to do than set the dial for 400 degrees to heat our modern ovens for 20 min. to make Jane Rogerson's

CARROT BRAN CUPCAKES

1 c. all-purpose flour
1/2 c. brown sugar
1/3 c. sugar
1½ c. wheat bran cereal, crushed
1/2 c. raisins
1/3 c. pecans
2 tsp. baking powder
2 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. salt
1½ c. shredded carrots
1/2 c. vegetable oil
1 egg
1/4 c. milk

Combine first nine ingredients. Make a well and set aside. Combine carrots, oil, egg and milk. Add to dry ingredients. Stir till just moist. Fill muffin pans 2/3 full. Makes 1½ doz. Frosting: 3 oz. cream cheese, add powdered sugar, orange rind and orange juice to moisten.

* * *

An occasion for feasting and games was when the Puritans got together for a "raising." As soon as a young man had his girl's promise of marriage, it was his task to start building a house and friends and neighbors gathered to spend a day helping to build the cabin. I'm sure we'd be most welcome at any gathering if our contribution to the meal was Betty Pace's

BROCCOLI PUFF

1 10-oz. pkg. frozen broccoli cuts
1 can cream of mushroom soup
2 oz. sharp cheese, shredded
1/4 c. milk
1/4 c. mayonnaise
1 beaten egg
1/4 c. fine dry bread crumbs
1 T butter or oleo, melted

Cook broccoli according to directions, omitting salt and drain thoroughly. Place in 10x6x1½" casserole dish. Stir together soup and cheese. Gradually add milk, mayo and egg to soup mixture, stirring till well blended. Pour over broccoli. Combine bread crumbs and oleo, sprinkle evenly over soup mixture. Bake in 350 degree oven for 45 min., till crumbs are lightly browned. Serves six.

Art Center plans NYC trip

Join the South Shore Art Center's June 10 trip to New York City to view the "Vatican Collections: The Papcy and Art" at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

There will also be an opportunity to see two British collections currently running at the Museum as part of a city-wide celebration of "Britain Salutes New York 1983." "Constable's England," a vibrant collection of John Constable's paintings and sketches and "Henry Moore: Sixty Years of His Art," a retrospective exhibition of the sculptor's work, are both on display.

The one-day trip leaves Cohasset at 6:30 a.m. and returns in the late evening.

For registration and information contact Ruth Rosenblatt at Cerel's Travel Center, Natick, 237-6190.

28TH ART FESTIVAL

New to the South Shore Art Center's 28th Annual Summer Art Festival is a juried crafts exhibit to which all craftspersons are invited to submit work for selection.

Interested artisans must submit 10 slides of recent work to the Center, 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset by May 20. Those exhibitors selected must provide their own tables and display material and will be responsible for setting up and taking down their booths each day.

For further information, contact the Center at 383-9548.

FESTIVAL JURORS

Six experts in the fields of art and photography were selected to serve as jurors for the selection of works to be exhibited in the Art Festival.

The festival brings together New England artists and artisans for a celebration of art through exhibits, demonstrations, craft displays and children's activities. Juried shows will be hung in painting, drawing, graphics, photography and sculpture. Awards will be given for best in show and best in each category.

All original works not previously exhibited in a South Shore Art Center Summer Festival may be submitted to the Center, 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset for consideration. Works must be at the Center by Friday, June 10, 4 to 8 p.m. or Saturday, June 11, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All paintings and photographs must be framed and wired for hanging. Clamped glass not acceptable. Sculpture must have a stand. The entry fee is $5 per entry with no limit to the number of entries.

Works not accepted by the jury may be picked up at the Center on Saturday, June 18, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Serving as jurors for this year's selections are Roger Dunn, Ned Hawkins, Lucy Baker, Bill Ravanesi, Walter Urbanowicz and Craig Easson. The combined backgrounds of the jurors should make for a good selection of art for the juried shows.

An exhibit of work by South Shore Art Center members will also be hung. Members are invited to submit one work; artists must be current members of the Center. Four awards will be given for excellence.

For further information on the juried or members' shows please contact the Center at 383-9548.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT NORFOLK DIVISION
Docket No. 83F1065E1

Estate of MARGARET L. SPENCER late of Cohasset in the County of Norfolk:

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that JAMES B. AMES of Cambridge in the County of Middlesex be appointed Executor named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on May 25, 1983.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 2A.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, the second day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighty three.

Mitman will make the commitment

Despite his hectic professional schedule developing compensation plans for executives and corporations in the Boston area, Mitman in the past has devoted any spare time to "coaching whatever youth teams were around—for some sports I never even knew how to play."

His participation in the local athletic teams led to a greater involvement in community affairs. He was appointed to a three-year term on the personnel board and was serving the first year of another term when he resigned after his election to the board.

Because a member may not stay on the personnel board for more than two consecutive terms, his decision to seek the selectman's seat "would not leave the other members in the lurch," he says.

Mitman is content that the other members of the present board are quite capable, and he never felt he was deserting his former board members by announcing his candidacy for selectman.

Describing himself as a "generalist," the Yale graduate feels the office of selectman inherently possesses a broad overview of the functions and facets of town government.

"Selectmen have to know what is going on in the town, regarding all town departments, employees, committees, commissions and boards," he said. "My work is the same way—similar to the way in which a selectman should function. In my business, I must treat each client as if he were my only one. A selectman must also deal with specific issues as they come up, in an organized manner. As a practical matter, this is why the selectmen's membership went from three to five. The fact is, we now have five members and we can do things now which would be very difficult with just three members."

Although he was originally neutral about the concept of a five-member board, the 44 year-old Beach Street resident believes the larger membership will function beneficially for the town.

Liaisons between selectmen and all town committees and departments are now being formed. Mitman said with more members, the personal contact between the selectman-liaison and various boards and departments will be more effective.

"The liaison will eliminate some of that lack of communication between town departments," he adds. "Although we won't be able to attend every meeting of various boards, it will give us a much better level of communication. That is something a three-member board of selectmen would find more difficult to do. But I think it is important for the board of selectmen to become pro-active rather than reactive."

As an observer to the board of selectmen prior to his election, Mitman feels the past board often "reacted to problems—they put out the fire" rather than confront issues before they ignited into a full-fledged inferno.

"I hope with this new board, we will change that previous posture—that issues are only dealt with when they come to our desk," he adds.

Relaxing in his spacious Mediterranean-style home overlooking the rocky ledges of Little Harbor, Mitman says he is pleased the board initiated steps toward better communication between town departments and the public.

Selectmen will soon begin one-hour "meet-the-public" sessions at town hall Thursday evenings, which will be held on quarterly intervals.

No agendas will be formulated. It will be an open forum for residents ot come into town hall "to discuss anything on their minds."

Along with this innovation, Mitman would also like to see a refined version of the town report produced quarterly. This newsletter would explain, not in great detail, what the town government is doing.

For people who are not avid newspaper readers, this would serve as a further attempt to strengthen the communication between the government and the people it serves, Mitman says.

Another tool the selectmen must utilize to its fullest capacity is the office of the executive secretary.

Mitman acknowledges since this is a relatively new position, some details of the job must still be ironed out.

Mitman at the mike

The selectmen must use the position as a conduit to further cooperation and communication among town departments, he says.

Although Town Accountant William Signorelli will have the daily supervision of the new computer system, Mitman is excited at the prospects of the town's entrance into hi tech.

He believes the new system will allow the town to function more efficiently, to streamline between departments, although not necessarily more cheaply than is presently done.

Departments, particularly the assessing office, will find computers a necessity, he says. And record-keeping in all offices will be more effective and orderly with the system.

Instances, such as two years ago when town meeting was asked to accept a policy which had previously been approved six years ago, will likely not occur with computerized record-keeping, he says.

There are many intriguing issues facing the town currently, and in the future, Mitman believes. The sewer controversy will continue to remain in the forefront. His main concern at this moment, is to meet personnally with state and federal environmental officials. He sees them now acting in an adversary capacity, which is difficult for him to understand or tolerate.

Although he is not as adequately informed of the intricacies involved as he soon will be, Mitman says, "the state and federal people seem to be locked into one position and they don't want to admit there may be another way around. Their letters to the town seem almost off-handed. They treat us as an adversary."

Further implications of sewering the town must be examined by selectmen, planning board and other town committees, he says.

What development the town will allow in the future, any restrictions to population growth and future building, must be addressed beforehand, he adds.

The pattern of future town growth, and what the town will permit, must be examined now, Mitman says.

Mitman feels selectmen must develop a close communication between planning, zoning and all boards concerned with the future growth patterns of Cohasset.

There are presently no regulations regarding the drainage issue, he says, and for the future of the town there should be some guidelines established.

"Selectmen have to start thinking about such issues before it becomes a crunch. We need better control over the drainage in this town," he says.

Other issues with similar resounding effects are the future of the town dump and the transportation woes facing the South Shore.

Regional solutions should be addressed, Mitman feels, although he does not necessarily propose such alternatives.

In the near future, Mitman predicts selectmen will scrutinize the town's participation in county government.

"We have a right to demand to know what exactly we are getting from the county for $100,000 each year," he says. "And we have the right to put pressure on the county to change anything we might not like. Right now, the county can't even tell us what we are getting for that amount."

Mitman says many more 'hot items' confront Cohasset. This new selectman looks forward to the challenges awaiting him.

The luncheon choices are: Broiled Schrod - $5.50, Boneless Fried Chicken - $5.50, Lobster Roll - $5.50 and Haddock au Gratin - $5.50.

Delmonico potatoes and a vegetable will also be served, family style. All prices include tax, tip and coffee.

Tickets may be picked up at the home of Debbie Hanian, 33 Windy Hill Road, Cohasset, or check and menu choice, along with a self-addressed stamped envelope, can be mailed to the above address.

Babysitting will be available at Kids Count II, First Parish Road, Scituate, at a cost of $4 per child. Reservations can be made by calling 545-6755.

Boosters Awards Night

The Cohasset Boosters Club has mailed cards to parents of students playing spring sports announcing Spring Sports Awards Nite is Sunday, May 22 at 7 p.m. at the CHS cafeteria.

This is a dessert only event. Parents are welcome to "make your own sundae" at $1 per person at 7 p.m. or for awards at 8 p.m.

Reservations are recommended by May 18 to P.O. Box 511, Cohasset 02025, or parents may pay at the door. Anyone who didn't receive a card should call 383-0292.

Historical Society Flea Market

The Cohasset Historical Society will hold its annual Spring Flea Market Saturday, May 21 at the Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. A wide range of pre-owned items, from books to household equipment to sporting goods and clothing will be featured.

Refreshments, including fresh baked goods, will be available, along with soft drinks.

This annual event is a fundraising occasion for the Historical Society's museums and programs.

Dealers' table spots are available. Call Mrs. Parker at 383-6930 or 383-0773 for more information.

Deer Hill Fair

For the last two months the sixth grade students at Deer Hill have been working hard on their School Fair projects. These projects involve a written report, a display and an oral speech. A student is judged on all three parts. Awards will be given to the winners of the various categories.

The projects will be set up in the gym from May 10-12. Open House is Thursday, May 12 from 7:30-8:30.

Razmataz 'swings' in

On Wednesday, May 11, a jazz show band called Razmataz is coming to the Scituate High School auditorium. For one single evening on the South Shore, the Swing Era will again be alive; will again spread its irresistible and infectious excitement.

For one magical evening, musical giants like Duke Ellington, Ella Fitzgerald, The Andrew Sisters, the Dorsey Brothers and Glen Miller will again take willing spirits in hand and show them how to dance and keep time to a jive beat.

For three years a solid hit in Boston clubs and concerts, Razmataz brings its energetic and up-tempo '40s show to the Scituate High School auditorium to benefit the Montessori Community School Building Fund. Tickets for both the 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. shows may be purchsed at the Welch Company, Nantucket Sound in the Hanover Mall, the Pilgrim Book Store at Pembroke Plaza or at the door.

To order tickets by phone, or for more information, call 545-5544.

NOW on 'Car Maintenance'

'Car Maintenance' will be the subject of the May meeting of the South Shore chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) on Thursday, May 12, at 8 p.m. at the Norris home at 299 Old Oaken Bucket Rd. in Norwell. It will be led by Paul Nawazelski, owner of P. and J. Automotive in Hanson.

The program will explain basic tuneup procedures and present preventative maintenance procedure. A major goal will be to teach participants what usual noises in the car might mean and when they are of concern to safety and car operation. Also covered will be good consumer practices when one is looking for a car repair shop. Anyone interested in becoming more car wise is invited to attend.

Nawazelski was formerly head of the Service Department at Sears in Hanover. He is willing to answer questions and demonstrate basic car maintenance techniques to those in attendance.

Cohasset Gardeners spring trip

The Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset are planning a trip to "The Vale," Waltham, Thursday, May 12. Members will meet at the Town Hall parking lot at 11:30 a.m. Fees are $2 to tour the house, $1.50 for the Greenhouse.

No lunch will be served. Transportation — car pool.

The regularly monthly meeting will be held May 24 at 1 p.m. at the home of Ruth Briggs. A plant and food sale will be held at that time. Hostess, Isabelle Wilson; co-hostess, Elinor Kennedy.

'Plaza Suite' Run ends this weekend.

By David Wadsworth

The 1982-83 community theater season on Cohasset's Town Hall stage will see as its final production Neil Simon's three-act comedy "Plaza Suite." Performances are Thursday, May 12 through Saturday, May 14; curtain time is 8 p.m. Tickets at the door; for the Thursday performance, senior citizens are invited at no charge and students at a discount.

Cohasset's Town Hall stage has been the scene of many amateur and professional stage productions. The Dramatic Club has shared the footlights with some of the leading Hollywood and Broadway performers such as Humphrey Boagart, Broderick Crawford and Thornton Wilder during the era of South Shore Players, a professional summer theater active in the 1930's and 1940's.

The Town Hall dates from 1857, and its present auditorium was constructed in a 1928 renovation of the building. Previously there had been two smaller halls, called the "Upper" and Lower" halls. That renovation saw today's high-ceilinged auditorium made to eliminate the old second story of the building.

Cohasset's town offices now rest on a floor itself suspended from large vertical girders, visible along the sides of the auditorium. That renovation also saw the removal of a broad and grand central stairway which rose to the Upper Hall from the building's entranceway.

The new auditorium soon became the center for many community activities including both amateur and professional theatrical groups, church fairs, dances and weekly movies. For a number of years, Cohasset entrepreneur Nicholas Simeone entertained the town's youth with regular moving picture shows. Several community organizations used the big hall for events of instructional or festive nature.

Below the stage the old banquet kitchen can still be found, and the now empty air-shaft of an early "dumb-waiter" can be located in the cellar.

GIRLS TENNIS

The girls varsity tennis team still holds onto their undefeated record of 8-0 halfway through the season.

Senior Krissie Ralff and the doubles team of Nancy Walls and Ingrid Anderson are key factors in this year's squad, with personal unblemished records.

Last week the girls defeated South Shore League opponent Abington 5-0. First singles player, Joy Pratt, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2; second singles, Krissie Ralff, 6-0, 6-2, 6-2; third singles, Diane Mullen, 6-0, 6-0. Doubles team, Nancy Walls and Ingrid Anderson, 6-1, 6-0; second doubles, Jenny Mitman and Jessica Hamilton, 6-0, 6-0.

The Skippers have a home match this Thursday vs. Middleboro at 3:15.

BOYS TENNIS

The CHS boys tennis team, now 4-3, defeated Abington's Green Wave 4-1 last week.

Singles: Paul Riley, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2; Brian Ramsey, 6-3, 6-3; John Colocosis, 6-2, 6-0.

Doubles: Bill Davenport and Chris Peachell, 6-2, 7-6.

The second doubles team of Linton Young and Chris Neelon put up a big fight in their match, but were defeated 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

The boys have a home match Wednesday vs. league rival Hull at 3:15.

Wilkin member of Fire and Rescue squad

Mark Wilkin is a member of the St. Michael's College Fire and Rescue Squad, a special team which protects St. Michael's College and surrounding communities from fire.

Wilkin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Wilkin, is a rookie on the fire squad. He was a probate from September to December, watching and learning about firefighting. Part of his four-month probationary period was a 45-hour firemanship course, in which he learned about fire behavior, ventilation, protective breathing and other information necessary to become an effective and safe firefighter.

After completing his probationary period, Wilkin, a sophomore business major, was made a senior member and vice president of the fire and rescue squad. His administrative post as vice president puts him in charge of fund-raising and he chairs the membership committee. His fund-raising efforts were vital in the purchase of the new ambulance.

As a senior member of the squad, Wilkin is engineer of the truck. When on a call Wilkin runs the fire engine's switchboard, which channels water through the hoses and controls water pressure.

Softball players sought

The Cohasset boys softball team is looking for other high school boys teams to play.

If interested, contact Nancy Keely at the high school, 383-6103.

Amy Duncombe invited to ski camp

By Alana O'Brien

Amy Duncombe, a sophomore at CHS was invited by the U.S. Ski Team to attend the Junior Development Camp this summer at Mt. Hood in Oregon.

Amy spent five months this winter, from November to March, at a ski academy in New Hampshire with 20 other boys and girls.

At the Academy, Amy spent her weekends competing in races while her weekdays were spent in heavy training and classes.

Her active daily schedule included dry land training early in the morning. Nine a.m. to 12 was ski time. From 1 p.m. to 4:30 she attended classes from 4:30 to 6; more dry land training and study hall was at 6 p.m.

Amy qualified for several important races. She competed in the Canadian Nationals where she was ranked nationally from two impressive finishes.

In the Junior II Olympics, Amy had a second place finish and two third place finishes which placed her in an overall seventh place among the top 15 and 16 year-olds east of the Mississippi.

The Spring Elite Series was the last series Amy qualified for. This Series included the top girls of all ages and Amy placed among the top 15.

Amy also competed in many open races where she usually placed among the top five.

Amy, an honor roll student, has been a member of the varsity soccer team since seventh grade, plays on the softball team and is a top sailor at the Cohasset Yacht club.

DeSantis to meet with Federal officials

Chairman of the Cohasset sewer commissioners, Charles DeSantis said he will meet with E.P.A. officials in Boston at 2 p.m. Wednesday, May 11 in the J.F.K. Building. E.P.A. officials said the meeting is to be "closed," not "open," said DeSantis.

Cohasset will be represented by DeSantis, Edward Guild, Engineer Joseph Ward and Assistant Town Counsel Stephen Rider.

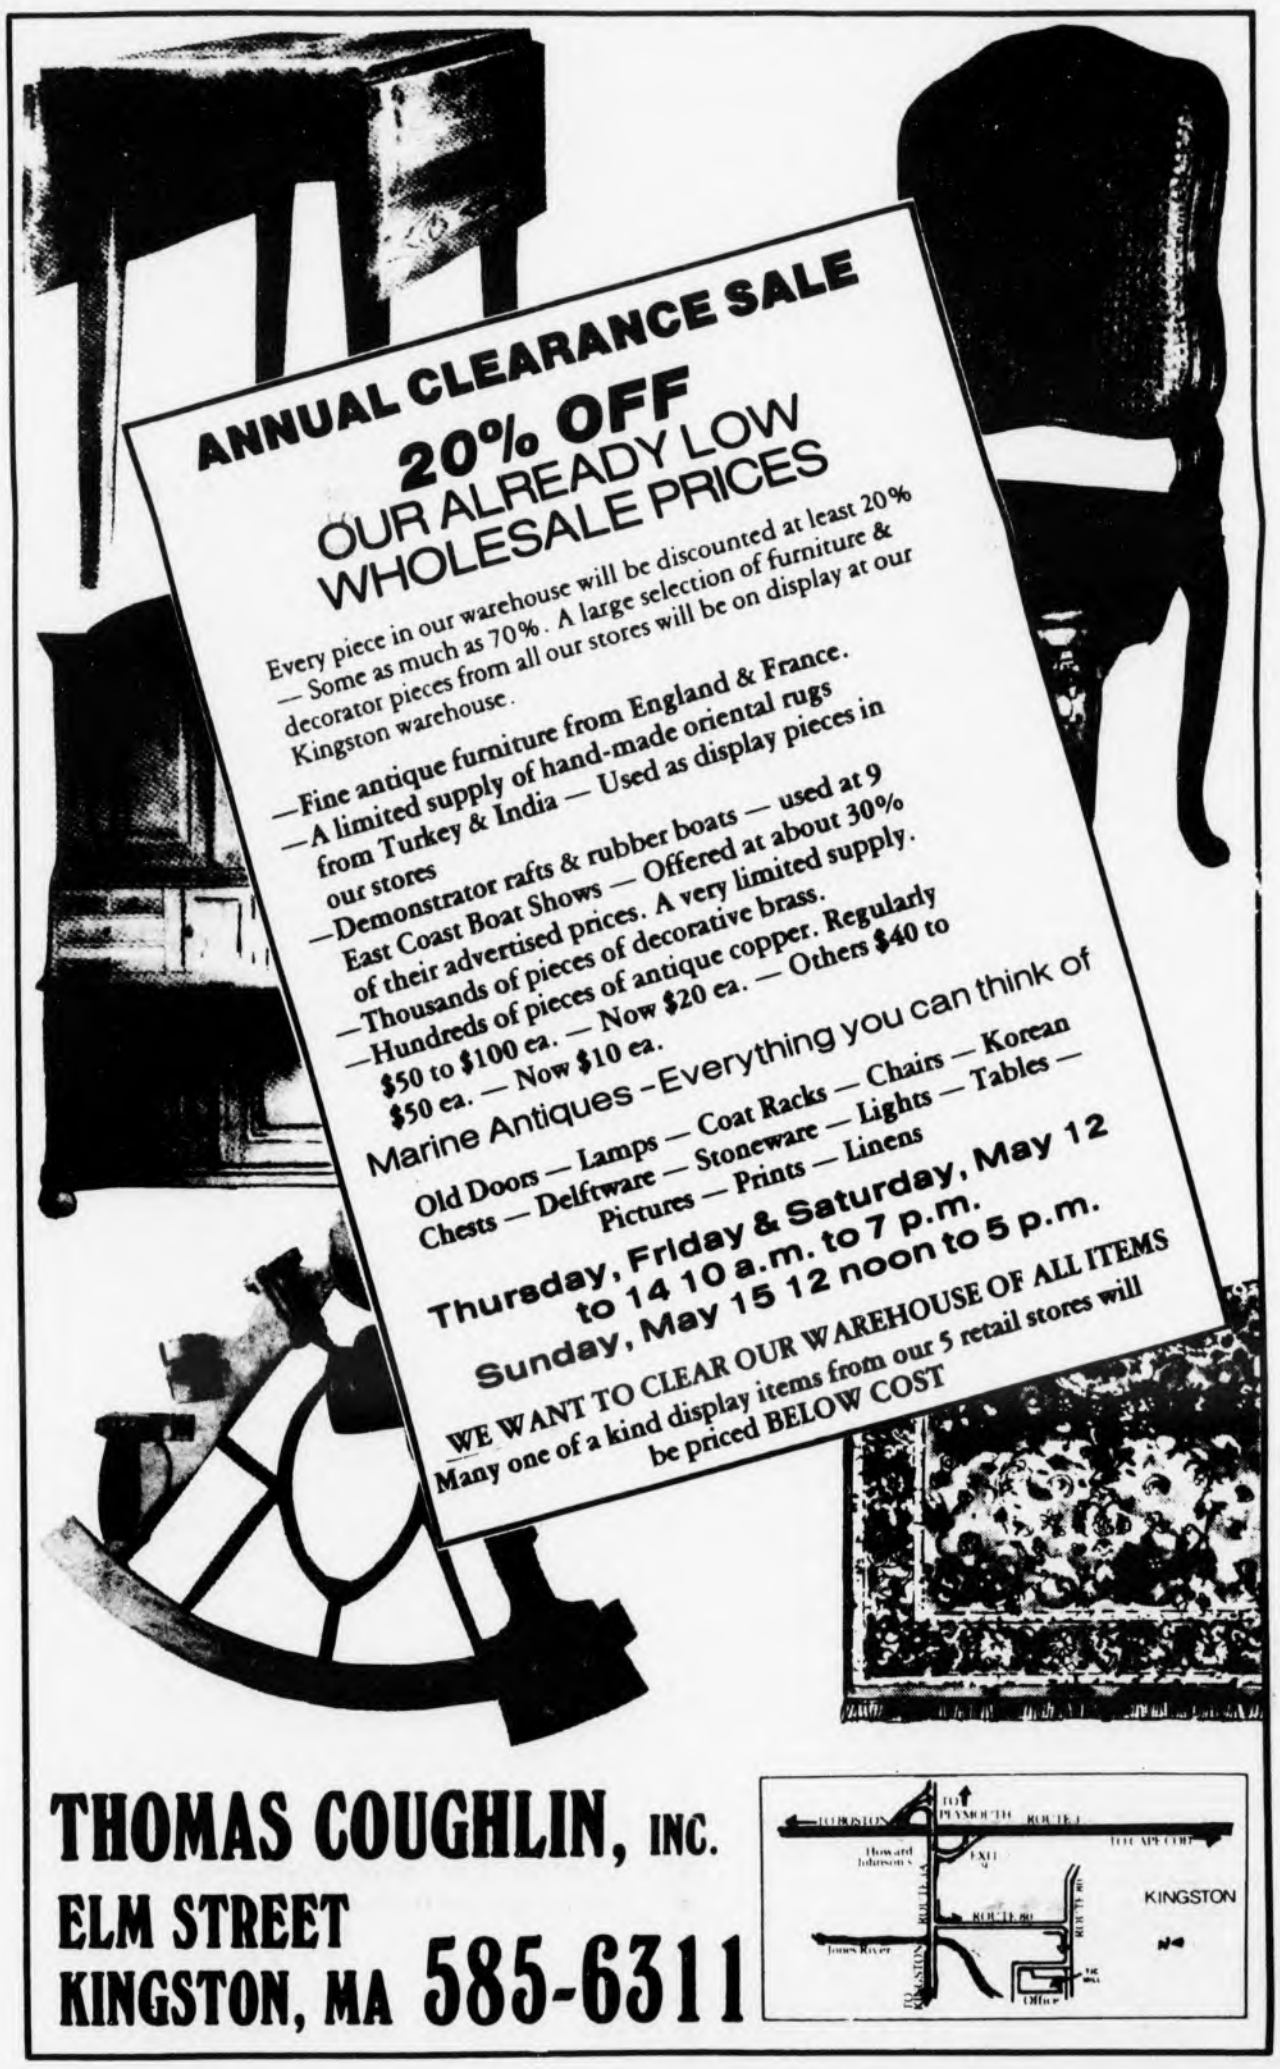
DeSantis wants to discuss a letter from the U.S. EPA Acting Director Myron Tiemens of the facility requirements division, concerning affordability guidelines. He also wants to discuss any proposed FNSI, and his objective to get a Supplementary Facilities Plan funded and started to "answer all the questions an EIS will address."

CREATING POSITIVE FAMILIES... WHAT CAN I DO?

What can I do? As a guidance counselor, clergyman or organization leader, you can help guide the families you work with in a positive direction.

What can I do? As a parent, you can learn methods to deal positively and effectively with your children and/or spouse.

What can I do? As a mother, you can learn how to balance all the commitments at home with a fulfilling career.



At Centering Psychological Services, we can help you learn what what you can do at our Spring series of workshops entitled CREATING POSITIVE FAMILIES. This FREE series will be offered at the following times:

Show biz at the vet's office

By Lois Martin

Power is having the biggest dog at the vet's. Popularity is having the cutest puppy. Course when there are several of us presuming to have the cutest one, we compromise. We condescend to compliment the other little dogs. Knowing full well ours outstrips theirs, we can afford to be generous.

Lilly and I have been making routine out-patient visits for puppy shots to her doctor's office. And our trips have proved more entertaining than a television comedy.

People and pets are performers. A vet's office is a piece of show biz.

Lilly and I pranced on either end of a leash into Dr. Russo's office a month or so ago. She was atwitter with anticipation. There was only one other animal ahead of us. It was a large cat accompanied by a mother and two girls. The cat sat listlessly among them on the bench. She hadn't been feeling well, the mother explained. We worried together about that...Until the door opened producing a youngish woman who was bellowing threats toward the entrance. "You better behave or you're gonna get it," she warned. She was pulling on a mammoth leash. I reined Lilly in beneath my legs and the woman with the cat threw her entire body over the feline.

After more mini invectives and implied promises of bodily harm, the object of the woman's frustration lumbered through the door. It was a huge husky looking Malamute, I think. His appearance put the rest of us on full alert. But a second glance showed a terrified animal, not a terrifying one.

The woman dragged the reluctant living carcass toward the reception desk for appointment registration. "Bear," she said, "has a terrible cough and a runny nose." I checked Bear's nose visually. It wasn't running at the moment but it was apparent he wasn't up to par. He was commanded in full paragraphs of weary remonstances to sit down on the other side of the petition. He did so. Order was restored to the office.

A car screeched into the parking lot. A woman ran in the office, gesticulating in panic toward the car. Behind her was a troop of kids. A dog had been hit at the bus stop. It wasn't hers but she got it and all the kids at the stop on the emergency run for help.

We watched anxiously as the animal was rushed in the side door for assistance. He got it and would recover.

From behind the petition, Bear's cough commenced. At first it was inspired by a seeming tickle in the throat, one that advanced to a rasping hack, evolving into a full-throated nasty whoop. His nose had to be running after that session. A good dose of hot tea with lemon and honey, I thought, for good ole Bear. The pet had my full affection by then, in part because of his respiratory congestion but mostly because of his endurance of well-meaning discipline.

A man brought his aged mother into the office. She was transported on his arm but it was she who held the leash for Heidi, a poodle. Heidi's age was comparable to that of the owner. And I figured what hadn't ailed the woman was suffered by the poodle. Further, Heidi hated being where she was. When her turn arrived, she was dragged on all fours by the son and his mother.

Next was Satin, a cat boasting 26 years of living. The woman at the desk couldn't believe it. That would, we all calculated, make Satin 183 years old. She had taken good care of herself, believe me. She was the grand dame of the office, admired for longevity.

The emergency slowed the schedule. So Lilly and I got to see yet another pet. It was a Laphsa Apso. Restraining some of her hair from her eyes was a rhinestone barrett. I have since hoped that the owner was not put off by a fellow visitor who was bent over in gales of laughter at the sight of "Lappy." She said they shared barretts. The clasp allowed vision for one big brown eye. The other was veiled behind the shag, dose to the color of mine, similar style even, though hers was somewhat neater with the hair ornament and all.

Finally Lilly and I were ushered to see the doctor. He gushed over her appropriately. I had counted on that. What good's a vet if he doesn't think your dog's wonderful. As the master of a great orchestra conducts his symphony, so Doc Russo took Lilly through her shots. She was carressed through the needle's puncture as he spoke to her of her own beauty, her value. Thus, while Lilly trembled with the medical administrations, she preened under his devotion.

The perfect couple, Doc & a dog.

We left saying goodbye to our new friends in the waiting room. We had shared an experience that was relished.

We have to go back for the final round of puppy preparedness this week. And I'll feel better as soon as I know Bear's cough has let up.

Angler's Corner

By Greg Derr

Shad fishing is the hot item this week with most local runs ready to peak.

The Indian Head River has been the scene of most fishing, attracting hundreds of anglers after dusk who try to hook into one of these powerful fighters.

Last week I had the opportunity to watch a number of anglers hook and land fish at the pool on Riverside Drive in Hanover. Among the crowd was angler Bill Smith, the current I.G.F.A. record holder on 2-pound test line. His fish weighed five pounds, six ounces and was caught in the North River. Many fish larger have been taken this year on larger line, so the skillful fisherman using the right gear could break his record.

Small and large-mouth bass are active now that the spawning season is approaching. They can readily be caught on surface as well as swimming lures, with larger lures landing larger fish. Early morning and dusk are better than mid-day, bass fish usually avoid the direct sun.

Sunfish and crappie are less sun conscious and can fill the gaps in any anglers day. The species will hit tiny lures or popping bugs.

On Sunday the annual Marshfield Rod and Gun Club fishing derby gets underway.

Kids 12 and under should provide their own fishing rods and bait; the derby starts at 1 p.m. and prizes will be given to the girls and boys with the largest fish, the smallest, and the most fish. The club is located on School Street in Marshfield off either Routes 139 or 3-A.

Fair weather has graced the salt water fisherman the past few days, and aside from the weather, fish have cooperated by being caught in abundance.

Capt. Roger Jarvis of the Misty took a charter to Pollock Shoals; the angler boated about 250 pounds of cod ranging from 4-10 pounds.

Most cod are being taken on sea clams.

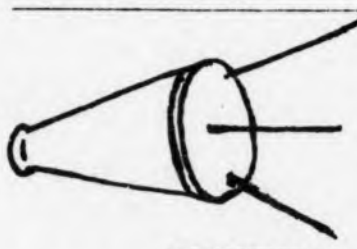
Inshore yellowtail flounder are being caught at the mouths of most harbors, including Hull Gut, Cohasset, Scituate, the North River, Green Harbor and off the Gurnet.

The Gurnet is usually hot on the turn of the tide (check Mariner classified page for chart) and sea worms are your best prime weapon if fished on the bottom in a slow drift.

Spotty schools of mackerel have been seen near Minot Light off Cohasset. Mackerel, being mid-to-surface feeding fish that are prone to migrate, can't be counted on to hold in one area for any great length of time. One way to find macks is to keep a sharp eye on the surface of the water. At the smallest sight of activity, slow your boat and sneak up on the spot. Then drop the traditional X-mas tree jig over the side and to the bottom, slowly retrieving it to the surface. If a fish hits memorize the depth and try again this time.

Mom & son Ely Kahan fish at Factory Pond.

A Beautiful Approach to Country Living.



You drive in through meadows strewn with seasonal wildflowers. But that's only your entry to the good life at The Meadows, The Green Company's new community of attached single family homes in Hingham. The architectural style is true to the farm-house heritage of the community. The construction and detailing have been accomplished with obvious pride.

The Meadows offers a selection of two and three bedroom homes with unexpected details like master suites with private fireplaced sitting areas, large country kitchens for informal entertaining, separate dining rooms for more formal occasions, hidden corners for quiet contemplation, and a mix of ceiling heights and styles. In addition there are large private courtyards, two-car garages, full basements, a swimming pool, whirlpool, tennis courts and a clubhouse. And best of all, this very civilized lifestyle is near major highways to the cultural delights of Boston and vacation areas to the North and South.

Prices range from $157,000 to $210,000 during this, our opening period. Furnished models are open every day from 9 to 5. Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street, one mile to our entrance. Call (617) 740-1500 for an appointment. When it comes to a good life in the country, The Meadows leads the field!

SUNDAY, MAY 15

Deer Hill band will perform its spring concert program at Scituate High School at 3 p.m. Seven other South Shore towns are participating in music festival from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

DEER HILL OUTDOOR SCHOOL UPDATE

The fifth grade outdoor school program will begin Monday, May 23. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings students will participate in a succession of courses, such as terrarium building, nature study, gravestone rubbing, environment studies and a historical bike tour of Cohasset.

Monday afteroon "Oxxie" will perform a program of "Fins, Flukes and Flippers," a multi-media presentation which has received national acclaim. The PSO provided funds for this program which will be viewed by all Deer Hill students.

Tuesday afternoon fifth grade students will prepare for their Wednesday and Thursday outings to Peddock's Island, where they will study forestry, cultivated and indigenous plants, military and living history, costumes and scripts and they will go on a beach scavenger hunt.

Outdoor school week will close with a field day and picnic at Sandy Beach.

All students will be transported to and from school on their assigned buses during the week and arrangements for transportation to the courses offered will be similar to any conventional field trip (school buses will be used).

FLAG

Matt Silvia's outdoor school flag design won the votes of his fellow fifth grade students and will fly from the school flagpole during outdoor week. Thereafter, it will hang in the hallway along with past winning designs.

Karen Crehan is transforming the design into a flag...keep an eye on the flagpole for its debut.

PSO EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

The final executive board meeting of the 1982-83 school year will be held Thursday, May 12 at 8 p.m. in room 107 at the high school.

Following the regularly scheduled business will be a discussion of new items on the agenda: Cable TV, fingerprinting of students and PSO evaluation. The membership is cordially invited to attend.

1983-1984 SLATE OF OFFICERS

Maria Plante, chairman of the PSO Nominating Committee, announced the slate of officers for '83-'84. The Executive Board will be headed by Sue McNamara, president; Ed Atkinson, vice president; Carol Proodian, secretary and Alex Spooner, treasurer.

School representatives are Kyle Lubitz and Alicia Spenlinhauer, Osgood; Eileen Corbett and Marie Leary, Deer Hill; Karen Kirkendall and Robin Suhrbier, jr. high, and Fran Drinkwater and Mary Hartwell, sr. high.

Heads of standing committees are Karin Bartow, arts enrichment; Jan Pyle and Steven Geary, fundraising; Judy Bronstein, METCO host families; Norma Grassey, special needs; Cindy Chase, publicity; Joanne Chittick, volunteers, and Jill and Roger Crafts, PSO activities.

The slate of officers will be voted on at the PSO's first annual meeting to be held Tuesday, May 24. Coffee and refreshments will be served at 7 p.m., and the program will begin promptly at 7:30. Charles Davis, chairman of the high school math dept., will be the key speaker. His presentation is an exploration of "Computers and Your Children."

Immediately following this presentation, you are invited to participate in a Computer Fair planned by Cohasset students to present a wide variety of computers and their uses. The meeting takes place in the new study hall at the high school.

COLLEGE ADMISSIONS MEETING

On Thursday, May 12 at 7:30 p.m. the guidance department has scheduled a College Admissions Meeting for juniors and their parents. The meeting will be held in the school cafeteria and will end at approximately 9:30 p.m.

James Plotner from Bridgewater State College, David Gould from Brandeis University and Tina Segalla from Emmanuel College, will be the guest speakers. They will discuss the admissions process, establishment of credentials, the college visit and completion of the college application.

The meeting will provide important information and all juniors and parents of juniors are invited to attend.

GRADE 7-11 TESTING

Tuesday, May 24 through Thursday, May 26 students in grades seven through 11 will be administered the SRA and/or the IOWA Achievement Tests. These tests are used to measure the academic growth of students, to identify individual academic strengths and weaknesses and to assist in course placement.

The results of these tests will be mailed home with final report cards. Since a substantial amount of time is needed to process and score the tests, there may not be sufficient time to offer a make-up period for tests missed due to absence. Therefore, students are asked to be in attendance for the entire testing period.

Register for sailing

Applications are now available for the Cohasset Sailing Club summer program. This successful program will begin its 24th season June 27 and run through Labor Day.

Supervised classes for juniors will meet for two-hour sessions three days a week. There will be four different levels of sailing ability from beginners to advanced sailing and racing. To be eligible for junior training a student must have either completed the fourth grade by June 1983 or be at least ten years old by Labor Day 1983.

Adult classes will be offered as well. Basic sailing will meet Saturdays and intermediate classes will meet Sundays. A basic program for adults will also meet one day during the week. For those who qualify, instruction will be offered on lasers and a 210 class boat.

Membership applications may be obtained by calling Joyce Conway, 383-1621, or writing the Cohasset Sailing Club, P.O. Box 111, Cohasset. These programs are available for Cohasset residents only.

GRANDMA'S ATTIC
"A Country Shop"
The greatest collection of country handcrafts and collectibles under one roof!

Grandma's comment of the week:
Daughter or Son going to a prom? At Grandma's we have old fashioned nosegays, to go with all the romantic taffeta gowns so popular this year. Even better, our nosegays are made with dried & silk flowers to provide a lasting remembrance of this very special evening. Nosegays can be made in all colors and are filled with lace, ribbons and sweet smelling popourri.

Grandma's thought for the week:
No one is as tired as the person who does nothing.

Blistering and peeling is by far the most common type of house paint failure. Flaking and cracking occur when the wood itself swells and shrinks due to wetting and drying out. Unless a paint coating has both good adhesion and some elastic quality, it will crack under the strain; and thus let more water in from outside — which magnifies the problem.

Please feel free to call us about any paint problems you may have with your house.

Managing money a concern

Coastal Counseling may cut service

Coastal Community Counseling Center may have to cut emergency services, residential programs and programs for people with chronic psychiatric problems, if it can't resolve its differences with the Department of Mental Health.

Coastal Community Serves Cohasset, Hingham, Scituate and Norwell.

At a Legislative Breakfast held Thursday, May 5 in its Braintree administrative office, James C. Worcester (of Weymouth) President of the Board of Directors and Dr. Sheila Baler, Executive Director of the non-profit mental health agency, described the options they are considering.

Interestingly enough, they're not really asking for more money, Baler said, "we could manage with the limited funds, what we're asking for is the flexibility to manage the money and the programs we have more efficiently."

In less than four years, Coastal Community Counseling Center has seen a 250 percent increase in services, yet Department of Mental Health contracts have provided the same funds, or minimal increases at the same time requesting major increases in service.

"We could handle that," said Baler, "if they would allow us to deploy staff and consolidate or reorganize services differently."

Today, the agency's comprehensive programs includes individual, group and family counseling, and a broad range of community workshops designed to alleviate stresses and improve skills for daily living. Those are preventive programs.

In addition, Coastal has launched a number of specific programs to meet identified needs of the population: services for alcohol troubled people and their families, residential and day treatment programs for those who have been in a psychiatric hospital or have chronic emotional problems, and respite care for retarded and handicapped persons.

As Worcester put it,"We have three questions: 1)to limit counseling services for those who cannot pay, or 2)get a divorce from D.M.H. or at least a partial separation . . .eliminating residential programs, emergency services and aftercare programs, and 3)limit salaries to staff, after we've already increased workloads and reduced health benefits. In every option, people lose."

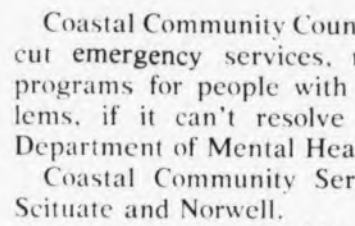
Walter Erwin, Jr. of Hingham, a CPS and Treasurer of the Board, says, "This is a very well managed center. And we have been cutting the budget for a year and a half. But you can only cut so far until you get to the bone. That's where we are right now. We have to do something."

NEW MARKETING FIRM

Coastal Community Counseling Center has retained K. Ladd Ward and Company, of Hingham, to direct its marketing communications and community relations effort.

A 24-hour, 7-day-a-week emergency service provides immediate help to people in crisis. The 24-hour telephone number is 849-1220.

K. Ladd Ward and Company is a full-service public relations and community relations agency. Headed by Kitty Ward, of Hingham, it provides communications plans, services and materials to both profit-making and not-for-profit organizations.



Gallery 360 at Mall Show

Gallery 360, a 10 office South Shore network of real estate offices, has announced it will be a major participator in the Hanover Mall Home Show opening at the Route 53 mall Tuesday, May 17.

The show runs through Sunday, May 22. The mall is open daily from 10-9:30 and Sunday from 12-5. The emphasis on this year's show is "home improvement" and there will be over 70 booths featuring goods and services.

The largest prize to be offered at the Home Show will be offered at the Gallery 360 booth, a brand new Sony Betamax system. Visitors to the Home Show may pick up a drawing form at the Gallery booth. Visitors need simply to guess the selling price of the pictured home on display. A description of the home is available in order to enhance your chances of winning.

Brokers from the 10 offices of Gallery 360 will be on hand to answer all your questions on the real estate market, whether it concerns buying, selling, relocation, mortgage rates, rentals, or guaranteed sales. Visitors are asked to pick up a free copy of our special "Home Show Preview Edition" newspaper. This colorful edition is filled with all of the latest prime real estate offerings on the South Shore.

Foam furniture, today, comes in a variety of styles, shapes and sizes. Because it is nearly impossible to determine the quality of foam furniture by sight, try these methods used by knowledgeable decorators or designers. Check the hang tag for the foam's density. The best foam for seating units is 1.5 weight. High quality pieces will be made from layers of differing density foam that are laminated together. A low quality foam will tend to sag and lose its shape due to being made of solid blocks of low-density foam. Some pieces are made of "loaded foam" that contains clay or some other materials. Try out a piece of foam furniture by sitting or lying on it. It should provide firm, uniform support.

Are you having trouble keeping up with the rapid changes in furniture and decorating? No need to worry! We a BOUND BROOK PAINT & HARDWARE are here to do all this plus much more for you. You will find us at 763 Country Way, N. Scituate where we are open Mon-Wed 8-6, Thurs & Fri till 8:30, Sat till 5 or phone 545-3624. Our services include paints, wallpaper, sundries, window treatments, hardware, glass and screen repairs.

Decorating Tip:
Foam furniture can provide both fun and function.

Could save $6 million

Cohasset, Hull to meet over joint sewer project

By Jane Lane and Patricia Anne Walsh

Selectmen will be scheduling a joint meeting with the Hull Board of Selectmen to discuss the feasibility of contructing an intermunicipal sewer tie-in between the two towns.

At last week's meeting of Cohasset selectmen, the board voted unanimously to support a resolution expressing the intent to explore that sewage disposal solution.

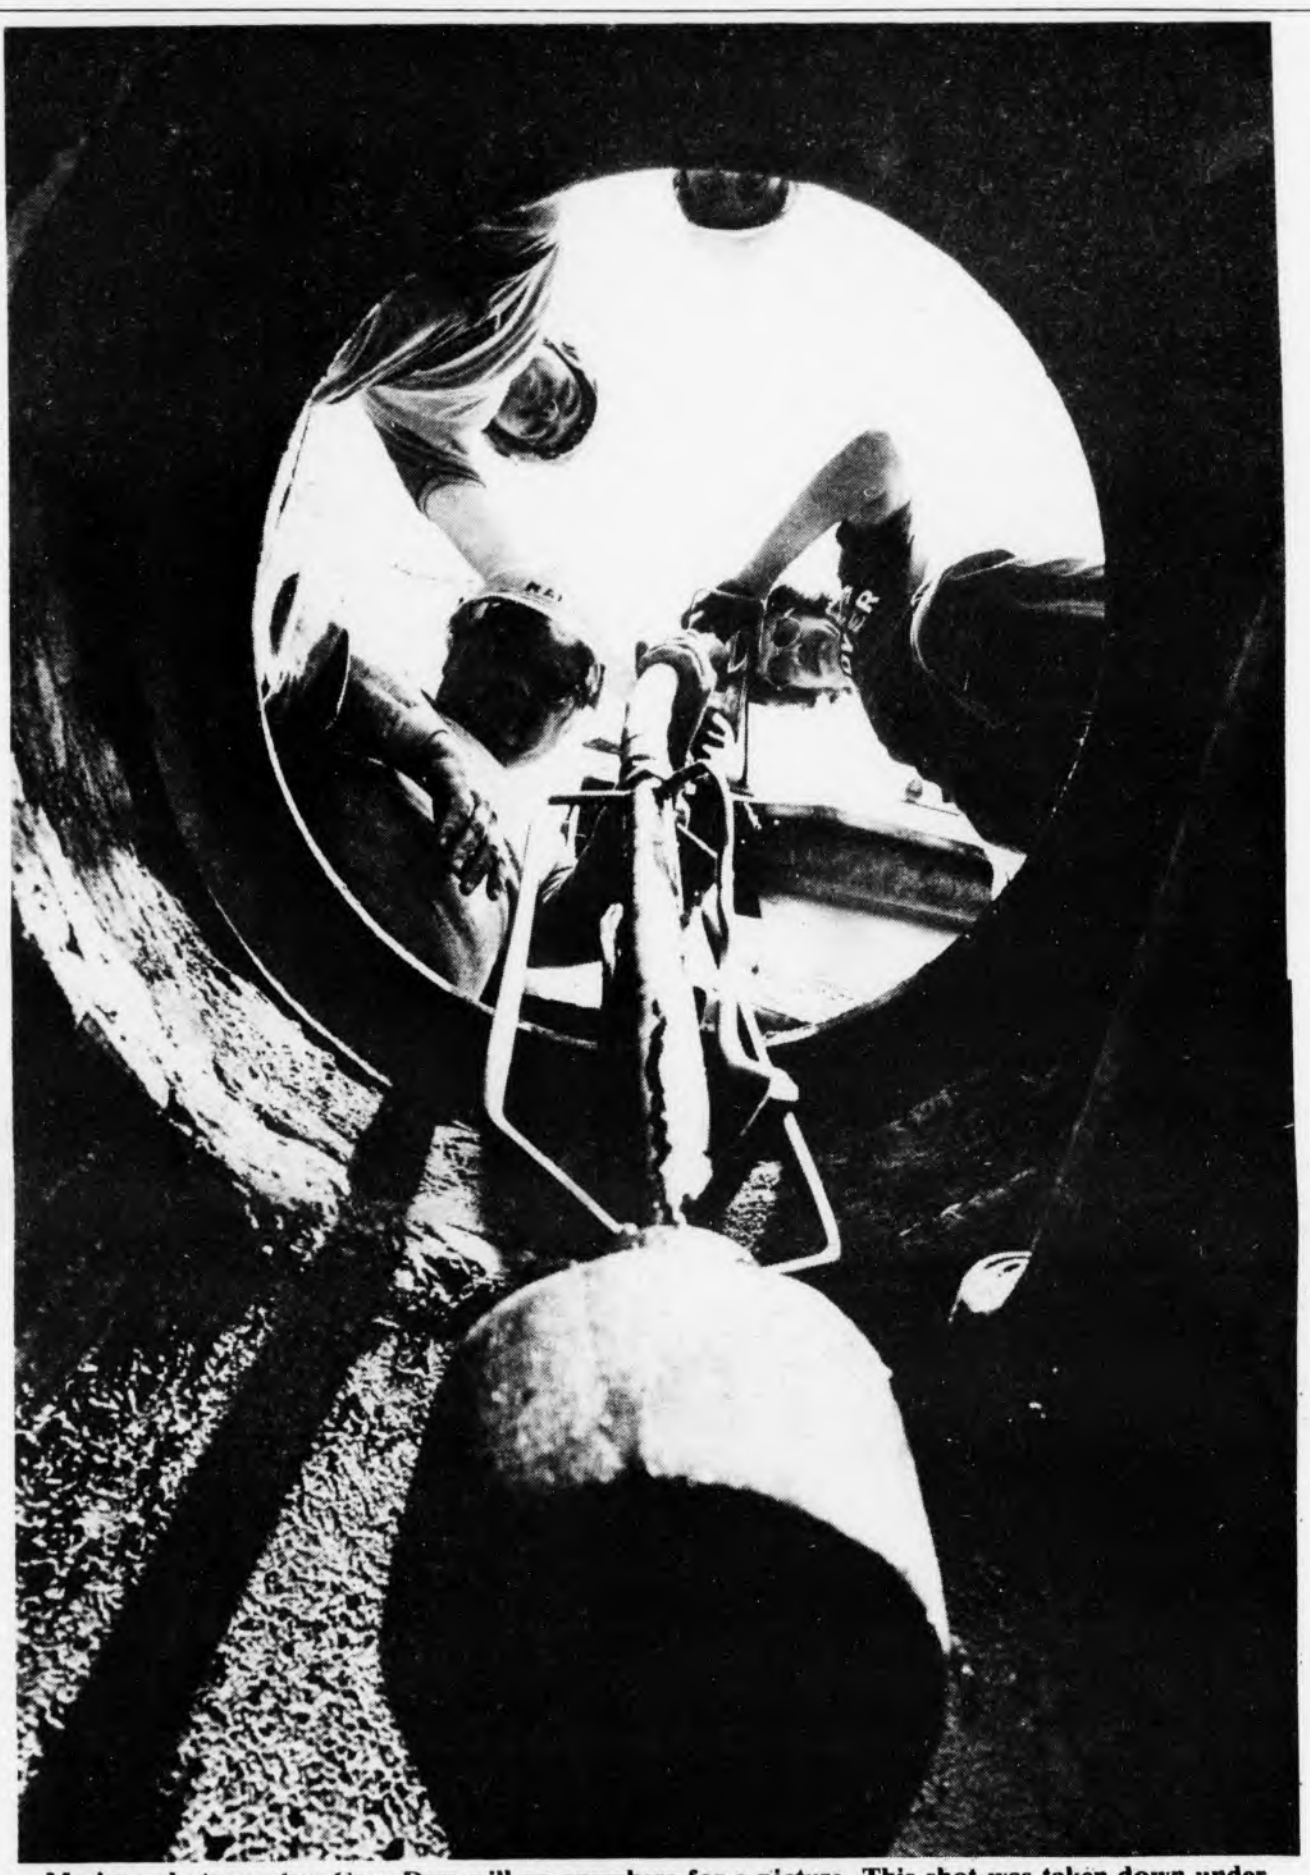
According to the resolution drafted by Sewer Commission chairman Charles DeSantis, an intermunicipal tie-in could potentially save the town, state and federal governments more than $6 million.

It will allow the town of Hull to sell part of its excell sewage treatment capacity and reduce its operation and maintenance burden.

In addition the resolution says the tie-in will be less environmentally damaging than Cohasset constructing its own plant.

Sewer Commissioners, Charles DeSantis and Edward Guild (Joseph Gwinn was absent) voted to approve th joint resolution.

At the meeting of the Hull Selectmen, it was announced the resolution would be delivered to Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti, by State Senator Allan McKinnon.



It is believed the resolution may be used by Cohasset to attempt to stave off an expected contempt citation from Asst. Attorney General Anne Rogers, for not proceding with plans to build a large central sewer system.

THE RESOLUTION SAYS!

The resolution says:

1. It is the intent and desire of selectmen of Cohasset and Hull that the present intermunicipal discussions be continued with the intent of determining the feasibility and desirability of an intermunicipal sewage treatment system.

Mariner photographer Greg Derr will go anywhere for a picture. This shot was taken down under Border Street as Manny Salvador, sewer department superintendent, Dave Jones and Rich Berthiaume of Eastern Pipe Service and Gus Lewis lower water powered cleaning tool into pipe.

Cohasset kids excel at Special Olympics

They turned out in force for the Plymouth Games last week, 400 athletes for the Special Olympics.

The annual event was held at Brockton High School where many in the student body participated in the event.

Cohasset had a large contingent of athletes and they had the best performances of all the area contestants.

Here are the results of Cohasset participants.

Anne Chittim, high school: first place, softball toss and first place frisbee; Brendon Mulcahy, high school, first place, 50 meter race; Timmy Myers, Deer Hill: third in 50 meter race and second in softball; Tom Coyne, Osgood: third place, 50 meter race and third in softball.

Erin McHugh, Osgood: first in 50 meter race and second in ball toss; Jay Nothnagle, Osgood: first place, 50 meter race and second in broadjump; Peter Plante, Osgood: Honorable mention, 50 meter race and second in ball toss.

Jennifer Porter, Osgood: second place, 50 meter race and second in ball toss; Steve Skayne, Osgood: first place, 50 meter race and second in ball toss.

The Cohasset team is sponsored by the Cohasset Rotary Club which provided funds for a bus, sweatshirts and visors for the athletes, a team banner, a donation to the State Games program and trophies for all Cohasset participants.

Laugelle to fight Health Bd. firing

The fate of 22-year town employee and Landfill Supt. Joseph Laugelle is still up in the air.

But one thing is obvious, according to his Atty. Charles Humphreys.

Laugelle will not resign, as requested by the Board of Health at an April 29 meeting.

Laugelle will fight the Board of Health as he plans to file a grievance with the town.

At the April annual town meeting, residents approved a new grievance procedure for non-union employees. Laugelle is a non-union employee.

This new grievance procedure calls for three steps. Here is the definition and the steps.

A "grievance" is a dispute between an employee and his appointing or supervisory authority arising out of an execise of management rights or administrative discretion.

Step 1: An employee who has a grievance should discuss the grievance with the department head and/or supervisory authority in a mutual effort to resolve the grievance.

Step 2: If one week after such conference, a satisfactory understanding and solution of the grievance has not been reached, then either the department head or the employee may refer the grievance to the Board of Selectmen. The Board of Selectmen or its designee shall hold a hearing thereon

Step 3: If any party is aggrieved by the decision of the Board of Selectmen, or its designee, such decision may be appealed in writing to the Personnel Committee who shall conduct a hearing with respect thereto and render a written decision within 10 days of such hearing. The decision of the Personnel Committee with respect ot the grievance shall be binding on both parties.

Humphreys notified the board he will file a grievance for Laugelle. Monday night, the health

Cohasset's week...

Board of Health seminar

The Board of Health will sponsor a seminar on restaurant/food sanitation May 18 from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. At least two individuals from each food service establishment/retail food store/caterer should attend. Please call 383-1664 as soon as possible to confirm your attendance.

Street light policy

Because selectmen receive about one request per week from residents that certain street lights be turned on, they will consider the safety factor as the single reason to approve such requests.

Selectmen will submit each request to the police department's public safety officer. The officer will then make a recommendation to selectmen, based on his evaluation. That is the only method in which a street light turn-on request will be considered, selectmen decided.

Village Fair Spring Day

The Central Committee for the Village Fair is sponsoring a Village Fair Spring Day Saturday, June 11 to raise money for pre-sale expenses of the December fair.

Clothing, household articles such as bedspreads, tablecloths, knicknacks, plants, perennials and vegetable plants are needed. There will also be a bake table.

Selectmen planning meeting

Selectmen scheduled another planning session for Thursday, May 19 at 8 p.m. At that time, selectmen will review and discuss policies and procedures regarding the five-member board of selectmen.

Revaluation project continues

The revaluation project is continuing as scheduled. Now through July 8 representatives of Appraisal Consultants of New England Corp. will cover the following areas: Jerusalem Rd., Howe Rd., Diab Lane, Hull St., Grace Drive, Windy Hill Rd., Black Rock Estates, Spindrift Lane, Linden Drive, Linden Circle, Rust Way, Deer Run, Haystack Lane, Jerusalem Road Drive, Forest Notch, Forest Circle, Old Coach Rd., Rustic Drive, Red Gate Lane, Fern Way, Bow St., Jerusalem Lane, Atlantic Ave., Little Harbor Rd., Nichols Rd., Sandy Beach Lane, Beach St., Elm Court, Margin St., Stockbridge St., Ennice Ave., Howard Gleason Rd., Border St. and Otis Ave.

All persons employed by Appraisal Consultants of New England Corp. will have identifications with photographs and all vehicle registrations are recorded with the Cohasset Police Department.

Having someone go through your home may impose an inconvenience to residents, but this is necessary to assure complete fairness in the appraisal of property. The process should not take more than 20 minutes.

Please keep in mind the person measuring and listing pertinent information is not placing the value on your property. The final determintion of your property value will be determined only after all the collection data is thoroughly analyzed at which time you will be duly notified of the appraisal value of your property.

Appleseed's new warehouse

After a successful expansion of its market, Johnny Appleseed's, Inc., the Beveraly-based retail and catalog clothing company, is establishing a Beveral warehouse to centralize its mail order business and handle inventory, shipping and receiving for its eight retail outlets.

Founded 37 years ago as a mail order business, Johnny Appleseed's has outlets in Beverly, Marblehead, Westwood, Concord and Cohasset.

'Gracious Lady' update

Things are looking up for Hingham's Charles English, owner of the "Gracious Lady" commuter boat.

"Things are better than ever," he said Monday. "The berth at Rowes Wharf makes us even more accessible to Boston. And the crowds have been good."

English said he was "quite pleased with the Saturday run turnout" and as a result is looking into starting a Sunday trip as well.

"We expect to start something on Sundays. We're looking into getting a permit to dock at the Constitution KDock, since there are some nice restaurants up there." He added that he hoped the Sunday trip will be added in the next several weeks.

English also has some other long range plans in mind. "I'm not sure yet, but I'd like to get into Scituate Harbor. We'll have to get a look at the area." He hopes to have the "Gracious Lady" docked in Scituate Harbor May 29.

Workers prepare "pipe" camera which is put in line on Stockbridge Street for tele-leak detection. See story on page 1.

Surplus cheese & butter

Surplus cheese and butter, contributed by the Federal government, will be distributed to elderly and low income residents Thursday, May 19 from 11 a.m. to noon at the Unitarian Parish House and from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Cohasset Town Hall.

For more information on eligibility requirements and delivery, call the Social Service League at 383-0771.

Stockbridge to retire

Police Lieutenant Charles Stockbridge was having a leisurely mid-morning breakfast at the Log and Line with his wife last week when he broke the news.

Smiling, he said he had told Police Chief Joseph Kealey, that after he finished taking his vacation time, he would retire June 1.

"I have been a policeman for 28 years, since May of 1951," he said.

Stockbridge said he had moved to Braintree three weeks ago and has a new position as "Director of Security, at Marion Manor Hospital in South Boston."

However, Executive Secretary Mark Lanza said he hasn't been officially notified by Stockbridge of his resignation.

The Police Department, said Lanza, is now down one man and he is awaiting a Civil Service List from the state before filling the position.

Construction begun

Shirley O'Neil of 38 Lantern Lane informed selectmen several months ago construction was begun on a home near the railroad bed between So. Main and Lantern Lane. She said access is limited, a building permit was isued prior to approval of the septic system and wetlands were filled in with boulders, stumps, etc.

She added environmental committee's justification was it was not a substantial enough area to warrant concern.

"Since the construction of this home and continuing to the present time the railroad bed is being used regularly for automobile, truck, and equipment traffic. Those of us on So. Main and Lantern Lane are annoyed. I would like to request your attention to curtailing the misuse of the railroad bed," she said.

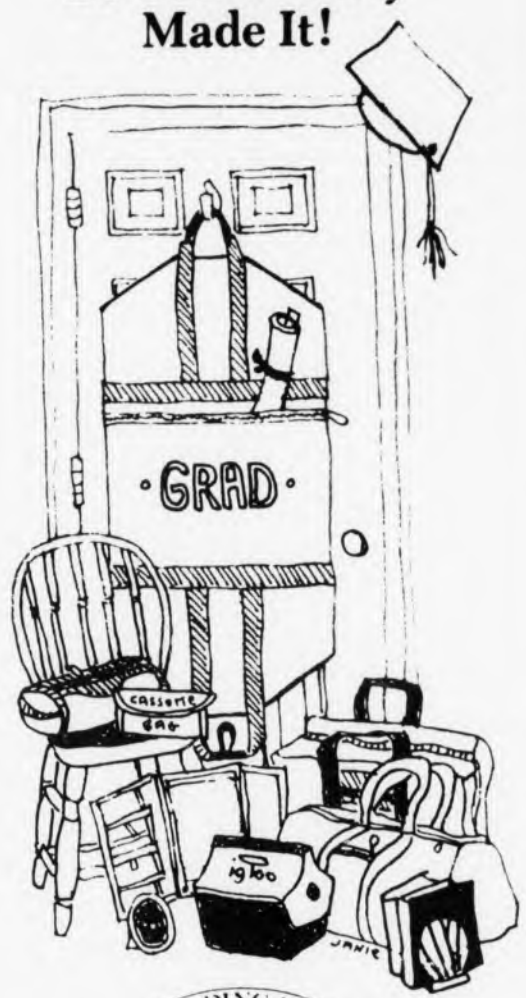
Town Hall Hours

Selectmen changed the current Town Hall business hours from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday to: Monday through Wednesday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and 5:30 pm. to 8 p.m. Friday hours are 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

First Parish annual meeting

The annual meeting of the First Parish Church will be Wednesday, May 18 at 8 p.m. in Trueblood Hall in the Parish House.

Coffee will be served at 7:30 p.m. The business meeting begins promptly at 8 p.m.



Warrant items include a proposal for improving the entrance of the Meeting House through the bell tower, providing access for the handicapped and opening up a reception area by the doorway for coffee hour and seating for the handicapped. Also under consideration is a proposal to construct a lavatory in the Meeting House.

Reception rules

The Building Department and Fire Department would like to remind all residents of Cohasset who are planning to have wedding receptions or other parties at their homes this summer that would involve the erection of a tent, tarpaulin or canopy that a building permit is required before the tent is put up.

The Fire Department also has to inspect the canvas or have an affidavit from the installer to ensure the canvas meets the fire retardant standards of the state of Massachusetts.

Rose Cuddemi is area coordinator of the games. Winners of events last week will move on to competition for the Chapter Games (state) at Boston University June 17 and 18. Athletes must first qualify at the county level before moving on.

Fashioned after the International Olympics, the participants in the Special Olympics compete in spite of mental or physical limitations. Matchless however, is the excitement, the spirit of the day, among participants and volunteers alike.

Many of the towns represented in the games have local sponsorship that provides sweatshirts or tee shirts for the athletes. They competed in four primary events last week. Cohasset, for example, sported hooded sweatshirts provided by the Rotary Club for the nine competitors. In many cases there is one volunteer per athlete. Four coaches led the Cohasset crowd to a bonus share of victories.

Tim Mello's head coach for the Special Olympians in Cohasset with assistance from Richard Muncey, Irene Volpe, Claire Sicard and Toni Jillson.

Scituate had 23 athletes and tee shirts from the Special Ed PTO. Adults with them were Jay Brabazon, Fran Jacobs, Marcia Binder, Kathy Hughes, Mark Swift and Bill Smith.

Fran Coyle led the seven-athlete contingency from Hanover and Bonnie Dehner was with the Marshfield athletes along with David Forrester who helped conduct the ceremonies.

Bruce Leve, president of the Massachusetts Board of Directors/Special Olympics, attended the games. Leve is a self professed and inveterate advocate of the olympics. When he watches the track runners, he's the first to point out that the participants always wear big grins.

It is an event that stimulates a great deal of warmth for everyone who attends. "Everyone I've ever seen who gets near the games," said Leve, "picks up on the enthusiasm. It's the nature of the thing."

The athletes marched by town onto the track to the music of John Philip Sousa, followed by the theme from "Rocky." Lining the track and supplying an ingredient that set the tone of the day were hundreds of young people, students mostly from Brockton. Their cheers of support brought pre-contest "V" for victory signs from the athletes. Participants can range from 8 to 80 but most of those representing the towns last week were youngsters or young adults.

A young woman named Ellen ran with the torch to the music of "Chariots of Fire." And the "Star Spangled Banner" has never been sung with more gusto than it found in the voices of the students of Cardinal Cushing School.

As conspicuous as the joy on the faces of the special olympians is the peerless support/love provided by the young volunteers for their counterparts who compete with physical or mental disadvantages.

The volunteers are assigned to meet each runner at the end of each race and they are known as "huggers." When an athlete seems to flag in his racing heat, a volunteer may well put his arm around his waist to run the race with him to the finish line. The involvement/response of the high school students is as heartening to the onlooker as the athletes are inspiring. Many of the high school students wear Kennedy Foundation ribbons.

The Special Olympics are not just for the special athletes. The event, even at the county level, is a joyful merging of humanity, intended to bring achievement, participation to those who might otherwise be denied the thrill of victory...or the agony of defeat.

Before competing, the athletes voiced the following pledge: "Let me win. But if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt."

Names of winners qualifying for the state games next month will be published when they are available.

Health business hours

The Board of Health will have business hours from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, Wednesday, 8:30-4:30 and 5:30 to 8 p.m. Thursdays, and 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Fridays.

These hours have been changed to be consistent with the newly adopted hours of the Town Hall.

These new times began Monday,d and these new hours necessitate a change in procedures with regard to plan reviews and appointments for the Board of Health agenda.

In order to have a plan reviewed at one of the regularly scheduled meetings (second and fourth Monday of every month), they must be received in the Board of Health office no later than 3:30 p.m. on the Tuesday prior to the Monday meeting.

In order to be placed on the agenda, applicants must speak with the health agent no later than 9:30 a.m. on the Friday prior to the Monday meeting.

The agendas sometimes are booked well in advance of the meeting. Thus, it is wise to make an appointment in advance of the meeting.

Library book sale

The Friends of the Cohasset Library will hold their annual book sale at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library Friday and Saturday, May 20 and 21, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Thousands of books have been donated to this sale. Hardcover books will sell for 50 cents and paperbacks for 25 cents. There are also bundles of magazines, and some used phonograph records and art prints.

Book sale chairman is Lucille McLoughlin, President of the Friends.

Dukakis considers McKinnon for post

State Sen. Allan McKinnon (D-Weymouth) is one of several applicants under consideration to head up the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority. This was confirmed by the Governor's press office. McKinnon, contacted at a Scituate League of Women Voters meeting said he has not been interviewed for the position and he has no information about it. However, he acknowledged he would consider an appointment from Gov. Michael Dukakis. McKinnon was one of Dukakis' chief campaign leaders on the South Shore when Dukakis ran for office last fall. He told league members he's been a legislator for 12 years and it may be time for a change. He addeda legislator's life has taken a toll on the family because of constant campaigning involved. State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray said she will consider running for McKinnon's seat if he is chosen by Dukakis. She has been asked to run for the senate seat by many residents in McKinnon's district. Two factors will determine the decision, she said. She wants Cohasset, Hingham and Hull to have full-time representation until the next state rep. election and she is wondering how much voter support from Weymouth she will have.

Cohasset, Hull to meet over joint sewer project . . .

2. That the Cohasset Board of Sewer Commissioners are, authorized and direct for and on behalf of cohasset to continue these discussions with the appropriate designated officials of Hull.

3. The selectmen of both towns request the towns' state and federal elected officials lend their support and good offices to assist the towns of Hull and Cohasset in this joint effort and, further to enlist the support of those agencies of the federal and state Government which hold jurisdiction over such matters.

Cohasset selectmen chairman Mary Jane McArthur said last week that if the Hull board indicated their willingness to support the resolution, the two boards would schedule a joint meeting to discuss the resolution in greater detail.

Jean Salvador of Elm Court asked why selectmen did not attend the Hull selectmen's meeting held last week with the two sewer commissioners. She told McArthur that Cohasset residents were not informed about the meeting and she would have attended the Hull session, had she been informed.

The resolution was drafted following a preliminary study made by Cohasset's sewer consultant Ward Engineering Associates of Springfield. Three weeks ago, the engineering firm hired by the town to explore alternative sewage disposal systems said Hull's sewage treatment plant, which was designed for a daily capacity of three million gallons, currently accepts an average of one million gallons per day. Cohasset would contribute an average of 500,000 gallons a day, without overloading the Hull system, Ward added.

The tie-in would be constructed from Atlantic Avenue in Cohasset to the Hull boundary, and would connnect there to the Cohasset system. Ward estimated that installing mains to the Hull line would cost Cohasset about $1.8 million.

In a vote of the Hull Sewer Commission April 27, that board indicated their preliminary approval of such a system. The board's approval is contingent upon presentation and approval of final plans and agreement of financia! aspects of the project.

Currently, the Hull system has problems with storm water flow into the system. The sewer commission said if those problems were corrected, the facility could accept additional materials from another town, such as Cohasset.

In his report to the Cohasset sewer commission, consultant Joseph Ward acknowledged the problem in the Hull system.

But, he proposed, "a capital cost saving of $6 million by eliminating a Cohasset treatment system would go a long way in financing rehabilitation of Hull's sewer system. It would seem reasonable for the state and EPA to use those funds to kill two birds with one stone and provide Hull with the funding required, with the justification that it also makes a cost-effective solution to Cohasset's problems feasible."

An added benefit, Ward continued, "would be lower user charges for Hull residents, and probably for Cohasset as well, through more economical use of a large existing facility and spreading of fixed costs."

According to Ward, the construction of an intermunicipal system would be completed within seven months after signing of the contract. The waste water treatment plant can be brought into compliance more quickly than by waiting for construction of a major new facility, Ward stated. Even if minor modifications are required, they could be completed more rapidly than the current schedule, he said.

Illegal Goodwill dumping

Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries is suffering a serious problem with people dumping merchandise as well as trash after hours at its attended donation trailer at the Hanover Mall, Rtes. 53 and 3, Hanover.

Residents of Cohasset, Marshfield, Scituate, Hingham, Hanson, Whitman, Norwell Pembroke, Hanover, Holbrook and Rockland may leave donations ONLY between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday, with the attendant on duty. You will be given a tax receipt.

If any more merchandise or trash is left at the trailer while it is closed, Morgan Memorial will have to remove the trailer from the premises.

First, well intended donations are stolen by vandals and, therefore, never make their way to Morgan Memorial. Second, the non-profit agency must pay to carry away trash (including mattresses and box springs) from the trailer site and cannot afford this unnecessary cost.

Tom Trautwein

☐Naval Reserve Commander Tom Trautwein assumed command of Patrol Squadron (VP-92) from Naval Reserve Commander Horst Kleinbauer of Stoughton, in a Change of Command ceremony recently at the South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

VP-92 is manned by 400 New England Naval Reserve personnel and operates 11 modern, all-weather, worldwide Lockheed P-3 Orion aircraft. It augments the regular Navy Air Force when mobilized for a national emergency.

The Change of Command ceremony, a unique, formal, traditional ritual symbolizing continuity of command, transfers authority and responsibility from one individual to another. Guest speakers were Rear Admiral Edward A. Wilkinson, Jr., USN, Commander Patrol Wings, U.S. Atlantic Fleet and Captain Earl R. Riffle, USN, Commander Reserve Patrol Wing Atlantic.

Commander Trautwein entered the Navy in 1966 and was commissioned an Ensign and Naval Aviator following flight training. Assigned to Patrol Squadron 40 at the Naval Air Station, Moffett Field, California, he flew P-3B aircraft out of Japan, the Philippine Islands, Vietnam and Thailand until 1971.

Transferring to the Naval Air Reserve, Trautwein served with VP-91 at NAS Moffett Field; VP-60 at NAS Glenview, Illinois; VP-0810 at NAS South Weymouth, and VP-92 in November, 1981, as executive officer.

He is employed by Proctor & Gamble Manufacturing Company as operations manager in the Quincy plant and received a bachelor of science in engineering degree from the University of California (Berkeley).

Trautwein and his wife Susannah are parents of two sons — Todd and Chad.

☐Local painting contractor Fred Koed attended the Massachusetts Council, Painting and Decorating Contractors of America (P.D.C.A.) 92nd annual convention recently at the Sheraton Tara in Framingham.

The P.D.C.A. sponsors workshops and seminars at its meetings and convention helping to keep the contractor abreast of the latest legislation and new techniques.

☐Midshipman 2nd Class Charles Stockbridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stockbridge, earned a place on the Dean's List and the Commandant's List at Maine Maritime Academy. After completing his second year at the Academy, Charles is on SS Panama, a sea/land container corporation ship. Among the ports they will visit are Puerto Rico and Santa Domingo.

☐Lots of Jello is being made at 457 Beechwood St.

Sarah, 19, had her tonsils out April 29. John, 23, is minus tonsils as of May 16. Kate, 7, will have her tonsils removed June 24.

Lucky Chris, 16, he had his out when he was six years old.

All are children of Beverly and Jack Barrett.

☐Janet Stankewicz recently returned from an education, training and motivation week at the international headquarters of Mary Kay Cosmetics, Inc., in Dallas, Texas.

Stankewicz was recently appointed director-in-qualification and traveled to Dallas to prepare her for the position of independent sales director.

She now begins a three-month qualification period. After meeting all required performance standards, she will be eligible for the appointment to sales director August 1.

Mary Kay Cosmetics is an international manufacturer and distributor of a premium line of skin, body and hair care products, toiletries, cosmetics and fragrances.

John Larkin Thompson

☐John Larkin Thompson was elected president of the New England Aquarium Corporation at the 25th annual meeting recently.

Thompson, who is president of Blue Shield of Massachusetts, Inc., is active in many charitable and civic organizations. He serves as Chairman of the Board and Director of the Boston Opera Association; Director of the Massachusetts Bay United Way; Director, Boston Municipal Research Bureau, Member, Committee of the Permanent Charity Fund of Boston, Inc., and Chairman of the Governor's Task Force on Private Sector Initiatives.

He is a member of the Boston Bar Association; Director, Private Industry Council; Director, Franki Foundation Corporation, and, Director, Bank of New England.

Thompson is a graduate of Boston University School of Law, the Columbia University Graduate School of Business and Villanova.

Thompson and his wife Adrienne have three children, John, Jr., Edward and Sarah.

☐Dick Straley of Cards and Shards in Cohasset Village recently acknowledged that he completed a run in the 1953 Boston Marathon. Gray-haired Straley said he was the youngest runner to compete at the time at age 13.

☐The PSO has planned an interesting meeting to be held May 24 in the new study hall at the high school. Charles Davis, head of the math department, will discuss computers. His discussion will be followed by a Computer Fair where the students will demonstrate a wide variety of computers and their uses.

☐Amy Duncombe has worked hard to earn distinction in the skiing circuit. It was difficult to leave family and friends for five months, but it was worth it as she has been invited to go to the Junior Development Camp in Oregon by the U.S. Ski team.

Laugelle to fight...

board wanted to hold the first step of the procedure but Humphreys rejected the idea.

Humphreys told the Mariner he was notified by Town Counsel Richard Henderson Friday that Monday's scheduled 6:30 p.m. meeting raised a "substantial question" about adequate notice, and an inconvenient time and location for the termination hearing.

Humphreys told the health board he was willing to hold an informal meeting with the board Monday but the board apparently rejected the idea.

It now appears likely the grievance will be headed toward selectmen. In that case, Selectman Rocco Laugelle, Joseph's brother, would not be allowed to participate in the decision.

Monday night the health board met at 6:30 p.m., apparently ready to meet with Joseph Laugelle and his attorney. Neither attended and health board members expressed frustration.

Although they did not name the individual it is obvious from the conversation it was Joe Laugelle.

Health Agent, Elaine Eliopoulus told Kern and member Michael Bliss that she had telephoned "Mr. X" at 6:10 and the person who answered the phone said Mr. X would not be present for the 6:30 p.m. executive session listed on the agenda.

Kern and Bliss said that under state statutes they believed they had the right to terminate Mr. X., without giving 30 days notice, since he had already been given warning.

However, Henderson had been researching the past several days whether the new grievance established at Town Meeting, giving non-union employees the right to appeal to the Personnel Committee and the Selectmen, takes precedence.

Henderson has not yet rendered his opinion.

Kern said an advertisement had already been prepared for hiring a new dump supervisor, and she had wanted to authorize a letter to Mr. X that night.

Secretary Marion Douglas was asked to read from the April 29 minutes. Douglas said: "If he does not submit his resignation within 10 days, he will be terminated after a 30 day period."

Health Agent Eliopoulos said that Engineer Fred DeFeo had cited the improper cover material for the dump received from the supplier in his April 20 report.

Eliopoulos said the cover material was "too sandy."

In response to a question if the Dump Superintendent noticed it, Eliopoulos said, "I don't think so — he accepted it."

"Put that in the minutes," Kern said to the secretary.

In a May 4 letter, Eliopoulos wrote to a DEQE official concerning violations at the town Cedar Street landfill.

She wrote: "The Board has received the aforementioned correspondence regarding the Department's March 31, 1983, inspection of the town-owned landfill. As a result of the Board's continued efforts to effect compliance at the landfill, we have realized that the problems encountered are managerial.

"After numerous meetings and discussions with the Supervisor of the Disposal Area in which we discussed proper operational procedures, compliance with the State code has not yet been met.

"Thus, at the most recent meeting, we have asked for the Supervisor's resignation to be effective in 30 days. We will advertise the position after May 9, 1983. This allows 10 days to pass for the receipt of the resignation. If it is not received by this date, we will terminate his employment, to be effective in 30 days.

"In the meantime, the Health Agent will continue to monitor the landfill site to ensure that conditions do not worsen.

"When a new supervisor is hired, we will work diligently with that individual to remedy the deficiencies cited in your letter."

Humphreys said Laugelle is being made a scapegoat for the health board's mismanagement of the landfill. He said it was the board's actions and policies which placed the dump in violation of the sta s environmental codes.

The problem, Hunphreys said, is improper equipment, staffing road layout.

Some of the violations cited included scattered refuse, poor coverage of trash with fill and inadequate grading, creating pools of water.

Humphreys noted that in January the state said the landfill conformed to the rules but since then a combination of bad weather and a poor management plan caused the new violations.

In the April 29 health board meeting Joseph Laugelle said area of deficiency cited by an engineer could be easily corrected and he agreed to do so within one month.

Laugelle said he was doing the best job he could given the weather conditions and the amount of personnel he had.

Bliss said there had only been a few days when trucks could not deliver cover material.

Board of Health Chairman Marilyn Sweeney said other towns of equal or larger size operated landfills with two employees. Laugelle responded it was necessary to make over 29 trips to empty the bins on a Saturday and Sunday.

Eliopoulos responded that she and board members were aware that the landfill was very busy on weekends, and that employees were expected to work hard.

Bliss made the motion to ask Laugelle to resign and the resignation would be effective in 30 days. Sweeney seconded the motion and suggested if Laugelle does not submit h s resignation within 10 days he will be terminated in a 30-day period.

The minutes concluded that "Board members agreed this was an acceptable way to proceed."

On the scrap heap

Twenty-two years.

If you worked for a company for 22 years and were told to resign or be fired within 30 days, how would you react?

Without graceful acquiescence, we suspect.

In Cohasset, there is now considerable indignation these days over the Board of Health's decision to fire Joe "Skinny" Laugelle. He is 22 years on the job.

We refer to him as Skinny because he is well-known in town as the landfill superintendent.

Some people have told the Mariner that news stories about the personnel action by the board of health is not anyone's business. That is a ridiculous statement, indicative of gross ignorance over what is the public's business. Running a landfill, very much a public place, is very much the public's business.

In any case, the board of health has a fight on its hands. Skinny Laugelle is not without friends and he is not about to roll over and play dead. There is a new grievance procedure, approved at the April town meeting, which will be tested here. It is evident that the health board will not change its mind, meaning that the ball now goes to the selectmen's court. They are the next step in the grievance procedure.

The situation is a sticky one. Skinny Laugelle is apparently not able to work in concert with Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos. here are personalities and undercurrents here and the problem has already been considered by the personnel board, whose former chairman is now Selectman Cliff Mitman.

The board of health does have jurisdiction over its employees and we do not criticize the board's right to hire or fire anyone.

But we do argue that after 22 years, Skinny Laugelle deserves better treatment than what he has received from the health board.

The board feels it is Laugelle's fault that the state cited the board for the landfill violations.

From what many people have told us, Skinny does not have the manpower or the equipment to handle the rubbish.

The answer to this personnel problem is compromise.

What's needed is a joint meeting among selectmen, the board of health and the advisory committee to map out final solutions to the landfill problems which have plagued the town for as long as the sewer problem.

Make a plan and ask the landfill superintendent to carry it out. Give Laugelle a 60-day evaluation pepriod and then make a decision.

If Skinny Laugelle cannot do the job or if relations between the health board and him are beyond repair, a lateral transfer to another town department should be considered.

Twenty-two years is a long time — too long for an employee to be unceremoniously sent to the scrap heap.

NEWS ITEM — Painting a door a 'no-no' if your house is in Cohasset's historic town common district. Resident only wanted to paint front door red when chastised by neighbor for not getting Historic District Commission's permission. Commission holds rein on pristine presence

There is waste and there is waste

By Claire McDonough

Larry came in the front door and dropped his jacket on the floor.

"How come Scituate has so many EPA cars driving around?" he asked.

Breida looked up from her computer. "Hadn't you heard? They've found another hazardous waste dump."

"I thought that was in Plymouth," I said.

"It's another one. They found out what's under Skipper's bed."

I turned pale. "Who told?"

Breida shrugged. "Maybe they have dogs that can sniff it out, like drugs."

The Dragon shook his head. "O.K., I'll admit it's a dump, and I'll admit it's waste. But hazardous?"

"You sure thought it was when you tried to walk across his floor in the dark the other night," Pat said.

"Now wait a minute," Skipper protested. "I'll admit my room has a certain lived in look, but I don't think it's half as bad as Breida and Tanya's. They have five million stuffed animals and they hang all their clothes on the floor."

He shot me a resentful look. "They have more of them, too. You always did buy Breida more clothes."

"I bought most of these clothes with my baby-sitting money," Breida sniffed. "And anyway, you're changing the subject. The things in my room just lie there. The things in your room are starting to grow."

"So? Maybe I'm into fungus."

"Look," I interjected, "the question isn't who has the messiest room. The question is, what are we going to do about it."

"Well," Breida began, "I don't think I should have to clean my room. Most of the mess is Tanya's, and anyway Pat promised he'd do it for me because I gave him $5 for gas for Frank's car."

Pat edged toward the door. "That was before I got a good look at the mess. And anyway," he continued in a crescendo of non sequitur, "Frank sold that car."

"What about Skipper's room?" the Dragon wanted to know.

"It's going to be a big job," Larry said. "His bed has so much junk on it that he sleeps on the floor in a sleeping bag."

"That's when he can find the floor," Breida added.

"I don't know how he can miss it," Pat said. "When I looked in his room the other day the floor was moving."

"Very funny," Skipper sneered. "My dog Flip was under a blanket. And anyway, I don't want you looking at my floor."

The Dragon looked up from his newspaper. "There may be a solution after all. I see that the state and federal governments are going to pay 90 percent of the cost of removing the hazardous materials from Plymouth. Maybe we could apply for a grant."

Skipper stood protectively in front of his door. "And let them take all that good stuff? Which by the way is not waste!"

"If it isn't waste, what would you call it?" I asked.

Skipper thought a minute. "Uh, collectibles?"

We all agreed.

Sewer commission briefs . . .

Assistant Town Counsel Stephen Rider said Tuesday Special Town Counsel Thomas Bracken filed a Motion for Modification in Suffolk Superior Court May 9. "This contains a number of reasons why the town should do a Special Facilities Plan and permit Innovative and Alternative solutions," Rider said.

"It includes the fact that MEPA (Massachusetts Environmental Protection Agency) and NEPA (National Environmental Protection Agency) regulations on Environmental Reviews have yet to be done, and no FNSI has been issued."

The town is seeking "relief from having to spend $500,000 under the grant offer for a facilities plan of Metcalf and Eddy that may not be environmentally sound" Sewer Commissioner Edward Guild said.

Sewer commissioners and town counsel are expecting the state may issue a contempt citation shortly.

AVERY LETTER

Richard Avery of Surrey Drive, former chairman of the capital budget committee, wrote to the sewer commissioners requesting they obtain an update on the costs for the Metcalf and Eddy plan, which was formed in 1979.

As a result of a joint meeting of the Hull Permanent Sewer Commissioners and Cohasset Sewer Commissioners, the Hull commissioners are receptive to exploring the possibilities of Cohasset tieing into the Hull sewer plant. If Cohasset regionalized with Hull, it is expected Cohasset could save spending at least $6 million toward the cost of a new central sewer plant.

Report from the state house

By Mary Jeanette Murray

NEW TAX SIGNALS?

Last week, Revenue Commissioiner Ira Jackson released a statement saying revenues from the sales tax, estate tax, personal income tax and corporate excise tax are all above previous counts. But the Dukakis Administration says these increased revenues will not be sufficient to fund the FY '84 budget which takes effect July 1.

It would seem that the administration is easing us gently toward further tax increases. Already, a gas hike has been pushed through and the Governor has been candid about seeking a new tax increase on cigarettes.

It would seem that if the Governor's budget wasn't $300 million out of balance, if he didn't want to increase government spending 7.5 percent in a time when the cost-of-living increase is only 3.5 percent, that these above average revenues would be more than adequate. We'll be asking these questions when budget debate begins at the end of this month.

SURFACE TRANSPORTATION ACT OF 1982

Commonly known as the "Nickel Gas Tax," the Federal Surface Transportation Asssitance Act of 1982 increased the federal gasoline tax from four to nine cents per gallon and imposed national standards for truck sizes, weights and right to access. These features, as well as several funding provisions in the Act, have significant implications for the Boston area.

Additional gas tax revenue will immediately increase federal support for transportation projects. The Massachusetts Department of Public Works expects its FY '83 income to increase $50 million from last year, to $220 million, with the largest boosts going to the Interstate, Primary, and 4R program.

The 4R Program—resurfacing, restoration, rehabilitation and reconstruction of Interstate highways—clearly emerges as a new national priority. Funded nationally at 1950 million in FY '83 the program will increase annually to $3,150 million in FY '86.

The federal Urban Systems Program will be level funded at $800 million per year. This translates to a steady $21 million per year for Massachusetts. Traditionally, demand has exceeded supply in this program.

The Transportation Act provides two highway bonuses for the Boston area. The first will make major improvements in the City Square area of Charlestown eligible for interstate funding. The $150-250 million project will make safer, more efficient links between the Tobin Bridge, I-93 and the Central Artery by replacing the overhead ramps with tunnels under City Square.

The second bonus will make the so-called "designated" Interstate highways (roads built to Interstate Standards but without Interstate funds) eligible for Interstate funding. One example: Rte. 128 most of which is designated I-95 or I-93, will be eligible for Interstate 4R funding.

One penny of the five cent gasoline tax increase yielding approximately $1.1 billion per year will be dedicated to transit. This will allow for funding for multi-year projects.

The Act redistributes the funding into two pots: A Discretionary Program and a Block Grant Program. The Block Grant Program will be used for operating assistance and funding bus and rail capital projects.

The hottest debate on the Transportation Act centered on proposed uniform standards for truck use on roadways. Congress persuaded the trucking industry to accept substantially increased user fees in exchange for "reasonable access" from highways to terminals and facilities for food, fuel, repairs and restaurants.

On the whole, the Federal Surface Transportation Act seems to be favorably disposed towards Massachusetts. The Bay State will gain heavy assistance in repairing its badly damaged roadways and bridge networks.

Troika appointments

By Patricia Anne Walsh

Mary Jane McArthur, selectman chairman, Town Moderator William Weeks, and the Acting Chairman of the Advisory Committee James Lagrotteria, met at 9 a.m. Saturday to make appointments ot town boards and committees falling under the jurisdiction of "The Troika."

Other town officials are elected, or appointed by selectmen.

"The cut-off date on theses applications was May 4," announced McArthur. "Some people applied for several positions, some for only one position, and some prioritized their choices," she added.

Lagrotteria said Advisor Stephen Bartow will not be applying for reappointment in July.

In addition advisory committee Chairman Jean Cotton has finished her maximum—6 years—allowed under the bylaws, on the advisory board.

Jacqueline Dormitzer was reappointed to the Advisory Board.

Edward Lubitz was reappointed to the Personnel Board.

Weeks suggested consideration of Oliver Woodruff, formerly in charge of personnel for Emerson College and he was unanimously voted a member of the Personnel Board.

The Troika voted Richard Avery, a former Chairman of the Capital Budget Committee, be appointed to replace Richard Tibbetts, whose term has expired on the Capital Budget Committee.

Walter Ross was reappointed to the Drainage Advisory Committee.

Engineer Richard Tousley's term on the Design Review Board has expired.

Chairman Elizabeth Hoopes and Roger Whitley recommended Architect Robert Stansell of Cedar Lane and he was voted a member. Stansell has been with Architects Collaborative.

Mary Gainor and Thomas Atkinson have finished their maximum two—three year terms on the Committee to Study Town Government Structure. Weeks said John McNabb, Jr. and Ozzie Ingram had applied.

Weeks said he would have "no trouble voting for McNabb, since he is no longer a news reporter.

After the meeting McNabb recalled he had been a campaign worker for former Republican State Senator Weeks several years ago.

McNabb is now a member of the Democratic Town Committee, and attended the State Democratic Convention recently as a delegate.

Weeks recommended Arthur D. Nilsson of Border St., and 83 year old retired professor from Cornell Business School, "who is in good health" as a member of the Bylaw Committee.

McArthur said she would "like to find a place for Diane Sullivan," who applied for several vacancies, and talk to some "new" people in town who had applied.

There are still two vacancies on the Bylaw Committee, two on the Advisory Committee, and one vacancy on the Committee to Study Town Government Structure to be filled.

The Troika tentatively planned to meet at 6 p.m., Tuesday, May 24, to continue with the appointments.

Letters

Town sewer tie-in

Here is a copy of a letter to Charles DeSantis, Cohasset Board of Selectmen.

Ted Guild and Joseph Gwinn of your Board and Joseph Ward of Ward Engineering attended the Permanent Sewer Commission meeting of April 27.

A discussion concerning the possibility of extending Cohasset's sewerage system to connect to the Hull sewer system occured between members of your board and our commission.

General background was given concerning the gallons per day presenty collected in Cohasset and the anticipated flow to the Hull facility, the means of connection and location as well as the apparent financial advantages for each Town.

Please be advised that according to a vote taken by the Hull Permanent Sewer Commission this body is receptive to the concept of accepting sewage from Cohasset through lines constructed by that town and connected to the Hull sewer system for processing at the Hull Water Polution Control Facility. This approval is contingent upon presentation and approval of final plans and agreement of financial aspects of such a project.

Jill C. Tollefson
Facility Coordinator

Murray defends sewer plan

Here is a copy of a letter from State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray to Brian Jeans, Division of Water Pollution.

I would urge you to re-consider Cohasset's plight as well as the decision of the taxpayer to seek a more cost effective but good alternative sewage plan. The voters are committed to sewer extension, but desire the opportunity to seek a less costly effective system.

The sewer commissioners have hired Joseph Ward of the Ward Engineering Associates of Springfield to investigate alternatives to provide central sewering for the town. The commissioiners along with Ward have contacted the Hull permanent sewer commission.

Please read the enclosed articles for the reasons why this alternative should be accomplished. I also represent Hull and the town can certianly use the money which Cohasset will pay to be in the system.

I appreciate your time and your favorable consideration of this plan.

Please keep in touch with me on this issue and if I can be of assistance, please call upon me.

Mary Jeanette Murray
State Representative

CLT applauds Murray

To the Editor:

Citizens for Limited Taxation wish to publicly thank Representative Mary Jeanette Murray, 3rd Plymouth District, for the courage she demonstrated when she placed an amendment to Senate Bill 1910, and for perseverance by continuously voting in support of the preservation of Proposition 2½.

An attempt was made to take the 2½ override choice away from the voters of eleven communities and give it to their city councils/town meeting. Mary Jeanette has been cited by many for killing this legislation.

Representative Murray supported the right of the people in these eleven communities to decide for themselves what their property tax will be next year, and thereby defended the right of all the commonwealth's voters to determine their property tax rates now and in the future.

We appreciate Mary Jeanette's support, and the respect her support shows for the taxpayers.

Chief Daley says thanks

To the Editor:

I wish to thank the towns-people who gave their time on a beautiful Saturday and showed that they have interest in one of the major departments in their town. I hope that one and all were able to take some positive information away with them.

As Fire Reports indicate, this past Sunday, May 8, an individual who learned how to operate a fire extinguisher just the day before at our Fire Prevention Day, was instrumental in preventing extensive damage to his home at 26 Hammond Avenue. On behalf of the Cohasset Fire Department, and I, as its Chief, wish to give a "Hats Off" salute to that individual.

Again, a special thank you to all the Town residents who participated in our Fire Prevention Day.

Cohasset Fire Department

MDC sewer warning

Wayne Grandin, MDC Chief Engineer of Industrial Waste, notified the chairman of the Cohasset board of health and sewer commissioners, as well as the chairman of the Hingham selectmen, that "It has come to our attention that septic wastes orginating from outside the Metropolitan Sewerage District are being discharged through the Town of Hingham." He added that this is prohibited "unless a specific written contract between all parties is in effect.

"Absolutely no industrial wastes are to be discharged via septic tank haulers regardless of origin." By copy of this letter, Cohasset is also being advised as to the proper, lawful established procedures," Grandin concluded.

Septic system requirements

The board of health requires homeowners to pump their septic system every two years. This is to prevent the movement of solids into the leaching area, thus causing clogging. Solids will remain in the tank if it is pumped frequently enough. Larger families with heavy water usage may require pumping annually.

Your local septic hauler can best advise on individual pumping needs.

As part of the board's monitoring programs, local haulers are required to report the addresses that they have pumped, the gallons pumped from the system, the reason for pumping, i.e. routine or discharge above ground, and other information that the board may deem necessary.

Townspeople are strongly advised to conserve water as much as possible. Inexpensive and easy to install flow restrictors and other similar devices will maximize the life of a septic system.

The board has a limited number and copies of a Septic System Manual for homeowners which is filled with valuable information. For example, colored toilet paper can kill bacteria in your tank, thus interfering with the natural de composition of solids in your tank? Cigarettes, paper towels, and cooking oil can clog your system and cause it to back up. Many helpful pieces of information can be found in this manual. Just stop by the board of health office at 43 Elm Street and pick one up.

Special TV finds valuables down under

By Patricia Anne Walsh

"Hey, he just found a gold ring!" said a worker in front of Hugo's Restaurant, where a crew from a pipe service company were cleaning the sewer line.

"Oh, he found a lipstick, a cheap bracelet, and quarters, nickles, dimes, and pennies already," added another.

The worker climbed out of the hole, and cleaned off a ring "with karat markings." One of the stones was missing.

Another man decided to look through the bucket of cleanings a second time. He pulled out something that looked like a dirty string, but proved to be a gold neck chain, a quarter, dimes, nickles, and more pennies—"coffee money."

"Geez, in my end of the business (the Cohasset sewer plant), I never get anything but false teeth and a copper bracelet," mourned Manual Salvador, Chief Operator of the plant.

"Once, though, I did get a Timex watch—and it was still running," he added.

Salvador said that the restaurant had a 3500 gallon grease trap, although engineer Joseph Ward had recently suggested it would have been better if a 5,000 gallon trap had originally been required.

"Grease coating the main has narrowed the opening down several inches," said Salvador, "so we are cleaning it."

A bullet shaped nozzle was pushed through the sewer line from one manhole to another, and then the line was back flushed with water from a high pressure nozzle connected to the Rockwell Flexible Pipe Cleaning Machine Truck.

First baseball sized chunks of grease were dislodged; then came a steady stream of what looked like heavy cream and dissolved grease.

Afterwards, a worker climbed down and retrieved black gunky dirt from the strainer. The black stuff contained the "goodies."

A check at the manhole above Hugo's at the bridge showed the effluent was running free and clean. Then the crew moved on to Stockbridge St.

An inspection with a TV camera the previous week showed the line needed cleaning because of dirt entering from a leak. A "serious" leak in the rear of Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray's house needed repairs to prevent too much inflow into the plant.

Two lines, connected with one nozzle piped an epoxy type resin into the area of the leak and closed it with a clear rubbery feeling sealer.

Then the workers lowered the TV camera, on skids with its own light source.

The camera is a cylinder about the size of a small home fire extinguisher, which can be used in pipes as small as five inches in diameter. The interior of the pipe was pictured on a TV screen monitor.

"I suppose with miniaturization, they'll soon have cameras which can fit into smaller pipes," said Gregg Derr, Mariner photographer, who was observing the action. The workmen agreed.

They cleaned the Stockbridge St. line, but the yield there was only five pennies in the first buckets checked.

Rich Berthiaume of Eastern Pipe Service monitors the journey of camera down water pipes looking for leaks.

A season brochure listing show prices may be obtained by calling or stopping by the theatre on Sohier Street off Route 3A (in Cohasset). Prior to the box office opening May 21, individual ticket orders will be processed by mail only.

Arts Center land site on hold

The School Committee has put on hold a request by the South Shore Art Center to build a new center building on three acres of land off Sohier Street.

The site is near the South Shore Music Circus and Deer Hill School.

The Arts Center is also considering the former Ford Motor Company (the Schramm property) off Rte. 3A, the Cox Estate and reconditioning its current headquarters at 103 Ripley Road.

Sheldon Ripley, president of the art center said building a new site would cost in the vicinity of $400,000 to $500,000. Purchasing the Cox Estate would cost nearly $1.1 million.

Most of the school committee members were receptive to meeting with the School Facilities Committee and center representatives to explore the site.

Board member Martha Gjesteby said the land, under the committee's jurisdiction, should be saved for possible school building or field use.

In order for the Art Center to purchase school property, the committee must sign off the land as surplus. Selectmen then must also authorize the land as surplus and send it to town meeting for approval.

Board member Jack Langmaid said the committee must investigate if the land is still usable for school purposes and also make a judgement on what Cohasset's school needs may be 15 years from now.

"We know the use of the Art Center is quite compatible with the school but the point is we don't really know what we've got there."

Board member Joe Nedrow suggested a lease be negotiated rather than an outright purchase of the land by the Art Center.

Gjesteby said, "We don't know what our needs will be in the future. The acquisition of land was a stroke of genious when we bought it. We now need a certain percentage of field and we have to think of the schools in the future."

She added she was concerned about the traffic impact on Sohier Street.

Ripley, a former member of the School Facilities Committee, said most center members surveyed want the center to remain in Cohasset and feel the Sohier Street site is the most accessible off the highway.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell will ask Town Counsel Richard Henderson if a land lease is permissable.

Roy Manns has a new idea

By Laura Doherty

Less than a year ago, Cohasset's Roy Manns left the security of his position as Director of Research and Development for Data Packaging in Cambridge to start Medical and Electronics Independent Plastics Engineering Center (MEIPEC).

"The primary reason for my decision," he said, "was the corporate system which, I felt, was stiffling in terms of new product development."

He was concerned that more time was spent in the politics of an organization than in the development of new products.

Defeatist attitudes such as "we can't do it anymore let's have it done elsewhere" were not acceptable to Manns who has a deep respect for American ability.

"When I lived in England," he recalls, "we would come here to find technology and take it home. I came to expect more challenges from the technical point of view and instead I found people running themselves down."

As a young man in Bombay, India, he had read about new developments in plastics in America. "I found it a daunting experience," he said. His voice relays the excitement he felt.

"It inspired me and I saw the opportunity."

Manns went to England for further schooling and is a plastics engineer by training.

With main offices now located in the professional building on Rte. 3A MEIPEC reflects this training and experience. Members of its board of advisers contribute a wide range of technological expertise to the development of the total product cycle.

The development of a device used in knee operations is an example of what MEIPEC does. After a client submits an idea, a product audit is conducted to determine the needs of the product and the market. They type of plastic needed is studied. Prototypes are developed. Advice on regulatory requirements is provided. Finally the design package is complete.

The toughest part of all this, according to Manns is having to sometimes tell a client that his idea is unworkable.

"They don't always like the truth," he adds, "but it's no fun spending money if a product can't get approved and won't sell."

MEIPEC has already become well known as a result of its newsletter and also by word of mouth.

Manns is proud of the written commendation of his first client, Acufex Microsurgical, Inc. of Norwood, on "his attention to detail, adherence to delivery commitments and knowledge of the field."

Manns is already in the position of not being able to take any more work until he has new people.

The key to this success, Manns says, is the ability to respond quickly as a result of not having to wrestle with the bureaucratic structure. Confidentiality is also important in quietly developing a product which could take two to three years before it is on the market. "We respond to a client rapidly and quietly," he emphasizes.

Although 90 percent of MEIPEC's work is medical, members occassionally work in other areas. Behavioral scientist, Chris Kyricos of Cohasset is currently designing a computer based on his expertise in physiological psychology.

He demonstrates one of his ideas which will limit eye contact with the compter keyboard, CRT and housing to a similar focal plane so the eyes won't have to refocus. Kyricos firmly believes that "a product is a metaphor for the business that creates it."

Manns added there is so much technology available, care must be taken not to abuse it. In order to optimize effect and reduce mass, Kyricos added the importance of knowing sources for the best processes.

"We read everyting and anything that comes by."

MEIPEC's newsletter provides current information on international developments and trends.

Corporate bureaucracy is a big problem which Roy hopes to avoid. "We'll watch for it," he promises. "After all, the two humped camel was most likely the result of a meeting between the British and the Americans in the Middle East," he quipped.

Exceptional soccer talent needed

Dr. Joseph Machnik, Head Coach of four time Major Indoor League champion New York Arrows, will hold open tryouts for interested individuals to be conducted at the South Shore Sports Center in Hingham, June 8, 9, 10 and 11.

"The New York Arrows are searching for exectional American talent" stated Machnik from his Long Island office. "As the only pro indoor franchise in the Northeast, we hope to uncover a diamond in the rough from New England. Players from this area are overlooked because the closest professional teams are the Cosmos and Arrows in New York. This is the chance of a lifetime for the right players."

All players interested in the tryouts must register with the South Shore Sports Center. Registration forms, tryout schedules and additional information are available at the area's newest multi-sports facility, 100 Recreation Park Road, Hingham, 740-1105. A nominal registration fee will cover all handling costs, scrimmage jerseys and referee fees.

The South Shore Sports Center is the area's newest multi-use sports facility. In addition to the tryouts, a goalkeeper clinic, summer day camps, tennis instruction and specialty clinics are scheduled for June and July. Tennis court rentals are available on an open basis with no memberships required until September.

Historical Society flea market

The Cohasset Historical Society's annual spring flea market will be held at the Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Featured as part of the event will be a wide range of refreshments, beginning early with coffee and doughnuts, followed by hot dogs, hamburgers and soft drinks; at lunchtime, an old-fashioned clam chowder under the direction of Clark Chatterton, served by Society volunteers.

Also available will be a special table of home-made baked goods prepared by a committee headed by Mrs. Ellery Hyland.

This year's flea market offers a cornucopia of items available to bargain hunters. Recent donations included a 19'' black and white TV set in console cabinet, an electric clothes drier and a washer, as well as an old fashioned Flexible Flyer sled. Household goods, clothing, books, toys, collectables and many interesting and useful items all will be put up for sale at this year's flea market. Old slates from the original Lothrop House roof still are available and are of interest to artists.

There is still time to donate new or used articles to the flea market. Call 383-0773 or 383-6930 for arrangements. Dealer space is available at ten dollars. Call for information. This is one of the major fund-raising efforts to benefit the Society's three museums in Cohasset Center and the Lothrop House, its recently acquired headquarters. The Society plans and carries out numerous programs of community-wide importance, and seeks to preserve the historical artifacts and documents of Cohasset's first two and one-half centuries as a New England seacoast village.

'Oliver' May 18 & 19

Area residents will perform "Oliver" for two consecutive weekends, Friday and Saturday, May 13 and 14 at 8 p.m., Sunday, May 15 at 3 p.m. and Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 19, 20 and 21 at 8 p.m. at Braintree High School on Town Street.

Lionel Bart's Boradway musical is under the direction of Martha Gaffey of Cohasset. Gaffey is a graduate of Manhattanville College and studied directing under David Wheeler at Harvard University. An accomplished actress, she has performed with regional, summer stock, community and dinner theatres throughout New England.

Her most recent directing credits include "Guys and Dolls," "Pippin," "Side by Side by Sondheim," "The Fantasticks" and "Bells are Ringing." In real life, Martha works as girl Friday for the family owned yacht yard in Cohasset.

Under the musical direction of Carolyn Curtis of Marshfield, with choreographers Diane Flanagan and Maria D'Arcangelo, the musical stars 11 year-old Adam Turner of Weymouth as Oliver, Skip Maloney of Hansen as Fagin and Denise Cordingley of Weymouth as Nancy. Cohasset residents include Sarah deLima and her son Jonathan, Kurt Hochkeppel, Kenneth Caristi and Danny Bliss.

Tickets are $5 ($4 for Senior Citizens and Students) and are available at Braintree Savings Bank or call Bob Carnes, 843-2150.

Elder Services forums

South Shore Elder Services, Inc., will sponsor two community forums in May.

The purpose of the forums is to give the general public, and older persons in particular, an opportunity to talk about their ideas and suggestions concerning programs and services that are needed by older persons.

Community forums will be held as follows: Community Forum No. 1, Tuesday, May 24 at 1:30 p.m. in the community room, 95 Martensen St., Elderly Housing, Quincy; Community Forum No. 2, Thursday, May 16 at 1:30 p.m. at Hersey House Senior Center, 229 North St., Hingham.

Both locations are accessible to persons in wheelchairs. Refreshments will be served. For further information call 383-9790.

Public transportation meeting

A meeting to discuss public transportation on the South Shore will be held at the Hingham Town Hall June 16 at 7:30 p.m.

Hugh Jones, chairman of the Citizens for Improvement of Commuter Rail will be the principal speaker. In addition, representatives from the B & M Railroad, the MBTA and the state Office of Transportation will be on hand as will Henry Hersey of Needham and Gregory Sullivan of Norwood.

For more information, call Christina or Frank Allen at 749-0264.

Spring time entertainment

On Tuesday, June 7, the South Shore Hellenic Cultural Society will present a springtime evening of entertainment beginning at 6:30 p.m. at Lombardo's in Randolph. The main event will be an excursion down "A Fashionable Way, for Ladies and Gentlemen" highlighting the latest designs at Hoffman's of Hingham and hairdos by Faye Papandopoulos of The Stylist of Cohasset. The evening's guide will be a professional model and lecturer, Charlotte Barker of Lynnfield.

Cocktails and dinner of salad, pasta, roast chicken, vegetable, wine, dessert and coffee will be served family style.

Tickets are available at The Stylist on Rt. 3A, 383-9330, or from member of the association.

Crafters show and sale

Country Crafters will present its 10th annual Spring Show and Sale May 21 and 22 at Norwell Town Hall (Rte. 123.)

There will be over thirty crafters, each showing unique handmade items for sale. There will be as wide a range of prices as crafts - everything from home-made chocolate chip cookies to an antique caned or rushed chair.

There will also be many decorative items including wreaths, silk flower arrangements, baskets, mirrors, stenciling - curtains, pillows, placemats, and walls - stained glass and clocks. More personal items will include skirts, bags, jewelry, children's clothing with smocking and charcoal portraits.

Admission is free and hours are 10-4 Saturday and Sunday from 12-4.

Planning the event from Cohasset are Marsha Silvia and Rosemary Fitzpatrick.

Cohasset Country Fair

The Cohasset Country Fair, featuring exhibits on arts and crafts, collectables, antiques and attic treasures, will start the summer season at Cohasset Common Saturday, June 11, 1983 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Raindate is June 18.

Craft demonstrations by local artists are being planned. Cohasset community organizations will also have exhibits on their activities, including a camping and canoeing exhibit by Cohasset's Boy Scout Troop 28. Refreshments will also be offered.

The Fair is sponsored by the Friends of Troop 28 for the benefit of the Troop's summer program.

For exhibit space or further information on this event, contact Peter Lelecas, 30 Forest Notch, tel : 383-6195.

'Plaza Suite' cast gives strong performance

By Corinne A. Kutish

In its 62nd season of production, the Cohasset Drama Club gave a strong performance of Neil Simon's hit comedy, "Plaza Suite," at the Cohasset Town Hall.

In three acts, "Plaza Suite" is the story of Room 719 in New York's aging luxury hotel, the Plaza. In each act, we are introduced to a couple, visiting from out-of-town, who within the time frame of 40 minutes on-stage, face a moment of truth in their lives — and because this is vintage Neil Simon, these cathartic moments range from the humorous to the hilarious.

In Act I we meet Karen and Sam Nash, played with exceptionally relaxed believability by Barbara Elliott and Arnold Nickerson. As Karen, Elliott, who has appeared in many major roles with the Club, such as "Mary, Queen of Scots," "Send Me No Flowers," and "Strange Bedfellows," is a neglected wife, who has reserved a room at the Plaza for her wedding anniversary.

Karen and Sam have been married 23 or 24 years (we're not sure which) since Karen has a notoriously poor memory for figures.

Nickerson, who co-founded "Castle Hill Productions" and has appeared in their productions of "Arsenic and Old Lace," "Relatively Speaking" and others, is an all-business businessman. As Sam, Nickerson has little time for meaningful relationship with his wife.

The couple's moment of truth comes when Karen confronts Sam with her suspicions of his affair with his secretary. Sam admits to his infidelity, explaining his frustrations at having all his aspirations of marriage, children and career success behind him.

"I just want to be able to live my life all over again," he says.

Nickerson is excellent as a man facing his loss of youth, fussing in front of the mirror, and raging over the fatty hotel roast beef and his wife's honest acceptance of life's adversities.

Elliott was extremely clever and likeable as she struggled to cope with her husband's moodiness and drew him into an honest confrontation of where their lives were headed.

Suzanne Tilden was good as well in her brief appearance as Sam's secretary and mistress. She effectively portrayed the right mixture of prissy efficiency and adoring innocence.

In Act II, we meet Jesse Kiplinger, famous Hollywood producer on the make, and Muriel Tate, homespun matron, fled for the afternoon from her husband and children in Tenafly, New Jersey.

As Jesse, Eric Bogle is both suave and lecherous. As Muriel, Virginia Dowling is both a wide-eyed innocent, and awed and excited about the prospects inherent in a liaison with her old high school sweetheart from 17 years ago in a hotel room at mid-afternoon.

Bogle, who has been associated with several South Shore theater groups and has appeared in such productions as "Mr. Roberts," "See How They Run" and "Forty Carat," was witty and charming as the Hollywood producer searching for some affirmation that good honest women still exist in this world. He was priceless as he sat cross-legged at Muriel's feet explaining his sordid Hollywood past and three failed marriages.

Telling of his shock at his first wife's affair with a horse-racing jockey, he says, "Do you know what it does to a man's self-esteem to find his wife in the sack with a four-foot midget?"

Dowling, who appeared in "Scenes from American Life" with the Cohasset Drama Club and "Night Watch" with the North River Community Club, is a true comedian. She was both refreshing and coy, first remembering the pork chops she must hurry to buy for her husband's dinner, then delaying to kiss her old boyfriend and ask with vicarious relish, "Who did you sit with at the Academy Awards?"

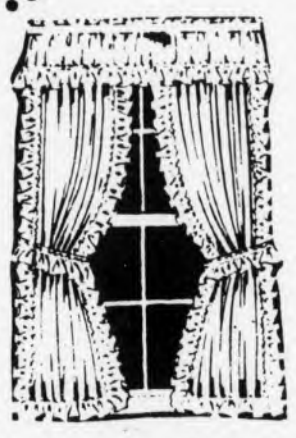
In the final act, we meet Norma and Roy Hubley at the Plaza Hotel for the happy occasion of their daughter Mimsey's marriage to Borden Eisler. The only problem is that Mimsey has locked herself in the bathroom and refuses to come out.

With the most hilarious lines of all three acts, this scene shows Norma and Roy, played by Gari Glennon and Bob Julian, in an increasing panic as they alternately cajole and threaten their daughter, attempting to get her out of the bathroom and down the aisle.

Julian, a long-time Cohasset Drama Club member who has appeared in such productions as "Prisoner of Second Avenue" and "A Man For All Seasons," portrays a harried husband and father who has just outlaid a small fortune for his daughter's wedding, only to see the caviar go to waste if he can't convince her to stop crying all over her $800 gown.

Glennon, who has appeared in "Sly Fox" and "The Hound of the Baskervilles" with the Club, was sympathetic as the beleagered mother and wife who is sure her husband will somehow find a way to blame the whole mess on her.

Grimacing and wringing her hands as she and her husband bicker over their daughter's fears, she asks Roy, "What could she possibly be afraid of becoming? She'll marry Borden, they'll have children and then become just like us." Then her eyes light up with a glimmer of understanding.



Katy Miessner played the elusive Mimsey and Eddie Fee played her flippant husbant-to-be. Also appearing in "Plaza Suite" were Carter Hill as the very proper waiter and Gerald McNabb as a young, matter-of-fact bellhop.

"Plaza Suite " was a thoroughly enjoyable production, filled with well-deserved laughs, which is all the more impressive when you consider that Director Phyliss Mahon was ill during much of rehearsal. The cast pulled together admirable. Also deserving priase are Carter Hill and Susan Harrington, the show's producers.

Meet Charles Davis & CHS computers

By Moira McCarthy

Charles Davis sees his role as chairman of Cohasset High School's math department quite clearly. It's no easy job.

"The department's job is to prepare students for the future. My job is to keep the curriculum up to date. We've got to keep our students even, if not ahead of other school systems. When you've done that, then you feel real pride."

Right now, Davis is striving to get them ahead in computers.

Davis said computer literacy is a part of the Math Level I Achievement Tests, and many colleges now require computer literacy courses.

"We have to keep up. Cohasset must be in the ball game. We have to keep making changes so we can be on top of things," he said.

The first major program Davis implemented was a teacher inservice, training in computer literacy and programming. This means each teacher has at least some background in computers.

"We'd like to have the kids doing applications units in algebra, geometry, and business, so that it ties into everything," Davis said.

Davis would also like to see computer literacy a requirement for all CHS students.

"I don't see that everyone has to know how to program, but the situation is that you have to be exposed to and familiar with software, and printers.

"Like any life skill, there will be different levels of professionalism. But if any kid hasn't been exposed to computers at some level, they'll have difficulty getting a job."

Presently, the CHS computer curriculum features computer literacy courses, as well as computer science I, II, and III.

The literacy classes are in two sections, each meeting three times a week. There are 40 students in each class. "Anyone from general to honors," Davis added. "They're just there to find out what it's like . . .and it gives us a time to seek out the naturals."

It is seeking out of the naturals that gives Davis a special thrill.

"It's finding a kid that really takes to the computer, draws perfect flow charts, and recommending them to pursue a career in the field that makes my day," he said.

"The kid that comes in at 7:15 just to get in some extra computer time, or the kid that comes to me to talk about plans for college really is a joy."

Davis's dream is to eventually see every class working with computers.

"Spontaneity is important," he said. "Every room should have at least one computer, that's the ideal. Then the teacher can tie in any lesson with the computer. That will be the joy of cablevision."

But Davis said although cable will add some terminals to the school system, the system is limited.

"Funding is a problem now," he said. Davis applied for $7,000 for additional computer equipment but it was struck from the budget. "Outside grants are usually matching so they're not an option. But we're fortunate to have what we have now."

In preparation for what CHS may have in the future, Davis has implemented a computer literacy program in the Deer Hill school. The students folllow a sequence of learning in fourth, fifth, and sixth grades, "so that we can just apply programming to classes instead of teaching it."

VIDEO GAMES

Davis feels using video games can benefit a child in the long run.

"Extensions of basic language come from kids who play those games and then decide to debug them. That's where the games create a curiosity. The true programmer wants to find out how the programs for those games are written, and how they can add to them.

"They also improve hand-eye coordination, and give the child a familiarity with working on a keyboard."

Davis cited an example of a young boy who debugged the Apple computer, and is now a high school student teaching college courses. But, he added, children in general seem to catch on to computers faster than adults do.

"Kids adapt easier anyway," he said. "With an adult, you almost have to say 'forget the first three lessons' because it takes them longer to adjust. Kids don't have the anxiety that many adults do."

ADULT EDUCATION

Davis now teaches an adult education computer course at the Community Center, along with two other Cohasset High teachers. He finds that many adults want to at least know a little bit about computers, and that there is a great demand for aquiring skills in word processing.

"One dream I have is to offer a course to senior citizens, in familiarity, not programming. Maybe next year I could start one on an open door policy. The senior citizens feel a great need to learn something about computers."

Davis added in many cases, some of his CHS students will be teaching along with him, doing part time work tutoring adults. "This way the adults are learning, and the kids are learning even more at the same time."

COMPUTER SCHOOL

To top it all off, Davis will be running his own private computer school out of CHS this summer.

The school will run in two sessions Mondays and Thursdays, and will cater to the needs of students in grades four through nine.

"Requests from parents motivated me to begin the school," Davis said. "They want their kids to get more intensive training and exposure to computers." He added that parents with students in private schools especially wanted to make sure that their children were getting the proper computer training.

Again, some CHS students will be assisting teaching at the school and tutoring the students.

The classes will concentrate on computer skills as they apply to all learning aspects. "You don't have to have math strengths to understand and use computers," Davis added.

"But whether or not a student has had computers or not is going to make a difference in their future."

COMPUTER FAIR

In order to let the parents of the town see what computers can offer their children, Davis is holding a Computer Fair at the high school May 24.

The fair will feature 10 different types of computers, all brought in and demonstrated by the students who use them. There will be computers that use color, sound, and every type of programming that can be imagined.

"This will allow the students to demonstrate their own computers, and let the parents see different types of computers to help them decide what kind they might want to buy for their own homes," Davis said.

He added it may just be a help to himself, since he has yet to decide on the type of computer that he'll buy for his family.

Chairman of high school math department, Charles Davis, watches seventh grade student Dennis Leary work out at the computer board.

"My kids keep telling me to hurry up and decide," he said laughing.

It takes a lot of time and energy to do the job that Davis insists on doing perfectly.

"I have to keep up on computer information by reading anything and everything about the new ideas and techniques," he said.

But for him, this time consuming job is more of a joy than a problem.

"I enjoy my job, and I enjoy teaching," he said, "It is so rewarding to have a former student come back and tell me about the job they have, and how they're doing, or how well prepared they were for college. That's what makes this job a joy."

The runaway problem won't go away

By Patricia Desmond

'They are troubled kids who don't know how to handle their trouble and can't communicate with their parents, for the most part.'

Deep in my past — locked away by more than two decades is a memory of being young and sad.

I don't know how young. But I was sad enough to decide I would run away "to show them."

I packed a suitcase and hid it underneath my bed and then tried hard as I could to formulate a plan of where I would go, how I would get there and what would happen to me in the future.

I never actually left the house with that battered suitcase. I guess I was sure that if I trucked off with it, I'd have more pride to swallow than if I stayed.

But still I left the suitcase, all packed, beneath my bed — hoping upon hope that my mother would find the suitcase, realize I was ready to bound off to parts unknown and be nicer to me.

If my mother ever did find the suitcase, she didn't mention it. Though I know she dry-mopped under my bed once a week and I know I left it there for months on end. Or maybe it just seems like months looking back at a clouded memory.

But the thought isn't new or even unusual. The fact is that more children today go through with the fantasy. Usually they decide to leave home because they are having trouble coping with their family.

Here on the South Shore the problem of runaways is a concern for police, social service agencies and, most of all, a small but worried number of families.

Some statistics are kept on the runaways who in the end become the subject of large-scale police search. To rate a police search means their flight from home must have continued for more than 24 hours.

Nationally there were 600,000 such runaways reported in 1970. By 1980 our under 18 year-old population was on the decline but the number of runaways reported had jumped to one million.

Half of the runaways are girls.

Locally the numbers are harder to pin down.

At the heart of the issue, according to all the experts, is our growing inability to communicate.

Jim lives in Norwell.

Last year he ran away. The case didn't even become the subject of a police report because his mother had decided she didn't want to go through the humiliation.

"It would have been admitting failure," she said.

She did everything she could to find him on her own. She didn't find him but some one or more of Jim's friends let him know about her ceaseless driving around and questioning. Jim gave her another chance.

"The night he came back I cried for two hours. And then we started talking," she said. "I didn't realize how my nagging was bothering him until then. And he didn't realize how upset I was about other things until I blurted it all out."

"I'm doing a story about runaways." I began my series of questions to one police official.

"Why do you want to do that, you'll give more of them ideas?" he replied.

This story isn't going to be a how-to-runaway.

It's true there are shelters today, runaway hotlines and other sources of protection against the violence of urban society.

So should one really want to run away, it's probably possible. But experts in the social services field say that most runaways really don't want to leave home.

"They are troubled kids who don't know how to handle their troubles and can't communicate with their parents, for the most part," one insider in the courtroom part of the process said.

"They don't belong on the streets. Usually they are crying out for help the only way they can find. Usually the problem gets resolved right away — the more difficult cases end up with the CHINs (Children In Need of Services) people."

Police departments are the first line of defense here against the problem of runaways. When you're a parent of a 10 year-old or so missing dinner seems to be enough reason to call the police. Older children don't seem to be reported as missing unless they fail to come home from an evening out. There are some parents who try to brave it out, hoping the child will come to his or her senses by the time one cold night goes by. And some who feel a misplaced sense of guilt about the situation — these parents are often too embarrassed to call the police, quickly at least.

The police response to the situation is fairly simple.

They will search for a child under 18. After 18 you may leave home at will.

When found they will return the child to the home. If the child is found out of state, the parent or parents must handle the return.

Cohasset Police Chief Joseph Keeley explained that before the original teletype is sent from the station, the parent gives consent to go after the child if he or she is picked up out of state.

Most often that return trip is the end of the situation.

"I wouldn't categorize runaways as problem kids as far as we are concerned," Keeley said.

"Most of the time they're just kids having problems at home."

The habitual or continual runaways end up being brought to the court.

Keeley said that in Cohasset that might mean several a year.

What if the child has a legitimate complaint about treatment within the home?

"That isn't up to us," Keeley said. "It's up to the court." He added that it seems running away has nothing to do with being an abused child. Those complaints find their way from the police prosecutor or social services department to court.

He said the frequent route for a habitual runaway is a court-ordered psychiatric exam.

A worker at the runaway hotline, based in Chicago, echoed the same general thought.

"Kids run away when they have problems they can't handle and no idea that they could find any help handling those problems.

"Sometimes some small event will trigger the runaway — like finding him or herself out after curfew and knowing a grounding will come. And sometimes whatever's happened is a more serious infraction of the family's set of rules. But the problem's been building for some time — like a pressure cooker, the whistling point takes different times for different people."

The National Runaway Switchboard, by the way, will transmit word that a child is well without revealing whereabouts. And it is available to offer needed advice.

THE NUMBER IS 1-800-621-4000.

There's a similar hotline in Texas at 1-800-231-6946.

Hitting the road . . .

Sometimes runaways are abetted by well meaning people who don't even realize they are causing some parent concern.

"Sometimes a kid will stay overnight somewhere with a friend," one law enforcement official offered.

"It's a very small problem here," he said. "In the cities, it's different."

There is a short-term shelter run by Survival in Weymouth. But police don't use it. And you can't go knocking at the front door for a bed for the night.

You get admitted there by referral.

In Boston there's a shelter for runaways known as Place House — in the early '70s it was called Project Place — back then the clientelle was different from today. Today's runaways seem younger because they are.

In Marshfield last year an 11-year-old girl was able to move from home to home (of her friends) "successfully" running away for 10 days. She returned home on her own much to her mother's relief — but only after being talked to by the mother of a friend who discovered the game. The young girl was afraid to go home. She said she'd be killed because she forgot to feed the cat.

The story ended, more or less happily, with a long term dose of family counselling.

In the beach towns, like Scituate, the number of runaways increases rapidly with the coming of the good weather. The summer population can increase, and so can the opportunity to sleep under the stars.

A Hanover police official terms the problem of runaways very small there. But a therapist who practices there says the number of referrals he sees who have tried running away or are still thinking about it as a solution seems to be on the increase.

"I blame TV and the movies," he comments tersely.

There are a few hard statistics kept on runaways. Only the local gossips know exactly how many children in any community run away.

Hingham Police Chief William Schmitt explained that he didn't keep statistics on runaways in his town "because it isn't a real problem here."

Schmitt said most of the runaways turn up home on their own within a matter of hours or by the next morning.

As for the others, the police are usually able to bring them home after talking with their friends.

"Usually their friends will know where they are or at least have a pretty good idea," Schmitt said.

Hingham isn't unusual as far as suburban communities go in having less than epidemic proportions of running away.

One social worker for a mental health agency said she guessed the incidence of running away like most other family problems increases with economic pressure.

"For example, you seem to see runaways coming from homes in crisis," she said. "There might be a parent who's just lost a job or there may be a divorce in progress or some other emotional stress for the whole family to deal with. The runaway might just be feeling the pressure more than the rest."

But just as often there's nothing other than a large case of lack of communication.

One social worker relates a story of a client she isn't succeeding with, so far...

Tracy is 15 and lives in Hingham. She ran away twice last year. Only once made the police blotter because the first time she ran away without any money, with only the clothes on her back and without leaving a note.

"I went home the next day and got yelled at. But they didn't realize I'd really run away. I went back because I knew I had to organize it better if I were to survive. I thought if I could get by for a little time, I could get a job and my own place.

"The second time I left I took $75 and warm clothes and headed for Florida.

"The police pulled me off a bus in New York."

Has anything changed for Tracy?

"I'm planning better for the next time," she said. "I need to be on my own. My parents just don't understand me."

Cedarledge developers update landfill problems

Developers of the proposed 18-unit Cedarledge Village condominium development updated selectmen last week about the problems they have experienced with the Board of Health in attempting to solve severe drainage problems at the site.

Developers Joseph Crossen and John Lanata told selectmen the board of health agreed May 3 to hire an engineer to examine the adjacent landfill to see if work completed there had interfered with drainage from the pond.

The pond at the Cedar Street landfill is causing the drainage problems for the adjacent cluster development site.

Board of health engineer, Fred DeFeo, estimated it would cost $55,000 to drain the pond at the landfill.

DeFeo, who engineered the partial capping of the landfill for the board of health, estimated it would cost $5,000 for engineering and $50,000 for blasting and excavation.

The two developers have suggested that the capping at the landfill may have blocked drainage from the site, created the pond, and backed excess water onto their land.

Crossen told selectmen the board of health promised to hire an impartial engineer to see if the capping had interfered with the pond.

Board of health member Dr. C. Michael Bliss said the board had researched old topographical maps to see if the drainage dilemma had been developed prior to the capping.

The debate, he told selectmen, centers on whether the excessive ponding is caused by excessive rainfall this spring and the extremely high water table, or whether the town obstructed the usual drainage from the construction of the landfill cap on the property between 1977 and 1981.

When the health board asked for funds from the advisory committee to hire an engineer to complete the study, the advisory board said to wait until the water table had dropped.

In these situations, Bliss said, the advisory committee questions the town spending money on a project, when the burden should be placed on the abutter.

Advisory committee chairman James Lagrotteria said the town should wait to expend such funds until the rain has slacked, and the water table dropped.

"Frankly, it is the advisory board's opinion that you're innocent until proven guilty," he said. The advisor added it was not up to the town, but "it's up to the abutter to prove we (the town) aggravate the problem."

Lagrotteria maintained there has always been a water problem at the dump "and we can't make a rash judgement when the water table is high."

Lanata then asked selectmen "when is the board of health going to do anything?" The developers complained they could not speak with the board of health until their June 13 meeting. He said the board set no priorities, and noted the pond is "a health hazard" where people walk through and where children ride their bicycles.

Selectmen acknowledged they have no jurisdiction over the elected members of the board of health. But selectman Clifford Mitman suggested that any discussion the advisory board holds regarding the matter be discussed during open, posted sessions.

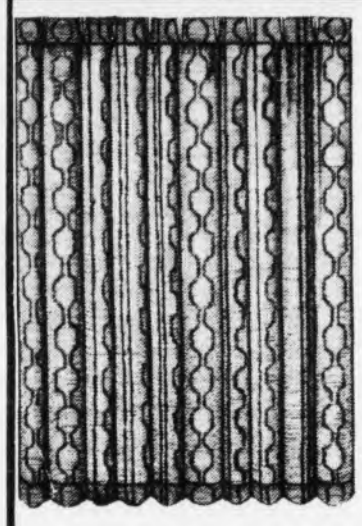
Both Dr. Bliss and advisory chairman Lagroterria said the engineering study had been discussed two weeks ago "in an offhanded manner," and not as a scheduled agenda item.

Lagroterria assured selectmen that any further discussions would be held in regularly-scheduled agenda meetings.

Although selectmen asked that the developers be given prompt attention by the board of health, Dr. Bliss maintained "20 million people" are knocking on their doors for inclusion onto their meetings' agendas. The board has added more meetings because of the overloads of requests, he said.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle added that the Cedarledge developers have spent about $60,000 of their money in engineering plans, and asked the board of health to place them among their highest priorities.

Another "Catch 22," according to developer Crossen, is that the board of health agent will not allow the construction of a septic system until the water table is determined. He said this problem has added to the developers' debt service which, he noted, "is very substantial at this time."



Here are Virginia Dowling and Eric Bogle in different poses during last week's production of "Plaza Suite."

The value of your word. . .

By Lois Martin

He used to say that every time I saw him. That wasn't often because Uncle Jim was one of those distant relatives.

He was kin somehow to me through my grandmother on my father's side, I think. and he lived in New York, some place far removed from Brooksville, Maine, in speed, space and time.

He was tallish, though most people are tall to a small child. And he was always in good humor, affable, ingratiating, a warming force at a family dinner.

PATCHES

And whenever I'd see him he'd always say, "Loie, do you want to come home with me and visit?" I I did. I told him I did. But he never followed up on that brief repartee. I'd overhear him telling the rest of the crowd how he'd asked me to visit and how quickly and soberly I'd agreed to do so. Then everybody would laugh like anything.

And I never quite got it. Yes, Uncle Jim, I'd love to go back with you and visit. How come he asked if he didn't mean it?

The big draw which stimulated my acceptance had something to do with ferris wheels, popcorn and cotton candy, innumerable rides, clowns, fun. Thank you, yes, I'd like to go.

Since I was seven I've gained experience in ferris wheels, popcorn and cotton candy. Now I'd have to refuse two out of three of those and I don't need to go all the way to New York just for popcorn.

I have steadfastly found that type of invitation beyond my comprehension. But I learned that Uncle Jim was finding and making entertainment and conversation at the same time. I still don't understand adults who ask a child a question like that and regard it as a joke. I was never kidding, Uncle Jim. I was dead serious.

A child's mind is so clear and clean. It listens in uncluttered clarity, absorbing words and giving them full meaning. I've never forgotten it. And I'm mindful not to ask cute little kids if they want to come home with me unless I intend to take them there.

Foolish, isn't it? But if there's anyone in the world that'll take you at your word, it's a child. And some of us never outgrow that.

I'm afraid I have not. Recently someone said to me, directing the comment to the newspaper part of me, "If we don't stop taking people at their word, we're going to be in serious trouble."

I'm in serious trouble. If someone tells me he or she is going to do something, or has done something I'm going to go with that person until I'm given reason not to believe him.

Oh, it's true. I can learn as I did with innocuous Uncle Jim that some promises are made for the moment's light breeze. And I've come to let my instincts and training tell me when someone is lying or unlikely to be committed to his word. I've learned there is dishonesty. But I'm not looking for it.

For the most part my faith in the word of other men and women has been justified. If you count on your own word, you're more likely to do the same for words of others.

Perhaps the most disheartening moments I've suffered have had something to do with discovery that someone's word was valueless. I wanted more of them and for them. Fulfillment of one's word may need to be postponed, rescheduled, forgiven because of illness or other circumstances. But hope for humanity is dashed if you can't take a person on his word. Action, the skeptics say, speaks louder than words. I say action is the measure of words, the indicator, the endorsement. That's how I know whose words to take. And that's how I intend to enforce the value of mine.

Some might say the key is learning when to take a joke, like my not recognizing Uncle Jim's invitation as being one of those. I don't know. I've been blessed with a pretty keen sense of humor. And my definition of a joke is when everybody gets to laugh.

Someone once told me that being childlike was okay so long as one wasn't childish. There are apparently little nuances of naivete to which we cling, like wanting an orange in the toe of a Christmas stocking and taking people at their word.

Many words must have proved false to inspire our sayings, "You've got to be kidding," "You're not serious." We can't be sure anymore when words mean what they say.

Some of us learn the hard way. We keep giving merit to a person and his words until it's proven beyond a doubt that one or both is worthless. But that way, you see, we never miss good words because we didn't dare trust.

I can't go to New York with you any more, Uncle Jim. You and the opportunity, even the joke, are gone. But then so is the intrigue of the ferris wheel. But never the urge to believe.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

The merry month of May not only brings spring flowers, but awakens our taste buds, quickening our thought of native rhubarb, succulent asparagus, peas from the garden and strawberries, fresh from the garden. Some, Stella Jones included, even eye the pesky dandelion and find their greens a treat after the long, cold winter. Stella writes: "Of course you cannot use the wild dandelions now unless you have them fenced in. Too many dogs. I plant the seeds in my fenced-in garden, as I still look forward to them in the spring. They are far superior to the store-bought ones." Planting dandelions while most of them are weeding them out of our lawns was such a novel idea to me that it triggered off a search through my files and cookbooks for this recipe I had spotted long ago in a little book published in 1973 about the South Shore. Here is Jan Norton's way with dandelions.

DANDELION WINE

2 qts. dandelion blossoms
1 gallon boiling water
4 oranges, sliced thin
4 lemons, sliced thin
¾ of a yeast cake dissolved in a little warm water
4 pounds sugar

Pour boiling water over dandelion heads in crock. Let stand overnight. Strain to remove blossoms. Add rest of ingredients. Stir to dissolve sugar. Let stand four days, then remove fruit. Put cheese cloth over top of crock. Let mixture stand about two months until it stops working. Stir occasionally. Strain and bottle.

When Stella was only nine years-old, her mother taught her how to make pies and she, in turn, showed her children the ways to a nice brown crust. "She always made the bottom crust then rolled the top one. Before putting in filling of any kind, mother poured one cup of water in bottom, then poured it off. This dampened the edges, so when top was put on it stuck together and the filling didn't leak out. Evaporated milk brushed on, then sprinkled with a small amount of sugar, browned the crust beautifully." Here is her recipe, so old it was developed for a woodstove and so Stella says that her modern oven she checks at 35 minutes to find if the top of the pie is browning and, if so, covers with a piece of foil for approximately another 10 minutes in a 375 degree oven.

RHUBARD CUSTARD PIE

4½ c. sliced rhubarb
1¼ c. sugar
⅓ c. flour
3 eggs
¼ tsp. nutmeg
2 T. butter
Sprinkle of salt

Line bottom of pan with crust. Pour in sliced rhubarb. Dice up butter over top, then cover with top crust. Brush top crust with evaporated milk. Cut slits for steam to escape. Sprinkle with approximately 2 tsp. sugar, so crust will brown nicely.

As always, when looking for one thing, I found another and this time, it was a cookbook by Vermont cooks loaned to me two years ago by Helen Melvin. Fortunately, her accompanying note urged me to use it as long as I wished, so it gave me a chance to read once again old, old recipes such as Steamed Thrift Pudding, Digestible Graham Pudding, Cornmeal Mush, Boiled Cider Pie and many maple syrup recipes. In their chapter on pies, this basic recipe for one two-crust pie or two single crust pies is given:

PIE CRUST

1½ c. pastry flour
½ c. lard
1 tsp. salt
Cold water

Combine flour, salt and lard, using two knives or pastry blender until it is fine grained. Add just enough very cold water so that mixture breaks away from side of dish. Separate into two equal parts and roll to size of pie plate.

But, how about a meringue crust for this:

HEAVENLY MERINGUE PIE

4 egg whites
⅔ c. granulated sugar
½ c. powdered sugar
¼ tsp. vanilla

Beat egg whites stiff and gradually add sugar and vanilla. Butter pie plate and spread meringue over. Bake at 300 degrees for 50 minutes. Cool quickly and fill with sliced peaches, berries, etc. Cover with whipped cream.

Family owned and maintained

A Beautiful Approach to Country Living.

You drive in through meadows strewn with seasonal wildflowers. But that's only your entry to the good life at The Meadows, The Green Company's new community of attached single family homes in Hingham. The architectural style is true to the farm-house heritage of the community. The construction and detailing have been accomplished with obvious pride.

The Meadows offers a selection of two and three bedroom homes with unexpected details like master suites with private fireplaced sitting areas, large country kitchens for informal entertaining, separate dining rooms for more formal occasions, hidden corners for quiet contemplation, and a mix of ceiling heights and styles. In addition there are large private courtyards, two-car garages, full basements, a swimming pool, whirlpool, tennis courts and a clubhouse. And best of all, this very civilized lifestyle is near major highways to the cultural delights of Boston and vacation areas to the North and South.

Prices range from $157,000 to $210,000 during this, our opening period. Furnished models are open every day from 9 to 5. Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street, one mile to our entrance. Call (617) 740-1500 for an appointment. When it comes to a good life in the country, The Meadows leads the field!

The MEADOWS in Hingham

around town

☐Pfc. Scott Muir, son of Robert and Margaret Muir of Reservoir Road, completed the OH-58 helicopter repair course at the U.S. Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Ala.

Subjects personnel studied through academics and hands-on training included the OH-58 turbine engine, transmission, electrical systems, flight controls, main and tail rotor systems and the aircraft's hydraulic system.

Muir is a 1980 graduate of Cohasset High School.

☐There is a movie on the life of President John Kennedy being filmed in Hyannis that is to be shown on television sometime next year. It is of special interest to Beth and Ed Goff as their grandson, Ryan (son of Richard and Ann Marie Goff), is playing John John when he was a young boy. The directors had other children on standby, lest Ryan got a little camera-shy, but that didn't happen. Ryan did a perfect job, and is scheduled to travel to New York in August to finish up shooting the film. Martin Sheen is playing John Kennedy.

☐Pfc. Scott Muir, son of Robert and Margaret Muir of Reservoir Road, completed the OH-58 helicopter repair course at the U.S. Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Alabama. Scott is a 1980 graduate of CHS.

☐Mrs. Wunschel's pre-chef cooking class had quite a demonstration last week. Held at Central Market by their butcher, John Cogill, the students learned all about cuts of meat, prices and quality of beer. Twenty students now know the cuts of meat that are the best as well as how to cut them. A side of beef and chicken were used in the demonstration.

☐It's nice to see the Evelyn Wood Library Fund still growing...it now stands at $4,075.

Ward gives alternative sewer plan preliminary cost

Engineer Joseph Ward's second preliminary report of Cohasset's alternate sewer plan says the average estimated construction cost, of on-site sewage systems for the Veterans, Hillside, and Ledgewood areas of the town is nearly $30,000.

These are for two extreme cases needing black-water holding with filtration, disinfection of grey-water, and sand mound disposal.

He says these figures assume replacement of every system, and are based on some of the most difficult problems in town.

"It is clear that the per home cost of on-site repairs is far lower than the per home capital cost of the previously proposed sewer system and treatment plant with ocean outfall."

Ward says most existing systems are undersized, and mentions water table and poor surface and subsurface drainage would be crucial components of any on-site correction program" in the Veterans and Hillside areas.

"A major constraint is . . .many sound repairs would still require variance of certain provisions. "Approval by the Cohasset Board of Health and state DEQE still cannot be assumed without discussion with these responsible regulatory authorities."

Preliminary analyses of the existing treatment plant suggest it can be brought into permit compliance with the "addition of an enlarged clarifier and or rapid sand filtration."

Ward estimated the costs would be $250,000. He said,"Significant progress has been made by a plant staff and contractor in reduction of Inflow and Infiltration, bringing daily flows close to permit limits, with more work still to be done."

Ward and Charles Dauchy of Ward Engineering Associates reported to the commission their preliminary investigations of the Hillside and Veteran's areas.

Ward said the soils in those areas are of glacial till origin, often with a dense silty "hardpan" two to three feet below the surface.

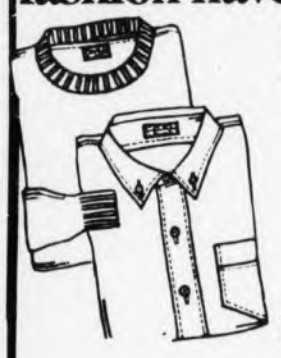
Even toward the top of the hill, the water table is currently near the surface. At lower elevations, surface saturation was observed on several sites. Poor surface drainage in some areas compounds the problem.

Dauchy told commission chairman Charles De Santis April 21 that after his first day of observations he believed many septic systems could be repaired, but that the areas had drainage problems which needed ot be addressed. Ward earlier said drainage work, if it can be shown to improve septic systems, may also be up to 94 percent funded under alternative and innovative (I/A) sewer programs.

Existing systems are undersized. They fail to consider site hydraulics or utilize available potential for curtain drainage, said Ward.

All systems would benefit from flow reduction according to Ward. Water use figures suggest this is entirely practical, he added.

"Repair costs would average in the vicinity of $10,000 per system" Ward said.



Many sites will need variances from the Cohasset Board of Health and state DEQE. The most difficult constraint for the Veteran's area is the required 100 foot separation distance for leaching systems from subsurface drains tributary to public surface water supplies (Lily Pond Reservoir). A "possible option for the area is to provide underdrained sand filters," Ward said.

In regard to this and other possible variances "it would be advisable to obtain agreement in principal from the board of health and DEQE regarding criteria for granting variances, approvable technical measures and acceptable techniques of analysis" before finalizing recommendations and cost estimates, added Ward.

OSGOOD STUDENT PLACEMENT

The organizational pattern for the Osgood School for the 1983-84 school year is as follows: Kindergarten (housed in open space) — two morning and afternoon sections; first grade — three self-contained sections; second grade — four self-contained sections; and third grade — three self-contained sections.

Should parents wish to make observations with respect to the learning environment most appropriate for their child, they may do so by writing to the current teacher. Parents are asked not to state specific teacher preferences.

The process of student placement involves the collection of performance data for each child, analysis of data and preliminary placement; review of placements by teachers responsible for academic program; and concluding with placement recommended to parent. Parent participation is welcome at this time.

PSO ANNUAL MEETING

The first annual meeting of the Parent School Organization will be held Tuesday, May 24. Coffee and refreshments will be served at 7 p.m.

"Computers and Your Children," a program presented by Charles Davis, chairman of the high school math department, begins at 7:30 p.m.

Immediately following the program, parents are invited to participate in a Computer Fair planned by Cohasset students to present a wide variety of computers and their uses. The meeting takes place in the new study all at the high school.

GRADE 7-11 TESTING

Tuesday, May 24 through Thursday, May 26 students in grades seven through 11 will be administered the SRA and/or the IOWA Achievement Tests. These tests are used to measure the academic growth of students, to identify individual academic strengths and weaknesses and to assist in course placement.

The results of these tests will be mailed home with final report cards. Since a substantial amount of time is needed to process and score the tests, there may not be sufficient time to offer a make-up period for tests missed due to absence. Therefore, students are asked to be in attendance for the entire testing period.

Drop spots

The Cohasset Mariner is adding a local drop spot for Cohasset news and advertising. Items can be left at the Cohasset Pharmacy as they have been in the past, or they can be dropped at Hennessey News, 3 Brook St. Both locations are in Cohasset Village.

The deadline for classified ads is Monday at 9:30 a.m. and for news copy, Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

The Mariner will pick up on Friday, Monday and Tuesday. Hennessey's hours are 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week.

Ventress Library information line

The Library information line presents interesting items of information given by the reference departments of the Paul Pratt Library of Cohasset, the Ventress Library of Marshfield and the Scituate Public Library in response to requests from the public. This week's column is by Bruce Brigell, Reference Librarian of the Ventress Library.

Q. While in Florida recently I heard, in passing, of something called "lethal yellow." What is this?

A. Lethal yellowing refers to a viral disease affecting coconut palm trees. Lethal yellow began and is prevalent in the West Indies, where it has inflicted a considerable amount of damage on the coconut crop.

Q. I've recently read of something called the Sedona Method for the treatment of stress. I know it is based in New York. Could you tell me more about it?

A. We could find no mention of a Sedona therapy in any of the resources on stress or psychology in the library, however the Manhattan phone book shows Sedona Associates Inc., 971 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10021 and The Sedona Method, 30 East 76th St., New York, NY 10021: Both listings share the same phone number. You should contact these addresses for information on the mechanics of Sedona therapy.

Q. What are the names of the major daily newspapers in Miami, Pittsburg and Atlanta; and what are their circulations?

A. Miami and Atlanta only one have one major daily newspaper and Pittsburg has two. The Miami Herald has a circulation of just under 400,000 issues daily; The Atlanta Journal-Constitution has a circulation of about 415,000. In Pittsburg, the Post-Gazette has a circulation of 181,000 and the Press has a circulation of 260,000 according to the 1983 Ayer Directory of Publications.

Q. Where can I find the procedure for admittance to the Bar for the practice of law in Massachusetts?

A. Contact the Massachusetts Bar Association, One Center Plaza, Boston, MA 02108 for this information. The phone number there is 523-4529.

Q. I am looking for the names of associations of women in media.

A. The Encyclopedia of Associations lists the National Association of Media Women, 1185 Niskey Lake Road, SW, Atlanta, GA 30331 as the primary association of this description. The Directory of Career Resources for Women lists the organization Women in Communications, Inc., P.O. Box 9561, Austin, Texas 70766.

Report from Pakistan: Part IV

By Philip Dormitzer

This letter was written from Peshawar, Pakistan, on the first leg of Philip's journey alone through northern Pakistan and India after the anthropology expedition ended. The Pathans that he mentions are a cohesive and fiercely independent tribe living in the region near Afghanistan.

Jackie Dormitzer

I have arrived in Peshawar, where I am staying at the guest house of the vice-chancellor of Peshawar University. Two miles from the house, the tribal zone between Pakistan and Afghanistan begins. Any officer of the law who wanders into this zone will be shot. The hills in the distance mark the border with Afghanistan, and as I write, warplanes roar overhead on trial bombing raids.

The house is guarded by tribesmen with guns across their shoulders and bolts of ammunition across their chests. There is really no need to guard the house under normal conditions, but the more I talk with people about the problems in this part of the world, the more I realize that the nation is very unstable. As we entered Peshawar by bus, we passed by camps of Afghan refugees. The bazaars are full of Afghan tribesmen, and tensions are building between the natives and the refugees.

Peshawar is clearly the city of the Pathans. The bazaars are in winding, narrow alleys hemmed in by three-story-high buildings with decaying woodwork. The shopkeepers have long, flowing beards and wear Pathan hats. The few women who venture outside their homes are in purdah (veiled and completely covered) -- the crowds are almost entirely male. The atmosphere of the bazaar is full of the smell of meat being fried in ghee and herbs from the spice bazaar. In the stalls men work copper, brass and gold as they drink green tea.

When I looked at the brass workers' wares, one of them called me over to his stall and asked me if I was an American. He said, "My name is Ali -- poor, honest Ali. You must have green tea with me." He took me behind his stall and showed me pictures of himself giving his work to the likes of Jacqueline Kennedy and Zia (president of Pakistan.) He had letters of thanks from the Reagans and Prince Philip. He is the best brass worker in Peshawar, and his wares are given to heads of state by the government of Pakistan. He would not let me leave before giving me a brass plate -- one that had seen better days and was not one of the more ornate, but he would accept no money. All he asked was that I take his picture and send him a copy. He signed his name, "P.H. Ali." The P.H. stands for "Poor, Honest."

Six days have passed since I began this letter, and in that time I have traveled to the Swat Valley. I was accompanied by Iftikhan Ali Abud, a young geologist from Peshawar University. The Swat Valley is a real contrast to the badlands I've been working in. All possible land is under cultivation, and the terraced fields ascend tremendously steep slopes. Villages perch upon outcrops in the mountains and are connected to the road only by footpaths.

We traveled by local buses as far up the valley as we could reach -- we were blocked by a landslide. To a New Englander the mountains have an odd appearance. The lower portions are barren (except where under cultivation.) Above this the snow cap begins, and partway up the snow cap lies the wooded zone. The peoples of Upper Swat, the Kohistanis, build their houses out of wood instead of the usual mud and stone. The wooden minarets on their mosques make the area look like an Islamic Switzerland.

While traveling in the northern territories I wear the native dress. My complexion, tanned from the fieldwork, is the same as that of a native of Chitral or Gilgit, and several of my acquaintances at the University assumed that I was a Chitrali until I spoke. Many of the men in Swat have full, red beards, and some even have blue eyes.

Several weeks ago I went to a fair in the Punjab with the workers at our camp. The event takes place every year by the grave of a holy man. The locals believe that all who sleep in the graveyard gain protection from arthritis. About two thousand Punjabis gathered in the village with their cattle and camels.

The first event was a parade of the prize bulls through the village. The bulls were led by musicians playing wild tribal music and throwing fire crackers into the crowd.

I was grabbed by the crowd and almost carried to the parade route. Since Westerners almost never visit the villages, I became the main attraction. I was paraded through a gauntlet of men who crowded in on either side. The mob was friendly, but having seen a fired-up mass of Pakistanis, I am certain that I would not want to get near them if they were angry about something. The entire mob was male -- the cattle were all bulls, and only the male camels were on display. The peasants take great pride in having a displaying camel. The sight of thousands of turbaned, white-robed peasants on a hillside was like a scene out of "Gandhi."

At present I am staying at Mrs. Davies Private Hotel in Rawalpindi. It is a relic of the British days; although run down, it attempts to keep up the old traditions. The innkeepers speak with British accents and bend over backwards trying to provide for every need. Dinner is quite an experience. I was called out from my room at 7:30 p.m. and brought to the deserted dining room. White I ate the attempt at English food, a waiter stood behind my chair watching me eat. At $7 per night including breakfast, the hotel is a little expensive, and I plan to move into a cheaper place.

A closeup view of Punjabis with their prize bull.

Philip at start of his solo journey in front of Hotel Silver Grill in Rawalpindi, wearing typical Pakistani clothing and backpack.

Crowd of turbaned peasants at the fair in the Punjab where Philip became main attraction.

Sailing club applications

Applications are now available for the Cohasset Sailing Club summer program which begins June 27 and runs through Labor Day.

Supervised classes for juniors will meet for two-hour sessions three days a week. There will be four levels of sailing ability from beginners to advanced sailing and racing. Student sailors must have completed the fourth grade by June or be at least 10 years-old by Labor Day.

Adult classes include basic sailing on Saturdays and intermediate classes on Sundays. A basic program for adults will also meet one weekday. For those who qualify, instruction will be offered on lasers and a 210 class boat.

Membership applications may be obtained by calling Joyce Conway at 383-1621 or writing the Cohasset Sailing Club, P.O. Box 111, Cohasset. These programs are available for Cohasset residents only.

Wedding

Pearce—Wilkins

Mrs. Peter Pearce

Ansley Kay Wilkins and Peter Huntington Pearce were married April 23 in Saint Paul's Episcopal Cathedral, Peoria, Illinois. A reception followed at the Mount Hawley Country Club.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Wilkins of Peoria, is a graduate of Southern Methodist University, and is an account representative for R.L.I. Corporation in Peoria.

Mr. Pearce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mauran S. Pearce of Cohasset. He graduated from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, and received his M.B.A. from the University of Oregon. He is a marketing representative for Caterpillar Tractor Company.

Attending the bride were Jamie Beeson of Peoria, Illinois and Leslie Fifield, Debbie McCarthy, Sue Cohen and Elizabeth Pearce.

Best man was Mitchell Pearce of San Francisco, CA and John Brewer, George Cooney, Bill Lord, and Doug Wilkins were groomsmen.

After a wedding trip to Cozumel, Mexico the couple will reside in Peoria.

Engagement

Becker—Kingsley

Joseph L. Becker of Cohasset and Beverly G. Becker of Weymouth are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Pamela Jean, to Kingsley Durant, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley Durant of Cohasset.

Miss Becker, a graduate of Notre Dame Academy, Hingham, and Providence College, is employed by Primetta Corporation of Hingham.

Mr. Durant graduated from St. Andrew's School, Middletown, Delaware and Boston University. He is employed by The Talbots, Inc.

An August 20 wedding is planned.

Apology

In last week's Mariner, an editor's nightmare occurred.

The wedding picture of Ansley Kay Wilkins was identified as Pamela Jean Becker and labeled "Engagement." In addition, the wedding announcement of Ansley Kay and Peter Huntington Pearce was not published. We offer the families involved our sincerest apologies and we promise to work harder to see these mistakes are not repeated.

Catherine McDonough

Catherine (Stanton) McDonough, 81, of Cohasset, formerly of Brookline, died May 12 at the Plymouth County Hospital in Hanson after a long illness.

She was born in Ireland and had lived in Brookline, where she owned and operated a boarding house, before moving to Cohasset three years ago.

She leaves her husband, Myles McDonough; two sons, William J. McDonough of Hanover and Miles P. McDonough of Quincy; four daughters, Joanne B. Cavallini of Barnstable, Alice M. Yacobian and Margaret M. Collins, both of Cohasset, and Mary C. MacNeil of Hingham; four brothers, Patrick Stanton of West Roxbury, Peter, Coleman, and Michael Stanton of Ireland; two sisters, Mary Flaherty of Dorchester and Anne Hickey of Ireland; 13 grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

A Mass of Christian burial was celebrated Friday in St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset. Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Donations may be made to the Salvation Army, 147 Berkley St., Boston.

A graveside service was conducted Friday in Milton Cemetery for James Arthur spencer, 92, of Cohasset, a retired salesman for D.J. Cutter Co. in Boston.

He died May 10 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

Born in Boston, Mr. Spencer moved to Cohasset 15 years ago. He formerly lived in Milton, Fall River, Swansea and Orleans.

Husband of the late Esther (Emerson) Spencer and the father of the late Elizabeth Erickson, he leaves four nieces, Sarah S. Parent and Elizabeth Gallagher, both of Orleans, Bessie S. Baker of Chichester, N.H., and Annie G. Jackson of West Roxbury.

Donations may be made to the American Hearth Association, 375 Westgate Drive, Brockton 02401.

Dr. Edward McCarthy

Dr. Edward A. McCarthy, 79, of Osterville, a retired Cohasset doctoe, died Saturday at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth.

Born in Malden, he grew up in New York City and had lived in Cohasset and Medford, before moving to Osterville eight years ago.

He was a 1931 graduate of Tufts University, and 1935 graduate of Tufts Medical School.

He retired in 1977.

He has been an associate medical examiner in Norfolk County and a member of the boards of health in Cohasset and Medford.

He also was a past president of the Rotary Clubs in Cohasset and Medford and a member of the Rotary Club and the Oyster Harbor Club in Osterville.

He leaves his wife, Ann (Sullivan) McCarthy; a son, Dr. Edward A. McCarthy Jr. of Cape Elizabeth, Maine; three daughters, Mary Jane Long of Bethesda, Md., and Genia Leonard and Susan Reardon, both of Hingham; two sisters, Sister Mary F. McCarthy of Bloofield Hills, Mich., and Esther M. McCarthy of Lakeville, Conn., and 14 grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Tuesday in St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

Donations may be made to the Elliot P. Joslin Camp, c/o Paul Maddon, 1 Joslin Place, Boston 02215.

SS NOW awards four grants

The South Shore Chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) announces the award of four $50 grants to area organizations submitting proposals for funding purchase of materials and the sponsorship of programs about women. The contest, organized in honor of Women's History Week during March, was the occasion of considerable interest by South Shore communities. Winners are:

— The P.T.O. of Hingham Foster Elementary School: they will have a puppeteer, Marcia Perlmutter of Gerwich Puppets, visit the school. Dressed as Marie Curie or Mollie Pitcher, she will relate the life and times from their point of view.

— Hobomock Elementary School, Pembroke: the school library needs books and relevant material about women. South Shore NOW will assist the school in their choice of materials.

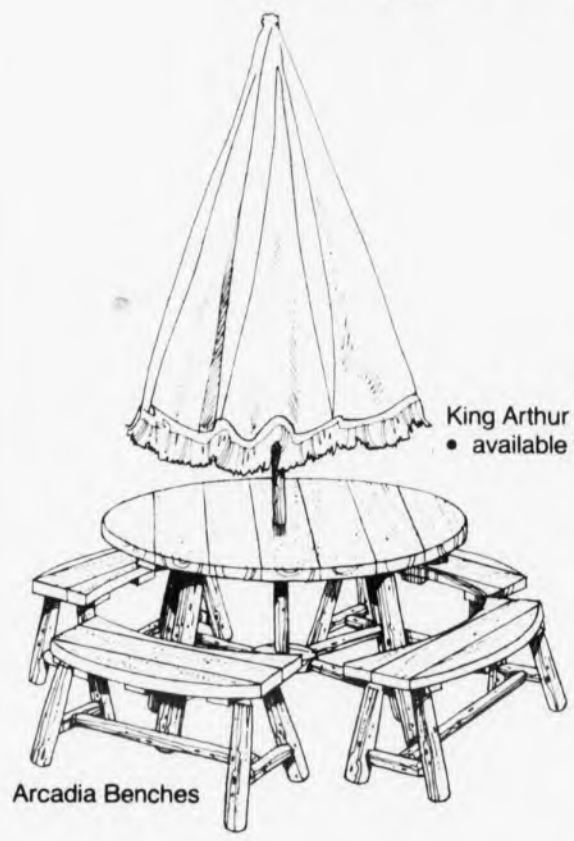
— Elizabeth V. Martin, teacher at Halifax Elementary Elementary School: she will purchase books and materials about women of various walks of life and nationalities.

— Joanne Mitchel, Children's Librarian, Cohasset Library: She submitted a proposal for purchasing non-sexist children's books for young readers.

Members of South Shore NOW extend hearty congratulations to the Women's History Week Grant recipients.

LIGHT UP YOUR LIFE

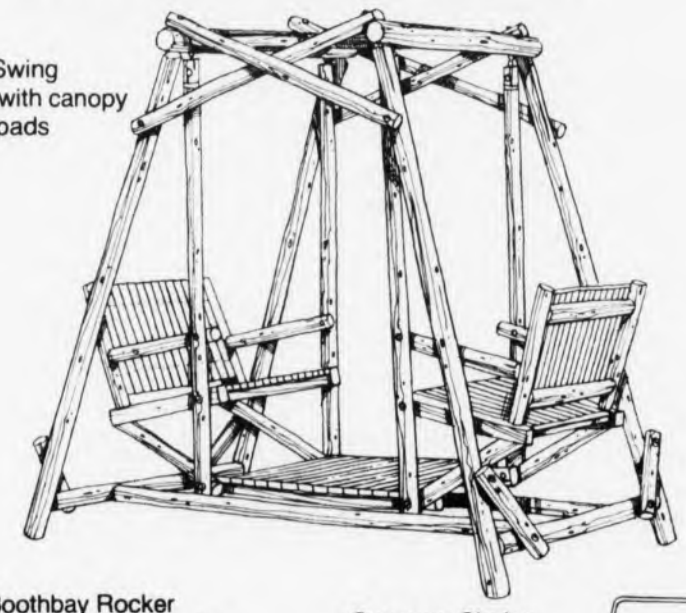
by Nancy Dooley



Outside security lighting is considered a luxury by many people, but now, very often, it is a necessity. Many people do not realize the alternatives they have in this form of lighting, and would be amazed at the low cost of operating. Instead of a 150 watt flood light you have in front of your house, just change them to the 90 watt capsulite by Sylvania and you still get 150 watts for a savings of 1½ cents per hour.

Also there is the high pressure sodium fixture which takes a 70 watt bulb and has the equivelent of a 300 watt flood bulb. These bulbs range from as low as 35 watts up to 1000 watts.

Also available are timers to automatically turn these outdoor lights on and off for you.



So, no longer should outside security lighting be a luxury. There are many styles available at Flagstaff Lighting Showroom at NORTH RIVER ELECTRIC, 433 Washington St., Norwell We accept MC and VISA and are open 9-5 M-s; and 9-9 Th. Call us at 659-2272 or 749-5524 for help on your lighting needs.

Minelli named Southeast Chairman of Bay State Games

Ed Minelli, Cohasset High School basketball coach, is the new Southeast Chairman of the Bay State Games.

He will supervise the organization of the games in 50 communities in southeastern Mass.

The Bay State Games Foundation, in cooperation with the Governor's Committee on Physical Fitness and Sports and the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, is preparing for its 1983 amateur sports festival.

Entry forms have been sent out to high schools, colleges, Chambers of Commerce, and sports organizations throughout the state. To enter his or her regional competition, each athlete must submit an application, along with a $5 entry fee, to the Bay State Games.

All entry fees are used to help defray the costs of information including the site, date and time of their regional events.

Competitions for the Bay State Games are broken into male and female Scholastic and Open divisions. The Scholastic Division includes the 1982-83 high school juniors and below. The Open Division includes this year's high school seniors on up. There is no minimum age on the scholastic division and no maximum age on the open division.

Regional competitions are being held for soccer, basketball, volleyball, wrestling, swimming, diving, gymnastics, and track and field. Synchronized swimming, rowing, weightlifting, cycling, and road running will have finals only. The finals will be held at Boston area colleges August 10-13.

Those people unable to locate a Bay State Games entry form may obtain one by writing to the Bay State Games at 100 Cambridge Street (13th floor), Boston, 02202, or by calling 727-3227.

Continuation of traffic jams expected

State transportation secretary Frederick Salvucci says South Shore residents can expect major traffic jams during reconstruction on the Southeast Expressway over the next two years, and some South Shore legislators are looking into alternative means of transportation during that time.

Sen. Edward Kirby of Whitman is exploring the possibility of commuter rail service from Plymouth to Braintree along the tracks which now carry freight service by the Bay Colony Railroad.

A Hanover branch of the track hooks up in Abington and winds through Rockland to West Hanover.

Kirby said a right of way still exists all the way to Boston, but the old line runs over the former Neponset Bridge, which burned down just after the expressway opened in 1959.

The tracks to Braintree were recently upgraded and Kirby thinks passenger service could be possible. "The speed limit is still only 35 MPH, which is not very high, but it might be practical." He estimated the trip would take about 25 minutes with a stop in Abington.

Whitman legislators and railroad officials recently inspected the rails to determine if a British-built rail bus which was sitting idle on the North Shore could be used on the tracks, but Kirby said the rail bus is no longer available.

"We're still looking into other possibilities," Kirby said. "There is definite interest in the State House in a rail line to the South Shore."

The line could take passengers to within a few steps of the Braintree MBTA station, he said. Several towns on the South Shore have been awarded rebates on their T assessments because they receive no direct MBTA service, he noted, and this would have to be taken into consideration if any action is taken. "We're talking about a lot of money."

Kirby said he's already discussed his proposals with State Rep. William Flynn of Hanover and Sen. Anna Buckley of Brockton, and both Hanover legislators are "very interested" in the proposals. He also noted that the idea is still in its earliest stages.

Transportation secretary Salvucci last week warned a South Shore group that reconstruction of viaducts along Route 3, slated to begin next year, will cause increased congestion on the already-taxed road.

He said things will have been so bad commuters will think it's wonderful when the construction ends.

He said the state hopes to alleviate the increased traffic by keeping four lanes open during rush hours, encouraging car and van pools and the use of alternative means like the commuter boat from Hingham, and more frequent runs on the MBTA red line to the South Shore.

Senior citizen news . . .

By Katherine McGrath

Cohasset Sixty Plus Club board of directors met Tuesday, May 9 at the Unitarian Parish House to resume plans for the remainder of the social season.

On Thursday, May 19, monthly meeting day takes place with coffee hour at 12:30, business meeting to follow with reading of annual reports.

Entertainment will be by Helen Watson, director and piano player, for a sing-along by members. Tenors, altos and supranos are needed for a fun time.

The annual banquet will be held at the Unitarian Parish House Hall, Thursday, June 16 at 12 p.m. This party will be catered by Strawberry Parfait staff. There will be a number of door prizes.

A special trip for senior citizens to the Fenway to see the Red Sox play Oakland is scheduled for Saturday, July 16. A bus will leave Town Hall area at noon. Call Andrew O'Keefe, 383-0386; there are a few $3 tickets in the grand stand left.

The tenants at Harbor View Apartments will be entertained by the Deer Hill School Chorus Friday, May 20 at 1:30 p.m. Lillian Lincoln is chairperson. Refreshments will be served after the concert.

Cohasset Council on Aging is sponsoring a bus for Cohasset citizens for a trip to Fair Haven Thursday, June 9. Dinner will be at the "Skipper," either fish or chicken at $6.60. The bus will leave Town Hall area at 10:30 a.m. Call Dorothy Morse, 383-1637, for reservations.

Thursday, June 19 is the day excess cheese and butter will be available to all senior citizens.

Studds appoints Garde new aide

Congressman Gerry Studds appointed Maureen Garde as his new South Shore Regional Representative.

Garde, who worked from 1977 to 1981 in the Congressman's South Shore office, and served since 1981 as his Cape Cod and Islands Representative, assumed her new duties April 1. Garde is a 1976 graduate of Boston College where she received a B.A. in Urban Studies and is a master's candidate at Boston University.

She replaces Alexander (Sandy) See, who has joined the Boston law firm of Roche, Carens, and DeGiacomo. See served as Studds' South Shore Regional Representative since 1973 when Studds was first elected to the U.S. House of Representatives.

"Sandy has done an outstanding job on the South Shore and leaves with the respect and affection of all who have worked with him over the past ten years," said Studds.

School Committee briefs...

PROM NIGHT

Senior Prom night is Wednesday, June 1 at the Sheraton Tara Hotel in Braintree at 7 p.m. The prom will end at midnight and according to CHS Principal Dick Streeter those students leaving the function room will not be allowed back in. He is concerned that nine students have taken out hotel reservations to stay overnight. Two students are under 18 years-old and the Sheraton Tara has refused to rent them a room. However, seven of the students are 18 years-old and older and the hotel said they would rent the rooms to them but are aware that it is Prom Night. Streeter said although the school is obligated to ensure student safety through midnight, morally, he said, the obligation does not end at midnight. He is concerned about the overnight situation because it raises the possibility of drinking and an overnight situation between a couple. Streeter said he has called all of the parents. Some knew about the reservations and others did not. Some parents feel the overnight room is acceptable and others do not and have second thoughts about allowing it.

SENIOR SKIP DAYS

It has been a Cohasset High School tradition recently for seniors to pick one Senior Skip Day. It was Friday, May 13, and almost every senior skipped class. This is not an authorized absence and every student must bring a note for the absence signed by a parent. CHS Principal Dick Streeter said no note means detention and it will be enforced. There was some trouble in Scituate as five Cohasset youths were charged by Scituate Police with minor transporting alcohol.

ADMINISTRATORS CONTRACT

The School Committee approved a new administrators contract which calls for a six percent salary increase for each of the two years of the contract. This contract will affect Stephen Hart, Special Needs director and administrative assistant to the superintendent, CHS Guidance Director Jack Leary, Assistant CHS Principal Gino DiGirolamo and the elementary principals Kenneth Ekberg and Jack Creamer, and CHS Principal Dick Streeter. The contract was negotiated by School Superintendent Eugene Crowell. Crowell said the contract fulfilled the obligations given to him by the Personnel Board and the Advisory Board. School board member Martha Gjesteby was the only school committee member to object to the contract because she feels the contract should have been negotiated by a school committee subcommittee and not a school superintendent.

SCHOOL CALENDAR CHANGE

The school committee rescinded an earlier vote on next school's year calendar after a teacher petition. School will open Thursday, Sept. 8. The first teacher days are Sept. 6 and 7. The last day of school, if no snow days are involved, will be June 18.

WHALE WATCH

The school committee authorized an eighth grade Whale Watch field trip Friday, June 3, to Plymouth. There will be one chaperone for every 10 students and students will leave at noon. The cost per child ill be $8.50.

The board also approved in advance a whale watch field trip for sixth grade students, should Principal Ekberg request one.

Parental stress line

Volunteer counselors, who have handled more than 28,000 telephone stress calls on the Parental Stress Line toll-free number 1-800-632-8188, have recently developed a new strategy to preserve the Line's existence in the face of increasing telephone costs. The Line has been in operation since 1979 as a statewide service for the prevention of child abuse.

The Parental Stress Line has received calls from parents in most of the cities and towns in Massachusetts, a survey indicating that more than 65 percent originated from outside of Greater Boston. When the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities granted a change in the rate structure for WATS Lines to the New England Telephone Company, the Stress Line's annual telephone bill was doubled from $25,000 to $50,000. This dramatic increase seriously threatened the Line's continued service to cities and towns outside of Boston.

In response to this crisis, concerned Parental Stress Line volunteers and their friends decided to form the "351 Club," representing the total number of Massachusetts cities and towns, to raise funds in order to defray the rising costs of the toll-free number that makes this hot line available to all Massachusetts parents. To date, more than 100 charter members of the "351 Club" have raised close to $6,000 for the fund.

The continued fund raising efforts of the "351 Club" and the Line's sponsoring agency, Parents' and Children's Services, have assured the service for the coming year, making it possible for parents in all parts of Massachusetts to receive immediate support during stressful periods with their children.

Elder services survey

Due to the many inquiries by elders in our area regarding availability of physician services, policies on house calls, acceptance of medicare assignment and related matters, South Shore Elder Services with Blue Shield of Massachusetts, Inc., will conduct a survey of area physicians to ascertain this type of information which will be printed in booklet form and distributed throughout the communities in October.

These informational booklets have been completed in various sections of the state with almost 100 percent response from the physicians and have been found to be of great assistance to elders.

If any physician has not received the survey by May 20 and wishes to be included, call Julie Kelley at 383-9790.

The communities to be included in the survey include: Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate, and Weymouth.

Safe driver rally hosted by Explorer Post 28

By Aileen Cahill

Cohasset Explorer Post 28 hosted their 14th annual safe driver road rally/gymkhana for the Old Colony Council of the Boy Scouts of America May 1 at the South Shore Music Circus.

This year's rally started at the Music Circus as 16 cars followed the approximately 50 mile route of Rally Master Sheldon Ripley of Cohasset. Ripley and his assistants, Post 28 advisors Art Lehr and Merle Brown, provided each car with 73 directions for the circuitous route through 10 South Shore towns. Each car had a driver, navigator and sometimes a passenger as they traveled the route that Rally Master Ripley said should take exactly 128 minutes.

The route was divided into four legs with checkpoints at the end of each. Cars left South Shore Music Circus starting at 1 p.m. and then at two minute intervals. Cars were scored on the time they arrived at each checkpoint as compared to the "perfect" time assigned by the Rally Master. More points were lost for coming in early than for those who traveled slower. Average speeds for the rally were always under the posted speed limits.

The winner of this year's rally, with only 40 seconds off a perfect time was car #7, with Holly Nolan and Dennis Sullivan from Explorer Post 102, Pembroke. Second place went to car #11, Pam Cardoff and Mike Clinton of Ship 412, Hull; third place was car #15, Pam and Bob Barra of Post 4, Hingham.

This year awards were also given for near-perfect legs. Car #5, Sue Byrne and P.J. Stearns of Post #4, Hingham, had a "perfect" score in leg 4. Near perfects were car #3, Dennis Ames and Bill Garvin, Post 4 and Car #11, Pam Cardoff and Mike Clinton of Ship 412.

During the rally the navigators also had observation questions to answer. With 23 of 24 questions correct, first place went to car #15, Pam and Bob Barra, Post 4, Hingham. Second place went to car #8, Mary and Aileen Cahill and Paula Garvin, Post 4, Hingham; third place was car #7, Holly Nolan and Dennis Sullivan, Post 102, Pembroke.

The Gymkhana events and their winners are as follows:

Backing up for speed and accuracy: Car #4, Dave Cannon and Lisa Cullum, Post #11, Abington; Car #9, Pam and Allen Hiltz, Post #4, Hingham, and Car #16, Brown and Nagle, Post 28, Cohasset.

A skill game of replacing tennis balls on traffic cones: Car #2, Bill Hubschwerlin and Bob Reera, Post 11, Abington; Car #11, Jason and Marc Cardoff, Ship 412, Hull, and Car #5, Sue Byrne and P.J. Stearns, Post 4, Hingham.

Blindfolded driver/navigator skill performance: Car #5, Sue Byrne and P.J. Stearns, Post 4, Hingham, Circus for providing a safe place for the afternoon's activities and to Rally Master Ripley and the members of Post 28, Cohasset, for all of their work.

Car #3, Dennis Ames and Bill Garvin, Post 4, Hingham, and Car #1, Peter Manning and Kevin Holmes, Post 102, Pembroke.

Musical Chairs: Car #11, Pam Cardoff and Mike Clinton, Ship 412, Hull, Car #4, Dave Cannon and Lisa Cullum, Post 11, Abington, and Car #3, Dennis Ames and Bill Garvin, Post 4, Hingham.

Special thanks were given to the South Shore Music

GRANDMA'S ATTIC
"A Country Shop"
The greatest collection of country handcrafts and collectibles under one roof!

Grandma's comment of the week:
We do country weddings. Grandma thinks every bride should have an old fashioned country wedding. So, she recommends lovely and lasting bouquets of dried and silk flowers, antique baby's breath, and lots of lace & ribbons. We make these old fashioned bouquets for a bride and her attendants to match any gowns and in many styles. A free gift to the bride, too!

Grandma's thought for the week:
Following a precedent is an easy substitute for thinking.

Shop Hours:
Tues - Sat 10 - 5
Sunday 12 - 5
Closed Mondays

Satuit Bowlaway report

By Don Dwyer

Tuesday Nights Women's League finished their season with the Shawnees winning the second half by only one point over the Blackfeet and the Sioux. A rolloff for the championship came about last Tuesday night with the Blackfeet coming up with a big third string to win by 21 pins to take the prize. Jeanne McAuliffe led the winners with a sparkling 342, Janet Turner had 322, followed by Doris Walker's 293, Ida Fortier with 292, and Linda Pattison rolled 289. (As you can see the "Champs" meant business.) For the runnersup Carol Cirillo rolled the High Score for the match with a super 363. Closely in second spot Delores Jenkins had a classy 344 in a losing cause. Dottie Leach had 303, followed by Louise Amato's 255, and Ethel Street rolled 225. (Very nice bowling by all these classy people.) Betty Carchia ended up with the High Average and rolled a superb 108.1 for the season. Kathy Brown had the High Single with an outlandish 175 and Julie Truesdell the High Triple rolling a record for the league with 401. (This reporter is looking for an opening next year on Tuesday night to improve my bowling.) Some of these gals should join the pro tour with all their great bowling.

Sunday Nights Get-Together League ended their season with the Pepsi's beating the 7-Ups by two points to win the second half. The championship match between the Mountain Dews (winners of the first half) and the Pepsi's were rolled Sunday night with a humdinger right down to the last few boxes. The Mountain Dews with Jan Austin throwing a double strike won the match for the Dews in a very close match. (Nineteen pins to be exact. Wow!) The winners had Jan Maestranzi leading her team with a great 311, followed by teammate Linda Pattison rolling 296, Jan Austin had 284 and Cathy Sanborn, 248. For the losers Cindy Hazen rolled 312, Lisa Marchese, 271; Dama Bearce, 254; and Yvonne Hough, 229. (This match could have gone either way and like Dama said, you win some and you lose some.) A great time was had by all.

Friday Afternoons Norfolk Conveyor bowling league has the Eagles running away with the second half holding a 20 point lead over the Giants with only one week to go in their season. The three High Average men have Jim Nagle leading all with a commanding 109.0. (Jim has led all from the first day of the season.) Bob Barrows has second spot captured rolling a neat 107.0, and Al Wilson a 104.2 to hold down third spot. Delores Jenkins leads all the gals with a super 102.7 and High Triple with 380. (With these scores most of the men are shaking their heads.) Jim Nagle has the league's High Single, 164, and also the High Three with 392. (Jim says he wants a 400 series.) Warren Edwardson has second High Three of 388. (Warren's comments he would have done better but the ventilation in his #12 shoes kept him down.) Delores Jenkins and Bob Roth are tied with the next High Single, both rolling a neat 152. (These Conveyors are still knocking those pins with their deadly scores.)

Thursday Mornings Coffee and Donut bowling league had the Sankas beating out the Yubans by only two points! Marie Merritt has to be the Star of the Week on the last day of the season. She stole the show rolling a High Single of 149, and High Three with 361. ...the Highs of the year. (That's not all, folks.) Marie had a Triple Strike and, WOW, the High Average for the league with 99.9. Priscilla Sindone was a close second wth 99.1. Class B's High Average went to Marge Noonan with 92.2 and Marcia DeLisle led Class C with 86.5. Class D had Winnie Hickman leading all, rolling 813. The championship rolloff between the Honey Dips, winners of the first half, and the Sankas was won by the Sankas in a very exciting rolloff. During the rolloff Gladys Achoff had Three Strikes and Terry Smith a Double Strike. The winning team members were Terry Smith, Marge Noonan, Isabell Martell, Gladys Aschoff, Anne Torrey and Mille Lidington. (Congratulations to all you Sankas.)

Monday Nights season rolloffs for the Marshfield Men's League has M.A. Lopes Const. rolling for the championship against Marshfield Auto Body for all the money ($700 to be exact.) In the other match called the "Wild Card", Scituate Concrete Pipe and Scituate VFW go at it for all the other prize money ($550 to the teams.) These matches should be exciting all the way. (Good luck to all.) Individual awards for the season had Larry Jenkins come from behind to Nip Howie Phillips for High Average honors, rolling 121.3 to Howie's 121.2. (Classy bowling by both men in a spine-tingling finish. Congratulations to both.) Old Rip just made the finish, holding third with 118.6 and Larry Nangle next with 117.3. Howie Phillips held both the High Single with 182, and High Three with 480. Sager Electric where Howie is employed in Hingham is naming "Howie Phillips Day" soon so be sure to be there for the celebration. (Just super bowling, Howie.) A great year, men, and we at the Bowlaway thank all for a superb season.

Thursday Nights Merchants League finished their season last week, and now comes the rolloffs for some of the league's $10,000 in prize money. Starting at 1 p.m. this Sunday, May 15, eight teams will toe the line. Division winners, Artley's Animals, Satuit Bowlaway, Seacoast Deli and Scituate Concrete Pipe will compete for all the big bucks. (These teams must bowl nine strings each to determine all the winners.) Is there a doctor in the house? We may need one. The other Highest Four Teams include Finnie Sales, Riddles Food Mart, Cabinets-By-Sunny and Richardson's. (These four teams will roll for the wild card money.) Individual honors go to Joe Ganem who led all men with a fantastic average of 123.7. Close behind with another super average was Jr. Torrey who finished rolling 123.2, and in third place Old Rip Van Winkle had 121.0. (Not bad for a bunch of farmers.) Junior on his last ditch stand rolled a terrific 444 for three to take High Three for the season. Joe Ganem was second with 439 and Old Rip had a 436 for third. Dan Durant had the High Single rolling a great 183, followed by Frank Macri's 181 and Kevin Cochran with 179. (Did you ever hear of anything like these scores? The Bowlaway will be on the stock market next season. Just fantastic bowling from all.) Will report on rolloffs and summer leagues next week.

Come join the fun at the Satuit Bowlaway. Open bowling Friday, Saturday and Sundays. Hope to see you soon.

Summers Art Festival chairman

Linda Summers was named Chairman of the South Shore Art Center's 28th Summer Art Festival.

The festival, a celebration of the arts, will be held July 1-4 on the Cohasset Common and will offer something for the very young to senior citizens.

In undertaking this responsibility, Summers brings to the chairmanship her background as gallery coordinator for the South Shore Art Center.

Summers plans to add some new ideas to the festival events. This year the festival will introduce the first juried craft show. Craftspersons throughout New England are invited to submit slides of their work for consideration in the juried craft show.

"And we will also have an invitational painting show and an invitational sculpture exhibit," Summers said.

Serving on the festival committee are Marion Bush, volunteer coordinator; Brooks Kelly, poster and cover design; Carlene Laney, picnic coordinator; Rowland Williams, panels; Jan Daggett, Margaret Dillon, Ali Swedock and Lisbeth Koopman-Wyman, advertising; Robin Suhrbier, publicity; Ali Swedock, scholarship; Betty Madden, hostesses; and Joe Burbank, signs.

Working on different phases of the art exhibits are Jim Ann Howard, invitational painting show; Barbara Gurnis, invitational sculpture show; Linda Summers, jury selection; Marie Macklin, juried photography show; Donna Kelly, juried craft booths; Claffy Williams, jurors' luncheon; Stephanie Williams, champagne preview and special events; and Katherine Smit, members' show.

Coordinating the children's activities are Linda Summers and Marion Bush and putting together the children's exhibit are Sue DeMichele, Serena Berkelaar and Susan Rodgerson. Mary Lou Slotnick is arranging the artists' demonstrations.

Slides (10) for juried craft exhibit should be entered by May 20. Entry dates for juried photography and painting, drawing, graphics and sculpture shows are Friday, June 10, 4 to 8 p.m. and Saturday, June 11, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Compulsive gambling group

A group of concerned citizens on Compulsive Gambling is planning to establish a Massachusetts affiliate of the National Council on Compulsive Gambling. The National Council on Compulsive Gambling was established in 1972 and has chapters in many states.

The Council's purpose is to disseminate information, to provide education and to develop resources and treatment facilities for a major problem in our society today — the Compulsive Gambler and those affected by him/her.

For additional information call Tom Cummings, 843-3689.

If you knew the facts about leasing, you'd never buy a car again!
For some unknown reason, the many advantages of leasing a car versus buying one continues to be one of the best kept secrets in the automobile business. Furthermore, a longstanding misconception states that you have to own or be in a business to lease a car. Not true! Anyone can lease. And most people should.
Come in and let us prove to you that leasing is truly the intelligent alternative to buying a car.

Community Center directors weigh expansion

By Jane Lane

The Cohasset Community Center, a focal point of recreational and educational activities throughout the year in Cohasset, may be expanding.

Currently, the board of directors of the center is investigating the possibility of converting the barn on North Main Street for additional classroom space.

The directors would like to accommodate the expanding number of pupils who attend popular physical education classes at the center, which includes karate, aerobics and gymnastics.

The expansion plans are only in the exploratory stage, board member Diane Sullivan stressed. The directors are meeting with builders this week to see what construction is necessary and what price tag will accompany the work.

Before any plans are formulated, the center will need approval from the Cohasset Common Historical District Commission and the Zoning Board of Appeals.

The center, a nonprofit organization founded in 1944, has been located at the corner of North Main Street for several years. It originally was situated at the corner of North Main and Sohier Streets on the Old Furber Estate.

Whatever conversion might occur at the barn, Sullivan noted, the community center would maintain the same exterior facade.

Sullivan said the barn is sheathed in weathered, unpainted shingles. The expansion of the barn would be done in that same style.

The community center itself, a four-story structure, was built in 1750 by James Stetson. Community Center historian Charlene Burns is currently formulating a scrapbook which will include an extensive history of the center.

Sullivan noted that in recent years, board members noticed the most successful programs have been the physical education-oriented classes. The problem has continually been the lack of room to accommodate the number of people requesting admittance into these programs, she said.

Classes such as gymnastics and karate require a large amount of space, and in the present rooms, there is difficulty conducting the popular classes.

The basement of the 200 year-old building contains a bowling alley. The first floor houses two offices, a large room for the four year-old nursery school, and a smaller room for the three year-old nursery, a board room and a function room.

The top two floors contain three apartments which provide rental for income for the center.

Another board member, Dee DeSantis, said the physical education classes have been held at a minimum attendance level, because of the center's inability to house more students. With expansion of the barn, more classes and more students could be accommodated, she said.

"Right now, a lot of ladies are rubbing elbows in their aerobic classes and we just don't have anywhere else to have the class," she noted.

Sullivan said that because the center is a non-profit service to the community, the success of such a venture would depend on the availibility of funds. She said if a plan to convert the barn was aproved by necessary town departments, the center would have to swing into some form of aggressive fundraising.

" The community center has always provided a very beneficial service to this town and surrounding communities. And I think we would probably go right

Missing nine year-old found by the TEAM

By Mike Berger

The accent was on TEAM.

That was the comment of Cohasset Fire Chief Martin Dooley as he reflected on Thursday night's four-hour search and rescue of a missing nine year-old Cohasset youth.

More than 400 area residents, firefighters, police officers, boy scouts and girl scouts joined in a search which ended successfully around midnight when the youth was found walking along the driveway of Glastonbury Abbey of Hull Street, Hingham.

The searcher who found the child was William McArthur, brother-in-law of selectman Chairman Mary Jane McArthur.

Search commander was Chief Dooley, who said he was "very surprised at the cooperation" from all the nearby towns.

"So many people came out. I'm not used to that in small towns. I was very impressed with the esprit de corps."

Dooley came to Cohasset this year after serving as a firefighter commanding officer for several years in Hartford, Connecticut.

Fire departments from Hingham, Hull, Scituate, Norwell, Marshfield, and even some off-duty firefighters from Plymouth responded.

Joining in the search were police departments from Hingham, Scituate, Hull, Cohasset, and state police and state police search dogs.

Arthur Lehr of Cohasset Explorer Scouts and 200 area scouts, who were trained on how to search for missing people, also assisted.

The search began around 8:15 p.m. Thursday when the missing youth's father, a call firefighter, told Chief Dooley his child was missing since the morning.

"At the call firefighters' meeting he was very upset so I met with him at his house," said Dooley.

The child, he said, was missing all day. He didn't want to go to school anymore. Some of his friends saw him in the neighborhood at 5 p.m. and when they tried to approach him he ran away, Dooley said.

At that time, his father, family neighbors and friends began looking for him. Then darkness set in.

Dooley went back to the station and pulled a special alarm box, "6-6-6." This is the lost person alarm.

The missing youth's home is on Hull Street. Because the street is located on the Hingham-Hull line, the alarm automatically rang in the Hingham main fire headquarters.

Immediately, 17 out of 21 Cohasset call firefighters responded, which Dooley reported "was very good." Five on-duty Cohasset firefighters and some off-duty men responded. Twenty members from Hingham's call force also responded and Norwell responded with 15 firefighters.

Dooley sent Engines 3 and 4 to the Hull Street area to shine the truck's lights on the wooded area.

Cohasset's week...

Inflow Leaks Fixed

Chief operator of the 72,000 gallon small Cohasset plant, Manuel Salvador, detected several inflow leaks. The sewer commissioners engaged Eastern Pipe Services of Nashua, N.H. last week to make repairs. They repaired leaks on Lantern Lane and on Border Street (between Humphrey's and the Boat Yard). Another leak on Margin Street remains to be fixed.

Salvador said the flow through the plant was metered at 169,000 gallons on April 25 and at 127,000 gallons the day after the leaks were repaired.

Town Hall Hours

Selectmen changed the current Town Hall business hours from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday to: Monday through Wednesday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and 5:30 pm. to 8 p.m. Friday hours are 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Correction

Last week the Mariner reported Engineer Joseph Ward's second preliminary report on alternatives to a central Cohasset sewage plan saying the average estimated construction cost of on-site systems for the Veterans, Hillside and Ledgewood areas of the town is nearly $30,000.

The average cost for the Veterans, Hillside and Ledgewood area of the town for on-site sewage systems is $9,061, but there are two extreme cases which may average slightly over $20,000, needing black water holding with filtration, disinfection of greywater and sand mound disposal, according to Ward.

Murray Leads Legislators Assn.

State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R) was sworn in recently as the first woman president of the Massachusetts Legislators Association.

The Cohasset, Hingham and Hull legislator has worked for the Association the past several years.

Murray's membership consists over 700 past and present legislators. Murray's father, the late Nathanial (Nate) Hurwitz was a member of the Association and the Massachusetts House of Representatives for thirteen years.

Laugelle Petition

There is a petition circulating around town to support 22-year town employee and landfill superintendent Joseph Laugelle. Laugelle will not resign as requested by the Board of Health in an April 29 meeting. He will fight the Board of Health as he plans to file a grievance with the town.

A grievance hearing is expected to be held soon by the health board and then followed by a hearing by selectmen. The petition said Laugelle is a conscientious hard working and able employee of the town and he has performed his duties at the landfill in an excellent manner "considering the adverse condition" under which he has to operate.

Mister Donut to open

...Cohasset's week

John Souther, who gave police his address as 86 Central Street, Hingham, was taken into custody by police in the selectman's office at Cohasset Town Hall at 11:37 a.m. May 17. He was arrested by officers Clifton Jones and Brian Cogill.

His case has been continued until June 23 at 1:30 p.m. for pre-trial conference.

Selectmen abolished the Cemetery Space Study Committee May 11.

Executive Secretary Mark Lanza said Souther came to the door of his office and demanded to speak to him. He was talking about being a citizen and a taxpayer, while he was waving an envelope with a Hingham address, Lanza said. I told him he would have to wait until I saw three other people.

Ramsay said she called police "on a signal from Lanza." Lanza said Souther refused to leave the building when requested by police. "You'll have to arrest me to make me leave," Lanza reported Souther said.

Souther was unavailable for comment.

Friends say Souther faithfully tends several family plots at Woodside Cemetery. "I see him up there, weeding, planting, trimming the bushes, etc. almost every week, said one woman who visited her parents' graves weekly.

"Once, two abutters were having an argument as to where their family plots ended, and Johnny dug down and showed them the stainless steel markers," she said.

He's an honest man, said another friend. "If you treat him right, he treats you right," said another resident.

Souther's family were in Cohasset as early as 1708 when an ancestor was granted shipbuilding rights at the cove. In the early 1900's the family had extensive land and buildings, including a large ice house on Lily Pond. Souther's sister said their mother was on the School Committee, and their uncle was a selectman. Souther is listed on the voting list at King Street, Cohasset.

Drop spots

The Cohasset Mariner is adding a local drop spot for Cohasset news and advertising. Items can be left at the Cohasset Pharmacy as they have been in the past, or they can be dropped at Hennessey News, 3 Brook St. Both locations are in Cohasset Village.

The deadline for classified ads is Monday at 9:30 a.m. and for news copy, Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

The Mariner will pick up on Friday, Monday and Tuesday. Hennessey's hours are 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week.

Prom students banned from hotel room renting

Sheraton Tara Hotel Manager Robert Morse said any Cohasset High School student will be banned from renting a hotel room overnight after the prom, June 1. He said it is hotel policy that no student who attends a prom function can use any other hotel facilities. Those students who reserved hotel rooms earlier at the Sheraton have had their reservations cancelled. All students who plan to rent a room that night will be checked for identification. Morse said he is concerned that as many as nine Cohasset youths made reservations for hotel rooms and he feels this has alarmed school administrators, residents and the school committee. He does not want to see any future proms booked at the Sheraton because of any improper youth activities. Hotel employees have been warned to watch for any students who wish to rent rooms June 1.

Food Inspector urges food handlers to be fussy

By Patricia Anne Walsh

"Every person gets sick once a week from eating food. You can afford to be fussy."

These are the thoughts of Daniel Tremblay, Health Agent for Andover, and an expert on food sanitation, who spent many years as an FDA meat and fish inspector, and army inspector in Formosa and Viet Nam.

He addressed nearly 18 food handlers at a seminar sponsored by the Cohasset Board of Health.

The board invited at least two individuals from each licensed food service establishment/retail food store/ caterers in Cohasset.

"Only one person in a hundred ever reports it to a health agent. However, if people suspect food is the cause of their illness, they should go to a hospital at once for verification tests, he added. "All foods are contaminated to some degree," said Tremblay.

Tremblay's objective was to show the retailers they "could afford to be fussy," because they could reduce the incidence of contamination, and protect themselves from potential lawsuits.

According to a consumer attitude survey, prepared for the National Restaurant Association in November 1977, "cleanliness" was clearly identified as the most important factor, while "liquor" ranked the last of 14 items considered as characteristics important in choosing a restaurant.

Tremblay revealed many of the things he looks for while inspecting over 100 establishments in Andover.

Does the food handler scratch his hair or touch other parts of his body and then return to cutting meat without washing his hands? Do you watch to remove any metal fragments dropped from a can opener? Do you wash off cans before opening them, in case the lid drops into the food inside? Have you checked for cockroaches or other vermin behind the fans of hoods? Are dumpsters closed or left open to rats?

"All foods are contaminated to some degree," Tremblay said. He listed bacteria, chemicals, and foreign objects such as glass, dirt and insects as possible contaminants. A bacterial food illness may manifest itself in three to 12 hours, he added.

Cold perishable food should be kept at 45 degrees Farenheit. If it has not been iced, throw it out after two hours, he advised, because bacteria start to multiply quickly.

Hot foods should be kept above 145 degrees. Frozen foods lose taste quality if allowed to go from 0 degrees to 20 degrees, said Tramblay.

Cans should be free of dents on the ends and side seam. They are "considered major defects," said Tremblay. Dents on other areas are considered "minor defects." Tremblay advised against using cans swollen on the ends.

Tremblay said he had requested the removal of a worker coughing and sneezing over food, and then showed a bacterial culture he had asked the man to cough over. "Low acid foods are particularly susceptible to bacteria," he said.

Among his professional tools he displayed were an ultra violet rat light; a light meter to insure 20 foot-candles of light in restaurants; a food thermometer registering from 0 to 220 degrees; interior culture kits and swabs.

"New food regulations are coming out this summer. Establishments must conform to local board of health regulations which may be stricter, but not less strict than state regulations, which in turn may be stricter, but not less strict than federal regs," Tremblay said.

Tremblay distributed a "self test" on food service sanitation. "If you fill in the blanks as I talk, you will have learned a lot today," he said.

He stressed the importance of educating food handlers, rather than having local health agents close down establishments.

Studds report

By Congressman Gerry Studds

Congressional committees took actions recently which affect those who live in coastal states and communities.

The full Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee approved legislation to provide coastal state governments with a share of the revenues derived from offshore oil and gas royalties and lease sales. This money would then be available for states to continue support for programs of Coastal Zone Management and fish and wildlife protection and to fund the national Sea Grant program.

Studds appeared before the subcommittee on transportation of the House Committee on Appropriations for the purpose of presenting testimony concerning the proposed 1984 budget for the U.S. Coast Guard.

He pointed out the administration's proposed budget called for an overall increase in spending for the Coast Guard of three percent compared to 1983. His recommendations called for an increase of at least another three percent in the Coast Guard's budget.

The subcommittee on Coast Guard and Navigation voted unanimously to approve legislation to reauthorize federal support for state boating safety programs, and to make an additional $15 million available to the Coast Guard in recognition of the services which it provides to recreational boaters.

Missing youth. . .

Meanwhile, Scituate Fire Chief Walter Stewart commanded the town's fire coverage while Dooley led the search.

Dooley called Arthur Lehr from Explorer Troop 28 and "right off the bat there were 30 scouts searching," said Dooley.

A Coast Guard helicopter from the Cape Air Force Base picked up Cohasset Fire Capt. Roger Lincoln at Sandy Beach as an air search began.

Dooley said apparently the helicopter woke up the missing youth who had fallen asleep in a barn. The helicopter's lights shined on the boy who had stopped to look at the helicopter overhead.

The boy was checked medically by EMT's and then sent home.

Dooley has a word of caution to those youths who have any thoughts about running away from home.

"Before you think of doing anything, try to talk to someone. This is a very serious business. Someone could have gotten hurt searching but forunately no one did," he said.

Community Center directors. . .

back to those people and solicit funds to help us expand the service," she said.

In past years, Sullivan said the center has been in a continuous phase of upkeep.

A new heating system has been installed in the main building, along with a recent paper and paint job in the interior. "What money is available, we use to keep the building functioning," she added.

KIMBALL'S POOL

In another matter town counsel is currently determining whether the owners of Kimball's Motor Inn may offer their indoor swimming pool for use by the community center.

In 1978 the ZBA prohibited the inn owners from advertising certain functions because of the lack of parking spaces on the property.

Although selectmen last week favored the idea of the swimming program at the motor inn, they asked town counsel to review the legal requirements. Attorney Charles Humphreys, representing the Roy family, owners of the motor inn, said the appeals board advertising prohibition blocked the owners' participation in the center's swimming program.

The community center has already advertised its spring classes, and the Roys want to advertise the swimming program to attract patrons, Humphreys explained.

The motor inn owners purchased land on Pleasant Street opposite James Court to provide 33 additional parking spaces for the facility, he added.

Although selectmen said the matter should be immediately reviewed, it was not scheduled to be discussed at Wednesday night's selectmen's meeting.

Selectmen's briefs...

LICENSE APPROVAL

A wine and malt license was granted last week to the proprietors of a new fish and cheese store in Cushing Plaza.

Selectmen voted unanimously to grant Richard Peters and his sister Linda, of Jerusalem Road, a license to sell beer and wine at the Sea 'N Cheese store. They requested the license in order to sell wine to accompany fish dinners and cheese sold at the store.

The Peters' told selectmen they would not sell beer at the store, and that the wine would not be consumed at the location.

Selectman John DeBassio questioned the wisdom of granting the beer and wine license to the young store owners who did not have any prior experience in the retail sale of alcoholic beverages.

He also noted the license would allow the holders to add the sale of beer at any time DeBassio said such a license requires many obligations on the part of a proprietor and is subject to police supervision and enforcement.

Selectmen last week warned John Barnes of 336 North Main Street to keep his dog restrained on his property, or the Labrador retriever could be destroyed or taken from town.

Nancy O'Hara of North Main Street told selectmen that the large dog ran up to her on one occasion and growled and bared his teeth at her. The second time, the animal frightened her baby.

Dog Officer Richard Yocum told selectmen he had issued an order to Barnes to keep the dog tied on the property, but the warning was unheeded.

Barnes said it could have been a case of mistaken identity because there are several other large black dogs in the neighborhood.

Yocum assured selectmen the Barnes' dog was the same animal who frightened O'Hara and her young child.

Although no one attended a second hearing regarding a complaint against another dog, selectmen warned Helen Madge of 43 Beechwood St., to confine her dog to that property.

Patricia Hanlon of 79 Beechwood Street wrote to selectmen last month that the St. Barnard owned by Madge was entering her property and barking at her 12 year-old dog. She is afraid the large animal might fight and kill the elderly dog.

Selectmen ordered the St. Bernard to be permanently restrained, and said more stern warning would be forthcoming if additional complaints were issued against the animal.

NEW TOWN BUILDINGS PLANNED

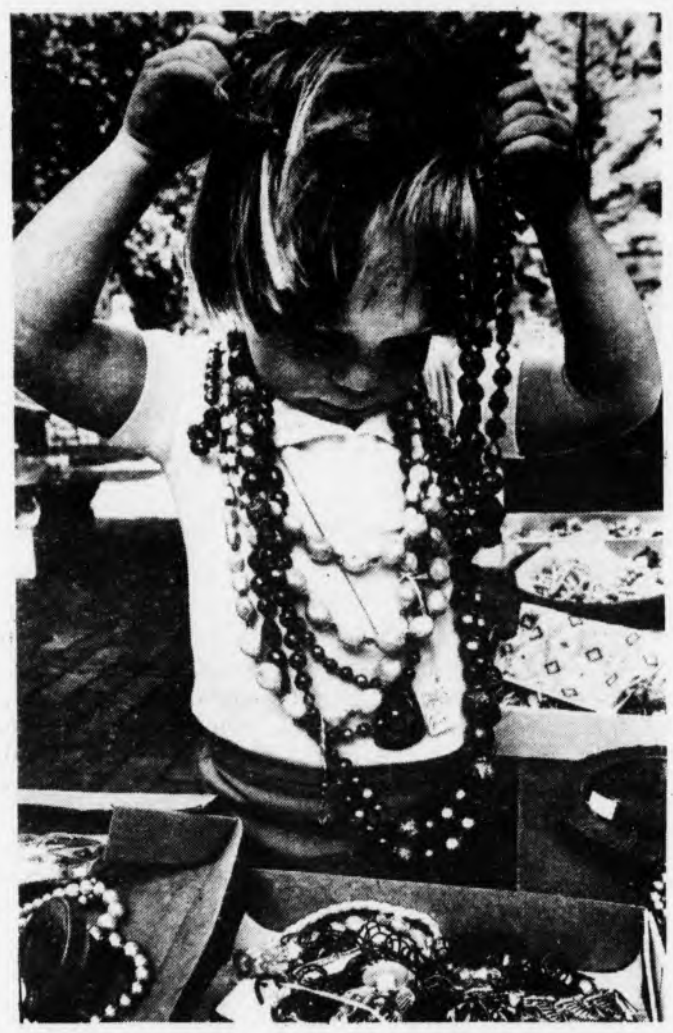
Selectmen decided to appoint committees to investigate the possible need of a town garage to house town equipment, and a new town hall, at a planning meeting last week.

Selectmen said the appointed committees could look into the actual need of the building, as well as potential savings and other ideas.

"We need to do something about town hall," Selectman Mary Jane McArthur said. "If we ever had a fire, God forbid, we'd have a disaster. We have to decide what we want and fight for it."

Selectman Cliff Mitman suggested a town hall and garage could be combined, and they could study renting a part of one of the town schools.

The discussion regarding a municipal garage facility followed some initial inquiries by Executive Secretary Mark Lanza into the purchase of the former Cohasset Motors building on Rte. 3A.



The town has investigated the possibility of constructing or buying a facility in which town-owned vehicles may be stored. Although no purchase price was specified, Lanza received some statistical information about the former Cohasset Motors showroom on Rte. 3A.

According to attorney John Ridge, the town could maintain a lease with an option to buy the property. The building and ground are currently under an option agreement with the estate of Howard Schramm, according to attorney Ridge.

The former Cohasset Motor Company property contains 5.9 acres which is zoned for highway business use.

The two-story cinder block building contains six to eight offices on the first floor. There is also a lower level to the building, which is heated throughout.

According to attorney Ridge, the town expressed some interest in the property many years ago.

Tsongas invites residents for question & answer time

U.S. Senator Paul Tsongas is inviting residents from Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate and Hull to meet with him Saturday, May 28 from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Hingham Town Hall, 5 East Street.

The informal question and answer session is open to the public and all citizens are encouraged to attend.

One of the current issues that Senator Tsongas has been discussing is the problem of the homeless. The senator has filed legislation to aid the homeless by submitting a legislative request for $90 million to provide shelter, food and other services to the nation's homeless. Tsongas said, "Admittedly, our $90 million request is unequal to the magnitude of the problem. But it is a start. We must know definitively who the homeless are - not only for tonight, but permanently."

In addition, Senator Tsongas is asked to comment on other community concerns such as local development, revitalization, hazardous waste and other environmental issues.

around town

☐Highlighting this week's news is the Historical Society and the flea market that they held last weekend. It went off without a hitch, Mother Nature even smiled on them with a wonderful day! Everyone is still raving about the famous chowder, made by Bert Pratt and Patterson. When Bert gets an idea, he certainly makes sure that it is a success.

☐Bert had another reason to be preening like a peacock this weekend; his dauther, Joy, made headlines when her win in a tennis match made it possible for Cohasset to capture the league championship. Perhaps there should be an official "Pratt Day" in Cohasset.

☐True or false? Wayne Gretsky is coming to the Senior Class Prom. True, he was invited. False that he accepted. He did send regrets to the senior gal who did the inviting, though. She'll hold onto that for a long time!

☐Gerard Keating and his family have a long list of important events in the immediate future. This week Gerard goes in for his long-awaited surgery; his daughter, Joan, is ready to make him a grandfather any time; his son's wife, Terry, is ready to present him with a grandchild, and his son, Tom, is getting married soon. That's a houseful of activity!

☐Tom Wigmore made his final speech at the recent Booster's Club gathering, and managed to bring a tear to many eyes when he presented his "second Mom," Nancy Kealey with a beautiful arrangement of flowers. Wonder how the athletic department will survive without him.

☐Huge crowds turned out for the opening day of the box office at the South Shore Music Circus, the average wait in line was a big five hours. Producer Ron Rawson, who appeared on "Sunday Open House" this weekend, came home to a crowd Sunday too.

☐The tent will be raised next week, a sure sign of summer . . .where, oh where is spring?

☐Two new ideas for the Around Town column that involves you, the reader, to actively participate in. The first is one that should receive a big response, an opportunity for you to call me with your "gripe of the week." Everyone seems to have at least one, why not share it and see if you can't get some response? On the other end of the spectrum, call with your GOOD NEWS, something you would like to share with the rest of the readers. When you come up with your gripe or good news piece, please call me at 383-0560.

☐George McCullough is finally recovering from his jet lag. After spending the last four weeks travelling in England and Ireland, that's hard to do, though one finds it hard to have much sympathy (but much envy!)

☐The town is filling up with returnees...all college students are returning in droves, all with many tales to tell and all happy to be back to Mom's home cooking. Many are out looking for jobs, a hard thing to find these days.

☐Thomas Ryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ryan of Hillside Drive was named to the dean's list at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst for the first semester. Students must have a 3.5 average on a 4.0 scale in order to make the dean's list.

Thomas attained a 4.0 Q.P.A. He is a member of the 1986 graduating class and his major is Zoology Honors.

Ryan was the salutatorian for his 1982 Cohasset High School graduating class. He was also recently designated a Phi Kappa Phi Scholar by the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, University of Massachusetts Chapter.

☐Mark Yank, son of Carole Yang, was named to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory included Mark's name based on his academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential. He is a student at Stone Hill College.

☐Beth Donahue, a senior at Wheelock College in Boston, recently exhibited a visual arts project in a show of student art work in the Wheelock College Art Gallery.

☐Jeanne Viola graduated Saturday, May 21 from Salem State College.

☐A Cohasset resident was among 200 seniors who received baccalaureate degrees at Curry College's annual commencement exercises May 23. Lisa Jayne Fauth of Sohier St., received a bachelor of arts degree in management. She was the Salutatorian of the Class of 1983 and graduated with summa cum laude honors. She was awarded the Wall Street Journal Award for 1983.

☐Radu Florescu, son of Radu and Nicole Florescu of Jerusalem Rd., was awarded a bachelor degree in management at the 107th commencement of Boston College May 23.

Radu Florescu is a 1979 graduate of Cohasset High. His undergraduate activities included manager of the soccer team, intramural soccer and working on the college newspaper's sports page.

☐The Memorial Day parade is going to be spectacular this year, complete with three bands! It is organized by the George H. Mealey Post and promises to be the best in a long time. They are still looking for daughters and granddaughters ages five through 12 to march as flower girls, so contact Jill Pattison at 383-0372 if you are interested. See you there.

☐Hope the lucky eighth grade whale watchers spot several as they venture out next week.

Dog officer Richard Yocum aims to enforce leash law

By Moira McCarthy

Cohasset dog officer Richard Yocum is not in it for the money.

"I love to work with animals. Someone's got to do the job, and it's got to be done right. I'm not in it for the money, that's for sure."

Yocum, a Scituate resident and Cohasset police officer, has been the Cohasset dog officer since June 1981, but has been working with animals for much longer than that. He was appointed dog officer by selectmen last week.

He started working at the Hingham Animal Hospital in ninth grade, and stayed on there for ten years.

He treated skunks, raccoons, cats, dogs, dolphins, seals and just about everything in between.

That experience, he said, helps him in handling the animals he comes in contact with as dog officer.

"If you're afraid of an animal, they sense it, and then you have a problem. I take the low key approach. I coax him to me, and try to be friends first."

Animals, he added, are more difficult to deal with than humans, because they can't tell you what's bothering them.

Yocum's main duties as dog officer are to handle any animal complaint. He remembers having to shoot a wild dog at the golf course, and having to coax a skunk out of one woman's basement.

"The town doesn't have a job description for dog officer, but I think it should take care of all animal problems," he said. "There are just some things that are best handled by the dog officer."

Yocum added that he'd like to see a lot of changes made in the duties of the dog officer.

"We need more money. I'm operating at a zero budget right now, since the budget ran out in April. That's two months without a budget, and I've been working anyway.

"We need more equipment. I'm going to try for a van at next town meeting. Every other town around here has one."

Now, Yocum uses his own truck with one cage in the back. The town pays him 20 cents a mile in expenses, but that, he says, just barely covers the cost.

He uses his own ancient typewriter, and works out of his home.

"We've got to get out of the dark ages, that's for sure," he said. "Anyone who wants to make donations, I'll take anything."

Another thing Yocum would like to see is a stricter enforcement of the leash law. As a Cohasset police officer, he sees that many people don't know that it exists, or don't understand what it means.

Part of the confusion, he said, is that Executive Secretary Mark Lanza says the law actually is not a leash law.

The law reads: "No person shall keep any dog which by biting, barking, or any other activity disturbs the peace and quiet of any neighborhood or endangers the safety of any person. No dog shall be permitted to run upon public or private property without express permission of the owner, occupant or custodian of such property. The dog officer shall impound any dog found to be in violation of these provisions."

"Whatever that is, dogs can't run free in Cohasset. The more dogs I pick up, the more I find out that people don't know there is a leash law."

Yocum plans to attach a copy of the law to every dog license.

"This will take care of about two-thirds of the dogs, since many aren't licensed," he said.

Yocum lives in Scituate with his wife Mary, his two year-old son Richard, and his loving dog Angie.

Your turn CHS

Last week, Scituate Police arrested several Cohasset young people on charges of a minor transporting alcohol. The occasion was "Senior Skip Day" which is a most unofficial holiday (not sanctioned by the school) to celebrate commencement. As is always the same, the celebration involved drinking and drinking and driving.

Next Wednesday night, about 100 or so Cohasset kids will take over the Sheraton Tara in Braintree for the annual Cohasset Senior Prom. Except for those who prefer to hide their heads in the sand, we all know there will be drinking and probably drinking and driving. Prom season is not a pleasant time for police and, unfortunately, not always terribly reassuring for parents either.

For those of us who grew up in another time, the idea of having meetings and reading pious editorials about proms seems nonsensical. That was back in the old days of putting tissue flowers on the walls of the gym, hanging streamers wall to wall, and decorating one corner as a suitable place for each couple to have the requisite top-of-the-wedding-cake couple photograph taken.

Today, as parents know, the prom involves much more elaborate planning — usually a full course sit-down dinner at an out-of-town location. And it involves alcohol.

There have been several points of view expressed here and elsewhere in recent weeks about the propriety of discussing teenage drinking, of acknowledging its existence. "But it's illegal," goes the refrain, "so why does it deserve to be discussed?"

"Illegal" has sometimes been described by second rate punsters as a "sick bird." In this case, it is indeed sick and not at all amusing. For one can argue about the illegality of an act, but how does one argue about the reality of teenage death?

We have been lucky on the South Shore so far. There are no reports of tragedy resulting from a post-prom party. No one is dead, no one forever maimed. We shall hope, with all our hope, that this kind fate continues.

Wednesday is your turn Cohasset High School. Don't break the string. Let there be no agonized hand-shaking about what happened the night before. Don't drink. And for God's sake, don't drink and drive.

Memorial Day events

This year's Memorial Day parade is sponsored by the George H. Mealey American Legion Post 118 and according to Joseph McLean, legion commander, this should be the best parade ever to date. The parade will leave the Central Cemetery at 11 a.m. and march through the town square at about 11:30 a.m. and then continue to Veterans Memorial Park across from the George Mealey Post. The parade will include three bands, a 70 piece marching band and a 32 piece bagpipe and drum band in full kilts. There will be Cohasset's own full uniformed Colonial Militia as well as several other marching units. The guest speaker will be a former major who served two tours of duty in Vietnam as an advisor to the Vietnam Rangers. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Award. Ice cream will be served to all children after the ceremonies.

Murray's memos

Report from the state house

By Mary Jeanette Murray

In the waning hours of the 1982 session, a bill passed by a voice vote and quickly became 1982 Massachusetts Acts 609, An Act Establishing the Massachusetts Legal Assistance Corporation (Corporation). This comprehensive measure gained little attention in December. However, now that the measure is law many may direct attention to it.

The corporation was established for the purpose of providing financial support for legal assistance programs that provide representation to persons financially unable to afford such assistance in proceedings or matters other than criminal proceedings or matters except those proceedings or matters in which the Commonwealth is required to provide representation." M.G.L.A. h. 221A Sec. 2.

Operating under the auspices of the Supreme Judicial Court the corporation will be governed by a board of directors (board) consisting of 11 members appointed by the SJC and will include the chief administrative justice of the trial court. The board will hire an executive (director) and establish his salary.

The director will function as the chief administrative and operational officer of the corporation. The corporation is granted certain usual powers (such as making its own laws, rules and regulations, adopt an official seal, etc.

Other powers granted to the corporation inlcude the ability to accept "any and all donations, grants, appropriations...which may be received (from any governmental agency or individual); to be held, used or applied for (the purposes of this act)."

also, the corporation will "accept and evaluate applications from qualified legal services programs and to determine the amount of financial service to be provided to such qualified legal services programs."

The corporation will not participate many litigation other than being a named party in a suit. The corporation is prohibited from making political contributions.

Depending on available funds the corporation will provide financial assistance to local and statewide legal services programs. These programs will provide legal aid to indigents in non-fee generating cases (i.e. Mass Defenders).

The act establishes a fund to support the corporation's function. The fund is supported by surcharges placed on civil action filing fees. "Any party entering a complaint, petition, or other civil action in any court of the Commonwealth, except small claims cases, in which an initial filing fee is payable...shall pay the clerk of said court a surcharge of five dollars...A party entering a small claims action shall pay a surcharge of two dollars."

Essentially, the corporation will act as a financial clearinghouse for legal services agencies in need of funding. These services groups assist the poor by providing free legal aid in the communities. There is a need for indigent legal help. However, the source of funding the corporation, namely the surcharge on civil cases, is a point of contention that may work its way into court.

Opponents of this funding mechanism argue that the impact will be felt predominantly by the solo practitioner. The opponents argue that solo practitioners perform pro bono services. This takes away from their practice and deprives them of certain wages. This is not a problem since pro bono work should be an element of every attorney's practice. The gripe comes in having to contribute to a fund that will provide the same services (pro bono) that the solo practitioner already performs.

It is argued that large law firms do not feel this pinch since its pro bono work is absorbed in the overall firm functions. Some argue that there is unequal protection under this law. It impacts adversely on one segment of the legal profession (solo practitioner) than on another (the large firms).

This, as well as other constitutional arguments, may be pursued in the courts in the near future. As interest in this issue grows among members of the legal community the ultimate bearer of the new fee may once again be the consumer. The Inspector General has announced he has initiated procedures to monitor the proposed expansion of the Centrum. The IG is now monitoring similar proposed expansion of the Hynes Auditorium in Boston.

The Public Safety Committee has recommended passage of legislation requiring the installation of automatic sprinkler systems in all newly-constructed elderly housing buildings not exceeding 70 feet in height. The legislation also requies the installation of automatic fire warning devices, smoke alarms in residential buildings for the elderly.

The Education Committee has approvd a late-file bill to allow voluntary fingerprinting of children in schools for public safety purposes. Local school committees would work with the Departments of Public Safety and Education in the planning of the program and the State would assume all costs.

The Committee on Commerce and Labor has agreed to a labor and industry proposal to establish a special commission to study workmen's compensation. Both sides have attacked the current system as being too costly and too slow in responding to claims.

Rescue gear needed

To the Editor:

We invite your participation in a program to provide water rescue equipment for the Cohasset Fire Department.

Specific items include two rescue suits to be used in quick rescue efforts in cold water and two skin diving outfits for search and rescue work and other underwater emergencies.

The proposed equipment, which we consider essential in a coastal community, has already been tested in Cohasset waters. Further drills will be held when the material has been obtained so that our firefighters will be thoroughly schooled in the proper use of this important survival equipment.

Our goal for this fund is $10,000. Contributions in any amount are welcome and will be sincerely appreciated. Please make your check payable to Water Rescue Equipment Fund and send it to Central Fire Headquarters, 44 Elm Street, or to Pilgrim Cooperative Bank, 48 South Main Street.

Your donation to this fund is tax deductible.

Historic Cohasset

To the Editor:

My husband and I had the opportunity recently to spend a day in your lovely town. We were as appreciative of the historic preservation that has taken place there.

Many of my ancestors were from the Cohasset area (Whillingtons, Lincolns, Towers, Marsh, etc.). In visiting the historic buildings of the area I felt I could almost reach out and touch the lives of these ancestors.

While in Cohasset a copy of the April 27 issue of the Cohasset Mariner was given to us. The picture of "the Common after dark" was lovely as well as the picture of the clock in the Unitarian Church steeple.

I hope future issues will contain many more pictures of the historic places.

Your newspaper plays a profound role in fostering appreciation in what is historic in the area.

May I express a deep debt of gratitude to any of your staff who are helping to preserve the dignity and beauty of Cohasset's lovely village.

On 'Plaza Suite'

To the Editor:

Thank you for allowing me to speak on the article of the Cohasset Dramatic Club play "Plaza Suite."

I only missed three rehearsals over a period of two months due to a back ailment. I was fortunate to have Barbara Elliott take over for me in her very competent and experienced manner. Also, Bob Julian should be mentioned for his outstanding performance in the third act.

Having directed many plays and looking forward to many more, I appreciate your giving me the opportunity to set the matter straight.

This is a sign of a good newspaper.

The lobster catch is not, uh, booming

By Patricia Anne Walsh

Lobsterman Herb Jason was busy loading his boat at Fisherman's pier on Border Street.

He was asked the outcome of the fish and game warden finding his pots on someone else's buoys, "Oh I got paid for the pots, and so did the other fella—I think he got $1,500," answered Jason with some satisfaction. "Only thing is, I used to think that lobsterman (who paid up) was a friend!"

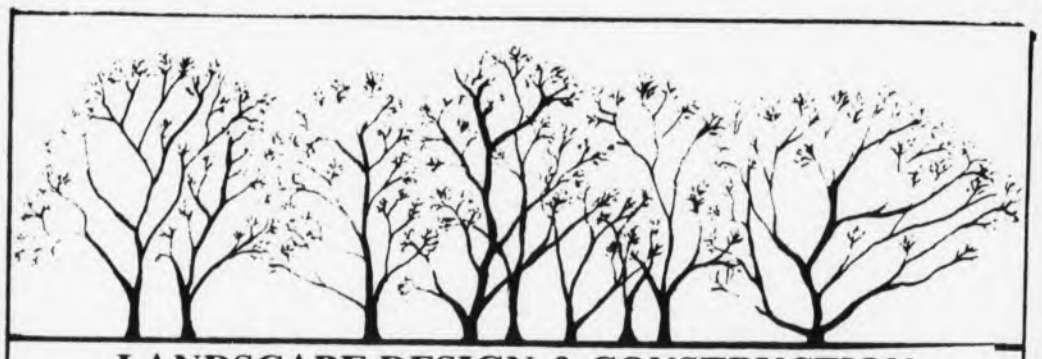
Jason pointed to his 35 foot fiberglass lobster boat "Blue Heather" and said, "I haven't had to pull that boat out of the water for five years. Guess I will have to clean and overhaul her soon, though." Jason, 69, says he has been lobstering in Cohasset for 50 years.

"The catch isn't as good as it used to be," he said. "I've done a lot of diving in my time and the lobsters like to hide in the rocks and seaweed. It's those draggers," he complained as he forked another bluefish skeleton to use as bait.

The two-foot bluefish with their heads attached, had been purchased at the Boston fishmarket after they had been fileted, he explained. "I use these fresh, but if I have to hold them over a day or two, I salt them down, and keep them in a cooler with ice on top," he said pointing to a bucket of salt. "I buy salt by the half ton, in bulk."

"Bait is always a problem," said Jason. "Some of the fishermen at this season of the year use herring from the herring runs.

"And then, too, I have to buy line for the warps of the lobster pots. Nylon is more expensive, but it lasts longer," he added.



Jason was told Hull/Selectmen were seeking a five year moratorium on draggers off their beaches. Their lobstermen are complaining of smaller catches and there is a dearth of sea clams.

"Sure," Jason returned to the subject of the draggers. "You know, I've gone over to Hull for years and picked up the sea clams washed up after storms. "But this year they were small, and there were few of them.

"You know, down at the University of Rhode Island they discovered that for every lobster those draggers bring up—and you know they sweep just everything off the bottom—they crush or kill four more lobsters. I am active in the state association, and I've lobbied for years against the draggers coming in so close."

Record numbers of ticket buyers kept the South Shore Music Circus box office busy on opening day.

There's no identity crisis with the Sullivans

Here is a reprinted story from the Worcester Evening Gazette concerning two area students — Michael G. Sullivan of Hingham and Michael H. Sullivan of Cohasset.

Michael G. Sullivan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sullivan of Pioneer Road, Hingham.

Michael H. Sullivan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Sullivan of 709 Jerusalem Rd., Cohasset.

He is a recipient of the Crown and Shield Award for student leadership and contributions to the Assumption community. Mike is vice president of the senior class, a student senator and vice-chairman of the Dorm Council.

"Michael Sullivan. They know who they are.

Today's graduation at Assumption College is just the latest instance in which Michael Sullivan has had Michael Sullivan standing right next to him.

And the other way around.

First there was high school, then four years of college and in between there was the time when Michael dated a girl from the same family as Michael Sullivan's girlfriend.

There was also the time in high school when Michael got Michael's honor roll card in the mail, and later he got Michael's scholarship from Assumption.

Both went back, of course, but not before Michael got a pat on the back and a handshake from his father.

A Bit Bewildered

There are other stories, too, such as the look on the face of the dean of students when the Michael Sullivans told him they wanted to room together. The counselor was a bit bewildered because he had purposely separated the Michael Sullivans to avoid confusion.

And even though they both graduate today, the confusion may not end. Both Michael Sullivans have been interviewed for jobs with Worcester companies. If they get hired and stay in the area, it would only be right that they share an apartment.

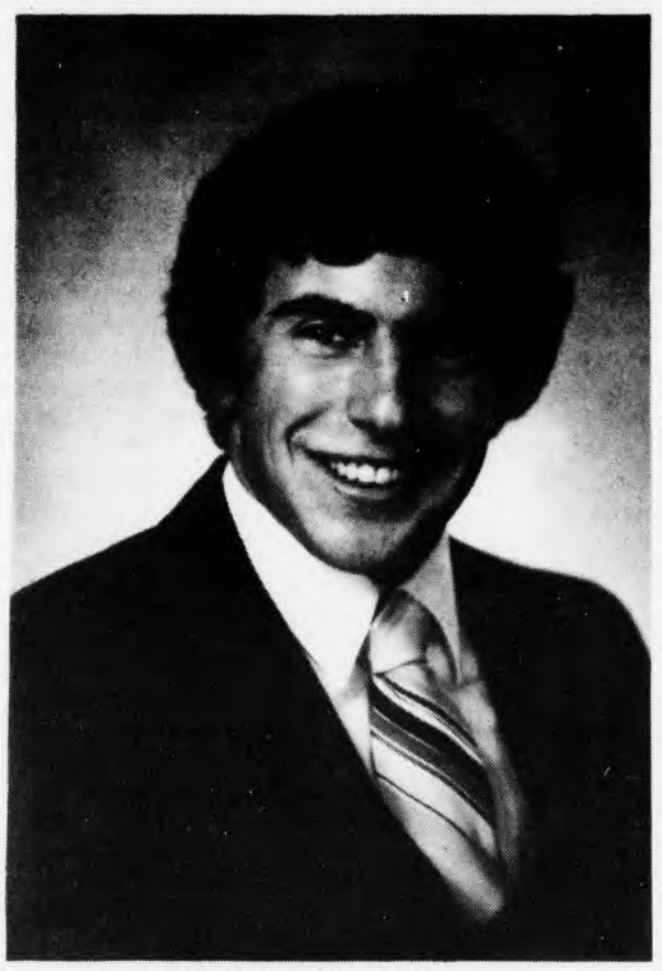
The two Sullivans good naturedly discuss the mix-ups over the years and joke about the time Michael carried on a telephone conversation with Michael's girlfirend for a couple of minutes before she realized she had the wrong Michael.

No Identity Crisis

For them, having the same names poses no identity crisis. It's very simple, they say. Keeping their identities straight comes down to the crucial question: "Which initial are you?"

Michael G. Sullivan is 6-foot-2 with dark blond hair. He was born in Rochester, N.Y., on Oct. 31, 1960. He majored in accounting at Assumption and is looking for a public accounting job. He'll be taking the Certified Public Accountant examination in November.

Michael H. Sullivan is 5-foot-8 with dark brown hair. He was born June 7, 1961, in Milton. He is vice president of the senior class and has worked for Norton Co. while attending Assumption. He majored in management and is looking for a job in sales.

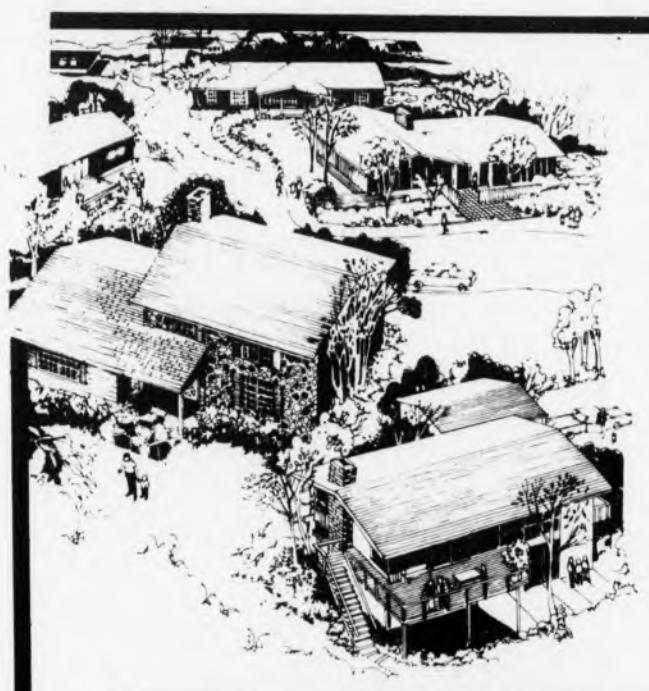


They met when they were eighth graders and were both playing in a youth basketball league in Hingham. They went to Hingham High School together as sophomores. At the same time, there were two other Michael Sullivans in Hingham High School, although they weren't in the same class as Michael H. and Michael G.

The next year Michael H. moved to Cohasset, where he attended the local high school his junior and senior years. It was the summer after his senior year that he found out Michael G. was going to Assumption too. That was the same summer Michael G. received Michael H.'s scholarship.

Once at Assumption, the two Michaels were roommates all four years, except for the first semester of their freshmen year.

And today, after the 3 p.m. commencement exercises, their college years will come to a close, ending another chapter in the "World According to Michael Sullivan."



As their names are called and they rise to be recognized, they may hear one last time, "What initial are you?"

Michael H. Sullivan

Rotary scholarship winners

Tara Pompeo, Mark Gunville, Joy Pratt, Linda Sadler and Maureen O'Brien were all awarded various amounts of scholarship money in Monday's Cohasset Rotary Club dinner. Maureen, who will be entering Stonehill College, was awarded the South Shore Players Association scholarship. Tara will be enrolling at Bates College after spending her first semester in Italy. Mark will be enrolling in Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Joy Pratt will be entering Colby College and Linda will be going to UMass-Amherst in the fall.

CHILDREN'S ART DISPLAY

Artistic Cohasset students of all ages are represented in the new art display in the children's room of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

Chalk drawings and cut paper collages by high school students were selected by Tom Lucas of the art department along with a variety of scratch technique prints from the junior high school.

Art teacher Jean O'Malley gleaned a vigorous representation from the Deer Hill and Osgood schools of weather plus some interesting self-portraits.

This show will remain in the children's room until the end of the school year. The show was arranged and hung by Carolyn Horn, art representative for the Friends of the Library.

NEW GRANT

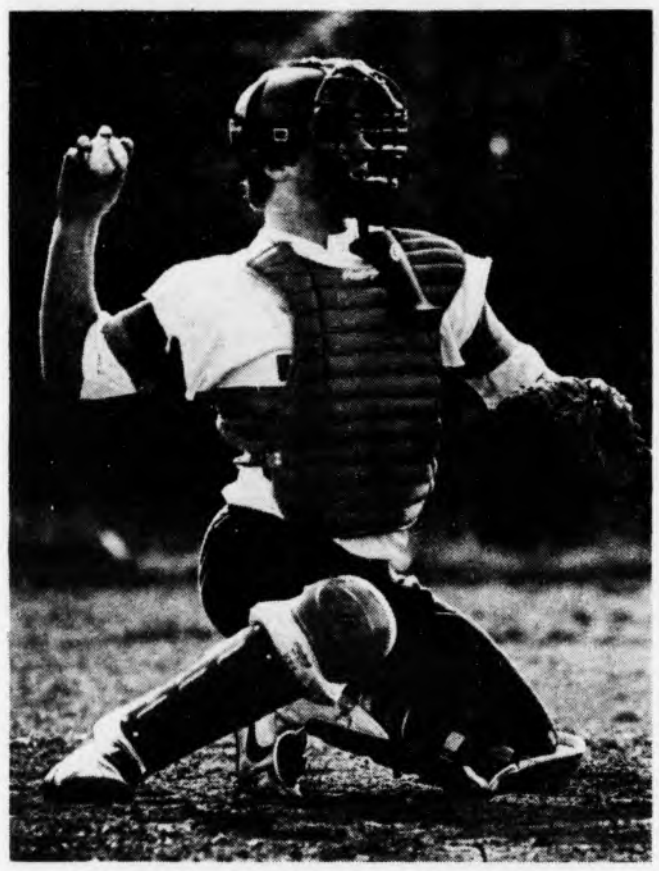
The Paul Pratt Memorial Library has received a grant of $50 from the South Shore Chapter of the National Organization of Women. The educational grant was awarded for the purchase of additional non-sexist materials for the children's department upon the application of Jo Ann Mitchell, children's librarian.

Titles for the younger children: "Mothers Can Do Anything" by Joe Lasker, "Quiet on Account of Dinosaur" by Jane Thayer and "Mary Jo's Grandmother " by Janice Udry.

The following fiction and non-fiction selections are suitable for middle and upper grade children: "Girls Are Equal Too" by Dale Carlson, "Sojourner Truth: Slave, Abolitionist, Fighter for Women's Rights" by Alethea Lindstrom; "Shark Lady: True Adventures of Eugenie Clark" by Ann McGovern, "Ladies Were Not Expected " by Dorothy Morrison, "Janet Guthrie: First Woman at Indy " by Ross Olney and "Tatterhood and Other Tales " a book of modern folk tales by Ethel Phelps.

These and other books are available in the children's room. Booklists on the subject are also available at the children's room desk.

Musical program June 17



The Second Congregational Church and friends will present a musical evening featuring encores from their prior Gilbert and Sullivan productions and a folk opera, "Down in the Valley" June 17 and 18 at 8 p.m. in the Cohasset High School auditorium.

This will mark the fifth year that the church, with its choir as the rallying point, presented musical events under the leadership of music director Ellen Fryling.

The program this year will feature repeats of many of the lilting melodies and intricate lyrics from four of the most popular Gilbert and Sullivan operettas presented by the church: "H.M.S. Pinafore," "Pirates of Penzance," "The Mikado" and "The Sorcerer."

Fryling is the producer, John Rice the director and Joan Kenney, choreographer.

CHS sports roundup for the week

By Alana O'Brien

TRACK

The CHS girls track team attended the South Shore League meet last week with the nine other league teams.

The Skippers earned a total of 34 points for sixth place.

Senior Karen Ekberg earned a first in the 100 and a second in discus with outstanding performances.

Other Skipper finalists were Kaitlin Staunton, fourth in the 220, and Trina Moore, fifth in the shot.

The 440 relay team of Ann Lagroterria, Karen Ekberg, Maryellen Maurer and Kaitlin Staunton earned an impressive second place finish while the mile relay team placed fifth.

At the boys league meet, junior David Rice placed third in the 100 and senior Chris Mahoney placed second in the 300 hurdles.

BOOSTER CLUB AWARDS

The Booster Club Spirit Awards were awarded to Caroline Zwicker, softball; Lee Reid, baseball; Paul Riley, boys tennis; Mia Graham, girls tennis; John Drago, golf and Anne Marie Lagrotteria, track.

GIRLS TENNIS

The CHS girls tennis remains indefeated going into their last week of the season.

Senior Krissie Ralff and the doubles team of Ingrid Anderson and Nancy Walls has also remained undefeated.

Last week the girls swept East Bridgewater, Middleboro and Norwell in 5-0 matches, and defeated Duxbury 3-2 in a big match.

Here are East Bridgewater results:

Mia Graham won 6-2, 6-4; Joy Pratt won 6-3, 6-3 and Krissie Ralff won 6-4, 6-1.

In doubles action Ingrid Anderson and Nancy Walls won 6-4, 6-1, and Diane Mullen and Lauren Haynes won 6-0, 6-1.

Against Middleboro, Mia Graham won 6-0, 6-4; Krissie Ralff won 6-1, 6-3, and Ingrid Anderson was victorious, 6-1, 6-3.

In doubles action Diane Mullen and Nancy Walls won 6-1, 6-1, and Kristin O'Brien and Jessica Hamilton, 7-5, 6-4.

Against Norwell, Mia Graham won 6-0, 6-0; Joy Pratt won 6-3, 6-3, and Krissie Ralff was victorious, 6-4, 6-3.

In doubles action Elaine Mullen and Ingrid Anderson won 6-1, 6-2, and Kristin O'Brien and Jessica Hamilton were victorious, 6-2, 6-3.

Against Duxbury, Joy Pratt's three set victory pulled Cohasset out on top with a 3-2 win.

The double team of Diane and Elaine Mullen suffered their first loss in two seasons.

Cohasset wins included Joy Pratt, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, and Krissie Calff, 6-4, 6-2.

In doubles action, Ingrid Anderson and Nancy Walls were victorious, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2.

BOYS TENNIS

The CHS boys tennis team swept Middleboro 5-0 in tennis action last week.

In singles action, Brian Ramsey won 6-0, 6-0; Bill Davenport won 6-0, 6-1, and Chris Peachell was victorious, 6-0, 6-0.

In doubles action Chris Neelon and John Colocausis won 6-0, 6-0, and Linton Young and Curtis Erikson won 6-0, 6-1.

BASEBALL

Monday, the CHS baseball team scored a major upset as the Rockland Bulldogs were upset 5-3. Rockland is a contender for the state baseball tournament. This is the highlight so far for the Skippers. Bob Meers was the winning pitcher. More details will be provided in next week's Mariner. In earlier action, Cohasset fell to East Bridgewater, 10-1, despite Dave Barcum's fourth inning homer.

Cohasset High School Boosters Spirit winners: front, Anne Marie Lagrotteria, track, and Caroline Zwicker, softball; rear, John Drago, golf, Sean O'Connor, track, Paul Riley, tennis, and Lou Reid, baseball.

One-day soccer clinic set June 18

Walt Chyzowych, U.S. World Cup and Olympic Team coach from 1977 through 1982 will conduct a one day clinic for all youth soccer players, "How To Score Goals," at South Shore Regional School, Hanover, Saturday, June 18.

Coach Chyzowych, internationally respected for bringing U.S. soccer up to world class standards, will concentrate on giving youth coaches and players specific training about shooting for forwards and strikers who want to score goals.

"The U.S. will become a world soccer power when we develop American stars who can score goals like Pele," stated Chyzowych, currently Director of Operations for the Major Indoor Soccer League. "Youth coaches can teach almost anything except how to put the ball in the net."

The public is invited and can get registration information by contacting the South Shore Sports Center, clinic sponsors.

South Shore Sports Center, clinic sponsors, is a multi-use recreation facility specializing in tennis and indoor soccer programs.

Walter Chyzowych is the author of several widely distributed books about soccer - "The Official USSF Soccer Book and One-on-One," in addition to directing the oldest soccer camps in the U.S. All-American Soccer Camps.

Girls soccer team invited to tournament

Cohasset's under 19 girls soccer team has been honored with an invitation to participate this weekend in Needham's invitational soccer tournament.

Top teams from New England, New York, New Jersey and Canada in all age groups, boys and girls, participate in the three day event.

The team is sporting a 5-1-1 record, second in the Coastal Youth Soccer League, with three league games remaining.

Despite the loss of Sara Searey, Tracey Keating and Carla Lucas, because of injuries, the girls have played as a team and each member is playing in mid-season form even though this is just a weekend spring schedule. The 15-member team is young; 90 percent could play on the under 16 years old team nicely. The team is coached by Jack Duncombe and managed by Ruth Nedrow.

Senior Karen Ekberg is a study in concentration as she prepares to throw discus at South Shore League track meet.

S.S. Civic softball

Here are the results of the South Shore Civic Softball Association after game 5, May 22.

Clipper Ship, in a major upset, beat Building 19 of Hingham, 13-11. Mug and Muffin of Hingham beat Anderson Insultation of Marshfield, 9-8. Spiders Pub of Hull beat the Over the Hill Gang of Marshfield, 12-4. Kelly's of Hull beat Ocean Kai of Hingham, 8-7 in 13 innings and the Benchwarmers of Marshfield beat Strawberry Parfait of Cohasset, 10-6.

The Satuit Bowlaway report . . .

By Don Dwyer

Monday Afternoon Sixty-Plus finished their season with a championship match between the Fresca's and the Moxies. Joe White's team started off with a bang, beating the Moxies by over 60 pins and that proved the win for the Fresca's in a torrid championship match. (Joe White's 115 first string started his team to victory.) The winners consisted of Helen Dwyer, Vie White, Charlie Diment, Cosmo Iconelli and Joe White. The runners up who finished in second place last year gave a good fight but ran out of luck at the finish. The Moxies had all five women as a team and they were Margaret Maitland, Bea Blacker, Doris Kearney, Kay Levangie and Martha Savage. (A little more moxie next year will help, girls.) Individual honors for the season went to Mary Flaherty who topped all the ladies with a 97.2 average. Barbara Fellows had both High Three, 338, and High Single of 136. (There people are something else.) On the other side of the ledger Joe Flynn captured all the Men's High Honors with High Average of 108.0. High Three, 384 and High Single with 171. (Joe certainly has rocked the pins with those shocking scores. Just great!) A banquet will be held for all at the Bridgwaye and next Monday evening all awards will be presented then. Guests of honor for the evening will be Irene and Pete Lawson. (We at The Bowlaway are looking for a gala evening.)

Thursday Night's Merchants League had their grueling rolloffs last Sunday afternoon at The Bowlaway with all kinds of exciting scores and matches with eight teams rolling for some of the $10,000 that the League offers for prizes. The Sea Coast Deli rolling like the champs they are led all from start to finish rolling over all others with everyone bowling some fantastic scores. The Deli had two 600 strings and fantastic bowling from Tom McCarthy (a 167 single string) and Chuck Patterson who averaged 125 for all nine strings. (These guys must have been broke.) Riddles Food Mart won the wild card in one of the most exciting last match and last box of the tournament ever seen at The Bowlaway in years. Joe Ganem led the Food-Mart with some fancy bowling, including a 402 in the last match which meant dollars for all the Riddles five. The champion team of the Sea Coast Deli consisted of Tom McCarthy, David Gerrish, Bill Woodward, Mark Patterson and Chuck Patterson. (They certainly bowled like champs.) The Wild Card winners Ray Riddles Food-Mart consisted of Ray himself, Ray, Jr., Buddy Karlberg, Joe Ganem and Joe Slatger. For the other teams who made the rolloffs hats off to all who bowled. They were Satuit Bowlaway, Richardson's, Artley's Animals, Finnie Sales, Cabinets-By-Sunny, and Scituate Concrete Pipe. (All teams were big bucks winners. Hope to see everyone next year. All awards will be given out May 28 at the Elks Club in Hanover.)

Monday Night K. of C. finished their great season with two teams toeing the line for their championship match. Team 5 consisting of Ray Stauff, Les Monarch and John Brady, Jr., were too much for George Duggan's #4 team, rolling to a 47 pin victory. The runners up had George, Joe Puleio, Jr., Bob Harvey and Tim Vacha. High men in a losing cause were Joe Puleio, Jr., with 346, and Tim Vacha rolling 334. (How co8uld they lose with those classy scores. A recount is in order.) A great season was enjoyed by all. Individual honors went to Paul Maginnis who led all with a super High Average rolling 108.0 and High Three with 391. George Duggan, this year's president, had some special honors rolling a High Single of 171; second High Average with 104.9, and second High Three with 384. (Nothing but the best from George — a real classy guy himself.) Richie Murphy did some good bowling himself rolling Second High Single with a 158. Stu Walker is next year's president looking forward to extending the membership to a bigger league.

The Satuit Bowlaway has so many outside bowlers from other towns that we would like to, at this time, salute the town of Cohasset for giving us so many wonderful people joining our leagues at Scituate. Just to mention a few, Madeline and Tom Hargadon, Gerry and Dick Harwell from our Wednesday Mixed Double. (Tom was one of the top three for High Average .) Jeanne McAuliffe, Ida Fortier, Ruth Brown and Shirley Laidlaw from the Tuesday Night Women's League. (Jeanne has always been one of our top bowlers averaging well over 105.) Brenda Litchfield from our Sunday Night 6 p.m. girls, has been bowling here ever since this reporter has been here at The Bowlaway. (Thirty years, come September.) Barbara and Ted Fellows, who are regulars in the Monday and Fridays Sixty Plus League, are also one of the favorite couples bowling at The Bowlaway. An all-girls team from our Wednesday Summer Mixed Doubles, started the season well, catching the double jackpot for strikes, throwing 20 strikes as a team. (This team is looking for a rainbow.) This lucky team consists of Susie O'Brien, Lisa Gundille, Sarah Roebuck, Carol Stover, Brenda Douglas, and Beryl Douglas. There are many others, so from all of the Staff here, this week's Tip of the Hat goes to all of our bowlers from Cohasset.

Still some openings for our Summer Leagues. Tuesday Morning and Night Ladies, Wednesday Night Mixed Doubles, Thursday Night Men's League.

So long until next week.

S.S. Dressage Show

The fourth annual South Shore Dressage Show will be held at the Marshfield Fairgrounds Saturday, May 28 and Sunday, May 29.

The show is sponsored by the Heritage Dressage Association, a group of dressage riders formed on the South Shore four years ago to promote dressage in the area.

With the success of the past shows, this year the show will be held for two days for the first time and has also been selected as a qualifying show for the Pan American Games.

Classes will start both days at 8 a.m. Food will be provided on the grounds.

Phone complaints bloom on rainy days

By Patricia Desmond

What do you think about the telephone service? the Mariner asked people in Hingham, Marshfield, Norwell, Hanover, Cohasset and Scituate.

And one by one the complaints marched forth.

There's a woman in Cohasset who can't make calls out on her bedroom phone.

"They say I have to bring it to their office in Weymouth," she said with a tone of irritation. "I don't even know where the office is."

There's a businessman in Marshfield who complained for five minutes, having been offered an opening. His main complaint seemed to be that the Marshfield office is choked due to volume beyond its capacity. There have been other stories on that issue and the phone company has plans to make needed corrections.

There's a lady in Hanover who for five years has been trying to get a Hanover exchange. Her number is a Rockland exchange.

And there's a young mother in Norwell who registers absolute anger when she talks about her fight to get the phone company to remove some charges on her phone made by her ex-husband.

Someone in Hingham explained that the service wasn't too bad — if you don't mind listening to WBZ in the background.

One Scituate shop owner went on at length over some discourteous customer representative he had to deal with when he moved from one location in town to another. He also thought that the company ought to provide a bill adjustment for noisy lines and service interruptions that last more than 24 hours.

There are some indications that customers of NET will feel more like customers and less like an imposition in the life of a voice on the telephone. The separation of AT&T and its regional companies will change much.

Applications for new phone service will once again be processed over the telephone — something many of you may not even have missed.

In the past few years telephone customers moving from one place to another had to drop by a Phone Center Store during their business hours — which were regular business hours for the most part.

With the divestiture coming Jan. 1, 1984, you can once again let your fingers do the walking to get a new phone service installed. And Phone Centers are now called Service Centers.

Of course, after Jan. 1, NET will not own any telephones. That part of the business is going to American Telephone and Telegraph.

Everyone got an orange pamphlet in the mail in the recent past. It told how and at what price a telephone could be purchased.

What it didn't tell is that if you don't buy your phone from the Bell System or someone else (e.g. Radio Shack, Caldor's, Jordan Marsh), you will be leasing from AT&T at a still unknown rate.

Complaints about telephone service seem to be a universal or at least an All-American tradition.

It's impossible to do a story about phone service and not mention the fact that people in general carry an inner annoyance about the telephone company — either because of a personal dealing with someone representing the company or because of a billing problem or because the quality of service is somewhere less than perfect.

A therapist I know has an interesting explanation for the phenomenon. She calls it the depersonalization of bureaucracy personified. She's probably right. Dealing with New England Telephone is almost always depersonal — try to smile through the phone — and it certainly is bureaucratic — try to understand why they will or will not require deposits, demand personal applications for service, etc.

A statistician of the Department of Public Utilities is now computerizing all sorts of complaints involving the various companies regulated by the state.

He was working on the tabulation when I first called through the consumer complaint number. He had started the count in Jan. 1982, and had gotten as far as August.

In January there were 260 new cases presenting themselves to DPU. The number includes residential callers only — business is unregulated. Most complaints have to do with billing and termination.

In February there were 262 new cases. In March there were 221 new cases. In April there were 164 new cases. In May there were 127 new cases. In June there were 137 new cases. In July there were 146 new cases. In August there were 150 new cases. In September there were 143, in October 112, in November 106, in December 143.

"There are a lot of calls here from people who think we are the phone company," the statistician said.

He explained that on the back of the telephone bill is the DPU number as where to go with unresolved billing problems.

"The bill does tell them to call the company first and use the phone number for unresolved disputes but many people don't read that they just see a phone number and call here."

The DPU gets over 1,000 calls a month from people who are trying to register an initial complaint.

Complaints about phone service tend to be centered in the areas of rapid growth. It also seems that no matter where you live in the South Shore, your chances of having telephone trouble increase dramatically if it happens to be raining. Well, water makes the crops grow but it does little good for telephone cable — it isn't your imagination about the rain.

NET is working to overcome some of the difficulties of growth. Work is underway in Marshfield's central office to correct the deficiencies of too-taxed equipment.

And soon there will be two fairly substantial pieces of roadwork in Hingham. There's a $500,000 job going into the South Hingham area (basically for the industrial park's present and future growth) and a quarter of a million dollars scheduled for Rte. 3A in Hingham. That work is supposed to reduce noise on the lines as well as providing for expected growth. It seems the cable in that area is beginning to deteriorate.

"These things only last so many years," Carolyn McKeon, Telephone spokesperson, said.

Each of you probably has your own stories to tell about noise on the lines, slowness to find dialtone, etc.

But the whole of society has come to depend on telephones — 96 percent of us have them.

At NET's new Let's Talk office, located in Brookline, the employes are getting used to fielding calls from people who don't have any questions at all about the divestiture or services.

Now they are getting calls from people who just want to talk because they feel lonely. One man from Maine calls weekly.

Local rates and service

There are eleven exchanges that serve the people living in Hingham, Cohasset, Norwell, Scituate, Hanover and Marshfield.

For people who aren't able to get an exchange identifying their home with their community this can be somewhat disruptive.

Rates for each community, as defined by the exchange, are different.

As the phone company explains it, the rates are determined by the number of telephones a caller can reach free with the service purchased.

IF YOU LIVE IN HINGHAM, you might be served by one of the two Hingham exchanges — 749 or the new 740 — or you may be one of the few Hinghamites served by the Hull or Weymouth exchanges.

You can get a touch tone phone.

And your service choices will be:

Measured, $3.25 a month.

Local, flat rate, $8.80 a month.

Bay State, $26.

Metropolitan, which includes Boston, Brockton, Peabody and many other locations, for $19.85 a month.

Suburban, which includes most of metropolitan with exception of downtown Boston, Scituate, Lynn and Rockland for $14.40.

And Suburban can be expanded to Scituate or Rockland for $1.

IF YOU LIVE IN COHASSET, you can also get touch tone phones. You will have 383 as your exchange.

And your service choices will be:

Measured, $3.25.

Local, $8.35.

Suburban, $14.40

Metropolitan, $19.85.

Bay State, $26.

IF YOU LIVE IN SCITUATE, you may also get a touch tone phone. Your exchange will be 545 unless you live in Humarock.

And your service choices are:

Measured, $3.25.

Local, $8.20.

Metropolitan, $18.75.

Bay State, $26.

Circle dialing, which means anything in a 20 mile radius is $23.95.

There is also an expanded option to add Hingham for $1.

Did you know?

Did you know that in June, 1982, there were 10,346 phone lines coming out of the Marshfield central office?

Hingham had 8,658 lines at that time on its two exchanges. Scituate had 6,805 lines. Hanover had 5,085 lines — some of those lines were in Norwell. Cohasset had 3,227 lines. And Norwell's own 659 exchange had 2,425 lines. The telephone company doesn't keep any statistics by geographic community.

More options

IF YOU LIVE IN MARSHFIELD, you can't get touch tone. Your exchange will be 837 or 834.

And your options are:

Local for $8.50.

Circle, that's 20 miles, for $19.75. Quincy is the last free community in the line to the north.

Measured circle for $17.

Bay State for $21.20.

IF YOU HAVE THE HANOVER EXCHANGE, which is 826, you can't get a touch tone phone today but you are going to be able to get one sometime in 1984 along with more sophisticated telephone service.

And your options today are:

Local for $8.80.

Circle for $21.85.

Measured circle for $17.30.

Bay State for $21.20.

You might be served by the Norwell or Rockland exchanges living in Hanover and then your choices are different.

IF YOU HAVE NORWELL EXCHANGE of 659, your options are:

Local at $8.80.

Measured circle at $17.30.

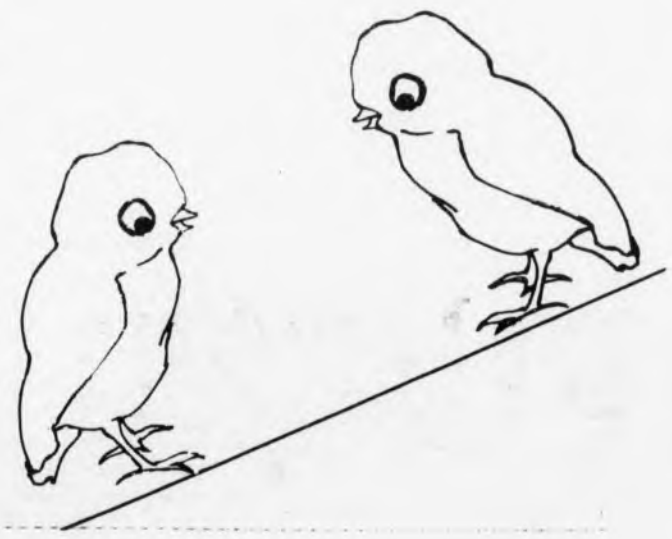
Metropolitan at $19.30.

Bay State at $26.

Norwell itself is served by 659, 826, 545 and 878.

If you have a Rockland exchange of 878, whether you live in Hanover or Rockland, your options are:

Local for $9.35.



Measured for $3.25.

Metropolitan for $19.85.

Bay State at $26.

Expanded calling to Hingham and/or Randolph can be had for $1 a month each.

And touch tone is available.

Color parents' commencement gray

By Lois Martin

Our class motto shall be "Youth is a gift of nature, Middle Age is a work of art."

Our class flower is the forget-me-not. The theme of our graduation week is "The Generation Trap," (that's a 't' not a 'c' on the latter word, remember.)

And we shall have a magnificent commencement.

The tradition of letting high school and college kids who've completed years of study have the celebration of graduation is typical traditional nonsense.

Who are the ones who really must commence, begin again, but the parents?

PATCHES

I say turn this around before it's too late, my fellow commencers of the Class of '83. We who are posting graduation schedules on our refrigerators for the kids should take matters in our own hands.

The color of our caps and gowns should be gray. Because it's only the kids who see issues as clearly black or white. They aren't confused. We graduating parents unfortunately have learned to see two sides to many issues, gray with a touch of muted chartreuse on the mothers' caps.

And we won't be done out of the pre-Commencement activities. I want Parents Skip Day. I'm gonna round up my crowd and head to the Cape. And Parents Night Out, when we dress up and get to use the good car if it came through the prom all right.

And a Field Day, Lord, how we deserve one of those.

And we ought to have our awards night. A plaque goes to the father who got up with a son through eight years of hockey and three months of mono. There'll also be a certificate for the mother who retrieved the English composition from her daughter's jeans before the rinse cycle.

And we'll have more personal awards, the fun ones, for parents — most likely to adjust to offspring's absence, for example, or the most innovative use of the kid's room.

And scholarships, who needs them more? — one to pay for cleaning services after she clears out of her room, one to lower the rear end of the car and replace the muffler, and one for braces for the parent who straightened the teeth of three children but never his own.

As for the Commencement exercises, we march in to a song of our choice — the theme from "Lassie" is out, maybe "The Tide is High (but I'm holdin' on)," Momma Cass' "You Gotta Make Your Own Kind of Music," (now's your chance). But probably "Ebb Tide" would be closer to our age group.

We want nifty speakers, several brief ones from our Commencing Class, model types who've had kids graduate before and came through it with aplomb and a knowing smile.

And there has to be one upbeat celebrity youth to charge us on our way. The young person should tell us that we have the world by the tail with students gone and the firebrand will remind us of what is expected as we continue to climb the ladder of success whose rungs have often snapped beneath our worn down heels.

We need to be sent forward with gusto into this new life without these graduates. Because it won't be easy. We'll get nostalgic. Things won't be the same. We won't get to see the old gang at the supermarket anymore. The sound of the telephone will spook us in a few months. And what's a driveway going to be without those skid marks.

But we mustn't become so moved as to miss the fun of our Commencement. Or the gifts. I really wanted to hint around for a Bermuda trip like lots of the kids took at spring break. But I think that would be a burden for them, what with sneaker expenses and all.

I wonder if they'll buy gifts in proportion to their sense of pride in us. Hope not. Sometimes children don't learn to be proud of their parents until we've handled retirement with grace.

But I'll catch them in a poignant moment before I broach the subject of my gift. It'll be when I've hurled both my cap and gown after the commencement is officially over and we're standing around taking photos.

That's when they can chip in and give me what I really would love to have...the keys to my car.

Pedal for MS June 12

Bicycle tour enthusiasts are invited to join the MS/BUD Light Bike Tour on June 12 starting in Hingham. Three scenic routes, 25, 50 and 100 miles, have been planned by the Multiple Sclerosis Society and local bicycling club members. The MS Tours are sponsored by Budweiser Light and WBCN for the benefit of MS research and patient services.

Bob Lobel, WBZ-TB sportscaster, is chairing the tour and will ride for MS on the 12th. Tour awards include a 12-speed Univega, VT weekend bicycle tours, Kirtland touring bags and Campagnola hats. All riders receive a T-shirt and lunch, dinner and refreshments are provided.

To ride the MS tour, participants may secure sponsors to pledge amounts for MS for the miles they ride or pay an entry fee. Pre-registration is recommended and will be helpful to those planning the tours.

Experienced cyclists will be leading the tours and sagwagons for repair will monitor each route to provide a safe and enjoyable tour for families, recreational and avid cyclists. This tour is endorsed by American Youth Hostel, Boston Council, Charles River Wheelmen, and members of the League of American Wheelmen.

MS is extremely prevalent in New England and there are an estimated 6,000 families affected by the disease right here in Massachusetts. Approximately 200 people a week are diagnosed with MS, making illness one of the major disabling diseases of young adults.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society is devoted solely to supporting research programs to find the cause, prevention and cure of MS and to aid persons who cope with MS in their daily lives.

The MS tour organizers are offering a challenging event for families and individuals with the added opportunity to help in the conquest of MS. Call Linda at the MS Bike Tour Hotline in Waltham at (617) 890-4990 for more information or to register for the tour.

A Beautiful Approach to Country Living.

You drive in through meadows strewn with seasonal wildflowers. But that's only your entry to the good life at The Meadows, The Green Company's new community of attached single family homes in Hingham. The architectural style is true to the farm-house heritage of the community. The construction and detailing have been accomplished with obvious pride.

The Meadows offers a selection of two and three bedroom homes with unexpected details like master suites with private fireplaced sitting areas, large country kitchens for informal entertaining, separate dining rooms for more formal occasions, hidden corners for quiet contemplation, and a mix of ceiling heights and styles. In addition there are large private courtyards, two-car garages, full basements, a swimming pool, whirlpool, tennis courts and a clubhouse. And best of all, this very civilized lifestyle is near major highways to the cultural delights of Boston and vacation areas to the North and South.

Prices range from $157,000 to $210,000 during this, our opening period. Furnished models are open every day from 9 to 5. Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street, one mile to our entrance. Call (617) 740-1500 for an appointment. When it comes to a good life in the country, The Meadows leads the field!

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

The shutters are off the beach cottages, the boats are riding at their moorings and the outdoors beckons. Paper plates, coolers and redwood tables replace the best china and lace tablecloth as the woodsy air and salty breezes lure us off to picnics, barbecues and spring-time fun. The long holiday weekend is to us on the South Shore what opening day at Fenway Park is to Red Sox fans, so roll out the grille, gather together the family and have yourself a "spring fling." Hot breads are always a welcome addition to any meal and, as we all know how to make garlic bread, why not try James Beard's

HERB BREAD

1 large loaf French bread
1 small bunch parsley
8 to 10 scallions
Small bunch chives
1 sprig fresh dill
1 stick butter, or more
½ tsp. salt

Split bread in half the long way. Chop the herbs and scallions and combine with the butter and salt. Cream well. Spread mixture on each half of loaf. Press bread together again, firmly. Heat in 350 oven for 20 min. Cut in 1" slices.

It's not only our beaches that beckon to summer visitors, but our woods and pretty parks. You can pack a picnic basket and spread out your feast on tables provided in Myles Standish Park in "Ducksburrow," as he and other Pilgrims named what we know as Duxbury. In "Missaucatucket" there are miles to explore on the historic North River and a launching site for your canoe at the Union St. bridge which links Norwell and what we now know as Marshfield. A lovely little park has been created on the Driftway in the town the Indians named "Satuit," meaning "cold brook." Federally funded, it is open to the public and has conservation lands to explore after your picnic. In nnohassett are the Whitney Woods, off Chief Justice Cushing Way, an excellent birdwatching site, with beautiful walks and paths, just made for a holiday outing. As you may have guessed, we know it now as Cohasset, while going inland to Hanover, we can also enter it by canoe, for it was once a part of Scituate and has lovely homes bordering the North River. Wherever you choose to open your picnic basket, eager appetites will welcome this recipe from Joan Woodhull which she, in turn, got from a friend in Connecticut. Her eight year-old son, Donald, loves to get in the kitchen with her to roll up 1" balls of

BUCKEYES

¾ stick butter or margarine
1 lb. confectioner's sugar
10 T. light Karo syrup
1½ c. creamy peanut butter
12 oz. Nestle's semi-sweet chocolate bits
½ bar of paraffin to provide 3 T. melted

Mix together first four ingredients. Add 3 T melted paraffin and roll into 1" balls. Melt chocolate in top of double boiler and dip balls into it. Put on cooky sheet and refrigerate. Makes 60 or 70 1" Buckeyes.

If you're asked to bring a dish to a holiday get-together, you can't go wrong with this delectable, different cole slaw which has the added advantage of being able to be made and refrigerated a few days before the event. Barbara Place has been making it for several years since she clipped the recipe from the Boston Globe and when she last made it for a Wednesday luncheon, did so on Monday night, making sure to stir it now and then while it was refrigerated to throughly marinade it. Here is what is now a family favorite, serves eight and is called

BLUE RIBBON COLE SLAW

1 cabbage, 3 lbs. chopped
1 medium green pepper, minced
1 large red or Spanish onion, chopped
1 c. sugar
1 c. cider vinegar
⅔ c. Crisco oil
1 tsp. each dry mustard, celery seed, salt

With sharp knife, trim, quarter and core the cabbage. Slice each quarter very fine. Peel onion, chop fine. Chop pepper fine. Combine vegetables in 2½ qt. bowl. Toss with hands to mix. Mix remaining ingredients in small saucepan and let come to boil over moderate heat until sugar melts. Watch carefully. Pour over vegetables and toss well to mix. Cool at room temperature and cover. Refrigerate. Keeps well for several days and improves as it marinates.

Angle for flounder, cod . .

By Greg Derr

The Green Harbor Tuna Club held its annual cod-fish tournament last weekend, with about 800 fish boated ranging in size from 4-45 pounds. The largest fish was caught by Danny Dolberry aboard the Bigfish out of Green Harbor Marina. The 25 boats that entered had ideal fishing weather and calm seas. The tournament was followed by a barbeque with fried chicken for the entrants.

The winners were: largest fish, 45½ pounds, Danny Dolberry; largest fish by a member, 43¼, Robert Whitting; largest by a woman, Sherry Modestino; under fifteen by a boy and a girl, Cindy Greham and Art Hayes. The winners received plaques.

Adams Sporting Goods of Hanover sponsored a salmon fishing clinic on Sunday at the Indian Head Dam in Hanover. Over 400 people came throughout the day to learn more about fishing for Coho salmon in the North River. Tackle makers were on hand to show off new gear and give tips on how to use them.

Many experts on salmon showed up to give anglers some insight into the behavior of this little known gamefish. Ken Reback, the man in charge of the salmon stocking for the Division of Marine Fisheries, was on hand to explain how the program works.

This spring about 80,000 parr (baby salmon) were stocked in the river. They will return in the fall of 1984. This fall about 500-800 should return from the ocean to spawn at the Indian Head Dam.

For the kids under twelve, there was a fishing derby with prizes for the largest fish.

On other angling fronts, cod are obviously being caught readily, mostly from boats with a few catches around bridges and jetties.

Paul Unagst took some mackeral while trolling Christmas tree rigs; this is one good way to find fish while killing time returning to port.

Flounder fishing is still productive with fish being boated over the sandy bottom along Duxbury Beach. Most cold water fish like cod, flounder and pollock are beginning to move deeper, so go after them.

Striped bass have been reportedly caught this side of the canal, but I have yet to see one first hand. Be patient, in a matter of two weeks, most anglers will head to P-Town for bluefish and bass.

If you have a chance to stock your freezer with our local herring...do it now.

Aside from menhaden, herring is the best striper bait (eels are good too). Bluefish will hit almost anything put in front of them, maybe that's how they were nicknamed 'Piranha." And for the blues, be sure to use foot-long steel leaders on your plugs for repainting them every so often.

around town

☐Mike Fichtner really surprised his Mom, JoAnn, for Mother's Day. He arrived in Cohasset without telling anyone he was coming and got to see his mother's efforts pay off in the Class Play. The CHS junior class also benefited, as Mike joined his dad, Herman, while he spoke about Annapolis.

☐The television program, "Look," is really making its mark in Cohasset. Marilyn DeVos really feels like a celebrity after winning the pizza contest. She didn't even tell her friends she was entering. She was very surprised when all the congratulatory calls came in.

"Look" is also responsible for a new "member of our community." The Ekberg family saw a dog on the show (they feature a few animals each day that can be "adopted") and the next day Alna was on her way to Sudbury to take a peek at her. "Daisy," a mixed black Lab, Collie and Shepherd, gave her the "take me home" look, which Alna did. The Ekbergs may be spotted anywhere along Nichols Road chasing their newest family member.

☐Proof-positive that Paul Farren was indeed worthy of his award in college football (Paul was B.U.'s all-league center) is the fact that he was drafted by the Cleveland Browns. More details in June, after things are finalized.

☐The CHS Class of 1945 is planning their reunion directed by Marge Ritter and Manuel Salvador. Because many students left high school to join the service, only 16 graduated out of a class of 45 members. Therefore, the reunion will include those who entered with the Class of 1951, and the graduating class of 1945. Anyone who was in any of these classes, or knows addresses of out-of-towners, can call the coordinator.

☐Angela O'Brien, a student at Boston College, is a member of the Women's Varsity Golf Team. She recently participated in the 1983 Massachusetts Intercollegiate Golf Tournament at Longmeadow Golf Club and walked away with first place honors in the First Division (Net). Angela is the sister of the Mariner sports write Alana O'Brien.

☐Terry Young is on the committee planning the celebration of Queen Elizabeth's second official birthday Sunday afternoon, June 12. Sponsored by the Boston Branch of the English Speaking Union and the National Park Service, the garden-party style event will take place from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Commandant's House, National Historical Park, Charlestown Navy yard.

A feature of the afternoon will be an 18th century military review performed at 4 p.m. by Her Majesty's 10th Regiment of Foot in America. The 50-member group wear authentically researched uniforms and accoutrements, the buttons and cap plates of which are reproduced from antique molds. The regiment has participated in Bicentennial battle re-enactments all over the Eastern seaboard and was Queen Elizabeth the Second's Guard of Honor during her visit to Boston in 1976.

Reservations for the event may be made by writing to the English Speaking Union, 44 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, 02116. Further information may be obtained by calling the Union at 536-4740.

☐Barbara Weisenfluh of Cohasset has successfully completed Course II of the 1983 Realtors Institute of Massachusetts held recently at the Sheraton-Regal Inn, Hyannis.

Barbara is associated with Petersen Realtors of South Main St., Cohasset Village.

A new way to study geography

A number of people got up early Sunday morning and painted a 30 by 50 foot map of the United States on the asphalt behind the Joseph Osgood School.

It was an excellent geography lesson given by Jack Creamer, the school principal. Creamer, Bill Baird and Billy Baird laid out a grid at 7:15 a.m. and by 9:30, Sue Fiore and Dan and Judy Volungus finished painting east of the Mississippi. Karin Bartow and Gerry Schultz traded straight edges finishing the great west.

Creamer painted the Great Lakes while Tom Fiore, Bill Biard and Sue DeMichele figured how the ivers flow. Pat Baird supplied coffee and chased down extra paint to finish Alaska. Billy and Danny Baird finished Hawaii and the Florida Keys. A helpful passerby was able to identify Lake Okeechobee.

The entire project is the result of Creamer's persistence over meteorological odds of finding a dry Sunday. The PSO supplied the map makers.

Sixth grade square dance

The PSO will sponsor a Sixth Grade Square Dance Friday, June 3 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Deer Hill School cafeteria.

Admission is $1 and there will be refreshments. Dress is casual and the dance will be chaperoned.

Bob Johnson of Quincy will call the dance which is for sixth graders only.

Abbruzzese on winning team

The Bowdoin College men's varsity lacrosse team won its second ECAC Division III New England title in the past three years by defeating Springfield College 6-5 and top-ranked Middlebury College 11-8 and earned an eleventh place ranking in the final national Division III poll.

Chris Abbruzzese was one of the key defensemen.

Home is where one hangs his hat. Ed Grafton peers from his cozy tent pitched at Wompatuck State Park during Boy Scout Jamboree.

A room does not need to be crammed with Oriental furnishings to give it the serenity and sophistication of the Far East. By embellishing a space with a few meticulously arranged, handpicked pieces a sense of tranquility can be imparted to any room. Clean-lined styling reinforces this "minimalist" approach to decorating and designs. Consider using floor-to-ceiling screens to flank conversation groupings. Screens for this purpose are usually covered with hand-painted paper containing richly detailed nature scenes. Curved lines and symmetrical balanced arrangements also serve to contribute to an Oriental mood.

Your Oriental design can combine gentleness with drama. Do you need new wallpaper to compliment your new decor? Wheter it's Oriental, country, modern or contemporary we at BOUND BROOK PAINT & HARDWARE have over 350 books for you to look over and we'll even custom coordinate your wallpaper selections with the other colors in your room. Stop in Mon-Wed 8-6, Thurs & Fri till 8:30, Sat till 5 and see us in N. SCITUATE at 763 Country Way or phone 545-3624. Master Card, Visa accepted.

DeFeo updates Cedar St. landfill problems

By Patricia Anne Walsh

Engineer Fred DeFeo is opposing engineer John Modzelewski regarding the ponding at the Cedar Street landfill.

He also issued an inspection report for April and advised the state the operation of the landfill is "somewhat improved, but major improvement is still required."

Landfill operations have been an issue in the health board's attempt to terminate supervisor Joseph Laugelle.

DeFeo said, "Once again improvement has been noted in the operation of the landfill, but continued improvement will be necessary in order to bring this site into compliance with state regulations."

He said the improvements noted April 20 included "much better cover over the surface of landfill areas and a more consistent slope over that surface."

He cited the cover material for containing too much sand, and not enough silt to provide an adequate seal over the deposited refuse. He said the supplier should be informed the material does not meet specifications.

DeFeo listed litter as a deficiency.

He said there is much litter to the north and west of the expansion area and east of the old site, and a total cleanup of the site is required.

He said compaction needs to be accomplished more effectively, and depressions on the surface need to be filled.

"Unless better compaction takes place, depressions will continue to form over the surface of the landfilled areas and additional cover material will be needed to compensate for that which is lost to voids in the refuse," DeFeo said.

Surface drainage is mostly away from refuse. There is ponding in depressions and ponding is a problem east of the existing site, DeFeo added.

DeFeo reviewed the letter to the Cohasset Planning Board from Modzelewski and made several comments in disagreement.

Although the two engineers disagree, the health board hired DeFeo for further investigation of problems at the Cedar St. dump regarding causes of the ponding.

Selectmen Chairman Mary Jane McArthur advised the board to hire a third engineer, since DeFeo and Modzelewski have several areas of disagreement.

DeFeo said he did not believe the rainfall events which have taken place recently should be compared to a 100-year storm event.

"We do not agree that there was prior to 1981 a surface outfall from the proposed condominium site across the landfill site," he said.

"During our inspection of the landfill site April 4, 1981, a ponded water elevation of 55 feet, five inches, was measured. We cannot comment on the indications that the elevation of the ponded water was at one time 57 feet, three inches," said DeFeo.

"We, based on our knowledge of the site, would disagree that the drainage from the condominium site was interrupted by filling at the Cohasset landfill during the time period between 1974 and 1981. In our opinion this area has been ponded for many years," he added.

"The level of the ponding which has taken place this year, is caused by the excessive amount of rain and the number of storms which have taken place during the last two months and not due to any filling at the landfill.

"In our opinion it is inappropriate to use contours from a U.S.G.S. map...although we would agree there was probably not an error of 10 feet," DeFeo said.

"We agree that a clay barrier was constructed downstream from the controlling elevation. We do not feel that this construction work has effected the groundwater flow from the condominium site," he added.

At a recent board meeting, John Lanata, of Lanata and Crossen, whose development of adjoining land is affected by the ponding, said he would have his own engineer survey the problem, no matter whom the board selected.

Lanata again requested the litter from the dump on his property be removed. He said he had observed papers blowing off the dumpster while being moved from the front reception area to the rear cover area.

He also questioned whether trucks driving over the side of the capped area were contributing to a leachate problem in the ponded water on his property.

He suggested a fence to protect his property from litter. Board member Michael Bliss offered a "snow fence," but Lanata said he did not feel three to four feet of snow fencing was of sufficient height.

PERMITS REVOKED

William Chase, owner of two lots on Howe Road, appeared before the board regarding permits that had been revoked by Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos after he had "invested $50,000." At issue is a swale that Bliss alleges is "a natural water course" after his inspection in January. Bliss said the site was inspected over several days by six people. He said Chase would have to get letters denying the watercourse designation from John Hubbard of the Conservation Committee and state official Thomas Clougherty who had inspected the site, before the board would agree to reconsider the matter.

Reserve fund low

James Lagrotteria, acting chairman of the advisory board, has written a letter of warning to department heads and committee chairmen. He states the "Reserve Fund is rapidly depleting, and it is imperative the advisory board be notified prior to June 20 of any need for a transfer of funds. Of our remaining balance of $11,266.72, approximately one half has been requested to fund unusual expenses by our Law and Legal Dept. This will nearly deplete our reserve fund and as a result, only the severest of emergencies will be considered," he added. Lagrotteria said the reserve fund is not to be used to fund deficiencies in operating budgets, but rather by all departments to provide funds for expenses of an unusual and emergency nature. In recent weeks the wire department and sewer department have indicated the possible need for transfer of funds.

So. Shore Art Center artists to exhibit at the Pru

An exhibit of work by the South Shore Art Center artists has been chosen to hang in the Prudential Center, Boston, during June.

Some 26 artists, all artist-members of the South Shore Art Center, 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset will be represented in this show which is open to the public in the lobby of the Prudential Center.

Art Center gallery coordinator Linda Summers in cooperation with Prudential has selected the work for this exhibit which offers an excellent opportunity for the center's artists to show their work in Boston.

The show opens with a formal reception on Friday, June 3 from 5 to 7 p.m. and it will continue through June 25.

Represented in the Prudential show are such artists as Ellee Avakian, Rita Straus Berkowitz, Rosalind Farbush, Walter Frost, Mary Good, Jack Hennessey, Walter Horak, Claffy Williams, Louise Kalish, Constance Pratt, Robert St. Pierre, Syma, Lisbeth Wyman, Jim Ann Howard and other South Shore artists.

The works represent a variety of media including oil, pastel collage, sculpture, acrylic, photography, aquatint, stained glass, pen and ink, soft wood engraving and watercolor.

Visitors are invited to view the show during the hours the Prudential Center Lobby is open.

Inquiries regarding the exhibit or any piece of work may be made to the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548.

SUMMER WORKSHOPS

Join one of the South Shore Art Center's many courses offered in painting, drawing, crafts, sculpture and children's art or participate in one of the intensive summer weeklong workshops.

The center offers an extensive selection of courses for all levels of ability during July and August.

Two four-week sessions have been scheduled with classes meeting twice a week. The first session begins July 5 and runs to July 29; the second session begins August 1 and runs to August 26. Advanced registration is required.

A special Waves and Water Workshop led by South Shore artist Ann Murphy scheduled for July 25 and 26 and August 1 and 2 from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. is designed for those who have basic drawing and painting skills and would like to focus on the water.

The workshop will be on location overlooking the blue Atlantic and in the studio. Students may elect to work in oils, acrylic, watercolor or pastels.

A new summer attraction is also a Watercolor Portrait course for intermediate or advanced level artists. Taught by watercolor and portrait artist Harriet Zabusky-Zand, this is the first course offered by the Center that focuses on watercolor portrait.

The instructor will work with students on the basics in how to form a portrait, how to capture the personality of the subject and how to present the subject's bone structure on the paper. Students should have a basic background in drawing and painting.

Watercolor Portrait starts Aug. 2 and will meet Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

A good summer pastime for any level artist is learning to see selectively and that's just what Judeth Van Ham Wiers does with her course "Seeing Selectively" beginning August 1 Mondays and Wednesdays from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

As described by the instructor, the course teaches students to see more clearly and to select from what you see with more confidence and creativity. Each class will focus on a different step in the selection process of painting including subject matter, viewpoint, form, value, color and texture.

Other offerings under drawing and painting include Basic Drawing for beginning and intermediate levels by Virginia Moore, July 6, Monday and Wednesday, 7:30 to 10 p.m; Portraiture, intermediate and advanced, by Clement Micarelli, July 5, Tuesday and Thursday, 7:30 to 10 p.m; Portrait: Clothed Figure, Clement Micarelli, Aug. 2, Tuesday and Friday, 9:30 a.m. to noon; Introductory Drawing, beginning and intermediate and Introductory Painting, all levels, both by David Tandy, Aug. 2, Tuesday and Thursday, 7:30 to 10 p.m; and Outdoor Watercolor, all levels, Virginia Avery, starts July 6 and Aug. 3, Wednesday and Friday, 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

A Stained Glass Workshop by Dana Buck is the craft offering for the summer. Beginning July 6 on Monday and Wednesday from 7:30 to 10 p.m., the course offers an introduction to technical and design aspects of stained glass.

Two photography classes include Beginning Photography with Paul Fortin beginning July 11 on Mondays, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. and Intermediate and Advanced Photography also with Mr. Fortin beginning July 6 on Wednesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Offerings for young artists are Syma's Children's Clay, six to 12 years old, beginning July 6, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 10 a.m. to noon; Serena Brundige's Exploring with Paint and Pencil, seven to 11 years old, beginning July 5 and Aug. 2, Tuesday and Thursday, 2 to 3:30 p.m.; and Susan Rodgerson's Painting and Drawing Landscape, 12 to 16 years old, beginning July 12 on Tuesday and Thursday, 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

An intensive Children's Art Week will run from June 27 to July 1, from 10:30 a.m. to noon for seven to 11 years old. The last day of the workshop is the beginning of the South Shore Art Center's Summer Art Festival and the children's work will be displayed at the Festival, July 1 through July 4.

The July intensive workshops include Three-Day Pastel Portrait for Intermediate and Advanced levels, taught by Constance Flavell Pratt, July 6, 7, & 8, 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Outdoor Drawing and Painting, by Rosalind Farbush, July 18-22, 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m; and Sculpture Workshop in Wax, by Dennis Kowal, July 25-29, 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

August intensive workshops are Advanced Photo Workshop, by Peter Anderson, Aug. 7-12, 9:30 to 3:30 p.m; Landscape Painting for Intermediate and Advanced levels, by Margaret Dillon, Aug. 8-12, 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m; Introductory Drawing for Beginning and Intermediate levels, David Tandy, Aug. 15-19, 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m; and One-Week Outdoor Painting, by Betty Kohlberg, Aug. 22-26, 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Many of the summer offerings may be taken for college credit offered by the Mass College of Art or may be taken to fulfill a South Shore Art Center certificate requirement.

For additional information regarding classes, fees and registration, call the center at 383-9548.

Fisherman Salvador objects to sewer action

Bernard Salvador, harbor liaison of the Cohasset Fishermen's Association, has written to the state to object to any further continuance of the provisions which were incorporated into the Agreement for Judgement filed against the town in Suffolk Superior Court.

Salvador said the association supported state efforts throughout court proceedings because "we believed they were in the best interests of the harbor. As the single largest industry in Cohasset, we need to be assured that the sewage discharge from James Brook will not pollute the lobsters we keep in the harbor.

"It has now come to our attention that the Town of Cohasset has no intention of fulfilling the agreement. This is disturbing both because we have suffered economic losses as a result of the sewage, but also because the Agreement clearly calls for penalties for its violation which have never been enforced," said Salvador.

Salvador asked if the attorney general's office is not interested, "please so advise us so that we may obtain legal counsel."

In reply to Salvador's letter sewer commissioner Charles DeSantis said, "I want to assure you that the Cohasset Board of Sewer Commissioners has every intention of complying with the intent of the agreement, which is to meet its discharge permit requirements, as soon as possible and in a manner that it can afford.

"We are convinced that by modifying our Agreement for Judgement we will be able to comply with our discharge permit requirements (either through rehabilitation of the present plant or a tie-in with Hull) and address all problems within the town long before the present Metcalf and Eddy plan can. I would also like to bring to your attention that the sewer commission has recently completed leak detection and fixes on our lines and manholes which should allow the plant to meet its discharge permit requirements more consistently than in the past," said DeSantis.

DeSantis invited Salvador and other interested association members to attend a meeting of the commissioners "where we can discuss your concerns."

An environmental report issued several years ago, said fresh water coming in at the gulf on Border Street from the river, may have more influence on the salinity of the waters in the harbor than the discharge from the plant, Chief Operator Manuel Salvador told the board.

Lobsterman Herb Jason told the Mariner that he fears added fresh water in the harbor, however, because fresh water increases the death rate of lobsters stored in the lobster cars in the harbor.

Fishermen have for years complained that there is an increase in that rate after a heavy rainfall. This reduces salinity, they say.

SYSTEM INSPECTION

Chairman Charles DeSantis has written to Marilyn Sweeney, chairman of the board of health, to inform her the sewer commissioners want the health board to have the systems of the six buildings not connected to the sewer systems to be inspected.

He asked to be advised if the systems were not functioning properly, so a connection could be made.

The Community Center is included on the list as well as one house on each of Pond, South Main, Border, Stockbridge Streets and Margin Court.

When you graduate to the Air Guard, your future's looking up.

And so is our country's. Because the professional men and women of the Air National Guard do more than provide the major portion of our national air defense. They provide aid in state and community emergencies as well.

Great benefits. Now and for your future.

By joining the Air Guard now, you'll be doing more than helping protect your community, state, and home town. You'll be helping yourself.

Because the Air Guard is a part-time military job, you'll have plenty of time to pursue a civilian career. Or further your education which we may help you pay for.

What's more, we'll provide valuable technical training. The kind of training you could probably use to get a good civilian job or to advance in your chosen career.

Of course, you'll also receive low-cost life insurance, a retirement plan, base exchange privileges, and more. All for your part-time work in the Air Guard.

If you're ready to move ahead with your future, learn valuable job skills and earn extra income, call your Air Guard recruiter today.

563-2150

You'll find out why we say, "In the Air Guard, the sky isn't the limit."

We Guard America's Skies.

GRANDMA'S ATTIC
"A Country Shop"
The greatest collection of country handcrafts and collectibles under one roof!

Grandma's comment of the week:
Going to a wedding or school graduation? Don't throw away those formal invitations you receive! Come in and see what a lovely but inexpensive gift we can turn them into. We will mount and frame them with dried flowers for the new couple or school graduate to have and to cherish always.

Grandma's thought for the week:
A smile is something that adds to your face value!

Explorer's Post is now no scouting secret to Cohasset

By Jane Lane

Their advisor calls the Explorer's Post, "the best-kept secret in scouting."

They earn no merit badges. But they are earnest in their efforts to serve the community. And along the way, they also have a lot of fun.

Arthur Lehr founded Post 28 in Cohasset in 1968. He had been a scoutmaster for 25 years and had settled into a short lived retirement from the program.

He looked around the community and saw about a half dozen teenaged youths who had once been active scout members, but during the 1960's had "turned off" from participating in structured organizations.

Lehr recognized a need to reach out to these few boys, and developed what he termed, "a non conformist" group of scouts—an Explorer's Post.

The first order of business was to decide what service the Post would provide to the community. Because Explorer Post members do not strive to attain certain levels of scouting acheivement, the post had to provide some useful service to the town.

After talking with former Eagle Scout and past Police Chief Randy Feola, Lehr and his boys decided they could provide medical assistance to the police and fire departments in emergency situations.

This was an era before Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT's), and the post felt such a service was vitally needed in their community.

Shooting leaves Judith Stover critical

Police are investigating the shooting of Judith Stover, of 533 Beechwood Street who was reported to be in poor and critical condition at South Shore Hospital late Tuesday.

Police are not sure if the shooting was accidental or intentional. Stover, 38, was rushed to the hospital Monday night and is being treated for facial wounds.

David Stover, Judith's husband, called police at 6:47 p.m. to report the shooting.

Tuesday, police and an assistant district attorney said David Stover, "at this point" is not a suspect but he and some of the family's children were interviewed.

Assistant D.A. Louis Sabidini said "At this point we have no charges. We have nothing at this time but there are several loose ends to be cleaned up here."

Responding to the shooting were Cohasset police officers Richard Grassio and David Pomerico. They found Judith Stover, unconscious and bleeding from a gunshot would to her head.

State police were to send a ballistician to the hospital to conduct bullet tests once Stover was operated on.

Kealey said police are also investigating reports of drinking at the home by the parents before the shooting.

The Stovers have three children, Judy had been a Cub Scout leader.

Beechwood Station finds new home

By Patricia Anne Walsh

The old Beechwood Fire Station was moved last week to a new home in Scituate.

The move was successful and went off without a hitch.

But a larger problem remains.

Who will clean up the mess at the Beechwood site?

Former selectmen approved the agreement to sell the abandoned Beechwood Fire Station to Jean and Ayn DuVoisin, of 55 Clapp Road, Scituate in December.

The station, located at 514 Beechwood Street was purchased for $250.

The agreement included the purchase and sale of the building and any related fixtures only. The town made no warranties, express or implied, to the condition of the building, and the buyers purchased the building "as is."

The Scituate couple was to remove the building by the middle of May and the town was to be held harmless for the removal and transportation of the building.

After Building Inspector, Robert Dennis issued a permit to the new owners, the station was moved to Scituate by building mover, James J. Gordon Inc., Hingham.

Left behind was the rear ell, the concrete pad and macadam drive.

Also remaining were boards, plaster part of the chimney and bricks, a radiator, tin metal sections with a fleur de lis embossed design, a sink, pipes, and other debris littering the site.

Dennis said the only restrictions issued on his permit were for telephone, electric, public utilities, and fire and police attendance.

One resident viewing the mess cautioned his young daughter to be careful of nails as she stepped on the site and added the new owners should have been required to clean up the mess.

However "restoration of the site" was not included in the contract on file at the selectmen's office.

Ayn DuVoisin said the town is obligated to clean the site as stipulated in the contract.

The old station had some historic moments.

The Beechwood Fire Company had horse-drawn equipment before Cohasset purchased a ladder truck and a 500 gallon American LaFrance pumper for the Beechwood station in 1928.

For several years in the recent decade, residents argued at town meeting whether Cohasset, a town of 10 sq. miles, should have three firestations, with two on the outskirts of town, or two—with a new station to be built on Route 3A halfway between Beechwood and North Cohasset (also known as West Corner).

Eric Pearson, a Beechwood resident, argued at Musket firing

Bruce D. Collins of the 43rd Regiment of Foot, will meet with Police Chief Joseph Kealy and selectmen to develop regulations regarding the firing of muskets during holiday celebrations.

Collins requested permission from selectmen to perform with the firearms during certain town events, including Memorial Day parade and the Fourth of July celebration.

Although everyone agreed the colorful recreation of the British 18th century regiment will be a valuable addition to any military event in town, the question of public safety played a more important role.

Chief Kealy refused permission for the regiment to fire muskets during parades and at historic locations. He said the firing of the powder-loaded muskets could be accomplished with proper police crowd control within contained sites such as the Common on the Fourth of July.

Selectmen requested that Chief Kealy look at firearms regulations in Hingham. DeBassio offered to help establish a set of guidelines to be followed by the organization during municipal events.

Citizens appointed

Moderator William Weeks, Acting Chariman of the Advisory Board James Lagrotteria, and chariman of the Selectmen Mary Jane McArthur met last week to appoint citizens to committees and boards.

They said Oliver Woodruff, who the Trioka had previously appointed to the Personnel Board to replace newly elected Selectman Clifford Mitman, will only be eligible to serve a two-year unexpired term.

The three officials appointed Richard E. Horne, Sr. Vice President of State Street Bank, a municipal bond expert, a six-year Cohasset resident with an MBA from Northeastern to the advisory board.

The board then appointed Margaret O'Donnell to the advisory board. She had not applied, but Weeks said "has a real estate license and is active in the community." She will replace Jean Cotton who has served the maximum six years on the nine-member board.

For the Committee to Study Town Government Structure, the officials discussed candidates who were new in town or had no municipal experience.

Weeks said he had talked to Osborne Ingrahm, President of the Cohasset Savings Bank and former Advisory Board member, who had not applied, but was "willing to serve if appointed." He was unanimously appointed ot the Town Government Structure Committee.

Attorney Cornelia L. O'Malley was appointed to the new Permanent Bylaw Committee.

The board also appointed Arthur E. Nilsson, 83, of 155 Border Street, a retired Economics Professor from Cornell to the Permanent Bylaw Committee.

Curb your dogs

Chief Operator of the Sewer Plant, Manuel Salvador said the vicinity of the sewer plant should not be used to curb dogs.

I am constantly chasing off dogs and their owners, but they still return, Salvador said.

He added, "It is not a laughing matter. They use the area where I have to take my samples, and the dogs have been affecting my fecal coliform count." "If it is too high, the plant permit is violated," he added.

CHS graduation set for Sunday

High School Principal Richard Streeter will be the master of ceremonies for the Class of 1983 on graduation day, Sunday, June 5, at the Music Circus at 3 p.m.

The Rev. Richard D. Muir, pastor of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church on Cohasset Common, will give the invocation.

Speeches will be delivered by Gia Baressi, valedictorian who ranks first in the class of '83, Elizabeth Glasfeld, salutatorian, who ranks second academically in the class, and by Paul Johnson, class president.

Streeter will present awards to the National Merit Finalists and pins to the members of the National Honor Society.

Superintendent of Schools Eugene Crowell will present the class to the School Committee Chairman Richard Conley for the conferring of the diplomas.

His daughter, Heidi, will be one of 127 seniors who will receive diplomas.

Here is a list of graduation events:

Wednesday, June 1, the senior prom will be held at the Sheraton Tara, Braintree, at 7 p.m.

Thursday, June 2, Class Night will be held at the CHS auditorium, 8 p.m. Attendance is mandatory.

Friday, June 3, there will be a marching rehearsal at the Music Circus at 8 a.m. Student attendance is mandatory.

Sunday, June 5, graudation will begin at the South Shore Music Circus at 3 p.m.

School administrators have said, "Class Night is held to provide an opportunity for presentation of awards and scholarships. Most recipients will have made applications, but some seniors will be honored without having made application. We will not tolerate public embarrassment to sponsors by a recipient's failure to attend.

"Graduation is a public acknowledgement of an earned diploma. If a senior is not in attendance, this achievement will not be noted June 5."

Attys. to meet on motel pool program

Assistant town counsel will meet with the attorney representing the Kimball's By The Sea owners to discuss whether a Community Center swimming program may be held at the motel's pool.

The Roy family, owner's of the motor inn, and the center board of directors asked selectmen's permission to use the indoor pool for the summer and fall swimming program, sponsored by the Community Center.

The problem is focused on a 1975 zoning board of appeals decision which prohibited Kimball's from advertising certain functions and from allowing public use of the inn's facilities because of insufficient parking spaces.

The Roy family requested permission to advertise the public swimming program which would begin in June and begin again in the fall.

Although selectmen requested an opinion from assistant Town Counsel John Slater on the matter, he wrote to the officials that the Roy family should seek modifications of the 1975 ruling through the appeals board.

A modification by that board would be the only recourse for the motor inn owners to seek, Slater wrote.

Atty. Charles Humphreys, who attended last week's selectmen's session, said Slater misunderstood the intentions of the Roy family, and added that the 1975 appeals board decision was unenforceable.

In order that town counsel gather all facts accurately, Humphreys suggested the two attorneys meet to discuss the issue.

Humphreys told selectmen the Roys have argued that because additional parking spaces are now available on Pleasant Street, the previous zoning decision now limits the owners duties as an innkeeper.

Their right of free speech is also threatened by the decision of the zoning board of appeals prohibited advertising, he added.

Selectman John DeBassio suggested that Humphreys return to the appeals board to solve the public access issue since additional parking spaces are apparently now available.

Humphreys said he would like an opportunity to talk with Town Counsel Slater "to see whether we agree on the law."

Selectmen agreed to the request, and requested the matter be resolved as quickly as possible for the sake of the Community Center's swimming program.

Drop spots

The Cohasset Mariner is adding a local drop spot for Cohasset news and advertising. Items can be left at the Cohasset Pharmacy as they have been in the past, or they can be dropped at Hennessey News, 3 Brook St. Both locations are in Cohasset Village.

The deadline for classified ads is Monday at 9:30 a.m. and for news copy, Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

The Mariner will pick up on Friday, Monday and Tuesday. Hennessey's hours are 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week.

Septic tank water

Edward A. Shields, Hingham Sewer Commission Chairman, has written to Cohasset Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos, to inform her that Hingham will not accept septic tank wastes from Cohasset, Norwell, and Hanover, beginning July 1.

Shields said Hingham will accept wastes after that date and after permission from the MDC.

Charles DeSantis, said that the towns might be permitted to dump the septic wastes in the MDC provided a contract is signed. Chief Sewer Plant Operator, Manual Salvador, estimated it might cost the town as much as $50,000 for a formal agreement.

town meeting for keeping the station in Beechwood, because he credited prompt assistance from the station in saving his life after he suffered a heart attack.

Two events prompted the closing of the two outlying stations. First, new modern engines were too large for the existing buildings, and second Proposition 2½ demanded the Fire Department to restrict its budget.

The stations were closed with very little controversy, although for years they had been a focal point.

Cohasset is now serviced by one central station on Elm Street.

The DuVoisins want to restore the fire station and want to have the building put on the list of national historic buildings. The former fire station will house the DuVoisin's tractor which they are using to revive a farm that was once on their property.

When the restoration project is completed the station will have a familiar look including red paint, white trim and the old fire station sign.

The move last week included a move along Beechwood Street to Summer Street, across the Scituate line to Clapp Road.

A police escort cleared the way and Eastern Edison used poles to push sagging wires out of the way.

Mrs. DuVoisin said the building will be raised on the foundation soon.

The Beechwood Fire Station left behind a bit of debris for someone to clean up.

Don Gordon leads a different sort of parade as the Beechwood fire station moves from its old site on Beechwood Street to Clapp Road in Scituate.

Local Cancer Crusade raises $1,650

Volunteers for the Cohasset Cancer Crusade may still turn their kits into the Pilgrim Cooperative Bank, 48 South Main St.

A sum of $1,650 was raised in the Cohasset house-to-house campaign for the American Cancer Society, said Marsha O'Quinn, Cohasset Cancer Crusade Chairman.

She said the house-to-house campaign is one of several fundraising and educational activities conducted annually in Cohasset and throughout the state to support the American Cancer Society's programs.

"Our state goal is to raise $3,691,500 and save as many lives as possible from cancer by increasing public awareness of cancer detection techniques," O'Quinn said.

"The money we raised in Cohasset will supply chemicals for research; provide medical materials for use in oral, cervical, and breast cancer screenings; purchase an artificial larynx for someone who has had a larynx removed because of cancer; and enable the Cancer Society to provide countless other materials and services in its quest to control cancer through research, education and service to cancer patients,"

She added, "The continuing generosity of Cohasset residents enabled us to hold Bowel Cancer Detection Day May 10. Bowel cancer is the second leading cancer killer of American men and women, but is highly curable when discovered and treated in its earliest stages."

Music Circus wine license opposed

Several residents are opposing an application by the South Shore Playhouse to sell wines and champagne.

The Zoning Board of Appeals heard the application of the Music Circus last week.

Speaking for the application was Playhouse Managing Director Ronald Rawson and his attorney Anthony Mooney.

South Shore Playhouse wants wine and champagne to be sold before performances and during intermissions.

Selectmen Rocco Laugelle and John DeBassio attended the hearing.

ZBA members attending were Chairman Robert S. Booth, Myrna Putsiger, an attorney, and associate member John Roy, also an attorney.

After the meeting, Marie McCarthy, former recording secretary of the Planning Board told Putsiger that the advertising notice of the hearing, held May 24 was addressed "to all owners of real estate withing 300 feet of the above described property (on Sohier St.) and abuttors to those abuttors."

McCarthy said she noticed many abuttors did not attend and asked if they had been sent notices. Putsiger said "No, because new rules only say that those living within 300 ft. and abuttors be notified."

Mary Gainor asked why the schools had not been notified or those living withing 500 ft. of the playhouse. She was told the requirements differ for a liquor license which must still be approved by selectmen after another hearing, rather than a zoning hearing which concerns change in use of property or additions.

Playhouse officials said they wanted to sell wine, only, but were required by state statutes to seek a beer and wine license. They want to restrict the sale to wine however and Mooney offered to make such an agreement.

Robert Sturdy, Planning Board member questioned whether zoning board restrictions would last forever.

He said there is "another case in town," where the state statutes concerning a common victualers license has been held to supercede appeals board restrictions.

Rawson and Mooney want the license because of the "ambiance" and festivity which serving wine brings. They revealed the association had had a poor season last year.

Donations to non-profit organizations in the area such as South Shore Art Center, Hingham Conservatory of Music, Community Center, etc. are made each year by the Association. According to Association Clerk, Burtram Pratt they had given away as much as $107,000 in a year, but last year it was reduced to $33,500.

After questions from several members of the audience, Rawson said the Circus earns "between $2-$2.5 million a year.

Sturdy asked if that meant the Circus only gave away one to four percent of its gross. He asked if ticket prices could be raised by those percents.

Pratt said "It doesn't work that way," and revealed the circus only gives away "interest on a fund we have." Pratt said after the meeting the circus needs "start-up" money each year.

Residents, opposed to the application, cited the presence of many schools and children in the area, especially during matinee time. They also were concerned that evening customers would already have imbibed at "dinner before the theatre" and drinks served at the circus might add to the alcoholic content of drivers leaving the premises exiting in mass on to Cohasset streets.

Rawson and Mooney said other theatres serve wines.

Thomas Duggan of Ripley Road said the circus had made a similar appeal in 1969, but had been denied, and he saw no reason to change now.

Beechwood antique sale this weekend

Cohasset's Town Hall will hold the seventh annual Antique Show and Sale, sponsored by the Beechwood Congregational Church. The show will be held Friday, June 3 from noon until 9 p.m. and Saturday, June 4 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Antiques such as silver, glassware, furniture, jewelry, clocks, dolls, utensils, and other fine collectibles will be displayed and for sale.

A public snack bar will be held at the Second Congregational Church (next door to the Town Hall) with sandwiches, hot dogs, homemade squares, coffee, tea, and cold drinks. The hours for the snack bar are Friday, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Homemade baked goods will be on sale at the ticket area.

Chairman Ed Rinella said the following dealers in this year's show will be Nancy Petrus, "Blowing A Gale," Marshfield; Ann Bush, "Bird in Hand," Duxbury; Justine Cook, "Savage Gill Antiques," Pembroke; Jane Chatfield, "The Chatfields Orphaned Oldies," Cohasset; Mary Rushton, Kingston; Janice Caldwell, Carver; James Callahan, Dania, Florida; Hazel Sjoberg, "Hatherly Shop," Marshfield.

Others are: Noel Ripley, Cohasset; Margaret Colson, Forestdale; Charles and Jeanette Joyce, Centerville; Jane Barnes, "Fox Hollow," Kingston; Shirley Berglund, Kingston; Geraldine Pearle, "Purple Pigeon Studio," East Wareham; Margaret Lucas, "Clipper Ship Antiques," Norwell; Arlene Ferreira, "Country House," Cohasset; Barbara and Melvin Pettit, Plymouth; Joanne Ross, Taunton; Ellen Wallack, Hingham; Arlene Stetson, "The Mustard Seed," Halifax; Julie Manning, Norwell.

Admission to the show will be $1.75. Discount tickets are available through the dealers or members of the Beechwood Church or ads from the newspaper.

A raffle will be held Saturday at 3 p.m. There are over 25 prizes and gifts donated by local merchants and church members. Raffle tickets may be purchased at the door or from Cheryl Kristiansen.

Better negotiations

By a 4-1 vote the school committee has approved a two-year contract negotiated with six school administrators by Superintendent Eugene Crowell. The contract authorizes a six percent per annum salary increase.

The dissenting vote - - -not her first by any means - - -was cast by Martha Gjesteby on the ground that the elected school committee, not the appointed superintendent, should be bargaining agent in such matters. While there is no question of a statutory conflict-of-interest in this case, we're inclined to agree with Mrs. Gjesteby that a poor precedent has been set.

For one thing, if principals (or any other group of employees) come away from negotiaitons feeling slighted, it is better that their anger be directed at the school committee than at their immediate supervisor, the superindent.

This is so for the same reason that it's always better policy to have the star second baseman irate with the general manager than the manager: when the manager is involved it is sometimes impossible to keep the donneybrook over the contract from making itself felt on the playing field. School principals probably have more self discipline than second basemen, but it is still sounder public policy to eparate the administrating and negotiating functions.

Another potential pitfall when the superintendent undertakes negotiations is if he gives away too much he may give the impression that he is trying to drive up his own salary by raising those of his immediate subordinates. A man of the calibre of Eugene Crowell would not be expected to do such a thing, but the school committee should not put him in a position where he could be accused of it.

We stress - - -and Mrs. Gjesteby has stressed - - - that this argument is strictly hypothetical. We have no quarrel with the actual negotiating Superintendent Crowell has done in this instance. The six percent contract appears very sound.

But with Mrs. Gjesteby we believe that it would be far better practice in the future to have the school committee do its own negotiating and leave the superintendent out of it except as an advisor.

Selectmen's briefs...

APPOINTMENTS

Selectmen made the following committee appointments:

Historical Commission—Noel Ripley, three year term; Patricia Murphy, three-year term.

Cohasset Common Historic District Commission—James Murphy, a resident member, three-year term; Gordon Stevenson Jr., resident member, three-year term; Catherine Young, resident member, three-year term; James Sandell, non-resident, architectural member, three-year term; Joyce Sturdy, recommended by the Historical Commission, non-resident, three-year term, Richard Muir, resident, alternate member; Chester Brown, reappointment, non-resident and alternate member for three-year term.

Zoning Board of Appeals—Barbara Power, associate member, three-year term, John Rousseau, reappointment, three-year term.

Massachusetts Transportation Committee—John O'Toole, planning board rep.; Louis Eaton, reappointment.

Conservation Commission—Austin O'Toole, three-year term; Patricia Buckley, three-year term.

Building Code Appeals Board—Joseph McDonald, until 1987; Francis Evans, until 1988; James Salyards, until 1988.

Selectmen also made the following annual appointments:

Dog Officer—Richard Yokum; Sealer of Weights and Measures, Lot L. Bates Jr.; Supt. of Wire, Stephen Wigmore; Keeper of the Clock, Noel Ripley; Keeper of the Wood and Bark, Lot L. Bates Jr.; Fence Viewers, Arthur Emmanuel and Kearin Dunn; Fish Warden, Bernard Salvador; Town Archivist, David Wadsworth; Assistant Harbormasters, Clifford Dickson and William Stone, reappointments.

TOWN CONTRACTS

Selectmen decided that three local businesses will share the duty of towing illegally parked cars.

The responsibility of towing illegally parked vehicles will be rotated on a weekly basis by the three firms which bid on the level of service contract.

The contract was awarded to Mitchell's Repair Shop on Rte. 3A, Schiavo Brothers Inc. of South Main Street, and Cohasset Craftsmen of Rte. 3A.

In a previous decision last month, selectmen awarded the contract to Cohasset Craftsmen, but they were asked by Francis Mitchell, another bidder, to readvertise the bids. He argued that the original bids were not opened at the specified time and mistakes had been made in the bidding process.

Selectmen complied with Mitchell's request and ordered the readvertisement for new bids.

Ma Bell plans some changes

It's no secret that Ma Bell is ready to cut the cord on New England Telephone.

The stories in the major press have been warning us for five months that local telephone rates will be going up. Residential customers will be particularly hard hit, according to all the national reports.

So rates are on the way up. What else is new?

Long distance rates will be going down.

Carolyn McKeon, a public relations person out of the Plymouth office of the phone company, was willing to take a large chunk of her day to research some questions on what will be happening on the South Shore.

A recurring answer to questions on the future rates and services available for Marshfield, Scituate, Norwell, Hanover, Cohasset and Hingham was that the answers are still being developed.

None of those towns has access to the more sophisticated telephone services of the 80's like call forwarding, call holding, three-way calling and speed calling.

In case you don't know what you're missing calling forwarding would allow you to program your phone so that calls are automatically forwarded to any phone number you choose. You can send your calls to Florida if you choose, provided you will assume the toll charge.

Call holding gives you some signal when you're on the phone and someone is dialing your number. The first call can be put on hold and the second call dealt with without breaking any connections.

Speed calling lets you program in your favorite phone numbers so that one or two digits will make a call go through.

Three way calling is just that.

And while Boston and many other places have these technological advances, we don't.

McKeon couldn't say when most of us would get a chance to send our phone calls to wherever.

To offer that sort of service, the central office machinery must be computerized. In this area all the central office switching equipment is electro-mechanical rather than computer-based.

The Hanover office is scheduled for massive revamping to put the computerized switching equipment in sometime in 1984. There are no projections being made beyond 1984 because of the uncertainties of divestiture.

The telephone company used to work in five-year plans.

Does this mean it will take longer to have the services down here updated?

"I can't say that. It may come sooner than otherwise," McKeon said. "After all, we will only be able to charge for providing dial tone after January 10."

Murray's memos

Report from the state house

By Mary Jeanette Murray

The Legislature has given initial approval to the "Lemon Law" which will require manufacturers to provide either a refund or a new replacement car if the new car purchased turns out to be a "lemon."

If passed and signed, the Lemon Law would take effect Jan. 1, 1984.

Highlights of the bill are:

Any buyer of a new car, motorcycle or truck for personal or family purposes is covered by the bill for a year of 15,000 miles whichever comes first.

If a vehicle is in the shop for the same substantial defect 3 or more times or is in the shop 15 or more business days, the manufacturer gets one final chance, not to exceed seven business days to fix the car.

If the problem continues to exist, the consumer can take his case to an arbitration proceeding that is binding on the manufacturer, but not the consumer.

Arbitration boards must have half their members appointed by the Consumer Affairs Secretary and have 40 days to make a decision.

Consumers not satisfied with arbitration may demand a refund, including sales tax, registration fees and finance charges, less an allowance for use.

Allowance for use equals 1-100,000 of the purchase price for every mile on the odometer.

Manufacturers must reimburse lemonowners for towing and rental costs if they did not provide those services.

Manufacturers are not responsible for defects caused by accident, owner negligence, abuse, consumer attempts at repair or unauthorized modifications.

Manufacturers can recover from dealers for faulty repairs, dealer prep, or installation.

Lemons may not be resold without disclosure that they were brought back under the bill.

Failure to comply is a violation of the Consumer Protection Law.

Library briefs

David Chittim, chairman of the library board of trustees has written a letter to the personnel committee asking for standard benefits for permanent part-time employees.

CARPET REPLACEMENT

The advisory committee recently approved a transfer request of $625 to replace the carpet in the children's room stairs.

GRANT APPROVAL

The library was given a $50 grant from the South Shore National Organization for Women as a result of a grant application by staff Librarian Joann Mitchell. This grant is for the purchase of non-sexist children's books. These books, according to library director Dick Hayes, discuss the roles of women in society and the non-sexist treatment of women.

MORE STATE AID COMING

If the Legislature and the governor approve the new state aid package, there could be an extra $2,200 for the Cohasset library. This money, said library director Dick Hayes, will be used to maintain library book services and for salaries. Hayes said for three years in a room, books and services have been level funded although prices have risen 45 percent in three years.

WOOD MEMORIAL FUND

There have been 34 gift donations to the Evelyn Wood Memorial Fund, totaling $5,000 in memory of Evelyn Wood who was children's librarian and assistant librarian for 32 years. The library board of trustees voted to establish an investment committee. Chairman David Chittim and board member Lucia Woods will consult with the town treasurer for the best way to invest this fund. Library director Dick Hayes said no decision has been made yet but he added the income from this fund "will be used for appropriate items and for a fitting memorial."

TREE DONATION

Trustee member Lucia Woods has donated a Liriodendron tree to go in front of the library.

FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARY

Membership of the Friends of the Library is down from last year. The count stands at 160 members and the organization's treasury is nearly exhausted. Five-hundred dollars was used to purchase books and $200 was voted to support the children's summer reading program. There will soon be a membership drive to draw new members and businesses. The Friends also have spent $1,100 to co-sponsor museum passes for Cohasset residents.

Transportation survey

Boston commuters are in for some unsettling times.

This summer the state DPW is scheduled to begin a major reconstruction of the Southeast Expressway that will continue for at least two years. There is little doubt that the project will place considerable stress on a roadway that is already overburdened.

With these facts in mind, members of the League of Women Voters from Marshfield-Duxbury, Hingham and Scituate-Cohasset recently met with State Sen. Allan McKinnon to review transportation problems on the South Shore.

With the cooperation of Sen. McKinnon's staff and the Mariner Newspapers, the league prepared the following survey to determine the transportation needs of South Shore residents. Since the results of the survey will be forwarded to Sen. McKinnon's office, readers are urged to respond.

Return the survey by June 15 to: LWV, Box 1414, Marshfield 02050.

1. What town do you live in? _____

2. Do you prefer to drive your own car to Boston? a. Yes; b. No

3. How many people do you take with you as passengers? a. 0; b. 1-2; c. 3-4; d. more than 4.

4. What are your work hours? a. 8-4; b. 9-5; c. other (specify) _____

5. Would you take advantage of a van pool or car pool if given the opportunity? a. Yes; b. No.

6. Would you find it difficult to commit yourself to the set schedule of a van or car pool? a. Yes; b. No.

7. Would you be happy with bus service from your town connecting to the Braintree T Station? a. Yes; b. No.

8. Would you prefer to have direct bus service from your community to Boston? a. Yes; b. No.

9. Would you like to have additional express buses? a. Yes; b. No.

10. Do you feel present private and public transit systems are flexible enough? a. Yes; b. No.

11. What times would you suggest should be added? _____

12. Would you take advantage of a South Shore to Boston commuter boat if the schedule was made more flexible and runs more timely? a. Yes; b. No.

13. What is your opinion of the present system of the MBTA Red Line? a. Poor; b. Fair; c. Good; d. Excellent.

14. For buses connecting to the Red Line, where would you suggest that stops be made? _____

15. What can you afford to pay for convenient, timely service? _____

16. How would you suggest that the Red Line be improved? _____

17. What do you feel are the greatest obstacles to efficient, timely transportation for South Shore commuters? _____

Many of the earliest members of the Explorer's Post have since become firefighters and police officers, Lehr said. The boys learned the basics of first aid and trauma treatment. They would be among the first to arrive at the scene of an accident.

Police officers in those days were unable to medically assist an injured person at an accident scene. The trained Explorer scouts would arrive and administer first aid until professional medics and an ambulance arrived.

Lehr remembered the 17 and 18 year-old boys were never squimish during some fairly gruesome occasions.

"They would walk up to the most horrible accidents and begin immediately to stop bleeding or tend to a they can laugh at their own! And I want to reminisce he sometimes had problems viewing the traumatic scenes of a motor vehicle accident.

Once the EMT program was developed in Cohasset, the Explorers found another outlet for their endeavors. Along with their basic medical training, the boys decided to develop a search and rescue unit.

The post members are now trained in first aid, compass and map reading, orienteering, survival camping, and radio use. They assist in the search and rescue of lost persons.

Just recently, about 200 Explorers responded to a request to search for a lost Cohasset youth. Youths from Cohasset, Weymouth, Hingham, Hull, Scituate, Norwell and Hanover participated in the search for the missing youth who was found as he wandered down from a barn on the Maryknoll property.

Lehr explained that in such an emergency, Fire Chief Martin Dooley, who is a strong supporter of the Post program, will issue an emergancy mobilization, with a request to aid his department.

Lehr has developed a telephone chain command so within a half hour most of the Explorers will be at his South Main Street home, prepared to initiate the search.

The youths do not receive any form of demerit if they do not participate in an emergency situation, but that does not exclude them from chiding each other for failure to respond.

"One of the boys, he's about six-foot-six, and he told us later he was at his girlfriend's house the night of the search so he couldn't be reached. He was really put over the coals by the other boys," Lehr laughed.

The boys, along with their advisor, participate in search and rescue training twice a month. First aid is also practiced during these training sessions.

The training isn't all work for the youths in the program, which, since 1969 has been co-ed. Weekend camping trips are a regular event for the teens. A recent excursion took the boys to the Quincy quarries where they were taught the basics of rock climbing. Lehr said such field trips provide educational and recreational opportunities for the teens.

Such activities provide a more complete training for the boys. The group also provides other volunteer services to the town.

Lehr said a few years ago, there was a rash of housebreaks in Cohasset. Most of the teens had cars, many of which contained CB radios. They decided to go in pairs to various neighborhoods and stand guard, watching all suspicious activity. Although no criminal activity was witnessed, Lehr said there was one amusing incident that night.

"The boys were parked in their cars with the lights off and their CB's on. The police department had been alerted of our plans and had approved them," he remembered.

"But apparently one neighbor looked out their window and saw a couple of teens sitting in a parked car and they called the police on us."

It is evident by Lehr's narratives that scouting and the Explorers have meant a lot to his life. His three sons participated in the programs. His son Philip, and his wife Joann, are now associate advisors of the Post.

In fact, Lehr said they will take over the program when he retires. "I'm 64 years old. I haven't quit yet, I'll crawl around as long as I can," he said.

He is proud of the post and of the members, past and present, two have served in the program.

Among the graduates have been Cohasset Police Officer Richard Yokum and Fire Capt. Mark Trask, who along with Fire Chief Martin Dooley, serve on the Explorer's Committee.

Former member Andrea Davis became a regional council officer in the Explorer's program.

The program now trains the youths in seashore search and rescue, a service Lehr felt would be extremely useful in this community.

Lehr, who has been awarded the Silver Beaver award from the National Council of the Explorers for outstanding leadership said such training will always be of service to the youths and the community in which they reside.

"Some of their training you hope they never will have to use, but you know they probably will," he noted.

The founder of the local post explained, "it is mainly a service-oriented organization. We keep the kids involved in their community and they have a lot of fun doing it."

As for himself, the 50-year Scouting veteran shrugged and said, "I see myself going on with it for now. Why not?"

Art Center offers outdoor watercolor workshop

Begin the summer by enrolling in a one-week outdoor watercolor workshop at the South Shore Art Center.

The course meets daily June 13 through June 17 from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the center, 103 Ripley Road.

Award-winning watercolorist Virginia Avery will work with students on all techniques of watercolor. Classes will meet outdoors, weather permitting.

Each session will begin with a demonstration by the instructor. She holds a bachelor of science degree in Art Education from Boston University and has taught for nine years in public schools and privately. She is represented in both private and corporate collections.

A knowledge of drawing would be helpful for this workshop. For further information and registration, call the center, 383-9548. Advanced registration is required.

'Down in the Valley' planned for June 17, 18

A 30-member cast, recruited from the choir and friends of the Second Congregational Church, are deep into rehearsals for the church's fifth annual musical show featuring the mini folk opera "Down in the Valley."

Musical encores from four prior Gilbert and Sullivan productions will be presented in the Cohasset High School Auditorium Friday and Saturday evenings, June 17 and 18.

Tickets at $3 are available from any member of the church choir and also at the door.

Show production is in the hands of three persons prominent in amateur and semi-professional musical and theatrical performances on the South Shore whose lists of credits include some of the most popular local hits of recent years.

Producer of the show is Ellen Fryling of Scituate, organist and music director of the Second Congregational Church who staged the four prior Gilbert & Sullivan productions by the church.

She has been music director at the church for almost 10 years following similar positions with other churches locally and in Brockton. Widely known in the musical world of the South Shore she was principal cellist with the Hingham Civic Orchestra for 20 years.

In addition to staging the performances of "H.M.S. Pinafore," "The Pirates of Penzance," "The Mikado" and "The Sorcerer" for the church, she has produced and directed many shows for other organizations and is perhaps best known for organizing and leading the annual "Messiah Sing" at the Cohasset church.

This event brings together scores of singers for an exciting performance of Handel's masterpiece at the opening of the Christmas season.

Directing "Down in the Valley" and repeating his performance of one of the most intricate of the G. & S. melodies, will be John Rice of Scituate, who has been directing and performing in musical and theatrical productions on the South Shore for almost 35 years. He brings to this production specific experience with the Kurt Weill opera, and directed a 1968 production of it for the Hingham Civic Chorus.

Beginning in 1949, he performed in a number of Hingham Theatre for Children plays and performed with the Hingham Civic Chorus in a number of Gilbert & Sullivan shows as well as in "Kismet," "Milk and Honey" and others.

Since 1974 he has directed and performed in plays staged by St. Luke's Drama Group in Scituate, including "The Cocktail Party," "The Importance of Being Earnest," and "Man For All Seasons."

He expects soon to begin rehearsing for the group's production of "Barefoot in the Park," scheduled for August.

Choreographing the Cohasset church show and also presenting a pantomime of a Mikado character, is Joan Kenney of Cohasset. Trained in ballet and modern dance with Jose Limon and the Martha Graham Dance Company, Joan has choreographed many shows with the Hingham Civic Music Theatre and the Young at Heart Theatre.

She has appeared in summer performances at the Priscilla Beach Theatre and Old Colony Theatre of Plymouth, and has choreographed and appeared with the Unicorn Singers of Hingham.

This is her third show with Ellen Fryling and the church.

Red Cross bloodmobile

The Cohasset chapter of the American Red Cross will hold a bloodmobile Monday, June 13, at the Unitarian Parish House on the Common. The hours will be 2:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Donors should be in good health and between the ages of 17 and 65 years old.

Friends of the Library to hold book sale June 11

The Friends of the Library will hold a book sale at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library Saturday, June 11, from 12 to 5 p.m. Books will be sold for a dollar a bag. Thousands of books are available.

This sale is a final clearance of books left from the book sale which was rained out last weekend. Despite the rain, the sale under the leadership of Lucille McLoughlin, Friends' president, raised $650. Proceeds will be used for library materials.

Diogenes keeps secret to running

By Patricia Desmond

The joy of running is spreading with the speed of a marathoner.

Truthfully, I have to say I haven't found the joy yet. Maybe the flame-bearer stopped off at the ice cream store and forgot to kindle my torch.

But I'm still looking for deeper truth with a Greek named Diogenes. And that's what this story is supposed to be about — the deeper truth of the running.

Running is popular today. More so than five or 10 years ago. But strangely enough, the South Shore's only specialty store catering to runners has gone out of business.

The Runnery opened in Hanover nearly 10 years ago. When it opened there was nothing like it for many miles. Runners flocked to it. It was the place where runners found out about races and running clubs and the right shoes.

Back then there were fewer joggers, fewer runners, fewer people interested in fitness sports.

Back then you couldn't buy Nike sneakers at Lechmere Sales and the Quincy Ledger didn't run the list of upcoming runs.

The number of sports specialty stores in this area has increased in the past decade. And the move of discount stores into the specialty business has kept the overall prices highly competitive.

Jean Gilbert, Hingham's director of recreation, smiled when I walked into her office and asked her for information about running.

"Well, I was first in the Navy fitness test for my unit," Jean said from behind her desk in Hersey House. The test is something given annually to members of the reserves.

Jean's test happened a week ago.

"I couldn't believe it when I reached the finish line by myself. I wondered where are all the people."

Jean hasn't always been as fleet-footed as a gazelle. She went on to say that the first time she entered Hingham's Fourth of July Road Race (about 7 or 8 years ago) she finished #54 in a field of 55 and #55 dropped out of the race.

"I did everything wrong that day," she said. "I wore the wrong shoes. I wore the wrong shorts (they chafed). Everything was wrong. From High Street on I was running with the motorcycle cop. I felt so sorry for him. He had to go slow to keep up with me."

The morale to Jean Gilbert's story is: there's hope for you if you want to be a runner.

Of course, she's right. There's not much chance for my ever becoming a tackle on a football team. There's even less chance that I could learn to skate well enough to take over a spot as a goalie. But if I could only lose my inner prejudice against exercise, I, too, could be an adequate runner — despite my 36+ years and atrophied muscles.

I blame my anti-American bias for those atrophied tissues. When other kids were learning that they had to stay eternally young, I was reading something I thought was more wonderful. I still harbor an inner belief that bodies are meant to grow old, wrinkle a bit around the edges and even thicken here and there.

Still I can see I'm out of the main stream. Every time I drive down Main Street in Hingham I play this game with the kids called count the runners. We mix joggers with runners because when you're moving along at 45 mph a steady trot and a roaring gallop look much the same. The first one to spot a moving runner gets to yell out, "Crazy horse," and chalk up a point. Ten points wins the game.

It seems the game ends quicker than it used to. That might indicate there are more runners out there.

How many runners are there? I asked someone who runs with the Jolly Tinkers in Scituate.

"I don't want to be quoted as an expert. I've never even run a race," the runner replied.

I guaranteed I would protect my source. I offered to go to jail if the grand jury were to demand my notes.

"I'm not taking your kids while you bask on the cliffs of Plymouth," the source replied. "Besides, I don't know. How can you tell how many people run? By the number of running shoes sold? Or by the hundreds who show up for a road race?"

I was supposed to be asking the questions so I decided to move on.

Which of the local running clubs are looking for new people? I asked someone I deemed less hostile.

The immediate answer from several people was that there's a FUN RUN every Wednesday at 6 p.m. that starts at the Running Sports, 850 Washington Street, Weymouth. The run is five miles. Call 337-5554 for more information.

The South Shore Striders are very open to new members, or so runners tell me.

The Hingham Striders are an early morning group. They do their thing around 6 a.m. in Wompatuck State Park. The Striders Annual Road Race, a success always, attracts hundreds of fair to great runners. Bill Rodgers hasn't entered as yet.

Some of the big races in the region have gone by for the year.

The Rev. Richard Menees of St. John's in Hingham was able to earn money for Episcopalian missions by finishing in the Boston Marathon. But few other locals scored big there.

Cohasset's Road-Race-By-The-Sea was lovely this year, as it always is. Too bad there isn't a Cohasset running club to sponsor it.

In the Good Sport in Cohasset, I asked the salesman for a running magazine.

He grinned from behind his Izod shirt and directed me to the magazine rack at Riddle's Market nearby.

"We tried to sell Runners World for a year-and-a-half," he said. "Everybody looked at it but no one bought it."

Still running shoes and that sort of paraphenalia account for about a third of the shop's business.

"Running is inexpensive compared with other sports," Jean Gilbert pointed out earlier. "All you need are shoes."

She thinks the lack of an overpriced tag is one of the reasons running has become so popular.

I think it has something to do with that American fitness mystique. There are people who believe it's better to have anorexia nervosia than to be ten or more pounds overweight.

I also think it has something to do with the love of gambling. Did you realize the prize of a road race is on the upswing?

The Roadhouse Classic in Marshfield happens Sunday, June 5, at 1 p.m. The winner can walk away with a $500 pot. And there will be $2,000 in merchandise prizes offered. Call 834-4556 for more information.

The Norwell Clip-Along Race is Sunday, June 12, at 9 a.m. That race offers only merchandise prizes - but the top five finishers in 12 categories will get something. Contact Dr. Robert Chassen, 293 Washington St., Norwell, or Ernie Butler, 254 South Street, Norwell, for more information.

Me?

I'm still tagging along five paces behind Diogenes wondering what makes racers run.

If you'd like to help me find the answer, send a letter to the editor with your most likely reason for running.

I'll keep the lantern in kerosene in the meantime...

Math wizard Davis shows his computer stuff

By Regina Shultz

Thirty various types of computers have already made their way into Cohasset households and the operators are 16 years and under.

Charles Davis, resident wizard of this "computer factory" and chairman of the CHS Math Department, presided over the Fair.

Davis spoke to parents, administrators and taxpayers and said new state requirement mandates a computer literacy course for a high school diploma.

Davis wants Cohasset students to have no problem with this requirement and other computer-related courses and applicatins in their twelve years in Cohasset schools.

He predicts an elementary level curriculum including LOGO, a basic computer language taught through graphics.

The Deer Hill curriculum includes a computer literacy class which meets three times a week. This program is excellent for discovering "talent—kids who keep coming back for more," says Davis.

The hardware for these programs was provided by town money combined with a federal grant to purchase five computers for Deer Hill and one for Osgood.

The high school needs are even more sophisticated, Davis noted. Several colleges require students to "declare your major as Computer Science or maintain a 4.0 grade point average (MIT) to be admitted to the computer program." To ensure a valid program at the high school level, Davis preducts a computer in every math room, a math lab for enrichment levels, a computer for special needs students to improve motivation and hand-eye coordination, computers and word processors for the science and English departments, and a faculty "in tune" with the computers of our "high technology/industrial society."

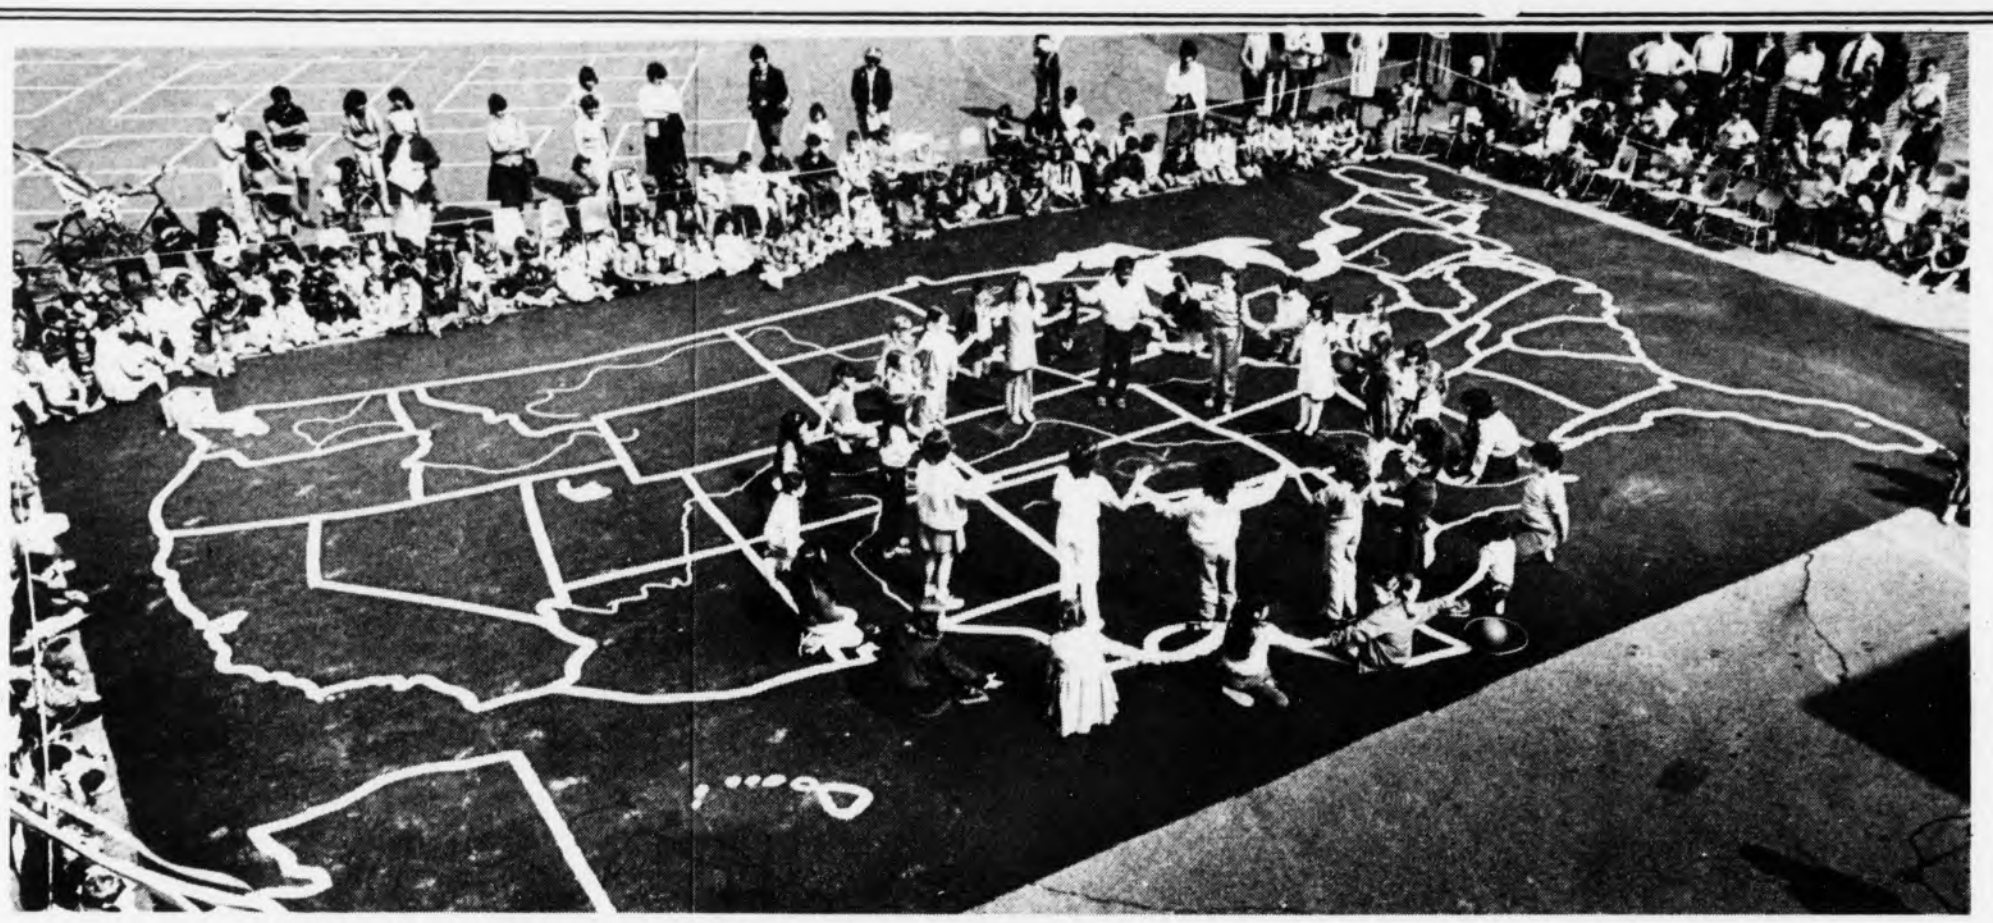
"The private sector—business and labor—must combine with the community and the students to create a profitable partnership for all," declared Davis.

School committee member Joseph Nedrow agreed and added, "Unfortunately in our town people perceive these things as expenses. I would like people to look at them in terms of an investment. We would like to see each individual student reach his potential: the computer is one way to do this."

Spring Day Sale

The Cohasset Village Fair Committee will hold a Spring Day Sale at the Unitarian Parish Hall opposite the Common Saturday, June 11, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The sale, which is sponsored by five Cohasset churches will include baked goods and sandwiches, used clothing, books, and a bargain bazaar.



The "Little Red Truck" will be stationed in front of the Town Hall to receive donations June 5 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

School board chairman Conley takes the lead

By Mike Berger

School committee member Dick Conley is beginning his reign as committee board chairman with this main premise:

"Let the people in Cohasset know what's going on in the system. Let them know what is available for the students. Are we as a committee doing the best job to make sure the students are getting the best education or should we remodel our programs?"

Conley predicts computers, cable, finances and curriculum as the main agenda items for the school committee this year. But he stresses in each case, parents must be informed.

As chairman, Conley wants to strive for an orderly committee meeting. He wants "Robert's Rules of Order" (rules covering the format of a meeting) to be followed. Although he feels members should be addressed by a title, he wants board meetings to be held informally.

"We all know each other but professionally we represent the Cohasset School Committee," he said.

If audience members have questions, Conley will field them after committee members have had a chance to discuss the issue.

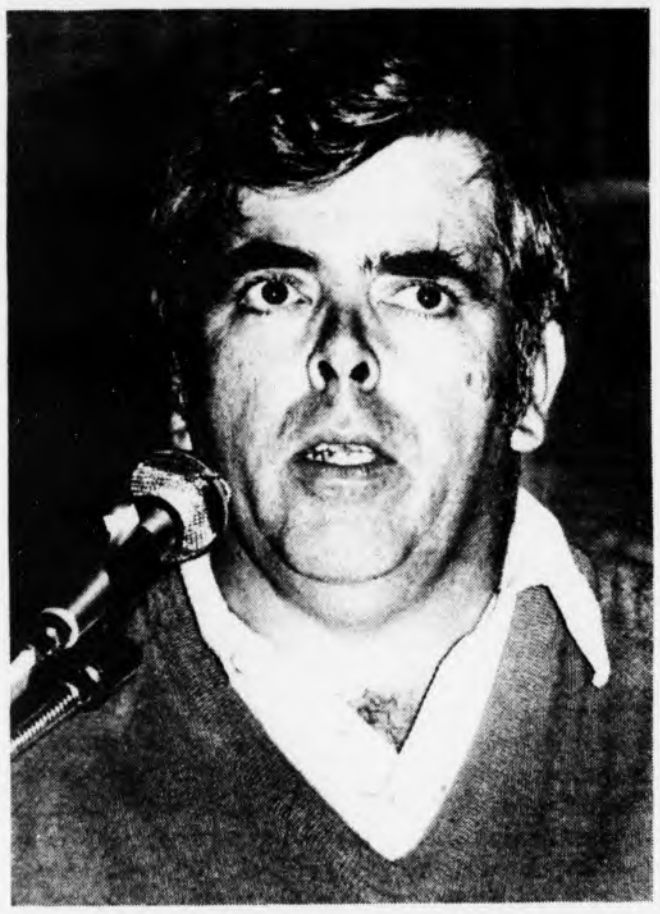
Conley knows he is taking the role of chairmanship with the understanding not all school board members agree with one another. Particularly board member Martha Gjesteby has differed on several matters with different committee members.

Conley said, "I think there is a vast difference of opinion. But that's healthy. But you should be able to have differences without open hostility. Everyone should have a right to say something."

Conley also acknowledged there have been some disagreements with the advisory committee. He would like to see more meetings with the finance board and selectmen.

"We should meet immediately with these boards and discuss philosophically what the schools have to do.

"Selectmen are the town fathers and they should set the tone of the budget. We should sit down with them earlier before the budget crunch of January, February, March and April.



"I don't like confrontation but I'd rather have compromise, negotiation and people meeting each other half way. I respect the duties of the other boards and I know we are all working for the betterment of Cohasset," Conley said.

Conley will be completing the third year of his first term as a committee member. He and his wife, Martha, are the parents of five children, ranging from 13 to 21 years old.

All of his children have gone through or will graduate from Cohasset schools.

Conley is an acting captain with the Fire Dept. He usually works at night on a rotating shift. He feels Cohasset is a great place ot be, "school wise and town wise, and it is a great place to bring up children.

"Both my wife and I grew up here. I have worked for and with the town for 23 years; I'm happy to be part of the system." He enjoys working with youth sports, particularly baseball.

School Committee Chairman Dick Conley will stress communication with parents.

In an interview with the Mariner, Conley discussed future priorities for the school committee and gave his thoughts on computers, cable, health education, the curriculum and finger printing.

Even though he acknowledges next year's school budget will be tight again, committee members must realize money must be spent to maintain the buildings and school grounds.

"It's like putting off painting or fixing up your home. You can only wait so long," he said.

Conley acknowledges computers and computer courses are an important aspect of the curriculum but again the problem is money.

"We all know computers cost money. We've tried to reach the private sector but we haven't had good results."

SCHOOL USE

"I would like to see the schools used more, after school hours. I would like to see the schools used for more community use; make it available and then charge for the services. But let the activities stay in Cohasset," Conley said.

CABLE

"I'm excited about it. It has great potential especially the part of 10 educational channels and our own capability to be broadcast. Again the problem is money.

"When you phase in cable, you have so many 'drop lines.' We have to ask ourselves: do we buy television sets or monitors?

"Money available to us is limited but we may be going to the public through fundraising. I can't see the school system buying television sets for all rooms though. But down the line there is the possibility of sharing teacher assignments with maybe Scituate.

HEALTH EDUCATION

"I'm happy with what Health Education Coordinator Mike Gill is doing. In fact he is doing a great job. "I'm glad to see he had that alcohol awareness program at night for parents and I'd like to see Mike teach the same course for parents."

CURRICULUM

Conley said it is frustrating that school Supt. Eugene Crowell doesn't have the time or the manpower to carefully examine the budget.

"Right now he spends a great deal of his time doing the day-to-day operations of the system; so his time is limited. Everyone in the School Dept. is working to capacity and more."

Conley added the curriculum has been hit hard with cutbacks and he would like to see some programs restored.

FINGERPRINTING

"When this came up before, I told many parents we need much more input from people such as the police chief.

"The schools have the facilities and if parents want it to be done, we should support it. Parents should pay for, the cost and we would be willing to supply the facilities," Conley said.

Conley said it will be an honor for him as board chairman to present a Cohasset diploma to his daughter, Heidi at Sunday's graduation. He knows what the value of a Cohasset education is.

Report from Pakistan: Part V

This is Philip's last letter from Pakistan. We do have some letters from India, but will wait until more photos are developed before submitting them.

Philip came home Monday and I'm sure will have many more stories to tell us. Thanks for publishing his letters — preparing them for you helped me feel that he wasn't so far away.

Jackie Dormitzer

By Philip Dormitzer

This letter comes to you directly from my cubicle at the YMCA in Lahore, Pakistan. It is almost clean, has no running water (I wash at the restaurant next door), and looks a bit like a juvenile detention center. However, it is quite safe here, and the people who run it are very friendly. They tell me to stay only at YMCAs and convents in India. My bill for almost a week's lodging here came to just under $10 — incredible!

Already in Lahore, the society has become less Pakistani and more Indian. You see fewer women in purdah. Men sometimes wear short sleeves, and boys may even wear shorts.

I've run into the wealthy art community of Pakistan. (The librarian at Dunster House had given me an art catalogue to deliver to a family in Lahore.) Their homes are beautiful, filled with antiques, tribal crafts, oriental rugs and servants. Their friends essentially run the government, the arts, etc.

One art student, who has seen most of the world, has shown me around the city on his motorcycle. He took me to the heart of the Old City to see a beautifully restored mosque, the Wazir Khan, that tourists almost never see because they cannot penetrate the winding alleys of the bazaars.

This mosque is almost invisible from the outside. It is set in the center of the Old City, where water sellers walk through the streets with skins of water; metal workers have fires in the middle of six-foot-wide lanes; bullock carts, donkeys, pedestrians, bicycles, motorcycles, auto-rickshaws, and cows crowd together; craftsmen work in front of their shops; and huge frying pans sizzle in front of amazingly unsanitary restaurants.

These Pakistani boys enjoy being photographed.

Inside the mosque, the tile work is fantastic. We climbed to the top of the entrance tower, where we had a spectacular view over the Old City. From above you can see that the homes are not as miserable as they appear from the bazaars. They have open patios on the roofs, sometimes with cages of pigeons set on top. The buildings are ancient, with decayed wooden trellis work — many have almost tumbled down. They are about 15 feet wide, 25 feet deep, four or five stories high, and jumbled on top of each other.

While I was visiting another mosque — the Badshahi Mosque, the largest in the world if you judge by the size of the courtyard — people plied me with questions. They wanted to know my name, where I came from, what my passport looked like, if they could see my camera, if they could have a dollar bill, if I would take a picture of them and send them a copy, how many brothers and sisters I had, if I was a student, how old I was, if I would have tea with them, how they could get into American universities, if all Americans were rich, and if I would be their friend and write them letters.

Many of the encounters I've had here are very funny. A few days ago I took a walk down the mall and by chance happened upon a zoo. It looked unappealing, but at four cents admission, why not have a look? While I was there, an enormous, sweating man came up to me and gave me a big hug because I was an American. Whenever I walked up to a cage, the visitors stopped looking at the animals and began to stare at me. On the way back, a man came at me shouting that he was a Christian, and almost followed me home.

His hair flew in all directions, and I think that baptism was the closest thing to a bath that he had ever had. Before I regained the YMCA, a Pashtu film maker walked up, put his arm around me, and tried to drag me off to his studio. When I got back to my room, one of my neighbors knocked on my door.

He was a young student revolutionary — president of the Islamic Students Movement and involved in all kinds of fundamentalist Islamic organizations. He showed me his pictures in various papers — he gives speeches about overthrowing Zia. Fortunately, he was very pro-U.S. and couldn't seem to do enough for me.

As you can tell, life here is rarely full, if a little (or very) trying at times. Nothing comes easily — a simple walk down the street can be an adventure.

Graduation is not far off. For many graduates this means a room at college, a new apartment away from home even a new home!

For that room at college we have student desk lamps, bed lamps that hook on the bed, or a table lamp for bedside or study area.

A new apartment may mean a need for a floor lamp, a T.V. lamp, or a pin-up fixture.

In a new home, your graduate might need a swag lamp for bedside or den. A pole lamp for the living room.

For any room, a Quoizel Lamp comes in all sizes and colors to suit all tastes and decor. Stop in to see us at NORTH RIVER ELECTRIC SUPPLY, 433 Washington St., Norwell and find the lamp you are looking for in our Flagstaff Lighting Showroom*, or call us at* 659-2272.

We take MC and VISA, and are open 9-5 Mon-Sat and 9-9 Thurs.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

Americans abroad are sometimes more adventurous in the matter of places to go than what to eat when they get there. When President Gerald Ford made a state visit to Paris in 1975, chefs who had cooked for royalty and visiting nabobs were most unhappy after taking great pains in preparing dishes of their famous cuisine. The president made it quite plain that he was only interested in his native diet when he had chefs from a nearby American military base prepare stews and steaks for him to be flown in by helicopter. A great part of the delight for some of us when going to far-away places is sampling the local fare and luckily for us, Gerry Stephens is one of those. On a recent ski trip to the Austrian Alps, they managed to get in a few days of sightseeing, stopping along the way to enjoy such desserts as this

SALZBURGER NOCKERL

Beat to a cream 2.14 oz. (approx. ½ cup) sugar with 3 to 4 egg yolks
Add a little vanilla and
1.22 oz. flour, beaten well (approx. 2½ T)
Finally, mix in the well-beaten whites of eggs.
Melt some butter in a fire-proof dish and divide mixture into three servings and mound on dish. Bake in moderate oven for 6 min. Sprinkle with icing sugar, topping with whipped cream, raspberries or strawberries and serve at once.

Margy Littell and Priscilla Greene really got away from it all this past winter when they spent a month in the Canary Islands, off the coast of Africa. Here, where the climate is as mild as the terrain is rugged, they enjoyed the native fish and many ways of serving veal, but never saw a cow. Margy says: "The island where we stayed was so rugged and ragged, every animal has to be confined, for there's no flat land." Here is a Spanish soup so easy to prepare (and delicious besides) that it's called "Quarter of an Hour Soup," or as Margy says in impeccable Spanish:

SOPA AL CUARTO DE HORA

2 T olive oil
¼ lb. lean ham, diced
1 onion, good sized, chopped
2 tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
4 c. boiling water
1 c. shrimp, optional
2 T raw rice
½ tsp. salt, freshly ground black pepper
1 can minced clams, 8½ oz.
1 egg, hard-boiled and finely chopped.
Heat oil in saucepan. Add ham and cook over moderate heat for 4 min. until lightly browned. Remove ham. Add onion to the oil and fry over low heat for 3 min. Puree tomato in blender. Add to onion. Cook 3 min. Add boiling water, shrimp, rice, salt and pepper. Simmer a quarter of an hour. Just before serving, add clams with juice, ham and egg. Heat. Serves six.

Enjoying the best of both worlds is Eleanor Cuff who winters on the island of Eleuthra in the Bahamas, returning to the South Shore's unfolding of Spring. Down where bananas grow on trees, oranges, lemons and grapefruit are yours for the picking when you have a fruit orchard as does Eleanor's brother-in-law, Bert, you can feast all day on such delights. Even coconuts provide fresh meat for shredding, far tastier than the supermarket shelf offerings. One thing was different in Eleuthra this year and that was the weather, where natives couldn't remember such a rainy season. Usually one awakens to day after day of sun, but this year there was a succession of rainy days. Fortunately, the fruits still flourished and Eleanor's sister, Ruth, kept preparing a favorite dessert featuring

BAKED BANANAS

6 medium bananas
Sprinkle with white sugar
Dot with butter
Squeeze on lemon juice
Sprinkle on flaked coconut
Drizzle with maple sugar
Bake approximately 10 min. in medium oven and serve warm.

Now, when you go on your next trip, think of us and bring back a recipe that we can all share. Even if you're content here on our South Shore, please remember that swapping recipes and ideas is what this column is all about and we hope all our readers will join in the fun. Any family favorite is usually tried and true and is certain to be good.

Mulcahy takes first in meter event

Brendan Mulcahy won first place in the 400 meter event in the Plymouth County Track and Field Games.

His race, originally rained out at Brockton High School May 11, was held May 25 at a field day at Cardinal Cushing School and Training Center in Hanover.

His win in this event and an earlier win in the 50-meter qualify Brendan for the State Olympic Games.

Joining him will be Ann Chittim also of CHS who won in her events, softball and frisbee throw, and their coach, Toni Jillson.

The state games will be held June 17-19 at Boston University. The Cohasset Special Olympics athletes are sponsored by the Rotary Club.

Coastal soccer results

Sunday, the boys 16 year-old and under, first division soccer team played a strong Hanover squad losing 2-1 in a well-played contest.

Bev Shultz, Kevin Leary and Jeff Christensen had a number of good shots but Hanover goalie Scott MacKensie was not to be denied.

Jeff Christensen scored first on a heads up goal low to the post.

Cohasset pressed Hanover most of the first half. Halfbacks Mark Crough, Chris Kirkendall, Mike and Justin DeSantis controlled the ball and started many attacks with sharp through passes to the forwards.

The second half started on a bad note. MacLeod of Hanover took the opening kickoff and with deft change of direction and ball control beat the Cohasset defense and powered the ball into the goal. With this goal the momentum switched to Hanover.

Next week the team is off. On June 12 it will face Marshfield at home for its final game. Although the team's record is disappointing, for the most part the team has played well. The CYSL competition has been very tough, but Cohasset has been able to stay in the game with each opponent.

The team feels the best way to end this season will be with a big win over Marshfield. The squad will play June 12 at 2:30 behind the high school.

A CHS athletic year in review

By Patricia Anne Walsh

Outstanding Cohasset High School scholars will be honored Class Night and Graduation Day. But CHS Athletic Director Clark Chatterton feels the athletic prowess of the Class of '83 should also be noted.

The golf team beat Duxbury to tie for league championship. The team will play June 9 in the Eastern Mass finals and the winner of that contest will play in the state finals, June 13.

The girls tennis team was undefeated and beat Duxbury twice. It was the first time Duxbury lost two times in a year in the last 14 years. As league champs they will play in the state finals this summer. Outstanding seniors were Mia Graham, Joy Pratt, Kris Rolf and Elaine Mullen.

The baseball team won the last three games. Cohasset had not won three straight games in 10 years. Bobby Meers was nominated to South Shore League All-Stars.

In softball, Chatterton said, the best girl athlete he had ever seen was Gia Barressi. She was South Shore League All-Star and the All-State Boston Globe selection voted by a board of school coaches from across the state.

The hockey team went to the State Quarter Finals. It was the second year in a row Cohasset played outstanding hockey and no one expected it.

Four outstanding players were Ricky Evans, Danny Bowen, Donny O'Neill and goalie Mark Brown. Evans, Bowen and O'Neill were nominated South Shore League All-Stars, and Evans and Bowen were invited to play in "Hockey Night" of the Boston All-Stars televised on Channels 68 and 2.

The girls basketball team had a 13-7 season, and missed going to the states by one game. Outstanding seniors were Gia Barressi, Jill Grant, Beverly Mullaney and the Mariner's own Schoolboy Sports Columnist, Maureen "Alana" O'Brien.

Wrestling had a losing season, but six-year veteran Paul Igo "distinguished himself," Chatterton said.

Boys basketball had a competitive season. Most of the players were underclassmen. Danny Anderson won the Boosters Club Award for spirit, Captain Jack Maloney showed tremendous improvement over the years, and Laurence Hoogeveen, who loves basketball, worked hard.

Karen Ekberg finished her high school career in gymnastics. She was outstanding for six years, and for two years was all-round top gymnast in the league. In track, Ekberg won a gold medal in the league meet.

In football the highlight of all the seniors was the upset as CHS tied Duxbury. This knocked Duxbury out of first place, and may have cost Duxbury the Superbowl.

Outstanding seniors were co-captain Ricky Evans, Pat Broderick, Paul Riley, Bob Meers and Tommy O'Brien.

The boys soccer came back the second half of the season and the squad won seven out of nine games. During the second half of the season, the team was the second best squad in the league. Captain Danny Bowen was the only senior on the team.

The girls soccer team will be best remembered for tying Duxbury, led by Captain Tara Pompeo. Outstanding seniors were Katie Clinton, Maureen Kelley, and Kris Rolf.

The field hockey team led by Anne Marie Lagrotteria and Gia Barressi, co-captains, also had Justine Hoffman, Jill Grant, Joy Pratt, and Emily Glasfeld as outstanding senior players. Glasfeld and Barressi played on the South Shore League All-Star team.

CHS sports update for the week

BASEBALL

Last week, CHS varsity baseball concluded their regular season by winning their three final games.

Last week Bob Meers spread three hits over seven innings, while David Stover collected three hits and three runs batted in, as Cohasset upset Rockland, a team headed toward the State Tournament, 5-3.

The following day, Cohasset came right back again and defeated a strong Holbrook team. Lee Reid provided much of the offense, with four hits, including two doubles and four RBI's. David Stover and Mark Gunville combined for five hits and four RBI's.

Wednesday, Cohasset brought their big hitting guns and sunk the Abington squad 13-1. Outfielder John Ryan went four for four at the plate to lead Cohasset on the basepaths. Bob Meers had two hits and three runs, David Barcomb had two hits, including a three-run homer, and David Stover continued his streak with two hits and RBI's. Pat Broderick backed up the bats with a complete game, allowing five hits, no walks and striking out four.

SOFTBALL

The CHS varsity softball team wrapped up its season last week with wins over Holbrook and Abington. Against Holbrook, the Skippers played 10 innings before breaking an 8-8 tie and eventually winning 9-8.

Sophomore Tara Stanford and junior Kim Wittet played outstanding ball for the Skippers in the offense while sophomore Karlin Icsele pitched all 10 innings for Cohasset.

At Abington, sophomore Kerry O'Brien tossed a four-hitter in the last game of the season to defeat the Green Wave 5-4. Senior catcher Gia Barressi had three hits while sophomore Tara Stanford, Carla Lucas and Janet DiGirolamo had two hits each for the Skippers.

GIRLS TENNIS

The CHS girls varsity tennis team clinched the South Shore league title and a tournament berth last week as they defeated Rockland and Abington for an unblemished season record.

Senior Krissie Ralff and the doubles team of Nancy Walls and Ingrid Anderson hold personal undefeated records as well.

Senior Joy Pratt has an impressive record of 11-1 in the second singles position and senior captain Mia Graham, first singles player, has only been beaten by two of the top league players.

Against Rockland, the Skippers swept all matches 5-0. Mia Graham won 6-1, 6-3; Krissie Ralff won 6-0, 6-2; Elaine Mullen won, 6-0, 6-2; Nancy Walls and Ingrid Anderson won by default and Diane Mullen and Linda O'Loughlin won 6-3, 6-1.

At Abington the Skipper girls trounced the Green Wave, 5-0.

Krissie Ralff won, 6-3, 6-2; Diane Mullen won, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, and Ingrid Anderson won 6-3, 6-3.

Elaine Mullen and Carolyn O'Brien won 3-6, 6-4, 6-3 and Nancy Walls and Meghan Kelly won 6-0 twice.

Sophomore Tara Stanford slides in behind Duxbury player to a safe landing on third base.

'Awesome' . . . the class of '83

By Lois Martin

If you get near them, they'll get it all over you, their spirit that is. The Class of '83, that glad-hearted group has the world by the tail this week, at its peak.

And they say they are awesome. Don't you love it. When did you and I ever think of ourselves as being awesome? I tell you it's enviable all by itself, to have even a brief flight of fancy in life when you believed without being abashed, that you were the only child of life.

I've been wanting to talk with them about that, being awesome, and about their other attributes as if they needed any.

PATCHES

And I'll tell you why. The Class of '83 is dear to me. I've got two of those. And when you get near the end of your harvest of graduating people, you want to relish the good stuff, unless they're the ones making catcalls from the back row.

Actually the older graduate represents the mature college crowd. They have been stripped of glorious illusions that decorate the high schoolers. 'Awesome' to them means finding a job, having enough money for a new shirt to wear on it and talking a mother out of pots and pans she's been sick of for 10 years.

To the college graduate belongs relief.

To the high school senior belongs life itself.

And I know a lot of that crowd. They're different. They ought not be. What's so distinguished after all about '83? The Class of '76 had a Bicentennial to commend their commencement. Who'd have looked to a number like '83 to make a difference? But they have.

I asked one of their crowd what stands out in his 12 school years as having been important, influential, memorable. Well, the first impact of his public schooling was the time he tripped Doreen Parker in the first grade to get her attention. Doreen thought someone else had tripped her, so that plan failed. She has since moved and we need not wonder why.

Then in the second grade, drawing still on educational moments, there was the production of "Pinocchio." And while the fifth grade was great and the eighth and ninth grades fantastic, the senior year, this past one, it was ... you got it, "awesome."

They concede they're not a gathering of intellectuals, to be remembered for uplifting academic standards. Their contribution has been verve. And some of us would choose that above many more predictable traits.

One of my measures, foolish as it is, in determining whether or not I really like someone, admire him or her, is to decide whether or not I'd ride across country with that person in a Greyhound bus. That's a long trip. I wouldn't choose to do it with someone who didn't have verve as naturally as he had a sense of touch.

I'd ride with the Class of '83. There might not be a lot of survivors but it would be one whale of a trip. We'd miss nothing.

Sages would remind us that no one is life's only child to be favored in the growing and rewarded in the doing. But there's an edge for the young man or woman who has robust optimism. It'll be harder to knock them down and they're gonna get up faster when that happens.

They're so pleased about life. Too few people are. They have made joy fashionable, fun reasonable, opportunity reachable.

They've already reached a lot of us.

They saw slides at their senior banquet, a series of their events, themselves pictured in finest hours. But at the end of the presentation there was a photo of an empty high school corridor, theirs, without them in it. And that broke their hearts.

They've spent a week or so hugging, reaffirming undying friendships, writing in yearbooks about how they love their 'guts!' They're the first to merge nausea with affection, for gosh sakes.

But I'm ready for them. I want them to grow on. They and life are one.

And I, like all others who have touched them, am waiting for their touch. It shall be warm and strong, with laughter in the background..."awesome."

A Beautiful Approach to Country Living.

You drive in through meadows strewn with seasonal wildflowers. But that's only your entry to the good life at The Meadows, The Green Company's new community of attached single family homes in Hingham. The architectural style is true to the farm-house heritage of the community. The construction and detailing have been accomplished with obvious pride.

The Meadows offers a selection of two and three bedroom homes with unexpected details like master suites with private fireplaced sitting areas, large country kitchens for informal entertaining, separate dining rooms for more formal occasions, hidden corners for quiet contemplation, and a mix of ceiling heights and styles. In addition there are large private courtyards, two-car garages, full basements, a swimming pool, whirlpool, tennis courts and a clubhouse. And best of all, this very civilized lifestyle is near major highways to the cultural delights of Boston and vacation areas to the North and South.

Prices range from $157,000 to $210,000 during this, our opening period. Furnished models are open every day from 9 to 5. Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street, one mile to our entrance. CHS sports update for the week

BASEBALL

Last week, CHS varsity baseball concluded their regular season by winning their three final games.

Last week Bob Meers spread three hits over seven innings, while David Stover collected three hits and three runs batted in, as Cohasset upset Rockland, a team headed toward the State Tournament, 5-3.

The following day, Cohasset came right back again and defeated a strong Holbrook team. Lee Reid provided much of the offense, with four hits, including two doubles and four RBI's. David Stover and Mark Gunville combined for five hits and four RBI's.

Wednesday, Cohasset brought their big hitting guns and sunk the Abington squad 13-1. Outfielder John Ryan went four for four at the plate to lead Cohasset on the basepaths. Bob Meers had two hits and three runs, David Barcomb had two hits, including a three-run homer, and David Stover continued his streak with two hits and RBI's. Pat Broderick backed up the bats with a complete game, allowing five hits, no walks and striking out four.

SOFTBALL

The CHS varsity softball team wrapped up its season last week with wins over Holbrook and Abington. Against Holbrook, the Skippers played 10 innings before breaking an 8-8 tie and eventually winning 9-8.

Sophomore Tara Stanford and junior Kim Wittet played outstanding ball for the Skippers in the offense while sophomore Karlin Icsele pitched all 10 innings for Cohasset.

At Abington, sophomore Kerry O'Brien tossed a four-hitter in the last game of the season to defeat the Green Wave 5-4. Senior catcher Gia Barressi had three hits while sophomore Tara Stanford, Carla Lucas and Janet DiGirolamo had two hits each for the Skippers.

GIRLS TENNIS

The CHS girls varsity tennis team clinched the South Shore league title and a tournament berth last week as they defeated Rockland and Abington for an unblemished season record.

Senior Krissie Ralff and the doubles team of Nancy Walls and Ingrid Anderson hold personal undefeated records as well.

Senior Joy Pratt has an impressive record of 11-1 in the second singles position and senior captain Mia Graham, first singles player, has only been beaten by two of the top league players.

Against Rockland, the Skippers swept all matches 5-0. Mia Graham won 6-1, 6-3; Krissie Ralff won 6-0, 6-2; Elaine Mullen won, 6-0, 6-2; Nancy Walls and Ingrid Anderson won by default and Diane Mullen and Linda O'Loughlin won 6-3, 6-1.

At Abington the Skipper girls trounced the Green Wave, 5-0.

Krissie Ralff won, 6-3, 6-2; Diane Mullen won, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, and Ingrid Anderson won 6-3, 6-3.

Elaine Mullen and Carolyn O'Brien won 3-6, 6-4, 6-3 and Nancy Walls and Meghan Kelly won 6-0 twice.

Sophomore Tara Stanford slides in behind Duxbury player to a safe landing on third base.

'Awesome' . . . the class of '83

By Lois Martin

If you get near them, they'll get it all over you, their spirit that is. The Class of '83, that glad-hearted group has the world by the tail this week, at its peak.

And they say they are awesome. Don't you love it. When did you and I ever think of ourselves as being awesome? I tell you it's enviable all by itself, to have even a brief flight of fancy in life when you believed without being abashed, that you were the only child of life.

I've been wanting to talk with them about that, being awesome, and about their other attributes as if they needed any.

PATCHES

And I'll tell you why. The Class of '83 is dear to me. I've got two of those. And when you get near the end of your harvest of graduating people, you want to relish the good stuff, unless they're the ones making catcalls from the back row.

Actually the older graduate represents the mature college crowd. They have been stripped of glorious illusions that decorate the high schoolers. 'Awesome' to them means finding a job, having enough money for a new shirt to wear on it and talking a mother out of pots and pans she's been sick of for 10 years.

To the college graduate belongs relief.

To the high school senior belongs life itself.

And I know a lot of that crowd. They're different. They ought not be. What's so distinguished after all about '83? The Class of '76 had a Bicentennial to commend their commencement. Who'd have looked to a number like '83 to make a difference? But they have.

I asked one of their crowd what stands out in his 12 school years as having been important, influential, memorable. Well, the first impact of his public schooling was the time he tripped Doreen Parker in the first grade to get her attention. Doreen thought someone else had tripped her, so that plan failed. She has since moved and we need not wonder why.

Then in the second grade, drawing still on educational moments, there was the production of "Pinocchio." And while the fifth grade was great and the eighth and ninth grades fantastic, the senior year, this past one, it was ... you got it, "awesome."

They concede they're not a gathering of intellectuals, to be remembered for uplifting academic standards. Their contribution has been verve. And some of us would choose that above many more predictable traits.

One of my measures, foolish as it is, in determining whether or not I really like someone, admire him or her, is to decide whether or not I'd ride across country with that person in a Greyhound bus. That's a long trip. I wouldn't choose to do it with someone who didn't have verve as naturally as he had a sense of touch.

I'd ride with the Class of '83. There might not be a lot of survivors but it would be one whale of a trip. We'd miss nothing.

Sages would remind us that no one is life's only child to be favored in the growing and rewarded in the doing. But there's an edge for the young man or woman who has robust optimism. It'll be harder to knock them down and they're gonna get up faster when that happens.

They're so pleased about life. Too few people are. They have made joy fashionable, fun reasonable, opportunity reachable.

They've already reached a lot of us.

They saw slides at their senior banquet, a series of their events, themselves pictured in finest hours. But at the end of the presentation there was a photo of an empty high school corridor, theirs, without them in it. And that broke their hearts.

They've spent a week or so hugging, reaffirming undying friendships, writing in yearbooks about how they love their 'guts!' They're the first to merge nausea with affection, for gosh sakes.

But I'm ready for them. I want them to grow on. They and life are one.

And I, like all others who have touched them, am waiting for their touch. It shall be warm and strong, with laughter in the background..."awesome."

A Beautiful Approach to Country Living.

You drive in through meadows strewn with seasonal wildflowers. But that's only your entry to the good life at The Meadows, The Green Company's new community of attached single family homes in Hingham. The architectural style is true to the farm-house heritage of the community. The construction and detailing have been accomplished with obvious pride.

The Meadows offers a selection of two and three bedroom homes with unexpected details like master suites with private fireplaced sitting areas, large country kitchens for informal entertaining, separate dining rooms for more formal occasions, hidden corners for quiet contemplation, and a mix of ceiling heights and styles. In addition there are large private courtyards, two-car garages, full basements, a swimming pool, whirlpool, tennis courts and a clubhouse. And best of all, this very civilized lifestyle is near major highways to the cultural delights of Boston and vacation areas to the North and South.

Prices range from $157,000 to $210,000 during this, our opening period. Furnished models are open every day from 9 to 5. Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street, one mile to our entrance. Call (617) 740-1500 for an appointment. When it comes to a good life in the country, The Meadows leads the field!

around town

☐John Linsley may be spotted riding his bike with a big grin on his face. The reason is his new license. He now has his International Racing license. Now he may be biking both here and abroad.

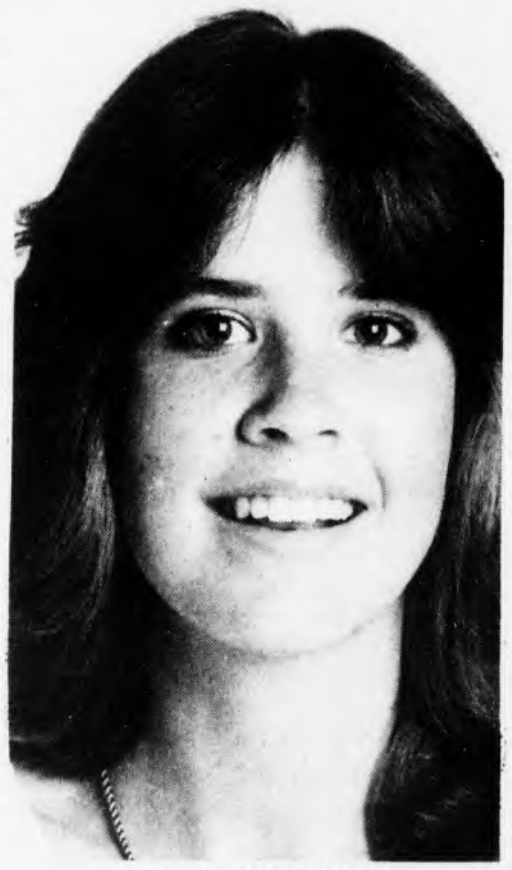
☐John Allen, son of Carolyn and Lester Allen, has made the Dean's List at Ohio Wesleyan again this term, rounding out his year in superb style. John was on the Dean's List all year long, quite an accomplishment. Next year he will be attending University of Vermont, transferring all of those good marks with him.

☐An error was made in last week's Around Town, where it was reported that Mark Yank made the "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." Mark called to tell me his name is Mark Young, student at Stonehill College and that his mother's name is Carol Tierney. Mark's name was included in the annual directory based on his academic leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential. Sorry about the error, Mark (that sure could be listed as a "gripe of the week.")

☐Jane McCarthy, daughter of Pat McCarthy of Bayberry Lane, made her annual pilgrimmage again this year so that she could march in our Memorial Day Parade, uniform and all!

☐Speaking of efforts, Don MacKinnon's must be recognized. Don, son of Mr. and Mrs. William MacKinnon of 34 Arrowwood St. and a 1982 C.H.S. grad, made the Dean's List at Ohio Wesleyan University. Keep up the good work.

☐Here's hoping the senior class has a grand time at their Prom this week, and that Graduation Day brings out the sun...best of luck to all the grads.



☐Anticipation ran high this week around town, everyone was so excited to see Karen Golden and her wedding party decked out in Perry Ellis originals. The bride was stunning, as were Mom, Doris and sister, Kerrie. Jack was beaming as Dad of the bride, complete with tails and a huge smile.

☐June Robbins, 227 South Main St. received an associate degree at commencement exercises held recently at Dean Junior College.

☐Thomas M. Goyette, son of Robert and Doris Goyette recently initiated into Sigma Chi Fraternity at Bridgewater State College. Thomas, who graduated from North Yarmouth Academy in 1980, is a sophomore at Bridgewater where he is majoring in physical education. Currently the Ritual Chairman at Sigma Chi, Thomas holds a 3.25 grade point average at Bridgewater.

☐The sixth graders are in for a big treat this Friday, when the PSO will hold a Square Dance in the Deer Hill cafeteria. It will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., admission is $1, and there will be refreshments. Bob Johnson of Quincy will be the caller.

☐A Cohasset youth was selected to the Jordan Marsh Fashion Board for the 1983-84 year. Heidi Hublitz and 24 other youths were selected to the fashion board. Heidi is a student at Thayer Academy, Braintree, and is the daughter of Dr. Uva and Ann Hublitz of Cohasset. Fashion board members attend monthly meetings on fashion and are also featured in junior fashion shows. In addition they model informally in the junior department and assist the fashion feature events office with other in-store events.

Heide Hublitz

☐Don't forget the two new ideas for the Around Town column that involves you and your participation. The first one that should be a popular one is the opportunity for you to call me with your "gripe of the week." Everyone seems to be able to think of at least one, why not share it and see if you can't get some response? If there isn't a gripe that's bothering you, there has to be GOOD NEWS that you want to share with the rest of us. When you come up with your gripe or good news, please call me at 383-0560.

☐Gerald McNabb of Cohasset was recently inducted into the Rocco Zoppo Chapter of the National Honor Society at Xaverian Brothers High School in Westwood. Members of the National Honor Society at Xaverian Brothers High School serve as tour guides of the school and staff an extensive tutoring program for the school's underclassmen. Dr. Philip O'Leary directs Xaverian's National Honor Society Program. In their junior year, outstanding students are selected by the school's faculty for membership in the National Honor Society in recognition of scholarship, character and service. McNabb, who is a junior at Xaverian, is a member of the Drama Club, and Yearbook staff. He is ranked eighth academically in a class of more than 220 students. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent McNabb of 53 Pond St.

☐Navy Midshipman Steven Donofrio, son of Paul and Catherine Donofrio of 96 Fairoaks Lane, was selected for both the Superintendent's and Dean's List at the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

The Dean's List recognizes midshipmen who have excelled in academic studies, while the Superintendent's 'list recognizes both academic achievement and the professional training required.

☐Peter Dillon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dillon and husband of Mary Walsh Dillon, both of Cohasset, was awarded a bachelor of science degree in Geology at the 107th Commencement of Boston College Monday, May 23.

☐Francis Gerald Chase of 494 Jerusalem Rd., graduated with a bachelor of arts degree in Political Science from Merrimack College, North Andover, May 22.

Talking through a 'good' divorce

By Judy Gilman

Divorce to many people means the ultimate breakdown in communications, the decision that there really isn't anything to talk about, that the only option left is to say goodbye.

Mediation, on the other hand, is all about communicating — about sitting down, laying the issues on the table, and coming to some reasonable conclusion about the results.

"What people have to understand is that divorce ends a marriage, not a family. The family goes on. And for the family to go on, the partners in it should make decisions about their future."

The speaker is John Sheff of Marshfield, one-third of the group Divorce Mediation, Inc. A psychological social worker, he specializes in family and couples' therapy.

The other two-thirds of the consulting group are local attorney Nancy Van Time and Joanna Feins, also of Hingham, and a psychological counselor.

What is different about this particular group is the presence of Van Time. Psychology has been promoting the idea of talking a divorce through for years. But Van Time, who specializes in divorce cases, can answer the legal issues at hand.

"What we're trying to do is to say to couples, 'This is your divorce. You have to work at it.' In the past, people have let their lawyers handle it. It becomes the lawyers' divorce. And, in the end, the probate court judge makes the decisions on money, property settlement, child custody. Because the judge deals in these cases every day, he probably makes the best overall decision, the one that makes everyone unhappy. But it may not be the best decision for that family and that divorce," Van Time said recently.

The particular theory behind a divorce mediation runs like this: Bill and Mary decide they want to get a divorce. (Divorce Mediation does not offer any sort of marriage counseling. The decision of divorce is one that is reached by the clients before they become clients.) They feel that as rational adults they can sit down and work out the details of the settlement. But they find the issues hard to talk about. One partner may delay. The other may embark on some particularly hurtful behavior. They both still want a divorce, but they're stalled in the proceedings.

In the traditional course of events, each would retain a lawyer, who would attempt to get as much for this client as possible at the other's expense. The probate judge would make the final decision on the whole, warlike mess when it's finally brought before him.

That usually leads to unhappiness on both sides and an agreement that is, in the end, usually broken in some fashion, usually in child support or other payments but sometimes in other ways, within two years. "What you want is a divorce that lasts," Sheff said, "an agreement that both parties can live with."

What Divorce Mediation offers with its three mediators from different fields and perspectives is an impartial third person to these discussion, someone who, by the terms of the contract the couple must sign, will not take sides with one person or the other.

Interview

This does not in any way mean that divorce counsel are not retained by both sides. Clients are urged to retain their own attorneys as well. But it gets a third party, someone familiar with negotiations and communications, to offer new avenues of approach, unblock problem areas, and get the couple onto laying down the conditions of their divorce. For that is what it will be the three feel strongly — the couple's divorce, not the lawyer's divorce, not the judge's. They will have decided on the conditions they will live by.

The mediators do not usually work together in team style. Their joint secretary will ask prospective clients for the broad outline of the situation, then will schedule one of the mediators to meet with the couple. Not all mediations are complete, down to the final signed agreements. Sheff recalled one mediation he worked on which dealt solely with visitation rights. He met with the couple together, individually, with the children involved both separately and with their parents. At the end, the parents were able to work out a custody-visitation arrangement everyone was able to live with. From then on, the rest of the agreement went smoothly. The issue of custody had been tying up the entire divorce negotiations.

The three mediators do not like to feel that they are promoting divorce. Yet the statistics show that three of every five Massachusetts couples will divorce. Divorce is a trauma that has emotional stages that can sometimes be almost charted. Add to that the impersonality of the judicial system and the divorcing couple can feel like cogs in a very impersonal, uncaring piece of machinery.

What mediating a divorce offers is a step back from the legal machinery. Gone are the court calendars, the appearance dates in probate court. Instead, the couple works out the arrangements they want to make, then have their attorneys present this agreement to the probate judge. Obviously this does not work in disputed divorce cases, but, when both parties are agreed on the split, it can work and work well.

Van Tine does not see mediation as doing away with divorce lawyers entirely. "I certainly hope not," she laughed, while noting that many settlements and divorces do not lend themselves to this method. What is important, she thinks, is that this is a viable alternative to the sometimes arbitrary ways of the judicial system.

"What I do find different, certainly interesting and sometimes difficult, is dealing with both sides at once in my role as mediator," Van Tine added. "A divorce lawyer does usually empathize with the client. This way you look at the issues straight down the middle you can't advocate."

In Massachusetts divorce mediation is a relatively new field. In California, by contrast, it has had wide acceptability.

All three agree that the myth of one party getting something out of a divorce is just that, a myth. "We put the focus on the kids in terms of rational agreements," Sheff said.

"I think I became increasingly aware and frustrated with the way people were treated in court who could have had amicable divorces," Van Tine said. "The divorce goes a long way beyond the decree, after the lawyers are no longer in the picture."

What will be in the picture, though, is the family. That bond outlives death, taxes — and divorce.

Angler's corner . . .

By Greg Derr

This week, we are asking fishermen who succeed to share their success.

The Mariner would love to give you some ink, so send any information on your catch to the Mariner's Angler's Corner, Box 682, Marshfield, MA 02050.

Please include a brief description about the fish, what was it caught on and how it was caught. We're sure your fellow anglers would enjoy reading about it.

Striped bass are on the minds of most anglers this week, having begun to move through the canal to the upper Cape.

Bass fishing locally has surprised anglers with some 20 pound fish landed as early as two weeks ago.

Most action has been along the beach in front of the Pilgrim Nuke power plant in Plymouth, with schools of mackeral luring stripers into the warm water discharged from the plant. This area is also a good spot for early blues.

The best bait now is either whole or cut mackeral fished deep; you can drift or troll.

Stripers have also been caught off Brant Rock in Marshfield on large silver spoons like Hopkins, Kastmasters and the Tony Acetta. When fishing spoons the trick is to alter the speed of the retrieve allowing the spoon to scan all depths of the water. The purpose this way is to increase the odds of a fish seeing the lure.

If stripers prove to be elusive, get out your light tackle and start chasing mackeral. They're one of the best fish in the salt to hook on light tackle.

Schools of the fast moving macks can be found almost anywhere offshore in water 30 to 75 feet deep. Feeding schools are on top of the surface chasing small bait such as sand eels and smelt.

Few lures succeed with mackeral as well as the Christmas tree rig. The Christmas tree gets it's name because it resembles a string of Christmas tree lights; it's made of multi colored plastic tubes with hooks running through the center. The tubes are spaced about six inches apart, causing a string, and the string is weighted on the bottom with one lead-covered hook which is chrome plated.

To get the best results, drop the rig overboard, letting it sink to the bottom; then slowly retrieve for about six feet, jig the rod (raising it quickly and lowering it slowly prevents fowling the tree). After jigging at one depth for a few moments raise the lure and try another spot.

Chumming is an almost forgotten method of fishing for all small gamefish (it is common practice on larger gamefish).

Chumming involves cutting small bait into pieces and throwing them into the water. This simulates the bits of fish left over from a feeding school. The smell of blood and oil attracts other fish to the area. The best chumming bait would be, of course, the favorite food of the fish you're chasing to catch. If that species isn't available, a mixture of different fish can be used.

Once the chumming is started, it's important to add small amounts at regular intervals to keep the scent in the water. One thing about chumming is that it attracts a variety of fish, so don't use too light a line in waters deep enough for large fish.

Engineers needed

Selectmen Chairman Mary Jane McArthur, said town officials are looking for citizens who are civil engineers to serve on several town committess. Volunteers should apply to the selectmen's office. Engineers are needed for the Drainage and Disposal Area Study Committees.

'Ozzie Alive Show'

The nationally acclaimed "Ozzie Alive Show" came to Joseph Osgood and Deer Hill elementary schools last week. Children were not only entertained by stories about the Great Whales but also learned the importance of their protection. Deer Hill Principal Ken Ekberg called the program one of the best he has seen in 20 years. The performance was sponsored by the Arts Enrichment Committee of the Parent School Organization.

Walsh honored

Cohasset Savings Bank hosted a retirement party for Mary Walsh, 62, at the Historic Society's Lothrop House recently. About 70 co-workers, relatives and friends attended. Walsh had been employed by the bank 19 years.

Treasurer and Executive Vice President, Donald Bates said the bank gave Walsh a gold dollar sign pendent, as well as a money gift. Co-workers gave Walsh a gold bracelet.

Bank President, Osborn Ingrahm presented Walsh with a citation from Gov. Michael Dukakis, and another citation signed by State Senate President William Bulger and State Senate Allan McKinnon.

FAMILY PICNIC

Bring tennis rackets, picnic lunch, lawn chairs and friends and come to the second annual South Shore Art Center family picnic Sunday, June 19, from 2 to 6 p.m.

This year's picnic will be held at the home of John and Robin Suhrbier, 178 South Main St. Grills will be available for cooking and the center will provide drinks and dessert.

Members are invited to bring their friends to this family event. For reservations call the center.

SUMMER ART FESTIVAL

A celebration of the arts — the South Shore Art Center's 28th annual Summer Art Festival — will bring to the Cohasset Common a diversity of activities.

The bright red and blue balloon will signal the beginning of the fun filled festivities for the four days, July 1-4. The Common will come alive with juried art exhibits, a members' show, concerts, a 51-bell carillon concert, face painting, eatable goodies, artist demonstrations and children's activities.

New to this year's festival schedule is an invitational sculpture exhibit, a juried crafts show, band concerts, gourmet picnic lunches and several of the children's activities. Center members want to bring new and exciting work to the sculpture show and to the juried craft display.

Juried shows will also be hung in painting, drawing, graphics and photography. Artists are being asked to submit work for these shows June 10 and 11. Awards will be given for "Best of Show" and best in each category. The works of the winners will be displayed at the Champagne Preview June 30, 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., at a location to be announced.

The center's artist members will have their own members' show and each artist may submit one piece of work for acceptance into this exhibit. Running concurrent with the festival in the center's gallery will be a President's Choice exhibit.

The children's activities under the sponsorship of the Patriot Ledger include the "You and Me Puppet Show" at noon July 2 and the Judith Block Storyteller at noon July 3.

The annual festival gives an excellent opportunity for visitors to meet the artists and participate in some of the artist demonstrations. Many of these artists are also instructors of the center's classes and the festival may be a good chance to also meet the teachers.

The festival comes just prior to the beginning of the South Shore Art Center's first summer session, a delightful way for children, teens and adults to participate in art courses geared to all levels of ability.

The aroma of good food will prevail July 4 as the center will have for sale gourmet picnic lunches. July 3, the picnicking will be on the lawn of the First Parish Church and July 4, on the grounds of the Congregational Church.

Three area high school seniors have been named recipients of the South Shore Art Center's scholarships.

In announcing the names of the scholarship winners, Ali Swedock, chairman of the Center's scholarship committee, noted the high level of competence of all the applicants and the excellent quality of work in their portfolios.

The winner of the $1,000 Bergfors Fund Art Scholarship is Maria Pax, a senior at North Quincy High School. She plans to pursue her art career at the School of Visual Arts in New York. The Bergfors Scholarship is in honor of Quincy resident, businessman and civic leader, Fred E. Bergfors.

The selection of the winner for this scholarship was made by Constance Bergfors Rice, a trustee of the Bergfords Fund, and also a painter and sculptor herself.

The recipient of the $600 Marion Huse Scholarship is Amy Goodwin, a senior at Scituate High School. She will attend the Rhode Island School of Design. The winner of a $200 MacIvor Reddie award is Elizabeth Danielle Babayan of Milton High School, who also plans to attend the Rhode Island School of Design.

Jurors for the selection of the Huse and Reddie recipients were Rosalind Farbush, an artist and a teacher of the high school scholarship classes at the Museum of Fine Arts, and Virginia Allen, who holds a PhD degree and is a painter, printmaker, associate professor and program director of art history at Mass. College of Art.

Formal announcement of the winners of these scholarships will be made at graduation exercises and the winners' work will be on display at the South Shore Art Center's 28th annual Summer Art Festival, July 1-4, on Cohasset Common.

Cars and van pools are the answer

The state's two-year reconstruction of the Southeast Expressway which will begin in about 10 months obviously spells even more headaches for area commuters.

There are only two projects scheduled this summer — one in Quincy, the other at the Norwell-Hingham line. The latter is for installation of overhead traffic signals at Queen Anne's Corner and some minor roadway work.

But next spring the problems really will begin with completed reconstruction of a nine-mile stretch at a cost of up to $90 million although DPW officials emphasize capacity of the eight-lane highway won't be increased, only safety improved. Plans call for four lanes to be rebuilt next summer, two at a time, with the other four lanes scheduled for reconstruction in the summer of 1985.

The resulting traffic logjams reduced to two lanes are only too obvious on a road which now is a nightmare during the heavy commuting hours.

Officials say if commuters don't change driving habits and join car pools, use public transportation, or fine alternate routes, the two years will be "horrible."

Public transportation, of course, is minimal at best on the South Shore. Alternate Rtes. consist of Rte. 53 and Rte. 3A, both of them overtaxed as it is. That leaves car and van pools.

At the Cohasset Recreation Department . . .

The Cohasset Recreation Department will offer a seven-week wrestling clinic taught by J.T. Price. The program is open to students who will be entering the sixth grade in the fall, through Grade 12.

The fee for the seven week program is $12 per person and a 50 percent discount will be offered for second and subsequent participants registering from the same family.

The program will meet at Cohasset High School from 8:30 to 10 a.m., on Mondays and Wednesdays for Grades 6-9, and Tuesdays and Thursdays for Grades 10-12, from 8:30 to 10 a.m., beginning the week of July 5 through August 14.

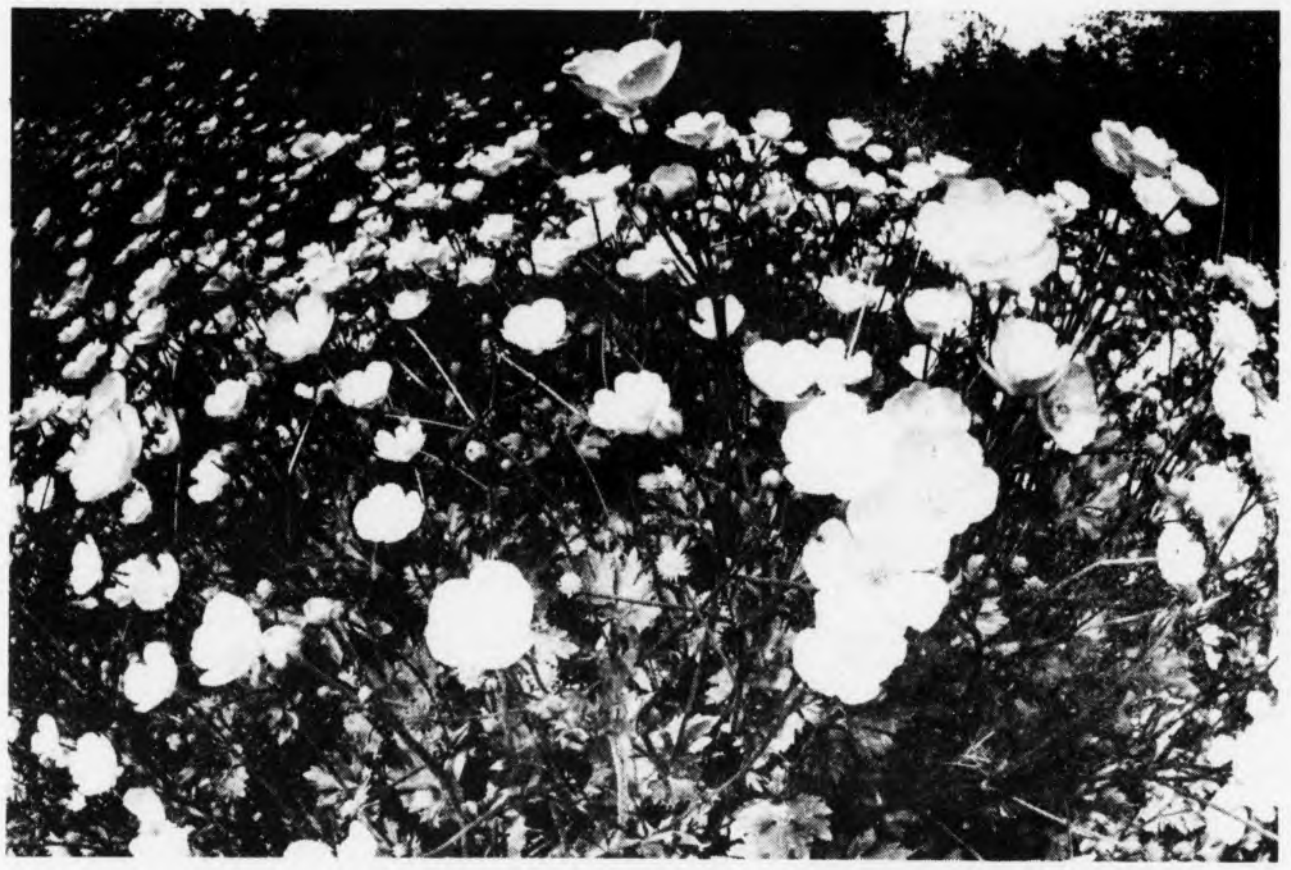
To register call the recreation office at 383-6791. Classes will be limited in size as this program is instructional in nature.

YOUTH BAND

The Recreation Dept. will conduct the summer youth band program, under the direction of Mrs. Kathryn Fox. Details regarding this seven-week program will be released later.

YOUTH TENNIS LESSONS

Summer youth tennis lessons will be offered again this summer. Shannon Collins and Mike Brady will be instructing. Registration and information will be available during mid-June, and registrations will be held at the Town Hall from 1 to 3 p.m. beginning Monday, June 20 through Thursday, June 23. Classes for beginners, intermediates, and advanced players will be offered to students between seven and 18 years old. Special clinics will be held, as well as tournaments and instruction.



PLAYGROUND PROGRAMS

The Recreation Dept. will be conducting a seven-week playground program for children four years old (as of May 1) through 12 years old. A half day program for four and five year olds will be offered between 9 a.m. and noon and a full day program for six to 12 year old students between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. at the Osgood School beginning Tuesday, July 5 and run for seven weeks, through Friday, Aug. 19. Programs meet Monday through Friday.

A flier will be coming out, via the schools, during early June. The flier will describe all registration information regarding all summer programs, special events, and activities. Fliers may be picked up at the Town Hall after June 13.

DONATION

The Recreation Commission would like to thank Dr. Lincoln Bloomfield and family for their donation of tennis balls, which will be used for both youth and adult tennis lessons.

Computer seminar

The Cohasset Community Center will offer an "Introductory Seminar on Computers" at the Center, Saturday, June 18 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The course will be taught so students don't have to learn technology or programming languages.

Participation with Apple computers will feature discussion of and practice with word-processing, a spreadsheet and data or list management programs. For information call the Cohasset Community Center, 383-0088, between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Space is limited, so reservations should be made quickly. The program's cost is $30.

GRANDMA'S ATTIC
"A Country Shop"
The greatest collection of country handcrafts and collectibles under one roof!

Grandma's comment of the week:
Grandma is "in the berries"!
We are having a strawberry festival during the month of June. There will be many items — hand-painted, stencilled quilted, fabric designs, floral creations, and even antiques — all of which are going to be decorated with strawberries.
Just for fun, Grandma is giving 10% off any item that has a strawberry on it, so come in and start hunting!
'Grandma's thought for the week:
It is often easier to earn money than to spend it wisely.

Cohasset Mariner

vol. V, no. 35 | wednesday, june 8, 1983 | telephone 383-6731 | 30 cents

The sun shines on Cohasset as the Class of '83 says goodbye

By Patricia Anne Walsh

The sun did shine on the glowing faces of the Class of '83 as they lined up outside the Music Circus tent Sunday. One-hundred-and-twenty-five graduates were present, Paul Dormitzer was still in France, and Amy Urmson in Switzerland, on AFS exchange programs.

The students marched in while the big kettle drums of the high school band beat out the measured cadence of Edgar Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" processional, and the brass blared proudly under the direction of conductor Jeffrey Dodge.

A tingle rippled through the audience, as they sighted the girls in white caps and gowns—each carrying a long stemmed red rose—and the boys gowned in blue robes.

The seniors were led by the Marshal, Jennifer Anne "Ginger" Ralff, president of the junior class, who waved a large silver baton, and by the class officers, Paul Johnson, president; Justine Hoffman, vice-president; Richard Evans, secretary and Gia Barresi, treasurer.

Several of the students plan to attend some of the most prestigious colleges and universities. Some of the students have been accepted to Harvard/Radcliffe College, Dartmouth, Wellesley, Brown and one each to Smith, Mount Holyoke, Tufts, Bates, Colby, University of Vermont, University of New Hampshire and one to West Point Military Academy.

Eighteen students plan to work, and three plan to join the U.S. Military Service, but over 90 percent are attending nationally recognized institutions of higher education.

The Rev. Richard Muir gave the invocation, reminding the class of the importance of cooperation, mutual helpfulness and integrity, and asking them to work for human betterment. He hoped they "would leave the world a better place than they found it."

Class President Paul Johnson and Principal Richard Streeter had "taken of the gloves" on Class Night when Streeter implied this was a class he wouldn't be sorry to see go.

However, in Johnson's address he said there were three types of classes, those you can't wait to have leave, those you don't notice have left until some time after they've gone, and those you are sorry to see leave. Johnson insisted the Class of '83 would be one of the

Cohasset to join tri-town commission

State Rep. Mary Jeannette Murray was successful Monday night in her efforts to persuade the Selectmen of Hull, Hingham and Cohasset to estabilsh a six-member Tri-town Commission. The commission will focus on long-range problems which need cooperative efforts from each town's officials.

Monday night's meeting was held in the Hull Selectmen's room.

Hingham Selectman Edward Lewiecki said he was attending as an observer, since Hingham's three-member board had voted not to participate.
agreed with the unanimous decisions that solid waste and transportation were the two paramount issues to be discussed.

Other ideas were purchasing, equipment sharing, harbors-piers-dredging, and computerization.

Representing Hull were Selectman Nancy Burns, chairman; Claudette Fitzsimmons, Grace Coleman, Leonard Hersch and Executive Secretary Chris McCabe. Selectman William Coviello was absent.

Representing Cohasset were Selectmen Mary Jane McArthur, chairman; John DeBassio, Frank England, Clifford Mitman and Executive Secretary Mark Lanza. Selectman Rocco Laugelle was absent.

The officials first disagreed about the makeup of the commission. Murray proposed the officials endorse forming a commission made up of three persons from each town.

Several selectmen said the final authority and responsibility (except for town meeting votes), financial decisions, and overall knowledge of town affairs rested with the selectmen and finance committees (or advisory

Channel 5 to picnic on Common

By Theresa Sullivan

Cohasset Common will be the scene for a June 18 picnic hosted by Channel 5 for the station's employees, their families and some 75 invited guests.

Clips from the filming of the picnic will be used in a WCVB television special.

Natalie Jacobson and Chet Curtis will host the 90-minute special which will be aired July 4 at 8 p.m. The special will trace the history of Independence Day.

Cohasset's Common was selected because the producers were looking for a scene with a New England flavor, said J. Philip Miller, WCVB-TV special producer.

Channel 5 shot a 60-minute commercial at the Common last year and found it "open and pretty," Miller said.

Selectman John DeBassio is concerned about the special's inconvenience to Cohasset residents.

"I don't want to give anyone the impression that the Common is going to be used on an on-going basis. I don't think the townspeople should be inconvenienced," DeBassio said.

Board members said it wouldn't be fair to exclude residents from the Common so that non-residents may enjoy it.

Miller agreed and it was decided that residents will be welcome to listen to the live bands, but the barbecue will be limited to Channel 5 employees and invited guests.

No alcoholic beverages will be served.

Selectmen anticipated that Cohasset residents will enjoy the day. Selectman Rocco Laugelle said Cohasset children and adults participated in the games and contests last year. "Most of the people in the town were caught up with the spirit of things," DeBassio said. "It was kind of a fun day."

The rain date for the picnic is Sunday, June 19. Selectmen said the rain date will have to be changed because they don't want any interference with church services in the churches on the Common.

Television crews plan to begin setting up their equipment, including four cameras, at 6 p.m., June 18.

Some of the television personalities attending will be Peter Mehegan of Scituate, John Willis, Eileen Prose, Jeanne Blake, Frank Avruch and Jan Holmes.

The diplomats, Stallard & Koerher prepare goodbyes

By Jane Lane

With mixed feelings, Jaime Stallard and Anne Koerher will pack their belongings and their memories next month as they return home from a year-long visit here.

They are eager to return to their families and friends in Paraguay and France. But they are apprehensive about leaving their "second families" in Cohasset.

As Anne says, "Cohasset will always be my second home, that is where my second family, friends and school will always be."

Anne and Jaime are AFS students who have studied at Cohasset High School for the past year and received their American diplomas in Sunday's graduation ceremonies.

Anne, who is an intellectual young woman, carefully chooses the precise words to describe complex thoughts. She is fluent in the English language, although she acknowledges the first couple of months here had her totally confused.

"It took me a long time to understand simple terms such as the sink, the phone, the faucet, things like that," she laughs.

Anne, even more than Jaime, becomes despondent when talking about leaving Cohasset to return home to Dijon, France.

"I told everyone goodbye at the graduation. I don't want to say it all the time whenever I meet someone," she says with her head bowed in thought.

Jaime said his inability to learn the language quickly proved to be a barrier in making a lot of friends. Although he speaks English very well now, he says it took about three or four months to understand anything.

"Being in a room filled with people was unbelievable," he says. "They would be telling jokes and I wouldn't understand. And it's useless to try and tell a joke from my country, because it wouldn't be funny here—it just wouldn't translate funny."

Anne and Jaime agreed that the inability to comprehend other people was the greatest test during their stay in "the states." Once that hurdle was overcome,

Cemetery lots for sale

Executive Secretary Mark Lanza said there are now more than 300 town-owned grave plots available, with another 100 to be soon readied.

The 421 total cemetery sites cost $125 each, although a resident must pay an additional $125 at the time of purchase for perpetual care expenses.

Lanza said there is an average of 78 deaths per year in Cohasset, although burials in town-owned plots total only 45 to 50 annually. Therefore, he said, the town plots could remain available for eight or nine years.

Because of the excess cemetery sites, Lanza recommended that the Cemetery Study Committee be dissolved. Selectmen agreed the current committee, which includes Robert Davenport, John Rhodes III, and John Souther, be abolished.

The town currently has 186 plots available for sale at the Woodside Cemetery, and 135 at the Beechwood Cemetery. A new section is being prepared at the Woodside property, and soon another 100 grave sites will be available there for sale by the town.

Break out the pails and shovels — the season is finally here. Jamie Kurtz kicks up some Atlantic Ocean surf at Sandy Beach.

Committee meeting

The hazardous material advisory committee will meet Thursday, June 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the water department, King Street.

Topics to be discussed include: hazardous material spill procedure, a review of hazardous material survey packets, including a questionnaire, hazardous material fact sheet, cover letter, plans for approval and implementation,educational meeting plans, and committee capabilities and goals.

'83 Yearbook delays

Patricia Wunschel, Faculty Advisor for the Class of 1983 Yearbooks, explained why the yearbooks were not delivered as of Tuesday morning. Wunchel said she had been hospitalized and the yearbook staff had missed the printer's deadlines by five days. "That caused us to lose our priority position on their publication list," she said. Yearbook Editors for '83 were Justine Hoffman and Kristin Wilkin, who had been Junior Class Editors the previous year.

Mr. Donut grand opening

Mister Donut celebrated its grand opening in Cushing Plaza, Route 3A, Cohasset on June 2. Owner David Santiano, of Marshfield, said donuts and pastry are baked twice daily. In addition to some 52 different types of donuts, Mister Donut of Cohasset features croissants, turnovers, fruit squares, bagels, Danishes, macaroons, brownies, cup cakes, five varieties of muffins and soups. A staff of 17 employees serves customers from 5 a.m. to 10 p.m., seven days a week. Plenty of fresh coffee is sold to accompany those donuts on that commute to Boston.

Joe Laugelle's grievance

Atty. Charles Humphries, representing Landfill Supt. Joe Laugelle said the Board of Health will meet Monday, June 13, to set a meeting between the board and Laugelle regarding a grievance filed by Laugelle after the health board requested him to resign. It appears the grievance will be headed toward selectmen as the health board members are opposed to rescinding their action asking Laugelle to resign. Meanwhile, a petition was circulated around town requesting the health board to rescind its action.

Stover in poor condition

Judith Stover, 38, of Cohasset was reported to be in poor condition Tuesday afternoon at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth. She was shot once in the head last week. Police have questioned her husband David Stover about the shooting but have not made any formal charges. Police Chief Joseph Kealey said apparently Judith and David were having an argument before David Stover reported to police his wife had been shot. Police also have interviewed the three Stover children. One 12 year-old child was upstairs in the Stover's Beechwood home when the shooting occurred. Police found Judith sprawled on the floor of the front hallway. A .22 calibre pistol was used in the incident and the gun is owned by the Stovers. The investigation is continuing by the Norfolk County District Attorney's office. More people, including neighbors, will be interviewed.

Drop spots

The Cohasset Mariner is adding a local drop spot for Cohasset news and advertising. Items can be left at the Cohasset Pharmacy as they have been in the past, or they can be dropped at Hennessey News, 3 Brook St. Both locations are in Cohasset Village.

The deadline for classified ads is Monday at 9:30 a.m. and for news copy, Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

The Mariner will pick up on Friday, Monday and Tuesday. Hennessey's hours are 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week.

Expansion approval

Selectmen granted Harrington's Restaurant approval to expand its facilities. A function room which will be built for formal occasions such as christenings and receptions.

Although two residents complained of excessive noise from restaurant patrons in the town parking lot in early morning hours, selectmen granted owner Stephen Harrington the license, contigent on receipt of plans showing the original and expanded building.

The proposed expansion must also be approved by the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission.

Frank and Sigrid Carey of 8 James Court complained to selectmen that patrons leaving the establishment at 1 or 2 a.m. play loud music and congregate in the public parking lot between the restaurant and their home. They suggested that with more patrons, there will be more noise from the area.

Restaurant owner Harrington disagreed that the persons creating a disturbance in the parking lot were patrons of his establishment. He said his clientele were people in their 30's and older. He said the restaurant imposes a dress code and provides entertainment for a more mature crowd.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle said selectmen will call Police Chief Joseph Kealey about the Carey's complaints.

board). It was also noted it is difficult to find citizens knowledgeable in these areas.

Later in the meeting it was proposed and accepted to have a commission composed of three members from each town including one selectman and one finance committee member.

The choice of a third member caused debate.

England and Fitzsimmons felt it should be a school committee member. England said, "They spend 55 to 60 percent of a town's budget."

Fitzsimmons said, "School committees have lost their automony, and it's about time they dealt with and realized the problems of the rest of the town." The majority of other selectmen did not agree.

Murray suggested including the town accountant, but Fitzsimmons said Hull's town acocuntant has different responsibilities than Cohasset's town accountant. Murray stressed that nine members was better than an unwieldly 15.

It was decided that a six-member commission be formed and the chairman abstain from voting, except in case of a tie.

Several selectmen felt restricting first efforts to two of the proposed agenda items will be most effective.

Lewiecki felt that even though his town had installed a baler, their dump might need additional space requirements in 10 years, while Hull and Cohasset felt they might only have five years.

Coleman asked Murray if there were any hopes of rail transportation as far as the Greenbush area. Murray said she believed present state priorities were to extend rail service "to the Bridgewaters and to the Cape."

She stressed environmental impact studies were necessary for rebuilding the bridge and line through the marsh heading toward the lumber yard before rail service would become a feasibility in Hull.

Lewieki stressed the state would do nothing on transportation for the South Shore towns until they joined and began to put constant pressure on the state officials.

Salvador concerned about lobsters

A fishing industry representative has complained to the sewer commission about the alarming number of lobsters dying in Cohasset Harbor.

"We had lobsters killed in the lobster holding cars in the harbor, in January, February, and March this year due to 300,000 gallons a day pouring out of the Cohasset sewer plant," Bernard Salvador said.

"To have the lobsters die at that time of the year is unheard of," he added.

Salvador is the Cohasset Fishermen's Association liaison, and he says a recognized expert on lobsters. He is registered with two governmental agencies, and is a consultant in the Caribbean who recently consulted in Antigua.

Lobsters usually hibernate, if they are not in lobster cars, in the winter and their requirements for food are low. Lobsters are also sensitive, within a limited range, to temperature, oxygen and salinity. "A temperature change over 15 degrees will kill them," Salvador said.

Salvador said the heavy sewer flows (the plant permit is for 72,000 gallons per day) affects the lobsters in two days.

First, it decreases the salinity. Second it increases the temperature, because it is warmer after treatment and agitation, than the harbor winter ocean waters.

The former sewer commissioners guaranteed to build an outfall, instead of dumping sewage in the harbor, and that is on their permit, Salvador said.

Previously, we only lost lobsters in the cars in August, after a combination of a sudden increase in temperature and heavy rainfall, said Salvador.

Sewer Commission Chairman Charles DeSantis said if the sewage were piped to the Hull treatment plant, it would obviate the need for an outfall.

Salvador argued that if the present plant were changed to a collection pumping station, and the pump malfunctioned, the overflow will still be released into the harbor and still affect the lobster.

The diplomats, Stallard & Koerher say their goodbyes...

their visit proved rewarding and stimulating.

Anne says she gained some weight this year, which she vows she will shed once she returns home. The reason for the increase is because of "all the junk food you people have here—it's unbelievable."

Anne favors the many flavors of ice cream, including maple walnut and Oreo cookie. Jaime said his personal favorite food, one which you could order in Paraguay, but he never attempted to try, is lasagna.

Many other foods tasted too bland for his South American tastebuds.

"Although people back home say that the states have no history, that it is simply a melting pot of different nationalities, I find that a good thing," Anne and Jaime agreed. "It means that you can have different types of food each night, not just French or South American food."

Anne, who will soon be 19 years old, found it interesting that on St. Patrick's Day she was asked by an inquisitive person if she was Irish. She did not understand the importance of such heritage on that particular day.

"In France, everyone is French and more are Catholic, so I had never been asked about my ancestry before. I think it's wonderful that so many people from different backgrounds live together," she adds.

Jaime also admired the mixture of population in this small community, but he still can not understand the separation of blacks and whites in the United States.

"In Brazil, which I used to visit quite often, about 40 percent of the population is black, but you don't even think about it. Here, I know that there is discrimination against black people. I can't understand that and I don't know why that is so," he says.

Another issue which is much in the minds of local adults and teens is the danger of drinking and driving. Yet the two foreigners don't understnad why there is such a problem.

In their homelands, teens are allowed to drink because a legal age requirement is not enforced. Teens are allowed to drink alcohol when they are "about 14 or 15 years old," they said.

"There is no pressure to take a drink or not to take a drink," Jaime explains of his hometown in Asuncion. "We ask 'do you want a beer?' the way people ask you, 'do you want a Coke?' We have no pressure to accept a drink or not," Jaime says.

He adds that children learn early that responsibility must accompany the drinking of alcohol. If someone is driving one night, Jaime says, he will never drink. The passengers might drink, but the driver will never imbibe.

"It is the responsibility we learn very early, that people over here do not have," he says.

Anne agrees that public drinking in France is not unusual for teens her age, although few people ever become drunk. She decries the secrecy and underhanded behavior that accompanies the local youth who must sneak drinks at night.

'Their images of the United States have been influenced for the better since their stay here. Anne says her only image of Americans was from movies, especially Westerns, where Americans are portrayed as big, riding horses, wearing cowboy hats, and chomping on cigars.'

Their images of the United States has been influenced for the better since their stay here. Anne says her only image of Americans was from movies, especially Westerns, where Americans are portrayed as big, riding horses, wearing cowboy hats, and chomping on cigars.

Before her stay in Cohasset, the only Americans she had seen were "tourists, who were often fat men with cameras around their necks who looked very wealthy."

Jaime and his friend Anne agree that "the states are number one in the world." The rest of the planet depends on the United States for their economy, defense and food.

"The United States is our number one ally," they said. And after living here for a year, they understand why that is so. The technolgoy and the educational system is far beyond anything in their homelands.

Anne says this sense of being number one in the world has lulled many Americans into a sense of security they do not feel in France.

"A day does not go by when I don't think about the world being blown up," she says in a hushed voice. "But here, you must feel superior to the rest of the world, and don't need to think about such things. Back home, I always think that the missiles of America are aimed toward Europe on the way to the USSR, and that we would be the first to be blown up in a nuclear attack. We are always in a certain state of dependence on the United States."

Jaime says that life in Cohasset is vastly different from his hometown city of Asuncion. One thing he will find difficult to explain back home is "that most homes here have two, three or more telephones." In Paraguay, one is considered lucky to have one telephone and probably rich if they own more.

In Cohasset, he says, it seems necessary to have a telephone in almost every room of the house.

Jaime would also like to figure a way to export an automobile back home. In Paraguay, a car which costs $9,000 here would sell for $18,000. He couldn't believe that cars in America sold for $6,000—a ridiculously low price, he says. That is why in a country of four million, there are only one million cars, he explains.

OTHER AFS GRADUATES

There were two Cohasset students who lived abroad this year, but were granted diplomas at Sunday's graduation ceremonies.

Jacqueline Dormitzer accepted a diploma for her son Paul, who is staying in France. He will be home July 10.

There will be no similar graduation in France for Paul, his mother explained, although he will miss being with his Cohasset friends at their final school event.

"He calls all the time, and he has enjoyed this year very much," Dormitzer says. "He is speakig fluent French. He has become very attached to his French family and friends, so he'll be leaving there with mixed feelings."

James Urmson accepted a Cohasset High School diploma for his daughter Amy. He also noted that Amy had "mixed emotions about returning home."

Amy's father says, "It is an emotional time for her. She is thinking about her friends at graduation time. Her wishes are with them now. But she will be home July 10."

Arbor Day observed at the Osgood

Arbor Day was celebrated June 3 at the Osgood School.

All the school children gathered on the front lawn of the school. Music filled the air as each class sang a song, saluted the flag and then in unison, sang "America the Beautiful." School Principal Jack Creamer spoke about the meaning of Arbor Day and Memorial Day.

There were two planting ceremonies.

Cohasset Garden Club members will plant pink honeysuckle, as they did last year. In previous years they have planted a flowering pear tree and several white pine trees.

Patsy Dean and Linda Wakeman are co-chairmen, Conservation Committee, for the Cohasset Garden Club.

A tree will be planted in memory of Peter Gill, a classmate who died. This tree was given by his class.

around town

☐The individuals who are involved with the Country Crafters Fair, Saturday, June 11, are numerous. Some have called to give a "preview" as to what to expect. They include arts, crafts, collectable antiques. The Coca Cola Robot will make his appearance from noon to 1 p.m. and there will be a concession stand and a chair caning demonstration.

Rosee Duffy and her boosters will be selling Cohasset shirts and sweaters, as well as different colored sweats.

The boys scouts will benefit from this as the money made will support the summer program, and tuition for camp. One Boy Scout, Gerald McNabb, is working with the police department to help begin the fingerprinting program underway. This is part of his Eagle rank.

☐Peter Dillon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dillon and husband of Mary Walsh Dillon, both of Cohasset, was awarded a bachelor of science degree in geology at the Boston College graduation Monday, May 23.

☐There is a lot of "turkey talk" going around in Cohasset, just ask Izzie Salvador about it. It seems that Izzie agreed to help Martie Connelly by storing one of the three turkeys that she cooked for a party she was having on Saturday. As Izzie was going into her house with the turkey Friday night, her neighbor called to her...so, Izzie put the turkey down on the fence to chat for a little while and you can imagine the rest of the story. The neighbor's dog (who is blind, but has a super sense of smell) devoured the turkey. Guess who was cooking a turkey very late Friday night?

☐The Friends of the Library will hold a book sale at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library Saturday, June 11, from noon to 5 p.m. Books will be sold for a dollar a bag. This sale is a final clearance of books left from the book sale which was rained out last weekend.

☐John LaVangie ("coach of the year" in basketball) and area coaches are holding a basketball camp at Scituate High school for Grades 5-8. It will be held July 11 through July 15, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Among the highlights will be a lecture by the Holy Cross head coach. Cohasset youths are encouraged to attend and may contact Coach LaVangie at his home.

☐Navy Midshipman Stephen Bowen, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bowen of Juniper Rise, was selected for the dean's list at the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. This list recognizes midshipmen who have excelled in academic studies at the Academy.

☐Millie and Dick Cummings passed through town last weekend to attend a wedding in Scituate. As they didn't have time to visit their many friends, Millie and Dick asked to say a special "hello" to all.

☐The C.H.S. Class of 1972 held their tenth reunion last weekend with a cookout held at the home of Nina Steele in the afternoon, followed by a dinner-dance held at Cohasset Country Club. It was run by Rick and Roberta Sawyer, who managed to round up fellow grads from as far away as Florida and California. The decorations were super, streamers and sports uniforms draped everywhere, and balloon centerpieces on the tables. A grand time was had by all, and plans were started for the 15th reunion.

☐Betsy Gwinn, a 1979 C.H.S. grad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gwinn of Beach Street, graduated recently from Mt. Holyoke College Cum Laudi in Math.

☐Navy Midshipman Steven D'Onfrio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul D'Onfrio of Fair Oaks Lane, was selected for the superintendents and dean's list at the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. The superintendents list recognizes both academic achievement and professional training requirements.

☐Sandy Beach looks great this year!

☐Time to congratulate Brendan Mulcahy again! Brendan won first place in the 400 meter race and he now qualifies for the State Special Olympics. Annie Chittim will also take part, as she won her events in the softball and frisbee throw. They, along with their coach Toni Jillson, will be at Boston University June 17 to June 19.

☐June Simeone gracefully celebrated "a" birthday June 2 at the Joseph Osgood School. June's good friend Jean Bailey baked her a rich, bunny rabbit cake and delivered it to her at work so she could share a piece with the staff and students. Jean has delivered her good friend, June, a birthday cake thusly every year for as long as June's been a special needs aide at Osgood.

☐Take four enterprising kids, a whole lot of friends and a warm and loving family willing to travel at a moment's notice, and you have the ingredients for a successful surprise party for a deserving set of parents.

Jane and Chet Ellis of Tower Lane celebrated a noteworthy wedding anniversary this week — a silvery 25th — and on Saturday their offspring, Susie, Mike and Pam, and AFS daughter Anne, filled their house with fun for the occasion.

After an elegant lunch at the Ritz Carlton, on and with Roger and Jane Porter, the newlyweds came home to much warmth, hugging, laughter and nobody counted the toasts.

Decked out in navy blue "25" t-shirts (Jane wore a pink corsage) and smiles of incredulity, they toasted their anniversary, Anne's graduation from Cohasset High School, and the fullness of friends and marriage.

Mothers-of-the-bride and groom, sisters, brothers, aunts and what not, and original members of the 1958 nuptials party traveled from faraway places for the surprise soiree.

☐Jocelyn Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kennedy of Stevens Lane, graduated last week cum laude from the University of Mass. at Amherst. She is one of 36 undergraduates out of 4,000 to receive a Gold Seal Diploma for having successfully completed four years in the Honors Program.

☐Rose Maloney of Cohasset received a certificate of advanced graduate study at Bridgewater State College recently.

latter.

Salutorian Elizabeth Glasfeld ranked second academically in the class, exhorted her classmates to seize their opportunities. Valedictorian Gia Baressi ranked first academically, gave a clearly enunciated speech describing some of the class's milestones and memories of Cohasset.

After the ceremony, Chartis Langmaid, wife of school committee vice-chairman John Langmaid, said she liked the positive approach of the speeches more than some she had heard in past years from graduating students.

Superintendent Eugene Crowell told the graduates, "Education is an investment, and is an investment in all of our futures. Your accomplishments are many, and we are proud of you."

Streeter announced that Paul Dormitzer was named National Merit Scholarship Finalist, placing him among the top 13,000 graduating seniors in the U.S., as well as one of 3,500 seniors receiving a four-year corporate financed scholarship from Digital Equipment Corporation. It will be presented when he returns from France.

The class had 10 recipients of Letters of Commendation awards. They are: Samantha Barrett, William Davenport, Joanna Fone, Jeffrey Giles, Elizabeth Glasfeld, Elaine Mullen, Ann O'Connell, Sean O'Connor, Joy Pratt and Frederick Zotos.

Seventeen students were presented National Honor Society Certificates and pins. They are: Gia Barresi, Samantha Barrett, Maureen Buckley, Paul Dormitzer (to be awarded), Karen Ekberg, Joanne Fone, Jeffrey Giles, Elizabeth Glasfeld, Mark Gunville, Susan Hobson, Andrew Long, Christopher Mahoney, John Maloney, Maryellen Maurer, Ann O'Connell, Sean O'Connor and Kristin Wilkin.

School Committee Chairman Richard Conley, whose daughter Heidi was in the senior class, thanked students Paul Johnson and Justine Hoffman for attending School Committee meetings and representing students. He urged a positive approach to education, and suggested the students should run for school board positions or work for good education in the future.

He presented the diplomas, with a few exceptions.

Former school committee member Josephine DiGirolamo was invited to present a diploma to her son Christopher Mahoney, and Irene Brown to her son Mark to whom she gave a big kiss.

Former superintendent of schools John Maloney, at his request, presented a diploma to his son, John, as well as a lasting bear hug.

Jacqueline Dormitzer, who sat in the "reversed row" with her husband and former school committeeman, Ralph Dormitzer, accepted the diploma for her son, Paul, still in France, and James Urmson accepted for daughter Amy, still in Switzerland.

The former high school students changed their tassels to the right side. They marched out to the recessional. It was the last time they would all be together.

on the way to the parking lot, a smiling Izzie Salvador summed up the day in two words, "Happy Moments!"

At the S. Shore Art Center

Three Boston sculptors have been invited to participate in the South Shore Art Festival Invitational Sculpture Exhibit, July 1 through July 4 on the Cohasset Common.

The festival, a summertime celebration of the arts by the South Shore Art Center, 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset, brings to the Common an array of activities including juried shows, a craft exhibit, performing groups, children's activities, gourmet picnics and artist demonstrations.

Sculpture by Obie Simonis of Cambridge, Robin Shores of Boston and Jessica Straus of Boston and Dedham may be viewed on the festival grounds from 10 a.m. to dusk. The works represent Indiana limestone, painted wood, stainless steel and acrylic.

The works by these three Boston sculptors will create an interesting and diverse exhibit for the festival's Invitational Sculpture Show. For questions regarding this exhibit or any part of the Festival, please call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548.

PRO EXHIBIT

Several Cohasset artists are participating in an exhibit which is displayed in the Prudential Center, Boston, through June 25.

The artists are among 26 South Shore Art Center artists whose work has been selected for this show.

Chosen from Cohasset are Sue DeMichele's "Watercolor," Margaret Dillon's "Petunias," Rosalind Farbush's "Joy of Summer," Douglas Orr's "Red Door," and Claffy Williams' "Longtail Tropic Birds." The works represent watercolor, oil and acrylic.

Visitors are welcome to view the show any time at the Prudential Center. For more information, call the South Shore Art Center, 103 Ripley Road at 383-9548.

Attention Sailors & Boat Buyers

-Are you buying a sailboat but do not feel confident in handling it? Do you need to further refine your sailing skills. Now you can do this ON YOUR BOAT at reasonable cost and in very short order.

Unlike many schools where you pay for high overhead costs and canned instruction, receiving private instruction in the intimacy of your boat offers clear advantages. You develop further skills tailored to your needs on a boat and in surroundings most familiar to you. You do not waste your time and money learning about someone else's boats and gadgets or waiting for others to take their turn at the helm. You will receive personalized instruction from a mature and patient individual who *sailed twenty-six years on the Caribbean, Atlantic & Pacific Oceans

*taught at the well-known New York Sailing School
*skippered for the Tufts National Championship Sailing Team

Instruction offered on an individual basis or with your family or friends. For further information, call Robert anytime at 383-1233

Commencement

A pillar of the Mariner's creed is that coverage of annual high school graduation cannot be overdone. When a Cohasset High School class graduates we take on one of our most important annual privileges and obligations — to cover the event as though it were a World Series no-hitter.

In that light you'll find the Class of eighty-three heralded throughout this issue. To the class we say congratulations on this richly deserved moment, and Godspeed in your pursuit of happiness and success.

We'd like to add a word or two about the meaning of success in life. In her lead story on the commencement exercises, Pat Walsh reports that over 90 percent of the class will be moving on immediately to higher education, including several attending prestigious places like Harvard and Dartmouth.

That news represents "success" for Cohasset, for our school system, for the proud families involved, and above all for the students themselves. We don't mean to sound like a chablis commercial, but we much hope all parties to these successes savor the moment.

But the larger point we wish to make about success is that there is no corollary that says that those who won't be Ivy League next fall won't be successful in their lives to come. A case in point will illustrate what we mean. The Mariner publisher and the bloke who sometimes drafts these editorials recently caught up in New York City with an old buddy of, oh, class of. oh. about 1962.

The buddy in question got turned down in '62 by it would seem every college in the land. He became a private in the army, after several years of which he finally got admitted to a small state college. He graduated cum difficultate at the age of 30.

But old buddy is a steady plodder, he put one foot in front of the other, and at 40 he is vice president of Chemical Bank in New York. On the occasion of our reunion, he put a Manhatten-sized evening on his American Express; and the publisher was relieved when he made no noises about bankrolling a revived Cohasset Mirror.

The point is that commencement, which means "beginning" not "ending," should be a time of hope for every single member of the class of 1982. When a class graduates, it isn't possible for everyone to be class valedictorian or best athlete. But it is possible for each and every one of you to achieve your own success in the fifty years or so that, God willing, will be yours to live.

Nor do we mean to imply that your income at 40 or the length of your credit line with American Express will be the parameter of your future success. The nice thing about what success really is is that it is yours to define for yourself, then it is yours to achieve. You fail only if you fail by your own parameter.

We at the Mariner pledge not to forget this fine class of 1983. In our hearts we'll be holding onto your rickety ladder of success while each member of the class climbs the first few rungs. Godspeed to all!

On Media Day at Plimoth Plantation

By Claire McDonough

The best part was the Pilgrims.

It was Media Day at Plimoth Plantation, and my family and I were invited guests.

We had dined on 17th century fare — olives, boiled referred to his co-religionists as "Saints," eschewing the raveled bread and sweet butter and assorted beverages. We all agreed that we would have to be a good deal hungrier to make a meal of the pottage, but that everything else was delicious.

We enjoyed walking through the recreated village of 1627. We examined farm animals, and wondered how the Pilgrims could have borne keeping pigs (swine, they called them) so close to their homes. We decided that odors probably hadn't affected them as strongly as they did us, and that they hadn't wanted to have to travel too far from the warmth of their hearths to feed the animals in the winter. We observed that they hadn't been overly concerned with housework, and agreed that we probably would have been just as casual about sweeping floors if we had to spend so much of our time tending to fields and animals and getting meals on the tables. There were no convenience foods for Pilgrim housewives.

We watched a musket muster and poked and pried among early American gardens, tools, and outdoor ovens.

It was all fun, but most of all we enjoyed talking to the Pilgrims. The men and women who portray the 17th century settlers have researched and rehearsed their roles well. They will converse with you at length about the politics, social conditions, and lifestyles of the day, but if, by error or otherwise, you question them about something that didn't exist until after 1627 you will meet with polite incredulity or downright derision. Mention germs and they will laugh. Suggest a future separation from the mother country and they will mutter darkly of treason. Tell them that you are a Catholic, and they may not know what you mean. Mention the word "Papist," however, and you will learn how strong religious prejudices were among even the best educated of that day. You may think about it later, and wonder if there is any significance to the fact that Pilgrim women seemed less concerned with differing religious beliefs than their menfolk. And you may wonder further if you hold any convictions that will startle future generations.

If you are fortunate, you will have the opportunity to talk to Governor Bradford. When we met that worthy gentleman, we found him to be friendly, warm, witty, and slightly more liberal than most of his contemporaries.

Oh, he did disapprove of ninepins as a waste of time that could be more profitably spent, and he did sneer when he spoke of an Irishman who had been shipwrecked and brought to the colony by Indians. He referred to his co-religionists as "Saints," eschewing the term "Separatists" with which they had been labeled by the Church of England. Still, he, unlike many of the Saints, believed in teaching women to read.

"After all," he pointed out, "it enables them to read the bible and learn their duties to their husbands."

Right.

Still, he was somewhat liberal. When another guest referred to Bradford's height and noted that "Governors seem to come tall this year," I giggled.

In response to his questioning gaze, I blurted that, "I know a governor who is rather short."

The Pilgrim governor pondered that for a minute, then allowed that "Mayhap if a man's mind and heart be large, it would matter not how great his stature."

As someone who measures 5'0", I had to repress a fervent, "Way to go, Gov.!"

We hated to leave, but our departure was made easier by the knowledge that we would return on July 9 when, with other visitors to the plantation we will join in games, pranks, and advice to the bride and groom when Mary Warren weds Robert Bartlett in a traditional English country wedding. O.K., so we don't know the bride and groom. Mariner readers are well aware that that's never stopped the Dragon or me from attending a wedding before.

School Committee briefs ...

ATHLETIC FUND

An anonymous donor has established a $10,000 track and field and athletic fund to honor former Cohasset School Supt. William Ripley, Jr. This fund will ensure track and field programs and other athletic team expenses. In addition, a male and female student athlete will be selected each year for an athletic award and be given a Revere Bowl. In addition, these student's names will be engraved on a large trophy. This fund will need the vote of the next town meeting to be established. The School Committee is still not sure if the fund should be controlled by the committee or the town accountant, especially for interest investments.

SOUTH SHORE ART CENTER STUDY

The school committee plans to ask selectmen or other town boards for topographical maps concerning a proposed three-acre site by the South Shore Art Center. The School Committee is studying a request by the Art Center to build a site on school land near the South Shore Music Circus and the Deer Hill School. Some members fo the board toured the site with Art Center officials. The committee also wants to know the answer to this legal question: Can the School Dept. lease a parcel of land for a period of time and still control the parcel under the direction of the committee?

FINANCING METHOD DENIED

School Committee members were disappointed to learn that the state Attorney General's office denied a financing method to repair the high school's Sullivan Gym.

The school and advisory committees were hoping insurance money would pay the director contractor directly. But the state said these repairs must be put out to competitive bid. This will delay the gym floor repairs to later this summer and could add another $3,000 to $4,000 extra to the repair cost.

ATTENDANCE & TARDINESS POLICY

The school committee is organizing an open workshop Wednesday, June 15 at 3 p.m. in the home economics room of the high school to discuss amendments to the attendance and tardiness policy. Parents, students, administrators and committee members are invited to attend. Questions to be answered include if a parent must provide a doctor's certificate of illness to the school. Faculty member Ken Cisneros said teachers want students to be in class. Student representative John Replogle said he knows of one student who missed 85 classes and was not disciplined. The student took days off because "he felt like it." Still, the student was able to pass his courses because he has two days to make up the work.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell said the new policy should take effect when school opens in the fall. Resident Chartis Langmaid said parents must take the lead and become more responsible for student lateness and absences.

GRANT APPLICATION

The School Dept. is applying for a $5,559 grant application which would pay for the artist in residence program, computers for the Guidance Dept., and Grade 3 at the Osgood School and money for the gifted and talented program.

BAND AWARDS

Beautiful ship award trophies were awarded to the CHS Concert and Jazz bands for winning the first place in the Heritage Music Festival of Newport, Rhode Island. The Wind Ensemble won first place in one class and the Jazz Ensemble won another first place in another division. Both divisions included 13 schools. Band officers were Jeff Giles, president; Lisa Peachell, vice president; Mara Sceery and Vicki Spooner, secretaries and the band director is Jeff Dodge.

Day shift opening results in police grievance

The nonposting of an opening in the day shift of the Police Department was the subject of a grievance hearing before selectmen June 1. Police Chief Joseph Kealey's appointment in March to that position created a vacancy in the day shift.

The patrolmen's attorney, Joseph McParland said an opening should be posted so that the senior officer may fill the post. "We think it's an opening and we think it should be posted as an opening," McParland said.

Kealy said "There's a vacancy in the department but not in the shift. The department is short-handed. I'd rather have more men on the nights. It's more important to the safety of the town."

Lieut. Charles Stockbridge's retirement as of June 3 and the planned appointment of a uniformed patrolman to a plainclothes detective has left the department short three men.

Report from the state house

By Mary Jeanette Murray

The Governor's "Revenue Enforcement and Protection Program" (REAP) faced scrutiny in the House last week when Republicans mounted a concerted effort to prevent tax increases.

Legislation proposed by the Governor and needed to help balance his state budget recommendation contained a number of individual tax and fee increases along with tax collection enforcement measures.

The gas tax, originally a part of the REAP plan had passed earlier in the year, effective April 1. Last week the House passed an increase in the cigarette tax.

Two amendments that Republicans successfully added should help taxpayers keep their money.

The first calls for quarterly reports by the Department of Revenue on money brought in because of the REAP program.

The second would require the state to pay the taxpayer interest on income tax refunds not paid within 90 days.

IT'S BUDGET TIME AGAIN . . .

The development of a state budget is a multi-layered process. Early in the year, the Governor submits his recommendations. After public hearings and review, the House Committee on Ways and Means makes its recommendation.

Not too many years ago the Ways and Means version of the state budget could be debated and voted on before House members ever had copies. But, several years ago Republicans led a coalition that successfully fought for the requirement that the budget be printed and distributed seven days before debate can begin. This allows all members, Republican and Democrat, to really study the budget before voting.

Transportation survey

Boston commuters are in for some unsettling times.

This summer the state DPW is scheduled to begin a major reconstruction of the Southeast Expressway that will continue for at least two years. There is little doubt that the project will place considerable stress on a roadway that is already overburdened.

With these facts in mind, members of the League of Women Voters from Marshfield-Duxbury, Hingham and Scituate-Cohasset recently met with State Sen. Allan McKinnon to review transportation problems on the South Shore.

With the cooperation of Sen. McKinnon's staff and the Mariner Newspapers, the league prepared the following survey to determine the transportation needs of South Shore residents. Since the results of the survey will be forwarded to Sen. McKinnon's office, readers are urged to respond.

Return the survey by June 15 to: LWV, Box 1414, Marshfield 02050.

Construction noise brings complaint

(The following is a letter sent to selectmen and Cohasset residents. Ed.)

I moved to Cohasset three years ago. I was attracted to the town because it was quiet, peaceful and picturesque. I chose my little house in the woods on Holly Lane specifically for its calm environment, perfect for my careers as artist and musician.

Then, several weeks ago, this calm was shattered by the great roar of bulldozers and heavy equipment, plowing down the forest to make way for condominiums. These machines begin at 7 a.m. every morning (and sometimes earlier!) and continue crashing around until 6 p.m. at night (and sometimes later).

It is extremely disturbing to have to listen to these frightful noises so early and so late in the day. Normal working hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Most people are sitting quietly at 7 a.m. over a cup of coffee, contemplating the day ahead. Quite a few others are just waking up. It is impossible to collect one's thoughts with a back-hoe going full blast in the back yard. It rattles the windows and the nerves.

Having spoken with Police Chief Joseph Kealey, I learned that we have no ordinances on noise-control in the Town of Cohasset. I feel that my rights to peace and quiet are being violated, and yet have no recourse whatsoever in defense.

I certainly understand that the heavy work which needs to be done for the sake of the Pond Street project cannot be done quietly. But I do not think it is unreasonable, in a quiet residential neighborhood, to ask that the noise should be restricted to normal working hours. 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. is totally unacceptable, and I feel strongly that we need some sort of regulation to protect the rights of those residents who have the misfortune of living next to a construction site.

Respectfully submitted,
Joan Appel

Senior citizen comment

To the Editor:

I hope I can get the newspaper. I like it because it has more newsthan other papers. I would have missed the cheese and butter if I hadn't received your paper. It wasn't in any other paper.

I am a woman, 76 years-old, and can't work because I have fallen and can't walk.

Cohasset responded

To the Editor:

I would like to express my appreciation to those Cohasset firefighters and police officers, whose names I unfortunately do not know, who came running out of their stations at 3:50 p.m. Friday, June 3 to see if anyone was injured when they heard the sounds of screeching brakes and then the crash as my car was rammed in the rear by another car.

I was attempting to turn into the senior citizen housing development behind the police and fire stations to visit my mother.

Too often I hear people say, "All those firemen do is sit around or sleep all day and night" or "you never see a cop when you need one." Obviously that is not the case in Cohasset, and it certainly isn't true in Marshfield where I reside.

Engineer details alternative sewer plan

Some of the alternative costs for on-site sweage systems are coming in.

One engineer estimates it will cost the typical homeowner $110 annually for operation and maintenance costs of this alternative system.

Dr. Michael Bliss was the only member of the Board of Health attending a recent meeting of the sewer commissioners.

Officials met to discuss the preliminary findings of Ward Engineering and on-site sewage renovations.

Engineer Chuck Dauchy, based on preliminary investigation of 32 sites, felt that most of the systems in the Veterans, Hillside, and Ledgewood areas (Phase I) would require variances from state and local regulations.

Bliss stressed that he could not speak for his Board.

He said that in the past, where there were emergency situations (breakouts) which could not be fixed under the regulations, and where there were people living in existing houses, the health board had granted variations on a case-by-case determination, rather than condemn the dwellings.

After the meeting he said his preference was to continue to operate in that fashion, but said the board would have to decide the issue.

Dauchy wants to meet with the health board as soon as possible, but Bliss said that due to their workload it would be late in June.

Dauchy recommended water saving devices be required for those areas. He said development of a new one-gallon flush toilet, had lowered his capital cost estimates for reconstructing all systems to $18,900. With reimbursements the local cost of even the most expensive repair would be less than $1,200, he said.

Based on Metcalf and Eddy estimates, he said updated costs for an outfall might range from $1.8 to $2.4 million.

However with reduced design flow and a smaller pipe, the estimated range might be $1.5 to $2 million.

To bring the existing plant into permit compliance might cost as much as $250,000, he said.

Sewer Commission Chairman, Charles DeSantis, said Hull will not agree to accept more than 500,000 gallons of Cohasset's sewage. Dauchy said the total capital cost will be $6.5 million with the local cost, $3.2 million.

Operation and maintenance would cost $110 annually for the typical home, he said.

Dauchy hopes to give the commissioners a final report before they meet with the state June 17.

Planned dye studies delayed

Cohasset Sewer Commission Chairman Charles DeSantis has written to sewer engineers Metcalf and Eddy asking that the planned dye studies in Cohasset waters be delayed until early August. These studies are related to the building of an outfall system.

This date will allow optimum summer conditions and will also give us sufficient time to decide if the study is necessary," DeSantis said.

DeSantis said the Ward engineering report indicates a very high level of confidence that alternatives to the present plan are feasible and less costly. He added D.E.Q.E. officials are willing to review and discuss the completed Ward report in June.

Because of these developments and the strong possibility that Cohasset will not be implementing your sewer plan, the sewer commissioners wish to extend the field work for the dye study, DeSantis added.

John Najarian of Metcalf and Eddy acknowledged the DeSantis letter and added he had notified all their suppliers and subcontractors to stop work.

"Favorable tides for the tests will be available on July 15, July 21, July 22; August 5, August 8, August 19, and August 22, weather permitting. Because of weather uncertainties, we suggest that the field work be attempted in July. If weather is unfavorable, then we would try for August, Najarian said.

"The plan offers a better chance of collecting the data rather than risk the weather in August and thereby lose an entire year," he said.

The dye studies are expected to cost an addtional $70,000.

Ride-A-Bike totals

The Cohasset Teachers Association recently announced that $3,639 has been collected to date from their annual Ride-A-Bike event held last month.

This is a record sum of money from the many Cohasset residents who generously supported the participants who rode their bicycles for a certain amount of money pledged per mile. This fund-raising event supports the more than 180,000 members of the Mass. Association for Retarded Citizens.

'Down in the Valley' opens June 17

South Shore actors and singers are joining with soloists and members of the choir of the Second Congregational church, Cohasset, to present the church's fifth annual musical show.

This will be staged in the Cohasset High School Auditorium Friday and Saturday, June 17 and 18 at 8 p.m.

This year's program features Kurt Weill's mini-folk opera, "Down in the Valley," and over a dozen of the most popular selections from four Gilbert & Sullivan operettas presented by the group in recent years.

Tickets are $3 and are available from members of the church choir and at the door.

Playing the lead of "Down in the Valley," will be Norman T. Shaw, a state bank examiner during working hours but a vocalist and performer in amateur productions in his spare time.

Shaw's list of credits includes leads in other Gilbert & Sullivan shows for the Hingham Civic Music Theatre, the Old Colony Theatre in Plymouth, and productions of "Man of La Mancha" with the Priscilla Beach Theatre.

Others are "Life with Father" with the Young at Heart Theatre, Hingham, and "Amahl and the Night Visitors" with three different groups.

Shaw sings with the choir of the First Church in Weymouth, the Fine Arts Chorale, the Hingham Civic Music Theatre and the Unicorn Singers.

Also well known in South Shore musical circles is Jeanne Scammell of Norwell. She has sung for the Milton Women's Club, three years with the North River Community Club, the Unicorn Singers, the Duxbury Bay Players, and as soloist at the First Parish Church in Cohasset.

Scammell has acted in several earlier productions of the Second Congregational Church, and has had leading singing roles in many well-known musicals performed by South Shore groups, including "Brigadoon," "Oklahoma," "Most Happy Fella," "The King and I," "The Boy Friend," "Fiddler on the Roof," and "Carousel." For two seasons she sang in the chorus of "Boris Gudonov" with the Boston Opera Company.

Another featured singer in this year's church production, will be choir member Philip Von Iderstein of Marshfield, who was heard in lead roles in the church's presentations of "The Mikado," and "The Sorcerer." He is a member of the Duxbury Players and has had leading roles in "Once Upon A Mattress" and "Play It Again, Sam."

Tom Myers of Cohasset, another lead this year, was seen as Samuel in the church's production of "Pirates of Penzance" and has appeared in many productions of the Hingham Civic Music Theatre including "Brigadoon," "Funny Girl," "Oklahoma" and most recently was in the North River Community Club's production of "Cabaret."

Other major roles in the production will be played by Louise Flint, Al Sencabaugh, Robert MacNeill, Dorothy Myers, Evan Bailey , Louise Smullen, Owen Fryling, Anne Merritt, Maryjean Von Iderstein and Letitia Jordan. The actors have appeared in the earlier Gilbert & Sullivan shows by the church.

Ellen Fryling, organist and music director of the church, is producer of the show and will provide the musical background, accompanied by Kathryn Fox, flutist. Kathryn is a music teacher at the Deer Hill School, Cohasset.

John Rice of Scituate is directing "Down in the Valley" and Joan Kenney of Cohasset, is choreographer.

Osgood, Deer Hill artwork on display

Jean O'Malley, Cohasset's elementary art teacher, has organized an art exhibit featuring selected works by her students from Joseph Osgood and Deer Hill Schools.

This art is representative of the work done in grades 1-6 and will be displayed in the Deer Hill School June 7 through June 14.

On June 7, the public was invited to a special preview. People were asked to critique the art and observed student demonstrations in cartooning, sculpturing, and stenciling.

☐Cohasset resident William Duffy, son of Michael and Rosee Duffy of Fair Oaks Lane, recently traveled to New York City as part of a music short term unit offered by Maine's Bates College. William is finishing his junior year.

The 13 Bates students spent 10 days in New York attending concerts and jazz performances. They also had opportunities to talk with musicians and critics in order to get different viewpoints on various kinds of music and its history.

☐Two Cohasset students have earned Dean's List honors for the spring 1982 semester at Syracuse University. They are Robert H. Fessler, a sophomore, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Fessler of 56 Forest Ave., and Joseph F. Perroncello, a senior and son of Joseph Perroncello of 109 Pleasant St.

Robert is an Engineering major and Joseph majored in Management.

☐Christopher John Abbruzzese of 90 Old Pasture Rd., was awarded a bachelor of arts degree recently at Bowdoin College. Abbruzzese, a graduate of Deerfield Academy, majored in Economics at Bowdoin and has been a Dean's List student. A four-year varsity letter winner in football, Abbruzzese won the William Robinson Howland Memorial Trophy, an award given to that senior who has shown "marked improvement on the field of play and aggressiveness and enthusiasm for the game." During his senior year, he was also selected to the 1982 CBB (Colby, Bates and Bowdoin) Conference all-star team, and to the ECAC weekly football Honor Roll. Abbruzzese also earned varsity numerals and varsity letters in lacrosse. During his senior year, Abbruzzese was a co-founder of "A Better College," (ABC), an organization dedicated to improving relations among various ethnic and cultural groups on campus. He was a starter on Bowdoin's 1983 ECAC Division III Championship Team which defeated Middlebury, 11-8, to win its second title in three years.

☐Three Cohasset students graduated from Boston College High School recently. They are: John Bertoni, Christopher Kelley and Brian O'Leary.

Drapery rods usually need some kind of decorative heading to cover them. These headings can be made of wood and covered with paint or fabric to match the draperies. One example is the pelmet, a two-dimensional covering that is placed flat against the rod. Cornices, on the other hand, are rectangular boxes that jut into the room. Swags and jabots are fabric coverings. A swag is a gracefully draped fold of fabric which covers only the top of the window. A jabot usually hands down over the side of the window and is often ruffled. Each treatment provides a romantic flourish for draperies.

Windows are probably the last thing you think of when decorating, but what a difference they can make! When you need window treatments or glass and screen repairs, BOUND BROOK PAINT & HARDWARE invites you to stop in and see us here at 763 Country Way in N. Scituate. We offer repairs for the average home and we are not out to sell you new windows or doors. To learn more, call us at 545-3624 or stop in Mon-Wed 8-6, Thurs & Fri 8-8:30, Sat. 7-5.

Angler's Corner

By Greg Derr

Large and smallmouth bass are in the middle of the spawning period which has kept them on the spawning nests away from the angler. For about the next two weeks the bass are competing for mates, only rarely would one leave the nest, usually to ward off competing fish.

The only way the angler has to catch a bass is to entice the fish into striking a lure out of anger. This is done by casting into the shallow spawning grounds were the females are nesting. The male bass will try to protect the female by attacking the intruder in the nesting area; large males are common victims to this method.

Anglers fishing for bass this time of year use large swimming or surface lures to attract the most attention from the protective males. A large Jitterbug or Rebel should do the trick well. If that doesn't produce a strike, try a mouse imitation or large rubber eel. Lures that look as if they pose a threat to the spawning female are the best. This is not to say that the bass are going to hit. They by nature are not feeding, so don't get your hopes up.

Many other species of fish are in the same ponds that you fish for bass, some fish such as chain pickerel and yellow perch are still fair game and plenty of fun.

The chain pickerel can produce great tail dancing top water action. The early evening before sunset is the most likely time to raise the fish to the surface. Fish in small ponds tend to stay in the deeper cooler water in the heat of the day; this helps them breath easier and conserve energy for feeding at night. Most all the larger fish caught in the summer are caught in the early evening or after dusk. The pickerel is truly a noctornal fish leaving the deep water for the protection of stumps to prowl in the shallows at night; there it searches for frogs in the water or small mice in the weeds

The Minot Ledge area off Cohasset has been the local hot spot for catching spring mackeral. According to Dennis Kowal of Cohasset, many large schools of mackeral in the one-to-two pound sizes are being landed around Minot Light. Small cod are also being caught in the same area in the deep holes among the rocks.

Most of the local harbors are full of small pollock this month, these fish are plentiful and easy to catch using seaworms, small spinners or spoons. Freshly caught pollock cooked on the grill taste great in summer.

Fred Spring of Norwell has had limited success catching brook trout at Long Pond in Plymouth. Fred has had his best luck using Cahill dry flies in the early morning hours fishing along the shore. Brook trout like most trout feed mostly at night during the summer, hiding in the deep water of the ponds at midday.

Lunker brown trout are being landed at many South Shore and Cape Cod ponds in the night by fishing the hatches of large insects. Large trout up to five pounds can be caught after dark when they become careless during feeding frenzies on the insects. Fish that usually are slow feeders can act like small brookies during a hatch of flying ants or moths.

Another summer method for summer trout is to slowly troll large minnow lures deep on the bottom. The slower the trolling speed, the better as large trout are sort of lazy; they tend to lie on the bottom awaiting a slow target. If you have difficulty getting down to the bottom, try using lead core line.

The Chapman Bowl Race sails on

By Cindi Bondi

The South Shore has only one overnight sailboat race.

The Chapman Bowl Race, sponsored by the Scituate Yacht Club, still practices this unique tradition, after 23 years.

"The Chapman Bowl Race is the sole overnight race on the South Shore. It differs from most races because there are shorter courses that are good for small boats," said Race Chairman Herb Sarkisian Jr.

The Scituate Harbor Yacht Club uses the Performance Rate Handicap for the Chapman Bowl Race.

The PRH Racing Fleet of New England requires the entrants must have a rating of less than 250.

The performance of a boat is rated according to the boat's measurements and weight. The boats are divided into four classes which range 27 to 46 feet.

Every year the race courses and the types of sailboats vary, but they always sail to Provincetown as did Sandy Chapman in 1960.

"The spontaneous suggestion was put forth that it would be a marvelous night for a sail to Provincetown," wrote Sandy Chapman in a letter that told how the precedent was set for the race.

The race began as an encouragement of seamanship skills for young people and an interrelationship between achievement and risk taking.

Now the courses are chartered and the sail date is traditionally set for every first weekend in June.

Following are the corrected times and results of this years race:

CLASS A RACING

Winner: "Sea Nest," Skipper Earle Michaud, time, 8 hours, 2 mins., 30 seconds, boat, Bristol 45.

Second Place: "Spirit," Skipper Herb Sarkisian, time, 8 hours, 45 mins., 55 seconds, boat, C&C 40.

Third Place: "Coalition," Skipper B. Tedeschi, boat, Pierson 37.

Course started in Scituate, Mary Ann Rocks (off Manomet), to Race Point off Provincetown, to Eastern Point (North Shore), back to Scituate.

CLASS B RACING

Winner: "Serenity," Skipper, F. Manning, time, 7 hours, 46 mins., 36 seconds, boat, P.S. 26.

CLASS C RACING

Winner: "Isolde," Skipper J. Westerbeke, time, 7 hours, 37 mins., 54 seconds.

Second Place: "Square 1," Skipper G. Cooper, time, 7 hours, 43 mins., 27 seconds, boat, Nonsuch 30.

Third Place: "Bright Star," Skipper Wally Feldman, time, 8 hours, 40 mins., 16 seconds, boat, Tartan 40.

CLASS D RACING

Winner: "Tharsis," Skipper, F. Baker, time, 5 hours, 33 mins., 3 seconds, boat, Seidlemann 29.

Second Place: "Fiddlers Green," Skipper P. Danby, time, 5 hours, 34 mins., 42 seconds, boat, Albin 30.

Third Place: "Candelia," Skipper B. Hortarek, time, 6 hours, 15 mins., 46 seconds, boat, Bristol 29.

Courses for Class B, C, and D: start in Scituate, to Mary Ann Rocks (Manomet), to Race Point off Provincetown, and back to Scituate.

Travel Along with

A well-planned packaged travel tour should offer no unpleasant, expensive surprises. However, the would be vacationer should always investigate package travel plans with the help of a professional travel agent. These well-constructed plans generally allow the traveler to fairly accurately calculate the total cost of a trip beforehand. For trips to European destinations, in particular, many international airlines are offering their own land arrangements in combination with very attractive special air fares. The result can be very substantial savings for the vacationer. Once the traveler begins to investigate these plans, he will be quite surprised at the low/no cost features that only a well organized, experienced tour operator can offer.

Many times it is necessary to clarify this point in order to avoid any misunderstandings. When you make your travel arrangements through a travel agency there is never a charge to you for this service. Our reimbursement comes from the different carriers and resorts around the world. In effect, this means that the personalized service offered by the professional team of COLPITTS TRAVEL CENTER costs you absolutely nothing. This represents a truly great bargain. See us at 3 Brook St., Scituate Hrs. 9-5 M-F, 10-4 Sat and by appt. Tel. 545-4500 & 383-1717.

Satuit Bowlaway report . . .

By Don Dwyer

Another season has come to a close for the Norfolk Bowling League with the team of the Eagles winning the championship for the 1982-83 season. The winners consisted of Barbara Ferguson, Brett Kyller, Chuck, Hall, Bob Barrows and Capt. Al Wilson. (This is Chuck Hall's third straight year on a championship team which must be some kind of a record.) The Eagles won big as they did throughout the entire season, and showed just how devastating they can be with the pressure on. Congratulations to the true champions that they are. Individual final scores had Jim Nagle leading all the men with a classy average of 109.1 Bob Barrows was second rolling a great 108.0, and Al Wilson captured third with a 103.9. Delores Jenkins led all the gals with a super 102.7, followed by Mary Nagle with 90.6. Jim Nagle had the League's High Three rolling a 392 series, and Bob Barrows, the High Single of 170. (These two men were nip and tuck on all their scoring all year long.) Delores Jenkins also had both High Three, 380, and High Single of 152 to lead all gals in a superb bowling season for Delores. The Bowlaway thanks all from the Conveyor League for their great scoring season, and support from everyone. (Hope to see you all next season.)

Tuesday Mornings Ivy League has the Apaches leading Division One with 24 wins and losses. The Apaches consist of Betty Madden, Lillian Pierce, Dorothy Moran, Dot Noble, Betty Cody, and Charlene Ketterer. In Division Two the Sioux (Marie Merritt, Velma Rose, Doris O'Brien, Josephine Donahue, Marge Noonan and Priscilla Sindone) are tied with the Crees (Shirley Davis, Betsy Duggan, Kathy Burris, Peg Barton and Karen Mitton), with 20 wins and 12 losses. The Ivy's cash jackpot of $80 was hit by Connie Merritt rolling a strike and a spare to capture the money on her team. (Couldn't happen to a better person. Nice going, Connie.) The over the average leaders for the three cash prizes given away each month have Lillian Pierce leading with plus 136 over, followed by Betty Thomas with 82 over and Patti Torrey next with a plus 80 pins over her average. (Patti had a Single of 156 and a High Triple of 380 to lead all in last week's bowling. Just super, Pat.) Betty Thomas has the most strikes, 19; and Linda Zimmer, Most Spares tied with Patti Torrey with 28 each.

Tuesday Nights Women's League have bowled four weeks into the summer with some fancy bowling done by all. The Mashpees are leading Division One (Dee Martin, Susan Camelio, Denise Griffin, Mary Griffin, Nat Hussey and Betty Carchia), with 30 wins and two losses. In Division Two the Satuits (Barbara Gillis, Dottie Cook, Cathy Lacky, Mary Murphy and Carol Cirrillo,) are in front with a record of 24 wins and eight losses. This summer's league has 60 members with some new bowlers joining for a fun summer. (The Bowlaway welcomes you all.) Individual scoring so far has Betty Carchia holding High Three with an excellent 374, and Jan Maestranzi, the High Single rolling a super 163. Betty and Carol Cirrillo are tied with the High Average rolling 110.5 each. (This could develop in a high-scoring race this summer.) Just terrific averages from both. In last week's High Scoring, Carol Cirrillo continues her classy bowling, rolling a single of 130 and a High Three with 357. (A fantastic start, Carol. Keep it up.) Susan Dolan had a great week rolling a Single of 140 and High Triple of 336. (Sue is averaging over a hundred and off to a great start.) The weekly jackpot is up to $90 with each week's bowlers just missing by a whisker. (These ladies are all good money bowlers anyway.)

Wednesday Nights Mixed Doubles has 60 members and are in full swing enjoying the fun and all are bowling great. The Shawnees, (Fran and Spike Hefferman, Mary and Bill Wattendorf, and Gerry and Dick Farwell) are leading Division One with 14 wins and 10 losses. In Division II the Apaches (Mary and Dama Bearce, Cindy Hazen, Tom Connors, John Small, and Lee Hazen) are out in front with 20 wins and four losses. In the women's department, Kathy Sullivan holds the High Single, rolling 146 and Jill Smith, High Triple, rolling 348. Don Oppenheim has the Men's High Three with 399 and Tom Connors the Single with a 157. (This league is burning high scores from everywhere. Just great, you gals and guys.) The strike pool leaders have Kathy Sullivan leading all the gals, with 18 and Tom Connors the Men with 40. (Somebody down here must be bunching those pins.)

In our salute to out of town bowlers, the Town of Marshfield, we are honoring this week. Over the years Marshfield has given The Bowlaway outstanding patronage and some real good bowlers. The Marshfield Men's League has bowled here for over 20 years with some people who performed well in The Bowling Game. Just to mention a few we had Scotty from the First National Store; Don Doroni of T.V. fame; Gilly Kent, Jim Cunning, Frank McLarey, Bud Nangle and son Larry, Ed Fonseca (Mr. Treasurer himself), the Roderick family Ken, John (was Marshfield's Chief of Police), Moose and Wayne. The Patterson family has father Charlie The Singing Cop, sons, Chuck, Mark, and David. Nat and Bob Hussey (Nat has been the gracious secretary for the Scituate Women's League for years.) Some outstanding people from our Mixed Doubles League were Mary and Pete Acker and Liz and Whitey Williams. (Liz had a High Single this past winter of 170.) Ron Aldridge also of TV fame was another outstanding men's bowler who always carried over 120 for an average. This is only a few from Marshfield, but The Bowlaway thanks all for all they have done to make Satuit Bowlaway one of the best candlepin houses in the state. Visit our Bowlaway soon.

So long until next week.

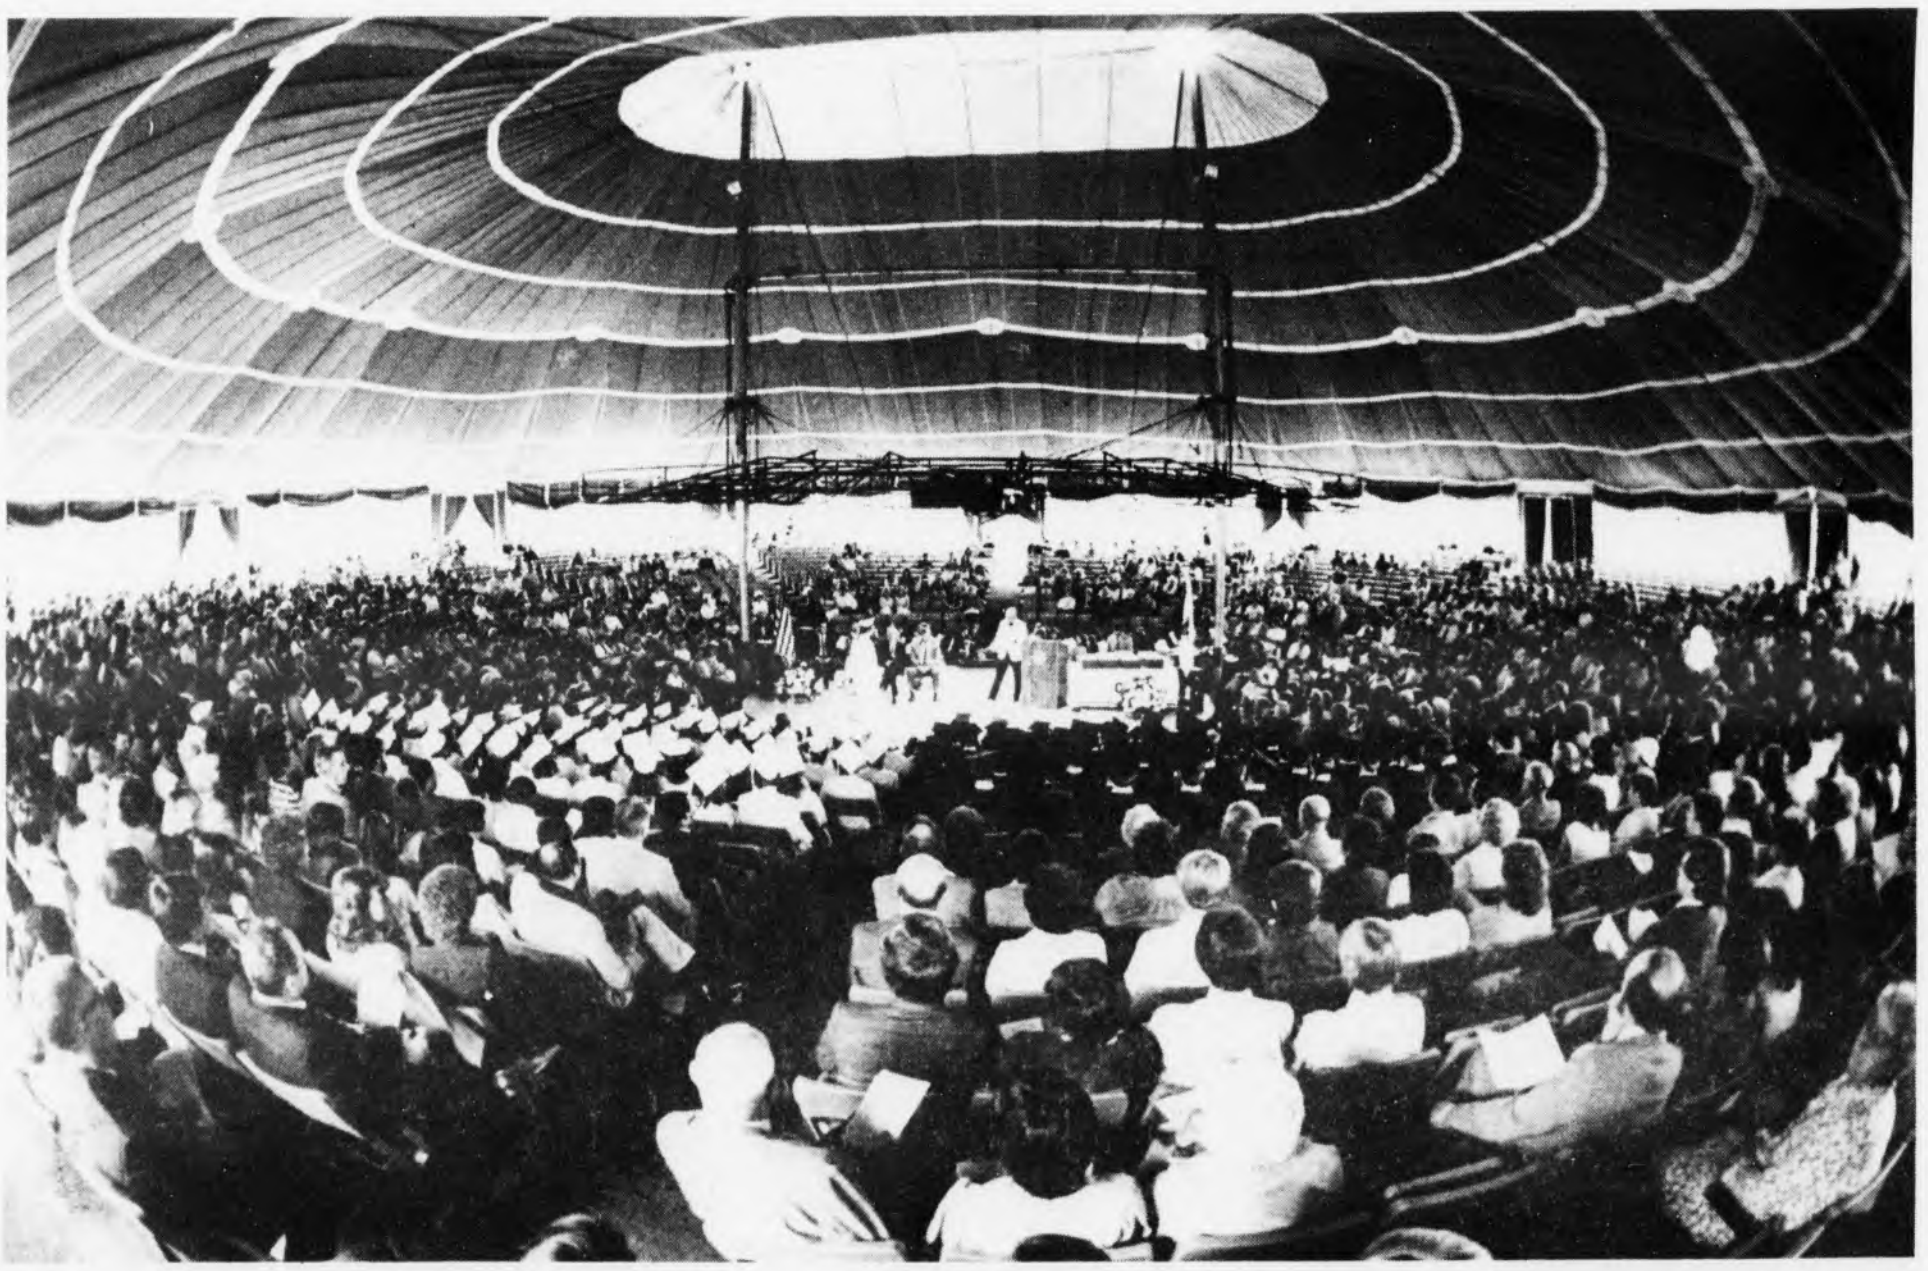
Goodbye and Good Luck



Class of '83

Salutatorian Elizabeth Glasfeld takes her turn at the mike and shares her reflections on leaving Cohasset High with graduation audience.

The Music Circus belonged to Cohasset High's Class of '83 for their final act as high schoolers.

Karen Ekberg receives her diploma from special friend, dad Ken Ekberg, principal of the Deer Hill School

'The golden ring' — Rich Evans and Paul Johnson show off their brand new diplomas.

Success to Skipper graduates

Anne Koerher will take her diploma a long way from Cohasset when she returns home to Dijon, France. She receives it here from school committee Chairman Dick Conley.

Three-sport All Star team member and beaming graduate, Gia Barressi.

Clark Chatterton, high school athletic director, had a turn at conferring awards and citations at Sunday's graduation.

Planning, school comm. members join license opposition

By Mike Berger

Opposition to an application by the South Shore Playhouse to sell wine and champagne picked up steam last week as the planning board and several members of the school committee plan to tell the appeals board the application should be denied.

Monday night, in a 3-2 decision, the school committee voted against sending a formal opinion to the appeals board. Members Joe Nedrow, Diana Kornet and Chairman Dick Conley feel the school committee is not the appropriate board to address the issue.

Last week the planning board voted to inform the appeals board they are not in favor of any extension of the non-conforming use at the Music Circus which is in a residential neighborhood on Sohier Street.

The board determined the extension of the non-conforming use does not appear to be in the public good. Residents who opposed the application at the appeals board hearing two weeks ago cited the presence of many schools and children in the area especially during matinee time.

They were also concerned that evening customers would already have had a pre-dinner drink and drinks served at the circus might add to the alcoholic content of drivers leaving the premises exiting in mass on to Cohasset's street.

School committee member Joe Nedrow said Monday he conducted a survey at the Cohasset Golf Course and three other places during graduation weekend.

He found 41 residents were in favor of the appeals board granting the application and six residents opposed it.

Board member Jack Langmaid said the committee has an obligation to children in light of the committee's policy on drugs and alcohol.

"Our policy is against drinking and driving. This is not acceptable and I don't condone it. I know this is a difficult decision. I also know the Music Circus has been good to the town and the schools with the use of the auditorium and the scholarships."

"But a line has to be drawn sometime. Driving and drinking is a serious problem in this country and we as leaders should take a stand," he said.

Conley said he had to separate his personal feelings from his committee responsibilities. He said the school committee should not be a censory board. Conley said anyone could go to a restaurant in Cohasset and drink and drive. He asked if this issue affects the schools and if there is a danger to school children.

Langmaid said many youths ride their bikes in the summer and resident Charles Gainor later cited the density of the residential neighborhood, the Music Circus location to the town pool, and the lack of public transportation to the Music Circus.

Kornet, although agreeing in principle with Langmaid, voted against the board voting on a position but added she would send a personal letter to the appeals board opposing the application.

The appeals board has not scheduled a meeting to decide the issue. If the appeals board approves, Music Circus representatives indicated they would seek a wine and malt license from selectmen.

They said they would not serve beer, although the license would allow it.

Declining ticket sales and increased performance expenses led to the application. Atty. Anthony Mooney, representing the Music Circus, said management rejected higher ticket prices as the best way to increase revenues in favor of expanded concessions. He said other major theatrical centers in the Northeast sell wine and beer.

One's annoying vulnerability to moving movies

By Lois Martin

There's a time to cry. Thank goodness they wrote that in the Bible else those of us who want to indulge in that release now and then might feel guilty.

I don't have to cry much. Besides I'm not addressing expression of grief. If you grieve, and we all have occasion to do that, for Heaven's sake, do it. Crying is not only a natural outlet for grief, it is a necessary one.

I'm actually referring to the kind of crying that results from being moved . . . weddings, births, the good stuff that is poignant and meaningful and touching.

PATCHES

There are those driven to water-up looking at scrapbooks. For others tears erupt for the "Star Spangled Banner." I've known people who howled balefully when Bob Cousey retired from the Celtics and when Lassie finally came home in that final segment years ago.

Well I'm not invulnerable to being moved to tears any more than I've escaped inappropriate laughter in moments that were supposed to be fraught with serious consideration.

One time as a new mother (again & again) I walked by the delivery room in time to overhear the sounds of a baby's first cry. So I joined it, leaning against the wall in wonder. Now, mind you, if I had to go back to a delivery room, I'd cry for certain.

I can cry when somebody else has been hurt. Because empathy makes the pain of a friend, yours. When something is wonderful, overwhelming or when human behavior is magnificent I can cry. So there are opportunities to do that, fortunately, now and then.

Still I'm not given to weeping at the drop of a baby's bootie, or the appearance of George Burns with his cigar for old time's sake.

But I'll tell you, before I gained this eminent (or imminent) maturity, I was prone to lose control in certain kinds of movies. And for that I owe James Elliott an apology.

James was the singular son and offspring of Wallace and Marie. Wallace was a professor at the University of Maine in the agricultural department, I think. And they were acquaintances of my parents.

Now you have to be nice to your parents' friends. And that works both ways. I'd visited Wallace and Marie in a family ensemble in my youthhood, which was slow transisting into something of a higher level.

And I'd applauded when James sang and played the piano, managing to roll my eyes only at my sister and out of view of the adults. They were gentle polite people and I was respectful of them even when I didn't show it.

Thus when I was a freshman at the university I was not surprised to be invited for dinner and an outing with James as my escort. We could, we agreed properly go to Bangor to see "A Man Called Peter."

That was a mistake. One of the things in my childhood that used to unglue me and unleash my tears was a flamboyant religious movie, like "The Robe." Give me people dying for their faith, their principles, their love, their God and I have an identity crisis. I am the heroine, the victim, the star, the sufferer. When Joan of Arc was burned on the cross — at the Ellsworth, Maine movie theater, her death was outstripped for movie-goers by my wails of grief. My sister implored my parents to forbid my attendance at any other religiously connected flick.

This censorship of my 'rites'... was not imposed.

However, after arranging to see "A Man Called Peter," I was somewhat unnerved at the possibilities and vowed to control myself. Who cared, I said in preparation, if the fellow gives his life for his faith and dies leaving a mourning widow and family. What was that to me, after all. Thus hardened, James and I attended the Bangor cinema.

I was the soul of a tough cookie right through two-thirds of that movie. Nothing moved me, Peter Marshall's ardor, dynamic oratory on behalf of his crusade, his wife's stalwart companionship. James, on behalf of my family's friendship, was to be spared my emotion and thereby embarrassment.

It got more and more difficult not to give a hoot, to sustain my unfeeling demeanor as the movie progressed. And when the child in the movie came forward in the final third of the talkie to impart something special with his failing father, I lost control.

And since I'd had all this involvement pent up, the release was audible. You understand, don't you, those of you who have ever cried when you had nothing to do with what was going on and it was 'only a movie.'

James Elliott rose to his size 13 feet and, grasping my left elbow in what would have qualified as several points in wrestling, directed my body from the theater.

My mourning ceased the moment he shut the door on my side of the pick-up. I no longer was a character in that presentation, I was a person being taken home wordlessly. That didn't make me cry.

Unfortunately, it made me laugh.

So here's to you, James. Sorry about that. I understand they're showing "A Man Called Peter" on TV pretty soon. And as you know, I never got to see the ending. This time I'm going to watch it with someone who shares my every mood, Lilly, a tolerant companion and not a bad dog either.

A Beautiful Approach to Country Living.

You drive in through meadows strewn with seasonal wildflowers. But that's only your entry to the good life at The Meadows, The Green Company's new community of attached single family homes in Hingham. The architectural style is true to the farm-house heritage of the community. The construction and detailing have been accomplished with obvious pride.

The Meadows offers a selection of two and three bedroom homes with unexpected details like master suites with private fireplaced sitting areas, large country kitchens for informal entertaining, separate dining rooms for more formal occasions, hidden corners for quiet contemplation, and a mix of ceiling heights and styles. In addition there are large private courtyards, two-car garages, full basements, a swimming pool, whirlpool, tennis courts and a clubhouse. And best of all, this very civilized lifestyle is near major highways to the cultural delights of Boston and vacation areas to the North and South.

Prices range from $157,000 to $210,000 during this, our opening period. Furnished models are open every day from 9 to 5. Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street, one mile to our entrance. Call (617) 740-1500 for an appointment. When it comes to a good life in the country, The Meadows leads the field!

Engagement

Daniels—Blakeslee

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Daniels of Cohasset announce the engagement of their daughter, Kim Elizabeth, to H. James Blakeslee, son of Mrs. Mary Blakeslee of North Haven, Conn., and Mr. Dwight Blakeslee of Wolcott, Conn.

Miss Daniels, a graduate of Cohasset High School, and Mt. Holyoke College, is working on her master's degree in Applied Behavior Analysis at Northeastern University and the Eunice Kennedy Shriver Center. She is employed as a Behavorial Consultant by Metropolitan Beaverbrook Mental Health and Retardation Center in Watertown.

Mr. Blakeslee graduated from North Haven High School, and Connecticut College. He is employed by Lublin, Lublin, Wolfe and Kantor in East Hartford and attends University of Conn. Law School.

An August 6 wedding is planned.

Tinory's song aired

The song entitled "Boston, the Only Place For Me," composed and performed by Rik Tinory will be used on a TV special to be aired on the Today Show, NBC, sometime between 7 and 9 a.m., June 16.

The segment, a special about Boston, will be shown that Thursday morning. The songs, "Boston, the Only Place For Me" and "Remember Ol' Scollay Square," were recently released in sheet music by the Boston Music Company, a division of the Hammerstein Theater Group in New York City.

Obituaries

Joseph McAuliffe

Joseph E. McAuliffe, 76, of Cohasset, retired president of a Boston plumbing and heating supply company died Friday at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute in Boston, after a long illness.

Born in Boston, he lived in Quincy for more than 50 years before he moved to Cohasset about 20 years ago.

Mr. McAuliffe was retired president of McAuliffe & Burke Co. and was well known in the wholesale plumbing and heating supply business for the past 50 years.

He was a member of the Plumbing and Heating Wholesalers of New England and a former chairman of the United Way campaign in Quincy.

A graduate of Boston University, he was a former member of the University Club of Boston and the Boston Athletic Association.

He leaves his wife, Bernadette (McWeeny) McAuliffe; a son, John Joseph McAuliffe of New York City; three daughters, Joan M. McAuliffe and Ellen M. Morrissey of Cohasset and Mary Elizabeth O'Brien of Holden; a brother, John V. McAuliffe; three sisters, Marion A. Lantery of Quincy, Dorothy M. Blanchard of Weymouth and Elizabeth A. Humphreys of Hingham, four grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Tuesday at St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Contributions in his memory may be made to the Dana Farber Cancer Institute or the Jimmy Fund, 44 Binney St., Boston, 02115.

Russell DelGrosso

Russell "Rocky" DelGrosso of Newton, caretaker for 45 years for the Ridges, home of General Edward Logan and formerly of Cohasset was buried last week in Newton.

Rocky, who was a friend to many garden club members and horticulturists on the South Shore died May 29 in the Newton Wellesley Hospital after a brief illness.

In addition to his horticulturist interest, he was an amateur boxer pianist and boccie player. He also was associated with the Boston Beer Company and Perini Corporation.

The funeral mass was held at Our Lady Help of Christians, Newton and burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

He leaves his wife Katherine (Daley,) two daughters Katherine Carta and Alice DelGrosso and a son, Rocco DelGrosso.

He also leaves four brothers, Michael, Ernest and Frederick DelGrosso all of Newton and brother Rocco DeRose of East Boston.

Pauline Kiman

Pauline Elizabeth (Migliaccio) Kiman, 67, of Cohasset died May 28. She was the wife of the late Francis J. Kiman Sr.

She was the mother of Francis J. Kiman Jr. of Roxbury and the sister of Frank J. Migliaccio, Felicia Sinopoli and Stella DiVito, all formerly of Cohasset.

She also leaves many nieces and nephews.

Services were held June 1 from the Sparrell Funeral Home followed by a Mass of Christian Burial in St. Anthony's Church.

Donations may be made in her name to the Visiting Nurses Association of the South Shore, Inc. (Hospice Program), 400 Franklin St., Braintree, 02184.

Burial was in Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

Cohasset Country Fair

The Cohasset Country Fair, featuring exhibits on Arts & Crafts, and on Collectables, Antiques and Attic Treasures will begin its summer season at beautiful Cohasset Common Saturday, June 11 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Displays and craft demonstrations by local artists are planned. Cohasset community organizations will also have exhibits on their activities, including a camping and canoeing exhibit by Cohasset's Boy Scout Troop 28.

There will be a refreshment stand featuring hot dogs and hamburgers, balloons, pop-corn and cotton candy.

The Coca Cola Robot is scheduled from noon to 1 p.m.

The fair is sponsored by the Friends of Troop 28 for the benefit of the Troop's summer program.

Computer seminar

The Cohasset Community Center will offer an "Introductory Seminar on Computers" at the Center, Saturday, June 18 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The course will be taught so students don't have to learn technology or programming languages.

Participation with Apple computers will feature discussion of and practice with word-processing, a spreadsheet and data or list management programs. For information call the Cohasset Community Center, 383-0088, between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Space is limited, so reservations should be made quickly. The program's cost is $30.

Garden Club scholarship

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset has awarded their "Leslie Ann Haynes Scholarship" of $1,000 to John F. Maloney of 12 Woodland Drive, Cohasset. John is a 1983 graduate of Cohasset High School and will pursue his studies in the field of Environmental Sciences at Dartmouth College this fall.

Children creativity class

Mothers living in the Cohasset-Hingham area are invited Sunday, June 12, to learn "How to Encourage Creativity in Children," one of a series of classes for women held weekly at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The classes are free and will be taught by Lonnie Blackwell of Duxbury. They are held every Sunday in the meetinghouse at 379 Gardner St., South Hingham at 9 a.m.

This week's class will discuss ways in which children can develop their creative skills, Mrs. Blackwell said.

"Building a child's self-esteem so that he or she feels his ideas are worth expressing is the most important part of encouraging creativity. Creativity grows from curiosity and iamgination, and parents need to be careful not to squelch that curiosity, but to channel it," Mrs. Blackwell said.

Class discussion will focus on specific ways of encouraging creativity, including the use of drawing and building materials, as well as musical and literary opportunities.

Interested women in the community are invited to attend and contribute their ideas. For information call Mrs. Doggett at 383-1847.

Why is it there are certain people who leap to mind when we need some cookies for the bake sale, a new member for yet another committee, or volunteers for a fundraising drive? Because they are so busy, bustling around to meetings, classes, or errands, they're well-known in the community and we hesitate to approach them, certain that they can't possibly spare the time. Yet these are usually the very ones who say "yes" and somehow squeeze in yet another task. So, I don't know why I was surprised to hear of the luncheon Dorothy Youman's hostessed for 30 board members and volunteers of the Clift Rodgers Library of which she is the librarian; a part-time job she manages to sandwich in between classes at Simmons, running her home, entertaining and travelling with her husband and two children. At the time of the luncheon her mother-in-law, Mary, was visiting and this is the salad she made which drew raves:

RIBBON SALAD

2 pkgs. (¼ oz. each) unflavored gelatin
2½ c. cold water, divided
2 c. milk
½ c. sugar
1 pt. sour cream
2 tsp. vanilla
1 pkg. (3 oz.) each of lime, orange, lemon, cherry or raspberry flavored gelatin
4 c. boiling water, divided

In a small bowl, soften unflavored gelatin in ½ c. of cold water; set aside. In small saucepan, bring milk to boil; remove from heat, add sugar at once and stir to dissolve. Add sour cream, vanilla and softened gelatin mixture to hot milk and beat until creamy. Set aside, but do not refrigerate. In small bowl, dissolve lime gelatin in one cup of boiling water. Stir in ½ cup of cold water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Pour into 9x13" pyrex dish. Refrigerate until set, about one hour, making sure dish is level on refrigerator shelf and that it is entirely set before adding next layer. When lime layer is set, spoon over it one-third of the milk/sour cream mixture, about 1½ cups. Tilt dish so that this layer is evenly distributed. Refrigerate again until white layer is set, approx. 45 min. Dissolve orange gelatin in one cup of boiling water; add ½ cup of the cold water and stir until dissolved. Pour orange layer carefully and refrigerate again about one hour. Repeat process with lemon gelatin, white layer and end with cherry or raspberry, using 1 cup boiling water, ½ cup cold water for each flavor and approx. 1½ milk mixture for each white layer. When completed, chill in refrigerator, covered with plastic, at least four hours before cutting into squares to serve approx. 16 to 20.

Juggling a career with raising two young sons, entertaining and developing original recipes such as the mango ice cream she was making the other day when I talked to Dot Catrambone, puts housework at the bottom of her list of things to do. Twelve years ago when the boys were babies, Dot and her husband, John, bought what we now know as J.C.'s Dairy in Hanover on Rte. 53. A new venture for both, now they have opened their fourth gourmet ice cream shop called "J.C.'s Latest Scoop" in the Market Place at Plymouth Cordage Park. Dot has worked since she was 15 starting in her family's textile business, has always loved to cook, so after doing a lot of homework, their ice cream parlors, offer such delights as oreo cookie, coffee brandy, M & M's and other flavors they have originated. The other night they had dinner for 12 and Dot served this dish which she clipped from an old "Cuisine"magazine. has once served it to 60 guests and likes to make it because it can be made several days ahead of time. Served with wild rice and mushrooms, a spinach salad and guess what, for dessert, it's called

CHICKEN DIJON (To serve 12)

Nine boneless chicken breasts
½ c. flour
1½ tsp. salt, ½ tsp. ground pepper

Dredge chicken in the flour and seasonings. Melt 4 T butter and 4 T vegetable oil in skillet and saute chicken until golden, approximately 10 min. Arrange in single layer in shallow baking pan. Make mustard sauce as follows:

3 T each butter, flour, herbed Dijon Mustard

Melt butter in medium-sized pan. Whisk in flour and mustard. Cook, whisking constantly, until mixture bubbles. Whisk in 1½ c. milk, ¾ c. dry white wine, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. dried tarragon, cooking and whisking constantly until mixture thickens and bubbles, approx. one min. Pour over chicken. Bake covered for 25-30 min. in 350 degree oven.

Here is a quickie sauce Dot serves with the chicken, but also pours over pound cake, ice cream, or cheesecake for a dessert.

1 can whole cranberry sauce, melted
Add 2 T grated orange peel
1 c. orange-flavored liqueur, either Triple Sec or Grand Marnier.
4 slices of chopped orange

Simmer 20 min. Can be prepared day before and keeps when refrigerated for quite some time unless discovered while hidden away.

Bay State Games regional competition deadline June 10

The deadline for entering regional competition for the Bay State Games basketball, swimming, soccer and volleyball tryouts is Friday, June 10. All entries must be postmarked by that date.

The Bay State Games is a 13-sport Olymmpic style festival sponsored by the Governor's Committee on Physical Fitness and Sports. It is open to all amateur athletes in Massachusetts and offers competition in both the scholastic and open divisions. Athletes enter their regional competitions to vie for a chance to compete in the finals. In the case of team sports, the athletes try out for a sport on a regional team.

The finals for the 1983 Bay State Games will be held in Boston and Cambridge August 10-13.

Applications for the Bay State Games are available at schools, Y's, Chambers of Commerce and sports clubs, or by calling (617) 727-3227 or (413) 739-5609.

Valedictorian speech

Here is the Valedictory speech given by Cohasset High School Senior Gia Barresi.

It's ironic that many of us legally become adults while still in high school. Along with our 18th birthday come all the rights and privileges traditionally given to an adult. We're expected to meet with each new challenge and responsibility that's thrust upon us. Yet, in fact, it's not until graduation that one becomes aware of the extent of these new challenges and responsibilities. In high school we're constantly told of these responsibilities and are supposedly preparing for them, but it's upon graduation that we're actually forced to deal with them.

Over the last four years, the entire world has been changing while we've been in this cocoon-stage of our lives. Our immediate environment, including our school and community as well as the state, country, and world, has undergone drastic changes. On the world level we've seen the coming of the computer age; we've heralded scientific miracles like the test-tube baby and the plastic heart; we've agonized over the Iranian hostage crisis; and we've anquished over the nuclear arms struggle.

Nationally, we've lived under two different presidents, seen the rise of unemployment, and watched the growth of the recession.

Locally, we've felt the effects of Proposition 2½, grieved over the increase in the drinking age, and weathered the Blizzard of '78.

Changes have come about even in our seemingly most stable environment - the school. New championship banners have been added to our somewhat sparse collection; the demerit system has been abandoned; the computer field has been developed; a new superintendent has come to the school; a girls' soccer team has been established; and we've seen the birth of the all-school musical and the death of the marching band.

Just as life changes, so does our perspective of it from this day forth. We will become scientists, lawyers, and so-called "doers" who precipitate the changes that until now we've just read about. We will become adults in more than a legal sense. It's our turn to reach for our own goals and shoulder our own responsibilities.

But isn't that the point of high school - to prepare us in every way possible to enter society outside of our own families, town, and school? And hasn't Cohasset High School prepared us well for this second stage of our lives?

Perhaps it's with a sense of loss that we leave Cohasset High School, this place where so many of our experiences and memories have been created. It's with difficulty that we leave the stability and routine of our lives behind.

In our enjoyment of all the parties, proms, and homecomings, we never realized that high school is more than just a special time in everyone's life - it is a stairway that each of us ascends without being aware of either where it leads or how quickly the door at the top is reached; but now we must pass through that door.

No doubt, part of us will always be in Cohasset High School, but more importantly part of Cohasset High School will always be in us.

Selectmen briefs . . .

Lieut. Charles Stockbridge retired from the Police Department June 3, following his (scheduled) vacation. He began his 28-year term as a permanent intermittent patrolman. In his letter of resignation to the Board of Selectmen, Stockbridge said he has started working in private security.

Study Committee Applications

The deadline for applications to serve on the Municipal Garage Facilities Study Committee is June 15. Five members will be appointed by selectmen. They hope to include one architect and one civil engineer on the committee.

Health Insurance

Two bids for health insurance coverage for the town employees were accepted for review at the Board of Selectmen's meeting, June 1. Group Health Insurance and Health Maintenance will be examined by the Board for possible adoption. The bid from Blue Cross Blue Shield, the current carrier, was submitted 15 minutes after the posted deadline and, after some discussion, was rejected. The current coverage expires June 30.

COUNCIL ON AGING

Selectmen recently made the following appointments to the Council on Aging: Mary Donovan and John Mullett were reappointed to three-year terms, and Dorothea Bjorkland was named to a three-year term.

Elizabeth Glasfeld's Salutatorian speech

Here is the Salutatorian speech given by Cohasset High School Senior Elizabeth Glasfeld.

Dear school committee members, Mr. Crowell, Mr. Streeter, Mr. D., faculty, classmates, and friends:

I have been asked up here today to talk about the future of our class. But since I've had little experience in predicting the future, I find this task to be very difficult.

As an aid, I've decided to use the words of a man much more experienced with life than I. The man - Horace, a Roman poet writing during the rule of Augustus Caesar. The words - "carpe diem" (sieze the day.) This philosophy simply means that we should enjoy and take advantage of what we have today; make the most of whatever we do. If tomorrow we realize that what seems best today is no longer so, we must start again.

Many people, myself included, look to the future and become bewildered. All that can be seen is widespread unemployment and the very real possibility of all life on earth being annihilated in a nuclear war. Though the ancient Romans didn't face the same problems, what Horace said to them can still be applied to today. Live in the present! Enjoy what you do today - and I'm not talking about mechanically going to the beach every night, but instead about finding something in life which interests you.

The most important part is that there be some "interest," something to delight in. If it brings pleasure to work on some project now, then perhaps tomorrow it could lead to some job in a related field which would also give satisfaction. We shouldn't worry about the future now, just face each day and see where it leads. Just as a fascination with the disection of a fetal pig might lead to a career in medicine, so can the fascination with cars be the start of a very good mechanics job.

Even somebody who has an overriding obsession with homonyms, as one of the seniors graduating today seems to have, could possibly direct a person into research, similar to that needed for dictionaries, or into writing.

Now is the time to take advantage of our individual situations and try to seek out those areas that appear most intriguing today and that might hold interest for tomorrow. For those of us continuing our education, colleges establish the proper atmosphere for this "quest," with most of them requiring that a broad selection in courses be made so that even the most pig-headed of students must be forced to experiment. Each of us should examine all of the possibilities in order to find an area we enjoy.

For those of us entering the job market, we ourselves must establish an atmosphere of job exploration. If the first job proves unsatisfying, we must not be afraid to go out and try something else. Some of us might worry only about the pay involved, but money cannot replace the happiness that the wrong job has drained out of us.

In general, whether heading towards college or directly to a job, we must be flexible and try things we've never done before. The posibility of failure should be ignored; even if one does fail, we can learn from it.

We must seize the opportunities while we have them. All that can be expected of anyone is that he try to do his best. Those who settle for less within themselves will achieve less for themselves.

Golf team upsets Duxbury

The 1983 CHS golf team led by junior captain John Drago had an outstanding season, upsetting Duxbury to tie for the South Shore League championship with a 9-1 record.

After clinching the co-championship, the Skippers qualified for the state tournament and will sponsor the state semifinals this Thursday, June 9 at the Cohasset Golf Club.

John Drago, a three-year veteran, stands undefeated in the team's number one spot. Sophomore Troy Chatterton and freshman Jeff Hartwell both hold onto impressive records of 7-3.

Other members of the varsity squad are juniors Charlie Brady, Jim Rooney, Mike Cunning, Steve McMahon and sophomore Chris Powers.

The team is coached by CHS faculty member Jim Franey.

"The past two years have found me with little time to cultivate an active social life due to a rapid growth in my career and professional life. Since my day is long work-wise and my job is demanding – there is little time left to seek the social life that I would like. That's where Together came in. I respected their honesty, integrity and professionalism from the very start. As a result, I have met several people with the same interests and goals in life – not to mention the great times we have shared. Indeed, Together has filled a very important part of my life."

"I'm a busy professional and both my career and social life are important to me. I don't go to bars and I don't date people I work with. For me, Together has been an economical and time-saving way of meeting other compatible single adults. The counselors are sincerely concerned with introducing me to the kind of person I would like to meet. I recommend this service highly."

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Plymouth Division
Docket No. 135,279

NOTICE OF FIDUCIARY'S ACCOUNT

To all persons interested in the estate of MARY J. DIXON late of Marshfield, in said County, deceased.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the first and final account of Mario Misci and James L. Smithson, as special administrators (the fiduciary) of said estate has been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Brockton, on or before the twenty-seventh day of June, 1983, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account. If you desire to object to any item of said account, you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

WITNESS, James R. Lawton, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this second day of June, 1983.

Pompeo sells medical building

The James Brooke Medical Building has recently been sold by Dr. Roger Pompeo to Mrs. Dorothy Abbe of Squantum.

Built in 1976 by Dr. Pompeo, this 5,100 square foot building is located in Cohasset Center at 12 Parkingway. Mrs. Abbe intends no major changes to the property. Dr. Pompeo will retain his offices on the first floor, as will the second floor tenants, Dr. O'Brien and J. Crossen. Ltd.

Robert Conrad, who represented both parties in the transaction said, "There was tremendous interest in this property due largely to the fact that it is attractive and centrally located in a quiet suburban town."

The selling price was reported to be $295,000.

Gia Barresi did more than just sports

By Theresa Sullivan

Confidence, humility and sincere concern for others. Anyone could accept a person with this combination of traits.

But when that person also happens to have been selected for the All Stars teams in three different sports, as well as graduating as the valedictorian of her class, you've got one unusual young woman.

Gia Barresi, 17, is the daughter of Joseph and Velma Barresi of Brewster Rd. The 1983 Cohasset High School graduate received her education in the Cohasset schools.

"I really like Cohasset High School," Gia said. "I think I got a really good education. It prepared me well." Gia plans to attend Harvard University this fall.

But, she contends, she did not receive a solid education by osmosis. "I worked very hard. I've always done my (school) work. It all depends on what you put into it."

Gia said she enjoys learning, "but I like sports better. My whole family is so sports-oriented." At age 10, Gia became the first girl in Cohasset to join Little League. "I've been playing baseball since I couldd remember."

During her senior year, Gia was a tri-captain of the field hockey team and captain of both the basketball and softball teams.

When asked what sport she prefers, Gia said: "If you talked to me in December, I'd say basketball; if you talked to me in April, I'd say softball."

She also likes football, that is powder puff football. She played in the senior girls-junior girls contest this year.

Between sports and studies, Gia served as treasurer of her class, treasurer of the National Honor Society, secretary of the yearbook and she sang in the chorus for the senior class play. "I love to sing, but I don't have a nice voice," she said with a grin.

Gia's talent and hard work did not go unnoticed. She s the recipient of the Cohasset Boosters Club scholarship for $400, the James Nichol scholarship for $300, the Harvard Book Award, the U.S. Army's National Scholar Athlete Award and the Rotary Club of Cohasset Award.

Perhaps the award which most fully captures Gia's enthusiasm is the "Hot" Sullivan Award given to the senior with the most school spirit.

Gia said she appreciates the recognition and compliments bestowed upon her. "I'm happy with myself; I think I've been very lucky," she said.

However, she became upset when discussing the effect her success has had on her peers.

"I think it's hard for my friends. I'm on team sports and it's always a team effort. But I'll get credit a lot of times. I'm happy for myself, but then I feel sorry for them."

LOOKING AHEAD

Gia applied to Bowdoin College and Williams College, to which she was accepted, and Brown University, where she was put on a waiting list. She chose Harvard because of its academic strength and proximity to Cohasset. And, it offers her the opportunity to play basketball and softball.

She stayed at Harvard for a few days over February vacation. Gia found that most of the students were "basically just like me," not the stereotypical bookworms she had heard about.

At this point, her field of study is undecided.

"I really don't stand out in one area," Gia said. "I think being a lawyer would be interesting, and I like psychology. I don't know."

Gia is employed part-time at Corner Meat in Cushing Plaza. She plans to play on a softball team this summer. She intends to just enjoy spending time with her parents and older brother Paul. "We have a very close family," she said. "I'm lucky."

CHS salutorian is Elizabeth Glasfeld

The 1983 CHS Salutorian had nothing but praise for her education in the Cohasset school system.

"With the exception of one or two teachers, Cohasset High was an excellent school," said Elizabeth Glasfeld, 18, of 35 Rust Way.

"My biology teacher gets so excited about what he's teaching, that he really made me excited about biology," she said. Elizabeth was awarded the Bausch and Lomb Award for excellence in science.

Elizabeth said she took five years of Latin because she learned so much from the teacher. "He really shaped me. He really made me think about things (world issues)."

She studied an average of two hours a night. "I've gotten the hang of where I don't have to study," she said. "In the classes I like, I studied as much as I wanted to. I try to have fun when I study."

Besides studying, Elizabeth found time to play field hockey and basketball during her four years at CHS. She was chosen to play on the All Star field hockey team and played in the powder puff football game between the junior and senior girls.

Elizabeth plans to attend Havorford College in Pennsylvania this fall. She chose Havorford for its size—1,000 full-time students—and its proximity to Brynmawar College, a sister school. Both colleges are liberal arts colleges.

Although she is undecided about her major, Elizabeth is leaning toward the sciences. "But," she says, "I don't want to be confined to a room. I want the flexibility to work outside."

She said that growing up in Cohasset has taught her to appreciate the ocean and greenery. She plans to spend her summer on the beach, reading a number of books suggested by her teachers.

Elizabeth, the daughter of Rolf and Elizabeth Glasfeld, has three brothers, Arthur, Michael and Andrew, and a twin sister, Emily.

Emily graduated from Cohasset High School Sunday also, and plans to attend Colby-Sawyer College in New London, N.H. to study child care.

"The Last of the Chosen People"
By Rev. Edward Atkinson
First Parish Church

The Biblical Concept of a Chosen People is a mixed blessing. We may be inspired by the dramatic story of Moses empowering a motley group of slaves to defy the tyrant Pharaoh by telling them they were God's special people. But we may also shrink in horror at the later story of how those same people, believing that God had chosen them, took the land of Cannan by force and murdered its inhabitants.

On the other hand a certain measure of pride and self-confidence is essential to moral conduct. You would not want someone to follow the Golden Rule if they had no self regard. On the other hand, excessive pride can lead to arrogance and bigotry.

What we must come to understand is that all people are chosen of God, and not one special people over against another. Too long has Earth suffered from the ravages of those whose narrow sense of national pride leads them to believe that they are superior to others.

On our ever shrinking planet we can no longer afford to have any of these kind of Chosen People or soon we will hve no people at all.

In the spirit of breaking down barriers between people Ground Zero, a U.S. organization working for peace, has initiated a project to pair U.S. and Soviet communities toward the end of promoting understanding between our people and the people of the Soviet Union. For this purpose Cohasset has been matched with the town of Kuybysher Tatar, USSR, a community some 350 miles east of Moscow on the Volga River. Those who would be interested in learning more about this project and helping with it, please call the church office at 383-1100.

Cox Estate sold to Yankee Oil & Gas Co.

By Patricia Anne Walsh

The famous Cox estate at 49 Margin St.has been sold to an oil and gas company.

Paul Montle of Hingham, a partner in Yankee Oil and Gas Inc. with corporate headquarters in Boston said Tuesday he has signed an "unconditional' purchase and sales agreement for the Cox estate.

An unconditional purchase and sales agreement, according to Montle, means he will execute the purchase without a zoning variance.

Montle said his firm is hoping to get permission from the appeals board and other town boards for office space for l5 to l8 executives and move the headquarters out of Boston.

The estate is now zoned residential but Montle would like it "rezoned for offices."

"We would not make any changes to the outside of the building and want to preserve the grounds,"Montle said.

He added, "We plan to make only minor changes inside the house, mainly to restore it to the beautiful condition in which Jessie Cox kept it."

A great number of people have toured and shown interest in purchasing the building. They include developer Joseph Crossen, real estate investor Clark Chatterton (CHS Athletic Director) the Cohasset Community Center and the South Shore Art Center.

Also interested were friends of Walter Winchester who arrived in the harbor recently on a 53-foot boat and an attorney from Sullivan and Webb who explored converting the mansion to l2 condominiums.

John Roy, owner of Kimballs By The Sea Inn, had signed a purchase and sale agreement and had hoped to use the estate for conferences.

The property had been advertised for sale in excess of $1 million.

Disclosure in real estate transactions requires the seller to give the buyer information on known defects such as termite destruction.

On Dec.26, l957,the brick dwelling suffered a fire with an estimated total loss value of $290,000. This resulted in $ll0,000 to the building and $180,000 to the contents of the house.

The fire started in the living room from a high resistance short circuit and may have been burning for 2½ to three hours. Curtains, drapes and nearby overstuffed chairs were ignited and the fire eventually spread to the second and third floors.

Building Inspector Robert Dennis said the third floor beams were slightly charred "only one sixteenth to one-eighth inch deep."

He stressed there was not structural damage to the beams.The lingering smoke odor was caused by the burning cork insulation materials.

The third floor has recently been renovated and

Housemother Davis was more than an aide

By Karin Bartow

Mary Davis' official title at the Joseph Osgood School is clerical aide, but "Housemother" is a more apt term for what she has done for the past 15 years.

Her job ends at the close of school next week; the position was eliminated from the school budget this year.

Osgood Principal Jack Creamer says he doesn't know how they're going to cover the things she does.

Many of her duties will be performed by Creamer, school secretary Rita Broderick and other staff.

But what Davis has done beyond her job description, where it leaves off and the person takes over, will never be duplicated.

The position of "Housemother" is unique and irreplaceable. "She bandages the children when they're hurt and comforts them when they're sad," Marie Price explains.

"Mary has touched people's lives more than we know about," Helen Pratt, physical education teacher says. "All of us use her as a resource. She's a real source of knowledge."

Davis' duties as clerical aide include such things as meeting the morning buses, taking attendance, running back and forth to the high school for copying, setting up and serving lunches (often a three hour task), assisting with indoor recess, supplies, and filling in in every conceivable capacity, from a classroom to the nurse's room to the library.

Davis admits modestly, "I take a lot of duties on myself." On many occasions Creamer asks, "Now who does that?" and the answer often is "Mary does."

Housing lack jeopardizes sewer grant

Cohasset's applications for sewer and water system rehabilitation grants are in jeopardy unless selectmen agree to sign an agreement for low-income family housing development.

The state office of Communities and Development, in a letter, informed officials the town "appears to be unreasonably restrictive regarding low-income development."

She noted "no community will be denied (grant) funding until it has been given a full opportunity to resolve this issue."

Ford said one way the issue might be resolved is for the town to execute an agreement which would outline the town's housing strategy. This would indicate a specific time within which the plan would be implemented to broaden housing opportunities for lower-income families.

The agreement must be assigned by selectmen, and endorsed by the housing authority and planning board.

Selectman Frank England said, "The letter was on the bottom of our packet, and we did not get to discuss it at our last meeting." He says he knows of no way in which Cohasset has stopped any developer from erecting such housing. other residents say they feel the town is being "blackmailed."

Water Commissioner Peter Pratt said such housing is the federal law, but it is implemented by the states through grant administration. "At stake, as far as the Water Dept. is concerned, is $221,000 in matching grant funds from the state for our Atlantic Avenue water lines rehabilitation," he said, "in addition to grants being sought by the sewer department."

Line break disrupts telephone service in Cohasset

By Mike Berger

A break into telephone lines at the Route 3A Rotary intersection in Hingham caused many Cohasset and Scituate telephone customers to be without service Monday and Tuesday.

The construction incident occurred about 2 p.m. Monday.

Jackie Jung of New England Telephone said 66 Cohasset customers had no dial tone and Scituate customers were only able to call on a limited basis.

The 66 customers in Cohasset had no dial tone and were not able to call or receive calls. Jung said these customers were restored service on a gradual basis and all of the customers were to have l00 percent service by 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Jung said the Cohasset Police and Fire Departments were not affected.

Police Chief Joseph Kealey and Fire Chief Martin Dooley said both departments were not affected. Dooley said firefighters were not able to make any out of town calls.

Scituate residents were able to call within town on a limited basis. Many phone callers found a constant busy signal or a slow busy signal.

A mobile telephone unit was established at the Scituate police station to help both towns maintain emergency out-of town phone service.

All of Scituate was restored by Tuesday morning, Jung said.

She reported extensive damage was caused by the construction break of the long distance trunk lines

S.S. transportation

The South Shore Transportation Caucus will meet Tuesday, July 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Barnes Auditorium at Hingham Town Hall.

State Sen. Allan R. McKinnon and State Rep. Frank M. Hynes, co-chairman of the caucus, will host the meeting.

The meeting will address concerns South Shore commuters may have and the effects of the upcoming Southeast Expressway reconstruction. The meeting should provide as much information as possible on transportation plans and alterntives for commuters during the period of reconstruction.

Guest speakers will include Mr. Michael Meyer, Director of Planning for the state Dept. of Public Works as well as representatives from other state transportation agencies. Meyer will oversee the Southeast Expressway reconstruction project for the DPW.

McKinnon said, "Every effort is being made by state transportation officials and public officials to facilitate a plan that will maximize the options of South Shore commuters and minimize inconveniences that will inevitably be experienced during the time of the reconstruction.

Hynes encourages residents to attend and use the meeting as a forum to air their concerns.

Keep Well Clinics

Two Keep Well Clinics will be held during June: Thursday, June 16 at the First Parish Church from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and Wednesday, June 22, 10 a.m. to noon at Harborview Housing, 60 Elm St.

Blood pressure screening, urine testing, TB testing and general health consultation will be available.

The Social Service League office is located at 16 Highland Avenue. The office hours are: Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. and noon to 1 p.m. The services are free to Cohasset residents.

Young Democrat elections

The Young Democrats of Norfolk County will hold annual elections June 29.

The executive board positions of president, vice-president, treasurer, secretary and affirmative action officer are open.

Those who are interested in running for any of the positions, please send a letter of intent to: Dick Stagnone, Nominating Committee Chairman, 16 Sprague Ave., Holbrook, MA 02343.

Please have letters postmarked no later than June 23. Those who have any questions or would like information please call: Dick Simmons at 359-7446 or Dick Stagnone, 767-2747.

Fingerprinting

Saturday, June 18 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Cohasset Community Center, the fingerprinting service for school-age children will be offered by the Boy Scouts.

They will be supervised by Gerald McNabb, who is volunteering his services for his Eagle Scout project.

Participation is voluntary and free of charge, independent of the school department and police station.

The prints will be taken and handed to the parents. No record of the parents or the names of children involved will be kept.

Health Ed. Advisory

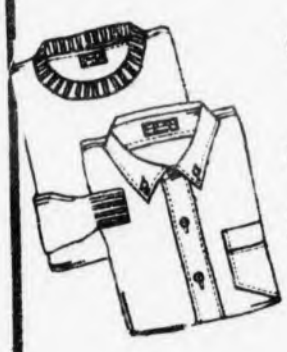
The Cohasset Community Health Education Advisory Committee met May 26 to conclude their work for this school year and begin planning for next year.

During the school year, the Health Education Department implemented new programs and updated its curriculum in many areas. Health Coordinator Michael Gill worked with Joan Hassol from the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office to establish a program for students on child abuse and sexual assault awareness.

A new course, "Marriage and Family Living," will be introduced for high school seniors in the fall. This course was developed in response to a large numnber of requests from students.

The Health dept. and the Health Advisory Committee greatly appreciate the community support given to their recent forum on teen drinking practices. A number of ideas have been proposed in an effort to decide what can be done to help alleviate the problem.

Some of these suggestions include support groups for parents and students, additional programs for parents and students and adding adjustment counseling in the schools.



During the summer and early fall the Health Dept. will be researching the feasibility of implementing some of these ideas. Any further suggestions from members of the community will be gratefully received.

Ideas may be submitted to Michael Gill at the Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School, 383-6107, to Nancy Clapp, 383-0987 or Carol Sandblom, 383-1812.

Cox Estate

Montle said disclosure has been made to him regarding the fire.

He added it "would be a shame" to convert the estate to condominiums and stresses he wants to preserve the site.

Montle said his firm specialized in oil and gas exploration in the west and midwest regions of the U.S.

Only the company's headquarters are in Boston."We do not run fuel oil trucks or LNG Tankers,"he said.

One of the firm's executives Paul Culotta lives on Fairoaks Lane in Cohasset.

The estate includes over six acres and the total 1983 assessment is $365,000. Taxes are $20,257 annually but it is expected the property will be revalued higher under the new 100 percent reassessment procedure.

The estate is mostly surrounded by water with spectacular ocean views. It has a boathouse, pool, tennis courts and greenhouses.

Hugh Bancroft had the residence designed by an architect in 1921 as a wedding present for his daughter, Jessie Cox. The house occupies the site of a former residence owned by Jessie Cox's grandfather. This was later demolished.

If a child misses a bus or is not picked up, Davis is the one who drives him or her home. She gives out medication. She's the versatile substitute.

Price, a first grade teacher, recalls how Davis took over her class one day and routinely handled a child who had a diabetic problem. The doctor was contacted, the child medicated, and everything was under control when Price returned.

Davis applied for the clerical position in 1968. She first worked with Kay Mulcahy until Creamer took over. She could have moved into the secretarial position, but didn't have shorthand skills. What she did have is a human capacity to comfort, advise, befriend, support.

"Children feel very warm toward her with the assurance that they'll get resolution to their problems," Creamer says. He likens her to the mother image at the school. "The child is at home and 'someone is taking care of me.' "

Why Davis is very special begins with the person — strong, loving, intelligent, caring, faithful. She grew up in Dorchester, one of 10 children. She raised eight of her own. She's been "Housemother" to Cohasset's littlest school children for the past 15 years.

She is a devout Catholic and her faith is the taut, anchored type that brings comfort as well as strength.

Like everyone in the school, Faith Bowker notes Davis' deep faith. "I've always found Mary to be uplifting (because of it). She is always willing to do more, with such a lovely smiling way about her.

Pratt says Davis would never impose her beliefs on anyone, but "she exposes you to them" as much by her example of living as anything.

Another source of sustenance for Davis has been her six year involvement with Al-Anon. She says her association with the organization, a support group for families of alcoholics, has changed her attitude towards children, including her own. The Al-Anon creed teaches that you can't control people's lives; that when you let go of children, you don't detach from them, just from their problems. She finds that this new attitude has helped her to enjoy children more.

Davis has also sustained personal tragedy. Her husband, who had suffered an industrial accident which left him totally deaf, and for many years discouraged, died a few years ago. She also lost a 26 year-old son in 1969.

More recently, but with happier consequences, a seriously ill diabetic son, Daniel, received his identical twin brother Donald's kidney.

Six months ago Donald and his wife Donna had a son, Craig, Davis' first grandchild. It surprises her that after coming from such a large family, raising her own large family, and supporting the Osgood family, that she has waited so long for her first grandchild

Davis is quick to say that the Osgood community has been very good to her and supportive through two deaths. "They've been almost like a family to me."

In spite of all that Osgood and the job mean to Davis, she says she is not sad about leaving. "I'm ready for a change."

Pratt said Davis has handled losing her job with an attitude that does't allow for bitterness, remorse or regret. "She's one of those people who never thinks the grass is greener somewhere else. She always feels good about somebody's good fortune."

If her friends look upon her job loss as good fortune, they will share Davis' outlook. She is not going to sit home idly. She wants to work part-time. She loves the beach and yard sales. She enjoys sitting in her yard and taking in her surroundings. She used to sing with the Sweet Adelines and may rejoin the group. She has an organ at home which she likes to play.

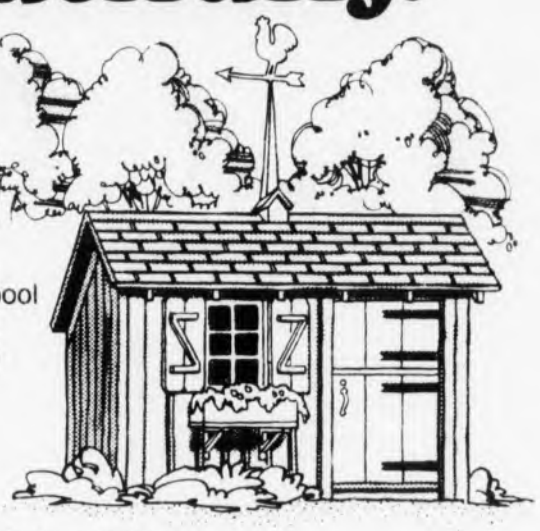
Davis has her religion, her friends and family.

In each daughter, son, and son- or daughter-in-law, she takes pride. She accepts and loves.

In addition to the twins, there is Catherine who lives in Cohasset and is in publishing, Maryann and Edward Kelly of South Boston, Paul, the "free spirit" on Beacon Hill, Tommy, a salesman in Baltimore, and Mark, who lives in Weymouth.

Donald and Donna live on Elm Court; Daniel is married to Judy and they live in Vermont where they take care of a youngster with MS.

One of the many things that has given Davis pleasure at Osgood, and she chuckles that she will miss it, is that



Mary Davis, a clerical aid at Osgood School, will retire after 15 years of service. Here she poses with Mrs. Price's first grade class. (Derr photo)

"You don't ever feel old here. The children don't know how old we are!"

Creamer is very sad about the loss of Davis' job, about the greater loss that her leaving means. "Her duties permeate the entire day," he says.

Her concern for others, both children and adults, is the part of "clerical aide" that couldn't be replaced even if the position were reinstated.

'Down in the Valley' set for Friday

Toe-taping American folk music and tongue-twisting Gilbert and Sullivan patter songs will mingle Friday and Saturday evenings, June 17 and 18 in the Cohasset High School Auditorium. The choir and friends of the Second Congregational Church of Cohasset will perform another of their musical shows. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Tickets are $3 and may be purchased from members of the choir or at the door. Free refreshments will follow the show.

Feature of this year's production will be "Down in the Valley," a short opera by Kurt Weill based on four familiar American folk songs woven into the love story of Jennie and Brack.

It includes a lively "Saturday Night Dance at Shadow Creek." Weill is the composer of many hit musicals, including "Three Penny Opera," "Lady in the Dark," "The Touch of Venus" and "Knickerbocker Holiday."

In addition to the mini-opera, a 30-member cast will present over a dozen encores from their previous four Gilbert & Sullivan productions: "H.M.S. Pinafore," "The Mikado," "Pirates of Penzance," and "The Sorcerer."

These include some of the most popular and difficult Gilbert & Sullivan hits, done in costume and with appropriate choreography.

The show is another production of the church's musical director and organist, Ellen Fryling, who is known on the South Shore as a musician and impressario. Starting in her college years, she has produced most of the 14 Gilbert & Sullivan operattas and has performed the leading contralto roles.

She has also played piano or cello for various Broadway musicals presented in the Boston and South Shore areas.

Fryling, a North Scituate native and resident is equally well known for producing and directing the exceedingly popular "Messiah Sing" each fall which attracts a full house of amateur vocalists and fills the Congregational Church with strains of Handel's masterpiece.

She is a professional accompanist and a member of the Hingham Civic Orchestra of where she was principal cellist for 18 years.

Her husband, Owen, was bass soloist for Old Ship Church in Hingham for 28 years and is performming the role of police sergeant in the "Pirates of Penzance" segment of the Gilbert & Sullivan encores in this week's show.

Augmenting the choir and others from the church are a number of talented singers and dancers from Scituate, Norwell, Marshfield and other South Shore towns who have established reputations in the musical world of this area.

The lead of "Down in the Valley" will be played by Norman T. Shaw of Weymouth, who has been seen and heard in many Gilbert & Sullivan and other musicals presented by the Hingham Civic Music Theatre, and the Young at Heart Theatre,.

Playing opposite him will be Jeanne Scammell of Norwell, soloist at the First Parish Church in Cohasset, and a participant in shows of the North River Community Club, the Unicorn Singers, the Duxbury Bay Palyers and the Milton Women's Club.

Other major roles in the folk opera will be taken by Philip Von Iderstein of Marshfield, Tom Myers of Cohasset and Robert MacNeill of Hingham. Features in the Gilbert & Sullivan encores will be Louise Flint, Al Sencabaugh, Maryjean Von Iderstein, Evan Bailey, John Rice, Dorothy Myers, Letitia Jordan, Louise Smullen and Jeanne Scammell.

John Rice, who is performing one of the Gilbert & Sullivan patter songs, is also directing "Down in the Valley". He is well known in the area for his performances in and direction of many stage and musical productions by local amateur groups.

Joan Kenney of Cohasset, is not only choreographing the show but will present a pantomime of a "Mikado" character. Costuming is by Susan Parker of Cohasset.

Joyce, 22 Virginia Lane, B.B.A. in marketing; Jocelyn Ann Kennedy, 41 Stevens Lane, B.S. in communication studies; Joseph Francis McLean, 31 Howe Rd., B.S. in geography; William M. O'Brien, 25 Cedar Acres Lane, B.B.A. in management; Ann Marie O'Rourke, 45 Beechwood St., B.S. in sociology; James Matthew Porter, 61 Elm St., B.S. in economics; Daniel Terrence Prendergast, 235 No. Main St., B.S. in communication studies; Amy Poebuck, 312 Beechwood St., B.S. in environmental design and Lydia Ann Trettis, 72 Elm St., B.S. in communication studies.

☐Two Cohasset students have earned Dean's List honors for the spring 1982 semester at Syracuse University. They are Robert H. Fessler, a sophomore, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Fessler of 56 Forest Ave., and Joseph F. Perroncello, a senior and son of Joseph Perroncello of 109 Pleasant St.

Robert is an Engineering major and Joseph majored in Management.

☐Christopher John Abbruzzese of 90 Old Pasture Rd., was awarded a bachelor of arts degree recently at Bowdoin College. Abbruzzese, a graduate of Deerfield Academy, majored in Economics at Bowdoin and has been a Dean's List student. A four-year varsity letter winner in football, Abbruzzese won the William Robinson Howland Memorial Trophy , an award given to that senior who has shown "marked improvement on the field of play and aggressiveness and enthusiasm for the game." During his senior year, he was also selected to the 1982 CBB (Colby, Bates and Bowdoin) Conference all-star team, and to the ECAC weekly football Honor Roll. Abbruzzese also earned varsity numerals and varsity letters in lacrosse. During his senior year, Abbruzzese was a co-founder of "A Better College," (ABC), an organization dedicated to improving relations among various ethnic and cultural groups on campus. He was a starter on Bowdoin's 1983 ECAC Division III Championship Team which defeated Middlebury, 11-8, to win its second title in three years.

☐Three Cohasset students graduated from Boston College High School recently. They are: John Bertoni, Christopher Kelley and Brian O'Leary.

☐Two Cohasset students graduated from Connecticut College recently and were awarded Bachelor of Arts degrees. They are Martha Marie Bitsberger, daughter of Rev. Donald E. Bitsberger of Hammond St. and Eva F. Bitsberger of Boston, MA. Major: Psychology based Human Relations. Honors: Phi Peta Kappa, cum laude.

Elisabeth Anne Sheehy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel P. Sheehy of 57 Jerusalem Drive also graduated from Connecticut College. Her major was Psychology.

☐Laura Connor of Cohasset graduated recently from U.Mass.-Boston, Gerontology Program. She hopes to become an advocate for the elderly in Cohasset and has found the program in Gerontology most interesting and rewarding.

☐Gordon Flint of Cohasset was elected president and director of the Northeast Bank N.A. of Farmington, Maine.

He started his banking career with the Old Colony Trust Company in Boston in 1968, and joined the Trust and Investment Divisionj of Northeast Bank in Lewiston, Maine in 1973, where his most recent position was vice president and trust officer.

Flint, a Cohasset native, graduated from Cohasset High School and Bowdoin College. He also attended the National Graduate Trust School held at Northwestern University.

He is currently a director of the Maine Bankers Association and the Maine Estate Planning Council.

Active in Bowdoin Alumni affairs, he was selected as an Outstanding Young Man of America by the Jaycees in 1971. He is married to the former Patricia Skehan, also of Cohasset and are the parents of three children, Andrew, Peter and Sarah.

☐Lisa Wetzell was awarded a bachelor of arts degree in Psychology at Ithaca College recently. She is the daughter of George and Linda Wetzell of 56 Jerusalem Rd.

☐Karen Pompeo of Cohasset is a recent graduate of Archbishop Williams High School.

☐Don Beale did it again! He ran a successful tournament last week at Hatherly Country Club for the Mike Giglio Scholarship Fund, put on by Mahoney and Wright Insurance Agency. According to Don, the weather was beautiful, the course great, the dinner (catered by Carmen) delicious, and all 120 golfers had a good day. The winners were Tommy Stone, Gerry Stone, Ned Riley, and Ted Scott. The Scholarship will be awarded in Scituate and Cohasset. It's a nifty way for everyone to participate.

Soccer boosters

There will be an organizational meeting to form the Cohasset Soccer Boosters Club at the Community Center Wednesday, June 15.

Those interested in advancing boys and girls soccer in Cohasset are encouraged to attend.

50's dance June 24

Do you remember "American Bandstand," the Jitterbug, the hula hoop, "Greasers," dance contests and poodle skirts?

Dance and laugh through that era again at the Cohasset Community Center, Friday, June 24 from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. This will be the evening that Mr. Music, a local DJ will emcee a Fifties Night of dance, music and activities.

Dubbed "Rock 'N Bowl," the latest in a series of Community Center dances promises lots of fun and nostalgia.

All the public rooms at the Center will be opened for the event.

Because of a cash bar, admission must be restricted to adults.

Tickets are now on sale at the Center, 383-0088 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

All board members will also have tickets, or call 383-0142 after Center office hours. The price of the 1950's style: $6 per couple.

Red Cross swim lessons

The American Red Cross swimming lesson registration will be held Saturday, June 18, from 9 to 11:30 a.m. at the Cohasset Swim Center.

Courses offered range from Advanced and Basic Water Rescue to Beginner Class. Children planning to enter kindergarten in September may be registered for classes.

There are two sessions for the advanced programs, June 27 to July 27, and July 27 to August 26.

There will be three sessions for swimming instruction in Beginner A through Swimmers.

The first session will be held June 27 to July 15. The second session will be July 18 to August 5, and the third session August 5 to 26.

Library Friends' annual meeting

The members of the Friends of the Cohasset Library are invited to a brief annual meeting at the Library, Wednesday, June 22 at 4:30 p.m.

The meeting will last about 15 minutes. Business includes reports by the president, Lucille McLoughlin, and by treasurer, June Hubbard.

The meeting is also called to elect officers for the coming year and to vote on a propsoed change in the bylaws so the fiscal year will begin July 1 instead of May 1.

At the Friend's board meeting June 13, President Lucille McLoughlin reported that the recent book sale raised $770 which will be used to support library services. She reported 50 people attended the recent luncheon for library volunteers. In other business, the Friends' board appointed Thomas Williams to head a bylaw review committee.

Selectmen briefs...

BEECHWOOD PLAY AREA

Planning will begin on a basketball court and children's recreation area at the former site of the Beechwood fire station. Selectmen approved the planning, but no definite action will be taken yet.

The Recreation, Park and Highway departments have volunteered their time and labor to construct a half-court with a basketball hoop, a hop scotch game and possibly a fence to separate the area from a nearby baseball field.

Funds from the interest of the Beechwood Improvement Recreational Trust could be used, Executive Seccretary Mark Lanza said.

Selectman John DeBassio suggested investigating the safety of the area, citing the possibility of an open septic tank located somewhere in that area.

Appropriate step

It is not unusual for residents to lose a few friends after having served on a public board.

That is because of the nature of the decisions public officials must make.

Some public decisions are difficult to make and a case in point is the wine and champagne application sought by the South Shore Playhouse (Music Circus).

True, the Music Circus has given much back to Cohasset through scholarship money, community facility use and its prestige as an outstanding outdoor summer theater that has drawn many tourists to Cohasset.

But last week school committee member Jack Langmaid said it best when he commented the number one priority is children. The school committee has an obligation to protect them.

Mr. Langmaid and Martha Gjesteby voted to send a formal opinion opposing the application to the appeals board. Committee members Joe Nedrow, Diana Kornet and Chairman Dick Conley believe the school committee is not the appropriate board to address the issue.

We take issue with the latter reason.

We elect school committee members to provide a sound education to children. We feel voting for a member has an implied responsibility to care and protect children although we realize the major responsibility lies upon parents to know where their children are, especially at night.

Since the Music Circus is located near school buildings, we ask what happens to a drunk driver may also affect the future of the school buildings.

Waiting for the application to come to selectmen is not the answer.

The appeals board considers all applications with an eye toward the public interest. If the public good is not served, it is up to residents and town boards to tell appeals board members why the application shouldn't be granted.

Langmaid said it best when he noted, "But a line has to be drawn sometime. Driving and drinking is a serious problem in this country and we as leaders should take a stand."

School committee members should not be afraid that a formal opinion is censory or that is unappropriate.

Anything to do with the safety of children is appropriate.

Failure to speak out or to comment on the application is not appropriate.

New grievance procedure

The Board of Health has been advised by town counsel, that the board must follow the new grievance procedure outlined under the Personnel Bylaw amendment voted at the recent April Town Meeting. This procedure would be used for Cedar St. landfill supervisor, Joseph "Skinny" Laugelle.

The new procedure calls for hearing before selectmen and the Personnel Committee. Henderson ruled the new bylaw amendment took effect immediately, and is not subject to the approval of the Attorney General.

Henderson warned that Laugelle is entitled to all the provisions of the "Open Meeting Law" regarding adequate notice, right to counsel, right to be present when his case is discussed, etc., in any hearing.

Laugelle has been warned by the health board that he may be terminated.

Citizens have been signing petitions on behalf of Laugelle.

Floating through So. Shore Hospital

By Claire McDonough

"The thing to remember when you go to the hospital," I told my children, "is that the fewer drugs you take into your system, the more rapid your recovery will be.

"I suppose," I added, "I'll let them put me to sleep during the operation itself, but after that I will exercise self control."

Two days later the Dragon took me to South Shore Hospital. I stopped an official looking individual with a familiar face.

"I would like drugs, please," I told her.

"Honey," the Dragon whispered, "that's Claire McDonough O'Connor. She's director of volunteers, and she doesn't give out drugs."

"Oh," I smiled at my almost-namesake and entered the gift shop. "How do I arrange for drugs?" I asked.

The next day, following surgery, I realized that someone had anticipated my desire for drugs. I didn't remember a thing, and I was floating about three feet above my bed.

My mouth and throat were dry, however, and my lips were cracked. I yanked a passing nurse's uniform.

"I will give one husband, nine children, and a poodle," I assured her, "to anyone who brings me something cold to drink."

Minutes later she was back with a paper cup filled with cracked ice.

"How old is the poodle?" she asked.

For the next couple of days people continued to anticipate my needs. It was never necessary to request medication, and I floated through my own private world. Boy, did I float.

By the third day something else was tugging at my consciousness.

"I live in Hanover," a friendly nurse told me, "and I just love your writing."

A lady from the gift shop came into the room. "Which one of you is Claire McDonough?" she asked. "I read the Mariner every week, and I wouldn't miss a word you write."

A nurse from Scituate hovered over my bed. "Are you going to write about the hospital? I can't wait."

I beamed.

This was better than drugs; better than chocolate; better than demerol or morphine; better than just about anything. I wanted to savor every word, every nuance.

"Can we dispense with the drugs?" I asked Dr. Iovino.

He picked up my chart and wrote, "Discontinue drugs."

Dr. Dalco poked his head in the door. "Have you seen your incision?" he asked.

With my return to the real world I had recovered my sarcastic nature.

"I was thinking," I told him testily, "of having it incorporated into a tasteful tattoo of a snake."

He shook his head. "Tacky; definitely tacky. In your case it should be a tattoo of a dragon."

As if on cue, the Dragon entered.

"Are you feeling well enough for a serious discussion?" he asked.

"I guess so."

"Well," he looked over his shoulder nervously, "there's a nurse out in the corridor who says she owns me, nine kids and a poodle."

Selectmen's briefs...

Selectmen denied the patrolmen's union's request that the vacancy created by Police Chief Joseph Kealey's promotion to that position be posted as a vacancy.

When Kealey was hired as police chief in Mrach, he took a leave of absence from his position as a daytime patrolman.

Because his leave of absence expires June 15, his position is not vacant until then, Executive Secretary Mark Lanza said.

Lanza confirmed Town Counsel Richard Henderson's opinion which said Kealey's absence from his previous position creates a vacancy in the department but not in the shift. "Where they (patrolmen) are assigned is strictly a management perogative," Lanza said.

Selectmen voted to eliminate one lieutenant's position and establish two additional sergeants' positions. There are currently two sergeants, and with the three-shift schedule, there is no supervisor on the third shift.

Selectman John DeBassio, former police chief, said there is a high crime risk in the early morning hours and most of the third-shift coverage is served by junior officers.

A vacancy in the lieutenant's position was created earlier this month when 28-year veteran Lt. Charles E. Stockbridge retired.

By having four sergeants, each one could be assigned to a shift and one could serve as a back-up, DeBassio said.

The board voted to request the state's Division of Personnel Administration for a patrolman in an effort to fill two vacant positions as soon as possible. One patrolman's position has already been requested.

They voted to petition Civil Service for a sergeant's examination, allowing two patrolmen to be promoted to sergeants as soon as possible.

As of June 15, there wil be three vacant positions.

Dormitzer reflects on AFS experience

The Cohasset Chapter of the American Field Service asked Paul Dormitzer to write an article for the Mariner on his AFS experience in France.

Paul is a member of Cohasset High School Class of 1983. He has just graduated "in absentia" and will be attending Harvard University in the fall.

By Paul Dormitzer

After nearly a year in France, I have found that an AFS (American Field Service) Student Exchange is like no other experience you can have. It is a chance to live in another culture—not as a tourist but as an actual member of that culture. During this year I have been going to a regular French high school, which is quite different from school in the U.S., and living with a French family as if I was one of their children rather than a guest.

In the family with which I'm staying, I have two "brothers": Hugues, age 19, and Guillaume, who is 9. My "father" for the year is a hospital director and our house is on the hospital grounds. The hospital was founded by Louis XIV in 1679 and the buildings are made of stone, with slate roofs.

I'm living in an agricultural region in the West of France, between Nantes and La Rochelle, and the roads are often blocked by farmers on slow-moving tractors. The hospital has many gardens and grows a good part of its own vegetables and some fruit. I live within 20km of the Atlantic coast, and La Baule (near Nantes) is reputed to be "the most beautiful beach in Europe."

The town where I live is relatively small (population 10,000) but they have a large cathedral housing the third best organ in France, with five keyboards and 3,474 pipes. One of the "specialties" of the town is sculpting shrubs and trees; they have formed arches over many of the roads, and there is a public garden with shrubs sculpted to form scenes from the fables of La Fontaine.

I have school from 8:25 to 5:00 every day, with an hour and twenty minutes off for lunch. Most of the courses consist of "taking dictation," which is to say that there is very little student-teacher interaction; the students simply write down everything that the teacher says. Instead of being eduation for the sake of learning, the system seems to be that you learn what's necessary to pass the baccalaureat, and not much otherwise.

The curriculum is rather spread out, with courses in Physics, Chemistry, Biology, Geology, Geometry, Calculus, History, Geography, French (Racine, Baudelaire, Roussea, Camus, . . .), English, and optionally Spanish, German, Latin and Greek.

The students are divided into classes of about 30 students who all have the same schedule. (Students can't choose their own courses.) The four main classes are simply labeled A, B, C and D, and in my region there are also special agricultural classes. Each type of class has a different baccalaureat (bac) which is a test that holds roughly the same value as our high school diploma.

A student's score on his bac often decides for a large part his future. When French colleges look at a student, they simply look at this score on the bac; there is no high school transcript. The bac is an exam that covers everything from the sciences to physical education. All juniors take the same exam which tests French literature, and the seniors take exams depending on which class they're in. ("A" concentrates on the liberal arts and "D" on the hard sciences.) I'm in a class which is a combination of "C" and "D", so I study more Math and Science than History and French.

My year has gone very well with very few problems of the "language barrier" and virtually no problems otherwise. This experience has given me an inside look at another culture, in addition to the chance to see most of the tourist sights in France. It has been a fun experience, which I will always remember.

Class president's speech

Who said that it was going to rain today? I would like to welcome everyone here today to the long-awaited graduation of the class of 1983. I don't know who has been waiting for it longer, the class of '83 or the faculty and administration. But, it is undoubtedly an auspicious occasion for all of us.

Six years ago, when we first came to Cohasset High, graduation seemed as though it would be a lifetime away. And, although I do feel as though I have spent at least one lifetime there, it also seems like only yesterday we were having Move Up Day and were wandering the immense hallways for the very first time. Since that date we have met hundreds of people and we have done hundreds of things. By and by, the school has come to be almost a home away from home.

For as long as I have been attending high school, I have been going to these graduation ceremonies and I have found that someone always chooses to criticize the foolishness of certain administrators and the apathy of certain teachers who get their only exercise by racing the students to the parking lot at the sound of the final school bell. It is true that there are these teachers who, when not pretending to teach somehow disintegrate into thin air, only to reintegrate at precisely 2:30 in the driver's seat of a speeding Vega, cruising away from the school grounds at wharp speeds.

And, it can also be said that certain administrators seem to be in a mesmerized state of delirium from signing every certificate, award and diploma that has ever left the school. But, unfortunately, what is overlooked is the hard work and determination that many teachers and administrators invest in both their work and their students. It is also overlooked that many of them go way out of their way to help students, beyond the call of duty, even if their way of helping out is just being around to talk to. It is overlooked that administrators actually do care about their students and don't just sit in their office, nibbling on jelly beans and Planter's peanuts from mom, all day long. So for the teachers and administrators that really care and energetically rendered both time and knowledge to us, the Class of 1983 thanks you.

As the Class of '83, well, we were recently described by the Cohasset Mariner as being a class with unusual spirit, in short I quote, "The Class of 1983: awesome." I think that it was summed up best by a faculty member who recently told me that there are three types of classes: the classes that you can't wait to see go, the class that you don't realize has left, and the class that you truly miss. And the Class of 1983 is undoubtedly of the latter. So, I challenge you, Cohasset High, to make it without us...Good Luck!

Murray's memos

Report from the state house

By Mary Jeanette Murray

Pension funds in the private sector are required by federal law to be fully funded and to maintain all sorts of set standards in order to protect pension dollars. Governments, however, are exempt from such requirements. The result is that state, county and municipal pension funds are not adequate to meet the needs of the very near future.

Massachusetts must face up to the staggering problem of the unfunded pension liability for teachers and state employees. It is estimated that by the end of this century the unfunded pension liability will be $10 billion.

What this means in human terms is the prospect of thousands of teachers and other workers paid by the state, retiring with no pension.

There are three contributors to any pension fund: the percentage of the employee paycheck that is earmarked for pension, the employer contribution, and interest income derived from investing pension money.

PROVIDING FOR RETIRING TEACHERS AND STATE WORKERS

This year, there is $61 million more interest income than had been projected. The Governor and the Democratic leadership call it "extra income" and propose to use it to reduce the amount that the state, as the employer, has to contribute to the pension fund.

I, on the other hand, believe that the Commonwealth's contribution is a normal business expense that should be met in full this year like any other. The windfall of surplus income from the investments would be better used for the unfunded pension liability. We must start to fund the pensions so that public workers are not eventually faced with the dismal prospect of retiring empty-handed. People who pay into a pension fund have a right to expect their money, compounded, will be there when they retire. The fact that the Commonwealth is their employer should not place their old age in jeopardy.

This is a serious issue, and one that the governor and the legislature must start to deal with immediately. We cannot allow the pension system to go broke. We must start making payments against the unfunded liability. And, as we argued this week during debate on the Fiscal '84 state budget, any "extra" money should be paid now and over coming years to strengthen the pension accounts and secure retirement funds for the thousands who will be ready to receive their earned pension.

The Dukakis plan not only stalls the remedy of the pension problem it, in effect, borrows retirement money from teachers and state employees to balance this year's budget, swapping their personal financial security for his immediate political needs. It's not necessary. It's not good management. And, by 1986, Governor Dukakis may discover it's not even good politics.

Health Board briefs . . .

SHEEP TO BE TREATED AS HORSES

Diane Sullivan, Arnold Winston and John Burns, all residents of Jerusalem Road, appeared before the health board to protest the apparent plans of Michael Vallas of 732 Jerusalem Road to move his fence for his flock of sheep nearer to Jerusalem Road.

Board members voted, as is their discretion, to apply the setback rules for horses, which is 25 feet from the lot line. There are presently no setback requirements for sheep.

Sullivan cited possible noise and odor complaints which are not allowed under the zoning bylaws.

Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos said she had discovered that there are also chickens on the property. Under the current present bylaw, residents may keep no more than 12 chickens.

HULL SLUDGE

Health Board Agent Elaine Eliopoulos reported Wayne Grandin of the MDC says they will not accept septage pumped by haulers from Cohasset homes under any circumstances.

"I had previously thought we might be able to make a financial agreement," Eliopoulos said, "but Grandin said they cannot accept any septage from other towns not in the sewage district because they are being sued for their permit violations."

After calling several town officials, Eliopoulos reported the best possibility seemed to be an arrangement with Hull. A proposal would swap the sludge generated by Hull's sewage plant into the Cedar Street landfill in exchange for the Hull plant accepting Cohasset's septage waste.

The health board discussed the matter without voting on the swap. They requested that Hull officials have their sludge tested for presence of heavy metals or industrial wastes and other chemical components.

Deer Hill band made up of 'musicians'

By Moira McCarthy

Deer Hill Band instructor Catherine Fox has a special attitude about her students.

"I have an attitude about the kids that makes our relationship special," she said as she eyed the classful of children she directs.

"I don't let them go on stage just because they're cute. They know they have to play their instruments well. I treat them like they're musicians, instead of children. I run their rehearsals the same way my conductors run mine."

A group of small girls walk into the classroom just then, donning flutes and apprehensive expressions.

"Is today audition day?" she asks them. "Well, let's get those flutes tuned," she directs them into scales that sound as light and pretty as any melody.

She hums the tune as they play, reaches over to adjust flutes to the proper height, and straightens out little girl postures to make them look sincere and professional.

"Let me know how things turn out. I'll be rooting for you," she promises them as they head for their audition.

"I'm trying to develop an attitude about music,'" she said after they left. "Just the ability to be able to sit there through a rehearsal, and concentrate like that for an hour is important at this level."

Fox teaches two levels of band.

The junior band is filled with 40 fourth graders, who are all beginners. The advanced band houses 60 students, and is a little more advanced.

The students receive lessons during the school day, and are required to stay after school for practice once a week.

The band plays two main concerts, the Christmas and Spring concerts, and plays at nursing homes, other Cohasset schools, and in the Scituate Elementary School Festival every year.

They also march in two parades or more a year.

"I just try to get them going in the same direction and then get out of the way," she said, laughing.

Fox, a 1977 graduate of U.Mass/Amherst, has been teaching band at Deer Hill since 1978, and says she gets a special thrill out of it.

"It's nice to go to the high school band concerts and see kids I've taught become grown up musicians.

"And the kids amazement at their ability is really neat. They start with an instrument that they don't even know how to hold or use, and all of a sudden they're playing 'Mary Had a Little Lamb.' They just look up and say, 'Wow, I can do it.' That's really nice."

Does Fox see many gifted children go through her classes?

"Those students are few and far between," she said, "and I do try to highlight them.

"Many times we get students who don't excel in academics or sports, and they find their niche in the band. That's always nice.

"But anyone can sign up for the band. Everyone gets a chance. We don't just take the talented. Sometimes the student that loves the band, but isn't extremely talented can be as important to the band as the talented one. Those who have the inclination to play, say," she said.

Fox plays the flute and cello, and dabbles with all the other instruments. "I play them all passively, but not in public," she joked.

One thing Fox does is clear: She directs a band that makes Cohasset proud. Just watch the faces of the parents when the kids march by on parade day. Each one is a star.

1st student 'Art Opening'

By Theresa Sullivan

This was the first year the Cohasset elementary schools had an art opening by invitation and the artwork was impressive and diverse.

At an opening June 7, children at Osgood and Deer Hill Schools exhibited and demonstrated glazing, printing, water colors, stenciling and cartooning.

Live music was provided by Ruth Dalbeck, fifth grade substitute teacher, Kathryn Fox, instrumental teacher at Deer Hill School and Jack MacInnis, elementary music teacher. Refreshments were served.

The artwork was diverse, ranging from weaving by the first graders to Greek masks by the fifth graders.

Cohasset's elementary art teacher Jean O'Malley, organized the exhibit and opening in her own time as a way of teaching the children about art exhibits.

"The parents in the Cohasset area are quite art-minded," O'Malley said. "The idea behind the opening was to have the children enjoy a social event involving art. I told the children it's quite grown-up."

Each child made an invitation to the opening for his parents, and opening was well attended, according to O'Malley.

"The children were able to talk about the art," she said. "I felt like it was a real opening."

Most of the children said they enjoyed the opening. One boy told O'Malley that he didn't have a good time because he was sent to the car by his parents.

She plans to run the exhibit again in July at the Paul Pratt Library.

For many, the thought of "taking a slow boat to China" has been a symbolic phrase for getting away from it all. Now, however, the possibility of taking a cruise to exotic Far Eastern ports of call is a definite possibility. The luxurious 485-passenger "Pearl of Scandinavia" makes first-class voyages to the People's Republic of China, Indonesia and the Far East. There are three 14-day itineraries from which to choose, and twenty-eight and forty-two day cruises are also available. All cruises leave from San Francisco or Los Angeles. Why not put yourself on a slow boat to China?

When it comes to travel to a foreign country, there are many things the traveler should be aware of prior to departure. Knowing the custom, laws, rate of exchange of money and a little background about the country to be visited are just a few of the many details important to know. At COLPITTS TRAVEL CENTER, we are dedicated to offering you the professional travel assistance and guidance you require. We are located at 3 Brook St., Scituate. We are open 9-5 Mon.-Fri., 10-4 Sat. and by appointment. Most major credit cards are honored. Tel. 545-4500 & 383-1717.

PRAYER TO ST. JUDE

Most holy apostle, St. Jude, faithful servant and friend of Jesus, the Church honors and invokes you universally, as the patron of hopeless cases, of things almost despaired of. Pray for me, I am so helpless and alone. Make use I implore you, of that particular privilege given to you, to bring visible and speedy help where help is almost despaired of. Come to my assistance in this great need that I may receive the consolation and help of heaven in all my necessities, tribulations and sufferings, particularly-and that I may praise God with you and all the elect forever. I promise O blessed St. Jude, to be ever mindful of this great favor, to always honor you as my special and powerful patron, and to gratefully encourage devotion to you. Amen.

CHS sports roundup . . . golf, tennis, All-stars

GOLF

The CHS golf team, co-champs of the South Shore League, placed third in the Eastern Mass Regional tournament last week and missed a shot at the state finals by one stroke.

Out of 16 teams, the Skippers placed third with a score of 327 behind second place Seekonk 326, and first place Milton with a 322.

The total score is a combined total of the top four scores of six players on a team. Cohasset results are: John Drago (captain), 78; Troy Chatterton, 81; Chris Powers, 83; Jim Rooney, 85; Charlie Brady, 87 and Jeff Hartwell, 88.

GIRLS TENNIS

The undefeated Cohasset High girls tennis team entered their Division II tournament match with Canton High somewhat sleepy, and that's how they departed the visiting Bulldogs.

Playing tournament-style tennis on the day following the high school prom isn't exactly what the CHS had hoped to do.

Number-one-seeded Mia Graham man-handled Canton's best in straight sets of 6-2, 6-0. Cohasset's other two senior singles players, Joy Pratt and Krissie Ralff, dropped their decisions in straight sets.

Yet the first doubles team of sisters, Diane and Elaine Mullen, knotted up the proceedings at two matches each with their straight set 6-2, 6-1 victory.

It was left to the Cohasset due of Nancy Walls and Ingrid Anderson to salvage a CHS victory over the underdog Canton team.

The conflicting styles were evident from the beginning of the match. The patient baseline play of the two Canton girls upset the Cohasset approach consisting of aggressive shot selection versus constant lobs.

The match was tied at one set each, Canton 6-2 and Cohasset 7-6, when the third set was forced to a tie breaker despite a gallant Cohasset come back.

Cohasset was down as much as 3-1 in the game.

The lobbying, tiresome Canton baseline game finally grew too much to deal with as they defeated CHS, knocking Cohasset out of any further tourney play.

SOUTH SHORE LEAGUE ALL-STARS

For the first time in CHS history, all members of the varsity girls tennis team were selected to the All-Star team.

Seniors Mia Graham, Joy Pratt and Krissie Balff who went undefeated this season with a 14-0 record.

Also selected were Elaine and Diane Motlen, Nancy Walls and Ingrid Anderson.

Other sports all-stars were: Boys tennis, Chris Peachell and Bill Davenport, both seniors; Baseball: senior pitcher Bob Meers and Softball: Senior Captain Gia Barresi and sophomore Janet DiGirolamo.

Flying Scots' race

Here are the results of Cohasset's Flying Scots, Fleet #103.

In first place are co-owners Chet Ellis and Roger Porter who led the "Merry Jane."

Second place went to Ray Kasperowicz in his craft "Ruby."

Correction

The Music Circus grosses, not "earns", between two and two and a half million dollars annually, according to Music Circcus Clerk Burtram Pratt, who told the Appeals Board at a beer and wine license hearing.

What color the barrels?

The Cohasset Common Historic District Commission met June 7 to hear an application of Tree and Park Superintendent, Peter Laugelle, to change the colors of the trash barrels around the Common from natural brown to green, and to change the bus stop shed from olive green to light gray. They will hold a public hearing on the matter June 23 at 8:00 p.m. at Town Hall.

Under the town bylaws, the commission must vote to approve color changes of buildings, etc. around the Historic Common, which is considered to be one of the two most beautiful Commons in the state. Most of the buildings surrounding the Common are white.

Chairman Peter Wood said the current members of the commission will be in office until July 1, when the Commission will have six new members appointed by selectmen. The three holdover members will be Wood, Charles Wheelwright, and W. Chester Browne.

Health agent's participation challenged

A Boston attorney is challenging the participation of the town's health agent regarding the review of a building lot on Hobart Lane.

Atty. George Dallas of Gaston, Snow & Ely Bartlett challenged the participation of health agent Elaine Eliopoulos at a recent meeting.

Dallas' law firm represents the estate of John Chapin, Sr., who died in 1980. A purchase and sales agreement has been signed with John and Loretta Dwyer who want to build a house on the site.

"I respectfully request that the health agent, Elaine Eliopoulos, be disqualified from participating in your decision and the deliberation on the Dwyer's application. This request is made to spare Elaine Eliopoulos from the obvious conflict of reviewing a proposal on behalf of her neighbor which is objected to by her landlord," Dallas said.

Eliopoulos lives on Hobart Lane. Her landlord, Peter Androski, has requested a determination and review by the state Department of Environment Quality Engineering.

Proponents for a Hobart Lane house lot review said the appeals board had decided to wait for the determination of the health board on the septic system at the site.

Health board members said they did not wish to rule until the appeals board had made their determination of the effects of wave action on the coastline site.

"We do not want to approve this, if it is going to be washed away," said member Michael Bliss.

The health board will request a joint meeting with the appeal board June 20 to discuss their roles.

Atty. George Dallas said this is "outrageous." He said the Dwyers and Chapins had been put to great expense (for hydrological studies, etc.), "and then it is put off on another board." Proponents said they had been seeking permits for six months from the conservation commission and other boards.

Obituaries

C. James Lyon

C. James Lyon, 82, of Cohasset, a retired self-employed builder, died Sunday at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth, after a long illness.

Born in Roxbury, he formerly lived in Scituate for 11 years and in California for 10 years before moving to Cohasset 25 years ago.

It's 1984 and time for the 5414

By Lois Martin

"Be not the first by whom the new is tried nor yet the last to lay the old aside." Charming, that quote, reassuring, and a guideline for conformity.

Nonetheless it comes to mind this morning because one of the tried waves of the future is sitting on my desk. It's bigger than a microwave, smaller than a Coke machine. And it's for me.

David Cutler, publisher/thereby employer, has invested in Varityper 5414s. Big stuff. Like many of its brothers (no sister would have come up with this thing) computers, it is sold on the tittilating premise that both staff and hours can be reduced with use of this wiz.

PATCHES

I'm supposed to be in charge of it. It is supposed to serve me, like my vacuum cleaner, my car. But the reality is if you put a machine and me together, it's usually the machine who is master, and I, the confused servant.

The other staff members, armed with my reputation for mechanical failure, have placed whispered odds around here that I shall never get the hang of my personal 5414. Some of them went to school to study this beast of newspaper burden, this word-processor, and I'll tell you they weren't underwhelmed at first with the 51 orange keys and the standard grey letters and numbers.

David suggested that fellow workers need to see me smiling in front of my new keyboard, 'on board' with this 'moving ahead.'

I absorbed that, subtracting the selling fluffery portion of his presentation from reality. And I came up with the unfettered fact that I work for him, and if this man believes he'll get a better newspaper with me scooping sea moss on alternate Wednesdays, or putting 'programs' I don't understand in a machine, I better learn how to handle it.

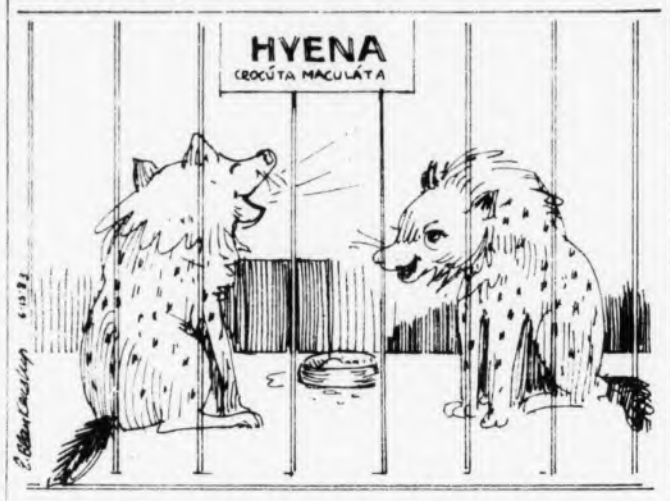
The fact that I telegrammed Lech Walsea was inspired only because my employer has threatened to take away my little blue Smith-Corona typewriter.

Last week I typed this column (different from what you're seeing now) on that machine. I used my 'cursor key,' ended up with 'illegal entries,' fell in love with 'word erase.' However, when the moment of truth came, the main terminal of this contraption refused to process my material by shooting up a number, '26,' meaning my disc was damaged.

Unfortunately, the smug 5414 can recall what it has been fed, so my instructor helped me to call it up to begin again. I started erasing my error and with jubilation moved ahead before moving that dumb cursor back. That meant I moved forward rapidly, erasing the good part that could have been salvaged.

I left the office last Friday with the intention of leaving town. Over the weekend I figured a savvy thief might make away with my 5414 wave of the future. No such luck. I know it's heavy but he could have tried.

Anyway, this morning I sent word that I would be way too busy for a couple of days to continue my training. My 5414 sits silently beside my active Smith-Corona.



A woman called a couple minutes ago about her ad and apologized for being hurried. They'd been putting a computer in the family business, she said, so that the time and personnel won't be so burdened.

She said the entire family worked until 9:30 Friday night, starting again for the days both Saturday and Sunday at 7 a.m. She said she keeps telling herself 'it's going to be wonderful.' But she has never worked so much in her life.

I'd like a long chat with the man who invented my 5414 for me. If I could ask him simple things, like how come he marked a key 'Indent' when he didn't mean that and the machine indents instead on 'Em' or 'En'?

Waves of the future can get rough for those who don't do well in high seas. But by next week I'm committed to filling this space with my new tool, the 5414. Please delete the expletives yourself. There's no orange key for that yet.

Church bazaars at Hanover Mall

The Hanover Mall is offering space to local churches for a new concept in the traditional church bazaar.

The church bazaar has been a way to generate revenue for parishes and their congregation. The Hanover Mall would like to take this concept and bring it inside, under our roof, said promotions director Darryln Searle.

The dates for the special "Church Bazaar" show are Thursday through Saturday, July 21 to 23. The hours would be regular Mall hours, 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

A Beautiful Approach to Country Living.

You drive in through meadows strewn with seasonal wildflowers. But that's only your entry to the good life at The Meadows, The Green Company's new community of attached single family homes in Hingham. The architectural style is true to the farm-house heritage of the community. The construction and detailing have been accomplished with obvious pride.

The Meadows offers a selection of two and three bedroom homes with unexpected details like master suites with private fireplaced sitting areas, large country kitchens for informal entertaining, separate dining rooms for more formal occasions, hidden corners for quiet contemplation, and a mix of ceiling heights and styles. In addition there are large private courtyards, two-car garages, full basements, a swimming pool, whirlpool, tennis courts and a clubhouse. And best of all, this very civilized lifestyle is near major highways to the cultural delights of Boston and vacation areas to the North and South.

Prices range from $157,000 to $210,000 during this, our opening period. Furnished models are open every day from 9 to 5. Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street, one mile to our entrance. Call (617) 740-1500 for an appointment. When it comes to a good life in the country, The Meadows leads the field!

Sports roundup

Shumaker, Wood Jr. Olympics winners

Some students from Cohasset recently competed in the trials of the Junior Olympics at Braintree High School.

The Olympics are an annual event sponsored by the Massachusetts State Police. The trials were held in five locations throughout the state and a participant must achieve a first place in his event to qualify for the finals.

David Shumaker, a seventh grade student, won the 100 meter dash and Kathy Wood, an eighth grade student, won the 880 yard.

Saturday, June 18, David and Kathy will participate in the final competition of the Olympics at M.I.T. in Cambridge, Massachusetts beginning at 10 a.m.

Last year David Shumaker won the 50 yard dash and the 100 yard dash in the State finals.

S.S. Civic softball

Here are the results of the South Shore Civic Association after eight weeks of play ending June 12.

around town

☐Everyone has heard of "Special Awards" but there is one which really takes the prize. At the Community Center Bowling Banquet a while ago, Harold Litchfield got "Bellygrammed!" He even got a turban tied around his head to make it more authentic. Though there were many prizes awarded that night, I'm sure they all took a back seat to that!

☐Larry Fone, owner of Cookworks in downtown Cohasset had a bit of good news that he wanted to share...Larry is a "people-watcher" and says he must brag about how friendly our townspeople are, both to each other and strangers walking through. It is said that New Englanders are not supposed to be that way, not so in Cohasset.

☐Nancy and Tom Anderson are grandparents again (they must be setting some sort of record by now!) Katelyn Hagan was born in Wyoming June 2. Mom Jeanne is doing very well, as is Dad, Joe. Not to be forgotten is Katelyn's other grandparent, Mrs. Libby Hagan. Little Katelyn will certainly get a lot of loving when she visits Cohasset.

☐Gripe of the week comes from Larry Fone, owner of Cookworks Store in downtown Cohasset. Larry would like to know why cyclists feel as though the sidewalks are made for them, not shoppers or pedestrians. It doesn't seem right that people window-shopping or strolling should have to move out of the way for bicycles, and something should be done to prevent this.

☐Pete Sandbloom certainly plays baseball with all his might. Last week, while sliding into third base, he cut his knee open and had to get eight stitches to close it. Should get the stitches out this weekend, then he'll be back in action at the Little League Field.

☐Pamela Weisenfluh was among 115 graduates at the 102nd commencement exercise of the Dana Hall School in Wellesley June 3. Pam is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Allen Weisenfluh of 69 Summer St. and will be attending Skidmore College in September where she plans to major in Art and History. While at Dana Hall, Pam was chairman of the All School Entertainment Committee, Senior Dorm proctor, member of the Blue Key Club and the yearbook staff.

☐Ozzie Ingram says that everyone should make the trip to the top of 60 Elm Street to see the beautiful rock garden that Mrs. Grassie works so hard at to make picture perfect.

☐Must repeat a certain conversation heard "Around Town." A husband told his wife he would leave her the food section of the newspaper so that she could get some new ideas for her cooking. Her reply was to be sure to take the "At Home" section with him so that he would be sure to be there when the new meal was ready.

☐Tom Keating sure made it right to the wire, having his appendix out two weeks before his wedding. He'll be fine by then. The wedding will go off as schedule.

☐It has often been said that some people will do anything to see their name in the paper but that is not why George McCullough is wearing a cast on his foot. The real story is that he fell out of a golf cart and is on the injured reserve list for six weeks.

☐The yearbooks have arrived and are super. Good job, Justine and Kristin.

Newcomers Club

The Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club recently ended their 1982-1983 year.

Club President Eve Hunter reported a successful year with contributions going a little beyond the Scholarship goal this year.

She reported that not only were the two scholarships increased by 100 percent to $500 each but additional contributions were made to the Cohasset Fire Dept. for their "Water Equipment Recovery Fund" and the Scituate Public Library for the purchase of new books.

The Scholarships of $500 each were awarded to Christopher Peachell of Cohasset and Wendy Bloom of Scituate.

New officers for the 1983-84 club year are: Betsy Gilliland, president; Barbara Christenson, first vice-president; Mary Moberg, second vice-president; Merle Bowen, recording secretary; Marcia Wesenberg, treasurer; Cheryl Hale, corresponding secretary, and Mary Depperman, historian.

Jr. high 'Field Day' results

The seventh and eighth grade Field Day was sponsored by the PSO and coordinated by Marilyn Watson of the high school physical education dept.

Two-hundred and 33 students participated.

The following are results of the field day — a series of competitive events between homerooms.

The seventh grade homerooms competed for a seventh grade championship plaque. The eighth grade homerooms competed for an eighth grade championship plaque. A tug-of-war between the eighth and seventh grades determined the overall junior high champion for the day.

Each homeroom selected its team color, dressed in color and prepared a banner denoting the homeroom number and color.

A parade to Milliken Field started the day off.

The following are the results:

Best Dressed Team (in color): Rm. 28A Ms. Burbank, Runner Up: Rm. 22 Ms. Beatson, Rm. 29 Mr. Bouchard; Best Banner: Rm. 24 Ms. Schleiff, made by Kerry Kirkendall, Coleby Mantz, Ray Jacoub, Heath Larsen, Jill Leiser, Joe Lagrotteria; Runner-Up: Rm. 25 Ms. Wood, made by Leslie O'Grady, Liz O'Leary; 50 Yard Dash: 7th grade girls — First, Liz O'Leary; Second, Emily Tague; and Third, Coleby Mantz.

600 pedallers ride for Multiple Sclerosis

By Judy Gilman

Sunday was a magnificent summer's day to go to the beach, to swim, to play golf, to garden, or to pursue a hundred other summer activities. To an estimated 600 cyclists, both serious long-distancers and casual around-town pedallers, it was a day to tour and raise funds to fight multiple sclerosis.

The scene early Sunday morning in Hingham's South Junior High School parking lot was one that would have delighted any biking enthusiast. Row on row were shiny racing machines, their wheels being snapped on, brakes and gears adjusted, seats retilted, helmets and gloves donned. Early arrivals already had their numbers on and were wheeling their machines around in an experimental fashion or discussing the latest styles of racing wheels with their companions.

Hingham played host to an estimated 600 of these hobbyists Sunday in what Terri Herzog of the state Multiple Sclerosis Society said was the largest registration (800) of an MS bike tour in the country. "Because of the heat, we'll lose some today," she said, meaning not that some unfortunate would be left by the roadside but that not as many would show up as had registered. Bike touring, like some other more exotic forms of sport, is highly dependent on the weather for maximum turnout. Had the day been a rainy one, postponement to next Sunday would have cut participants' numbers in half.

The society estimated it would raise between $40,000 and $50,000 from this tour for research funding and patient services. Other fundraisers it holds include a Read-a-thon and the annual "Ugliest Bartender Contest."

Bob Lobel, the chairman of the bike tour and one of Channel 4's better-known faces, chatted with cyclists as they came to the registration tables and wondered if the society workers would have a bike for him (they did, but it definitely wasn't a 100-mile version). "Hi, how are you?" he said congenially as a pair of eyes would freeze on him with a "That's really him" look.

Promptly at eight, the 100-milers set off on the route that would take them by the ocean through Cohasset and Scituate and Marshfield, through cranberry bog country in Duxbury and Pembroke and to the sandy hills of Myles Standish State Forest in Plymouth before heading north again, wending their way homeward along Norwell's Mt. Blue Street and through Wompatuck State Park. Aside form one early report of a broken pedal, the 100-milers disappeared into the sun's early gleams. "Good luck!" Lobel shouted and they were gone.

And just in time, too, for now the waves of 50-milers were appearing at the registration tables. These folks would cut out the state forest part of the tour, heading north from Pembroke. The 50s made up the largest part of the tour, and with their arrival, the South Junior area became a crawling anthill mass of activity. Helmets strapped on, gloves tightened, mirrors adjusted, the 50s sailed off down Route 228 to West Corner, the first checkpoint.

Now it was time for the 25-milers to begin their check-in, and here the diversity in equipment became more apparent. Twelve-year-olds on dirt bikes ("Piece of cake!" one confidently announced to Lobel. "Atta-boy!" he replied) and senior citizens on folding bikes to fit in small car trunks joined the endless throngs of 10-speeds to make this group the most interesting.

There was even one participant just out for the ride — Jamey Rosen, son of Jack and Sandi Rosen from Wareham, who had the enviable position of riding in the back seat of his parents' tandem model. "Team Rosen" were outfitted in matching shirts and have pedaled through large portions of Georgia and Florida. "We have $122.50 in pledges for the 25 miles today," Sandi said, "but Jamey got the most." Jamey, according to his parents, has been known to get out of his seat after a long ride and announce, "Boy, am I tired." He obviously had the best seat on the tour.

"We want to thank you all for coming, and remind you to ride safely," Lobel said for the third time that morning as the final group was assembled. "Take it easy and have a great time."

The bicycles surged ahead, Officers Arnold Lee and David DeBuccia waved them onto 228, the last sag-wagons pulled in behind them, and the tour was on. At the end of the trail for everyone lay refreshments and a sense of accomplishment of having contributed to a worthy cause.

This year's sponsors of the tour were Budweiser Light, WBZ-TV4 and WBCN. The tour courses were set up by Amy Green and Bill Dvorak of Hingham, who were among the first to set off on the 100-mile stint, definitely proving they were more than paper navigators. Support and communications along the way was provided by REACH, a citizens' CB rescue group. "And thank goodness it was a good day," Herzog added. Everyone could agree with that, including the cyclists, the workers, and those cyclist supporters who were well-prepared with cool drinks, blankets and the Sunday papers who spread across the lawn of South Junior to await the return of the riders.

Cyclists ride through Cohasset.

MS

Bob Lobel as sports ambassador

"I feel kind of silly, but would you sign this?" a bike touring number, which looks rather like a double-fronted lobster bib, and a pen are proffered. "No, I'd be happy to. Why should you feel silly?" the tall man with the round, all-American face and close-cropped hair says.

It's 8:30 on a beautiful Sunday morning, the kind of day where the ambitious are already out pruning a hedge and the not-so-compulsive are contemplating their first cup of coffee and the Sunday sports pages. Bob Lobel is out in the field doing his thing, spreading charm and smiles, willingly posing for amateur photographers, chatting with one and all. It seems almost incredible that someone this affable could spend a Sunday morning like this and then pop into the office Monday morning for a never-stopping "regular" work week. This, though, is only the first appearance of the day — Channel 4's staff is making a day of it at Fenway Park this afternoon and "of course I have to be there." Looking forward to it? "Better to be here than at Fenway!" he shouts to a 100-miler about to take off. It's the only reference made that morning to the Red Sox and their soap opera entanglements.

Lobel is chairman of this bike tour for MS and he takes on the job of sending off each group with a pep talk and a few simple words that boil down to "Thanks for helping us out and ride safely." In between sending off the three tours he is at the beck and call of the MS staff, posing for pictures and going to chat with an MS victim. The man even goes to look for his own Sweet 'n Low in the school kitchen. (None is to be found, and he settles for sugar.)

Occasionally he looks wistfully toward the tennis courts in front of the school. "Tennis and running are what I do now, now that I'm over the hill," he says with a laugh. The gold BMW has a large tote bag full of racquets and cans of balls, but there won't be an opportunity to use them today.

The chat behind the registration tables is desultory. No, he's not leaving Boston soon. There are several options, networks and such are interested, but for the present he'll be seen exchanging quips every evening with Liz Walker.

He's enjoying working with the MS people and says so. "This is the first time the station's gotten letters (in response to the public service announcements he taped that aired for several weeks before the tour) on something like this that I've done."

He's obviously enjoying himself with the cyclists and their families, but there's at least one person out there who wants nothing to do with him. "Bob, could I take a picture of you with my daughter?" a young mother asks. "She had her picture taken with you at Kidsfair." "Sure," he says and squats down by the stroller with a smile.

The young lady occupying the stroller, though, is not enchanted. She takes one look and lets out a loud howl. "Mommy!" For several minutes, mother and Lobel try to calm her down. "Want to come ride on my bike?" Lobel asks and sits on the seat of the rather dilapidated yellow 10-speed the society has gotten out for him (it's a good thing he doesn't really have to ride it). No go. More sobs and outstretched arms to Mom. Lobel tries on her little pink hat with see-through visor. No one can say this man isn't accommodating, but the lady is not to be distracted from her main objection. "Well, thank you, anyway," her harassed mom finally says. "We'll try it another time," he says.

The last cyclists are gone now, and all that is left are groups of tables, extra sign-up sheets, tour t-shirts, and a wait for the returning cyclists. The MS staffers thank Lobel. "My pleasure," he says, and climbs into the BMW for Boston and the roar of Fenway.

More Rec programs

YOUTH WRESTLING PROGRAM

Registrations will be accepted for youth wrestling during June 20 to June 23. The program will be seven weeks long and open to students entering Grade 6 this fall through Grade 12. The fee for the program which will be instructional in nature, is $10 per person, and a 50 percent discount will be offered for second and subsequent participants from the same family. Grades 6 to 9 meets Monday and Wednesdays, and Grades 10 to 12 meets, Tuesday and Thursday from 8:30 to 10 a.m.

BAND CONCERTS

The first of four scheduled Band Concerts on the Common will be sponsored by the Recreation Dept. Friday evening, July 1 at 7:30. Performing will be the 30-piece South Shore Concert Band directed by Richard Whitmarsh.

Concerts are free to the public and co-sponsored by the Cohasset Recreation Dept. and American Federation of Musicians.

Please bring a blanket or chair to sit on, and insect repellant is also a good item to have. The concert will end at 9:30 p.m. The public is cordially invited.

OTHER PROGRAMS

The Recreation Dept. will be sponsoring various other special events and programs throughout the summer, for youth and adults. Some of the programs will be: wind surfing, aerobics, youth band, golf, dog obedience classes and adult tennis lessons. Please watch local news media for program registrations, or call the Recreation Dept. office at 383-6791, daily, Monday to Friday, from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Caughey Merit semi-finalist

Mark Caughey, Class of '83, was named a National Merit Competition Semi-finalist at Graduation. Principal Richard Street says Caughey placed in the top one-half if one percent of all graduating seniors in the United States taking the PSAT tests.

Fox-Dahlberg recital

Kathryn Fox and Ruth Dalbeck gave a concert "Music for Flute and Piano," Sunday afternoon at the Beechwood Congregational Church. A large audience of fellow teachers, friends, and members of the congregation attended the performance and reception which followed.

Fox, the instrumental teacher at the Deer Hill School has applied for a leave of absence next year to care for her young infant son. Dalbeck has been substituting there while teacher Joan Cassiani was on maternity leave.

They performed eight pieces and the audience found two Chopin Preludes in D Major and G Minor to be "especially delightful."

Community Garden Club welcomes new board officers

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset had their annual Board Luncheon at the home of Diane Douglas Thursday, June 9, sponsored by the out-going board.

Welcomed to the incoming board of officers were: Joan Schockmann, president; Rita Kirk, vice-president; Denise Desmond, second vice-president; Mary Larson, recording secretary; Rita Strong, corresponding secretary and Judy Volungis, treasurer.

Attention Sailors & Boat Buyers

Are you buying a sailboat but do not feel confident in handling it? Do you need to further refine your sailing skills. Now you can do this ON YOUR BOAT at reasonable cost and in very short order.

Unlike many schools where you pay for high overhead costs and canned instruction, receiving private instruction in the intimacy of your boat offers clear advantages. You develop further skills tailored to your needs on a boat and in surroundings most familiar to you. You do not waste your time and money learning about someone else's boats and gadgets or waiting for others to take their turn at the helm. You will receive personalized instruction from a mature and patient individual who:

*sailed twenty-six years on the Caribbean, Atlantic & Pacific Oceans
*taught at the well-known New York Sailing School
*skippered for the Tufts National Championship Sailing Team

Instruction offered on an individual basis or with your family or friends. For further information, call Robert anytime at 383-1233 OR WRITE TO PERSONAL SAILING, 493 Beechwood St, Cohasset, Mass. 02025

By Joan Pinkham

Long, long ago when there were no health spas, adult evening classes or tennis courts where women could mingle with others, "sisters" who belonged to the same church or lived in the same isolated area, gathered once or twice a month to quilt or sew carpet rags. One member brought her patchwork quilt design and seven other women stood around the wooden frame, three on either side, two on the end and all worked toward the center. They took turns at sewing, but the chatting and catching up on neighborhood news never stopped. The lady of the house provided lunch — something already prepared from the family larder. Eggs and potatoes were always handy and served with baked ham, freshly churned buttermilk and homemade cake, a great favorite. If you'd like to try it, here is

QUILTER'S POTATO SALAD

2½ lbs. potatoes
1/3 c. chopped green onions
½ c. chopped celery
1½ tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. paprika
1/4 c. cider vinegar
1/3 c. vegetable oil
1/4 tsp. Tabasco sauce
1/3 c. dried sweet pickle
4 eggs, hard-boiled and chopped fine
4 T chopped parsley
1/2 c. mayonnaise

Scrub and boil potatoes and set aside to cool when done. Cube and add next four ingredients. Blend vinegar, oil and Tabasco and pour over potato mixture. Toss lightly and let cool completely for about an hour. Add the mayo, parsley and pickle and toss well. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Yield: 12 servings.

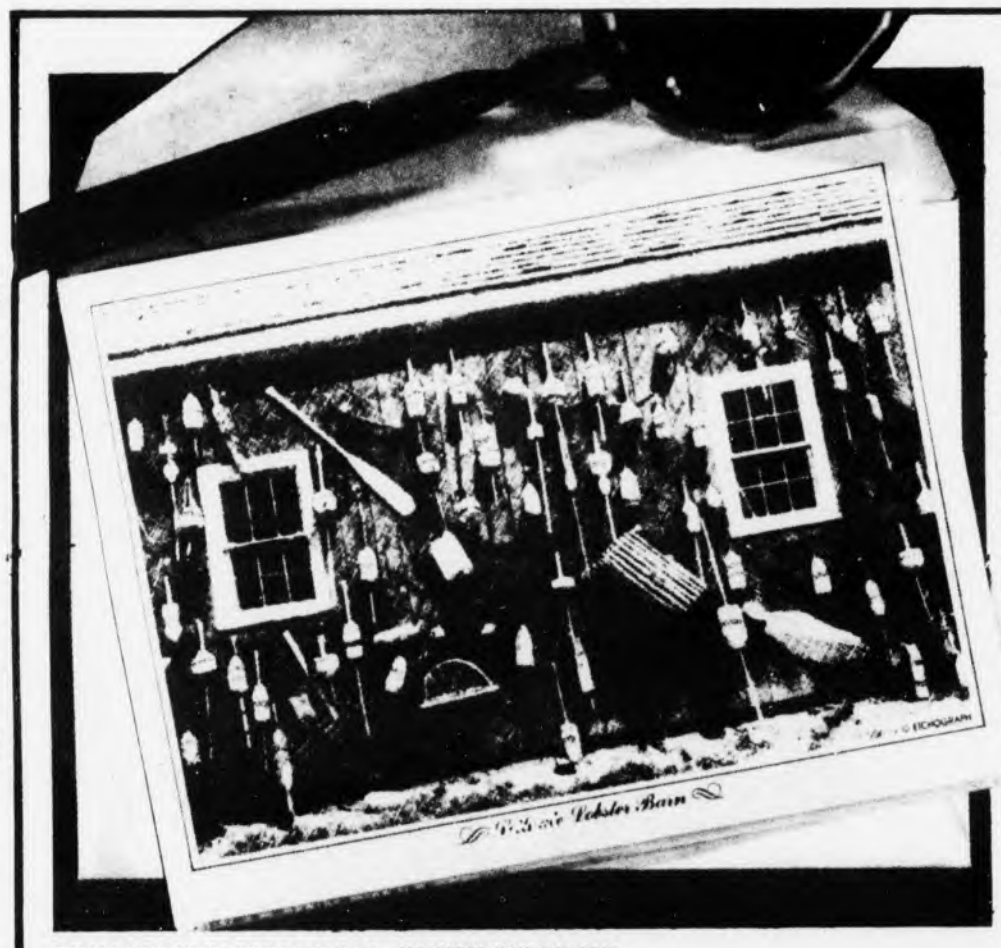
Not too many of us have pantry larders these days, but before we built our own home, we rented an antique cape and I had my first pantry. How I loved it! Wide shelves and windows vied for space and I had my mixer in there, so I could make quite a mess when preparingfor company and then walk out and close the door on it all. It might be a good idea to keep the makings of this casserole on hand for a hurry-up meal. It's called

HEARTY TUNA BISCUIT PIE

1 can mushroom soup
1/2 c. milk
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 6½ oz. can tuna, drained
10 oz. pkg. frozen mixed vegetables, cooked and drained
6 refrigerated biscuits, cut in half
1 T melted butter or oleo
Parmesan cheese

In 8" baking dish, blend soup, milk and juice until smooth. Stir in tuna, vegetables. Bake at 450 degrees for 10 min. Stir mixture and top with border of biscuits. Brush biscuits with butter. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake 8 min. longer, or until biscuits are brown. Serves 4.



* * *

There'll soon come a day when our green-thumbers can go out in the garden and pick the makings for this, one of my favorite dishes.

1/3 c. salad oil
2 small onions sliced thin
2 small green peppers, sliced thin
1 or 2 cloves garlic, minced
1 medium eggplant, cut in small chunks
2 medium zucchini, sliced thin
2 tomatoes, sliced thin
Salt and oregano to taste

Heat oil in large skillet. Saute onions and peppers with garlic over low heat until limp. Remove from pan. Set aside. Add eggplant and zucchini (both unpeeled) to pan. Saute and keep turning until slightly softened. Add tomatoes, salt and oregano, also onions and peppers. Cover and simmer together for about 30 min. Stir occasionally. Serves 4 to 6. Serve hot or chilled. Freezes well.

The Recreation Report . . .

DOG OBEDIENCE CLASSES

The Cohasset Recreation Dept. will offer three levels of instruction for Dog Obedience Classes which will be taught by Ms. Laurie Ann Goodrich.

Beginner training classes will be held at 6:15 p.m. and 7:15 p.m. Wednesday nights. The purpose of these classes will be to teach novice pet owners basic obedience and responsible pet ownership. Subjects to be covered will include proper use of voice, corrections, stay commands, getting the dog to come, heel, etc.

Helpful hints on dog ownership and responsibility will also be included. The obedience will include those exercises beneficial to the pet owners as well as those owners thinking about eventually showing their dog in obedience.

Thursday evenings, an intermediate class will be held at 6:30 to 7:30. This class is designed for dogs that have had some prior basic training or have completed the Recreation dept. beginner class.

For both the above classes owners are required to have their dogs equipped with a humane choke chain. The proper size of the chain is determined by measuring the dog's neck and adding four inches. Absolutely no spike collars will be allowed! It is also strongly suggested that handlers wear comfortable shoes and clothes for these sessions.

The classes will have a graduation "fun match" and ceremony to demonstrate their newly acquired skills at the end of the eight week session.

Tuesday evening, from 6:30 to 7:30, there will be a Breed Handling Class designed for individuals who may want to show their dogs. A show (about four feet in length) is required for this class. Depending on responses to the Breed Handling Class, classes may be split into small breed and large breed groups.

For all classes the fee is $15 per dog for the eight week, one hour per week, program. All classes will meet on the Town Common across the street from the Town Hall at designated times, unless it is actually raining at the time of the class. Dogs should be a minimun of three months of age, and there is no limit on maximum age.

Classes are scheduled to being the week of June 27. Those interested may register by calling the Cohasset Recreation office at 383-6791. Non-resident registrations will only be accepted after Wednesday, June 22.

PLAYGROUND

Registrations for both the four and five year-old half day, and the six to 12 year-old full day playground program will be held beginning Monday, June 20, through Thursday, June 23, from 9 a.m. to noon, at the Recreation office, first floor, Town Hall.

For the four and five year-old 9 a.m. to noon program, children must have been four years-old by May 1. The fee for the seven week program will be $8 for one child and $12 for two or more children who will be participating in that program only.

The fee for the 9 a.m. to 3 p.m six to 12 year-old program will be $10 for one child, and a maximum of $15 for two or more children for that program only. Fee discounts are not applicable between the two programs.

Checks should be made out to the Town of Cohasset at the time of registration. Parents must register children as parental signatures are required on the application forms.

New Expanded Hours

Swim Center staff members use 25 gallons of paint to refinish the bottom of the pool. This is the first time in six years the bottom has been painted.

Swim Center to open in a splash this weekend

The Cohasset Swim Center's opening weekend is Saturday and Sunday, June 18 and 19.

In spite of a damp spring, this year for the first time in six, Mother Nature allowed enough "dry" time for the Center staff to apply 30 gallons of paint to the pools.

The olympic-sized and three-foot pools were filled up with water last weekend and by opening day, all will be ready for another season of recreational and instructional swimming.

Headed by veteran guards and instructors, the staff is ready to man the pools, and teach the following programs: water babies, adapted aquatics, advanced lifesaving, South Shore Collaborative, handicapped swim, adult swim lessons, and new this year, an adult fitness hour.

Erin O'Brien returns to the Center for the fifth year as its director. She was assistant director last year and has taught programs and coached the swim team's diving squad. She will be a senior at Springfield College where she is majoring in health and fitness.

Assisting O'Brien are Pam Johnson and Bern Caughey. A junior at Providence College, Johnson is a third year guard and will be in charge of programs. Caughey will be in charge of maintenance during his fourth summer at the Center.

Two full-time guards, J.T. Price and Chris Karcher, and four part-time guards, Ellen McCarthy, Mary Jo Mahoney, Jay Santini and Brenda Birmann complete the staff. All guards teach programs as well as maintain pool safety. Each staff member is certified with advanced lifesaving, water safety, instruction and CPR.

O'Brien is excited about this year's season, although she will miss the one-to-one contact she's enjoyed in the past as instructor.

"With this heat, everyone will be thinking of swimming," O'Brien said recently. "We will be ready to have them start swimming this weekend."

The Cohasset Swim Team will hold try-outs on opening day, Saturday, June 18 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Rain date and make-ups will be Monday, June 20 after school from 3 to 5 pm. There are four swimming groups for ages 16 and under.

Those interested in trying out for the diving team should call Brenda Birmann, 383-6447, or Sue Jackson, 383-1729, evenings.

There will be open swim during the rest of the weekend from 12 to 8 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, June 19.

From 5 to 8 p.m. Sunday there will be a wine and cheese reception for adults.

For more information on programs and memberships, call the Center at 383-9463.

Cohasset ends fiscal year in the red

By Jane Lane

Cohasset will apparently end its fiscal year in the red.

According to Town Accountant William Signorelli, the town will probably close out fiscal year 1983 with about $35,000 - $40,000 in unpaid bills.

In his fifteen years as Cohasset's accountant, Signorelli says he has never seen such a substantial budget deficit at the end of the year. The fiscal year concludes the end of this month.

"We don't have a sufficient amount at this time in our reserve fund to provide for all the requests brought before the advisory committee, " he says.

And those bills not paid in this fiscal year, will "have to be dealt with at a special town meeting," he adds,

"Not in my fifteen years as town accountant have I seen so many unpaid bills faced at the end of the year. The amount of unpaid bills appears will be about $35,000 or $40,000. We generally see about $1000 or $2000 in unpaid bills at the end of the fiscal year," Signorelli adds.

The accountant says the increase is because of a greater-than-expected overtime allotment for the fire department. He said at this time it appears that department will exceed its budget by about $18,000 - $20,000. The overtime account was inflated this year, he says, because of the vacancies within the fire department.

There is also a shortfall in the federal revenue sharing funds, along with an increase in the town's legal costs this year. Signorelli says the town may exceed its legal account by about $23,000 in fiscal 1983. That increase is not due to one particular court case involving the town of Cohasset, he adds, but rather the increase in the number of litigations in which the town is involved.

"At some point, there will probably be a special town meeting so we can get the appropriations to pay these outstanding bills," he says. "It takes a nine-tenths vote of town meeting to appropriate the funding to pay these bills."

Another reason the town exceeded its budget this past year was because of cost overruns at the town's sanitary landfill, according to Signorelli.

"This is the first time since I have been here that the town has been in this position with so many unpaid bills - the greater number of unpaid bills, and the total amount," he explains.

Nearly 2000 Cohasset customers without phones since Monday

By Mike Berger

An eerie kind of deja vu came back to haunt and cripple Cohasset this week as virtually 60 percent of Cohasset phone customers have been without service since Monday morning.

A New England Telephone spokesman said all service will be restored in Cohasset by 5 p.m. Wednesday.

When a contractor broke a major telephone cable Monday in Hingham at 8:30 a.m., phone service was immediately cut to the Police and Fire Departments. for nearly three hours.

This meant residents had to pull a fire alarm if fire broke out or travel to the police station to report an incident.

Fortunately, both the Police and Fire Depts. reported no major emergencies during this three-hour break.

Town Hall had, no phone service, much to the liking of the employees. Many reported it was an extremely productive day because they did not spend time answering the phones.

Gradually a majority of Cohasset residents realized they did not have phone service. When they made a call in or out of town, either there was no dial tone, a slow dial tone or no one answered.

By Monday night, New England Telephone had wired up individual emergency telephone lines for both the Police and Fire Depts. and by Tuesday morning, four portable payphones were installed in the Curtis Compact parking lot in the square.

Last week, a break into telephone lines at the Route 3A Rotary intersection in Hingham caused 66 phone customers in Cohasset and many phone customers in Scituate to be without service for two days.

Extensive damage was caused by the construction break of the long distance trunk lines.

Jackie Jung of New England Telephone said the Health Bd. agrees to meet with Laugelle

By Patricia Anne Walsh

Board of Health members verbally sparred with Atty. Charles Humphreys Monday night, but finally agreed to hold the "informal meeting" with employee, Joseph Laugelle.

This meeting is required under the new personnel bylaw passed at the April town meeting.

The board wants to discharge Laugelle, supervisor of the Cedar Street town dump.

Member Michael Bliss had written to Town Counsel, Richard Henderson, disputing Henderson's opinion the Health Board did not have exclusive jurisdiction over Laugelle.

Bliss wrote, "The Board of Health however does feel that Mr. Laugelle should 'have his day in court,' and thus will agree to a hearing as put forth in the town bylaws. However, the Board must reserve the right to make the final judgement regarding the employment of its employees."

Chairman Marilyn Sweeney and member Barbara Kern said Bliss had misstated their position. Both disagreed with Bliss' offer to hold a hearing.

Bliss added, "Holding a hearing will make no difference in the final outcome."

Sweeney stressed the board was unanimous in its belief they had the right to terminate Laugelle.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle, brother of the employee, Joseph Laugelle, and fellow selectmen John DeBassio and Chairman Mary Jane McArthur observed the meeting.

Sweeney said the board unanimously agreed town counsel might be in error, and complained they had no reply from town counsel to Bliss' letter of June 9 or a subsequent memo delivered on Friday.

The board voted to ask selectmen to allow them to seek a second opinion, from another attorney, and to contact the Attorney General for assistance. Sweeney

Noise level irks Pond St. residents

It's just too much, too early, and the neighbors in the Pond Street-Holly Lane area aren't going to take it anymore.

Joan Appel of 4 Holly Lane got so upset with the early morning construction at 100 Pond Street, that she took the matter to selectmen last week. Her main concern is that Cohasset has no noise ordinance.

The only recourse for residents who detest having their first cup of coffee to the refrains of bulldozers unearthing the nextdoor property, is to politely ask them to refrain.

Thus far, she told selectmen, she has little success following that course. Appel said she has repeatedly asked the owner of the property, Frederick Thayer, to delay the daily start of construction until at least 7:30 a.m. He has not been responsive to her suggestion, she added.

"My rights to peace and quiet are being violated and I am concerned because I have no recourse," Appel said. She wondered what a resident could do to initiate a town noise ordinance.

Selectmen advised the resident she could petition for a town meeting article. That would be the manner in which a noise ordinance could be established, they said.

Richard Conley of 10 Holly Lane, agreed the neighbors are being disturbed while construction of the condominium complex is being completed. He said heavy construction vehicles are revving up for a day's labor before 7 a.m. most mornings, which is not a reasonable hour.

Selectman and former police chief John DeBassio informed the residents that 7 a.m. is a proper and reasonable time to begin a work day, according to recent court decisions. Selectman Rocco Laugelle agreed that even in a residential neighborhood, 7 a.m. is a "normal" time to begin the day's work.

Conley suggested that some type of noise regulation be formulated for future use when other building projects are being constructed in town.

In the meantime, executive secretary Mark Lanza said the Police Chief Joseph Kealey has talked with Thayer about beginning construction at 7:30 a.m. He said the owner had apparently agreed with the chief's request, but did not know when the agreement would begin.

Selectmen will write to Thayer and communicate the Dogs restrained

Last week selectmen ordered Janet Ditmar of 227 Forest Avenue to restrain her two dogs, or the animals would be removed from the town. The order was issued after a hearing was held to determine whether a previous order against the dogs should remain.

Dog Officer Richard Yokum had ordered the two dogs, a shepherd and a Great Dane, to be restrained after he received several complaints about the animals for the past year. Paul Martin of 225 Forest Avenue complained to Yokum that he had been attacked by the two dogs on May 5 when he was walking on Forest Avenue. He had to swerve to avoid on-coming traffic as the dogs attacked him, he told selectmen.

Carolyn Zaslow of 100 Black Rock Road said the shepherd had attacked her dogs four times.

Officer Yokum ordered the dogs restrained in January, but subsequent complaints about the animals were issued by neighbors who witnessed the dogs roaming off the Ditmar property.

Although Ditmar said the dogs accidently were set free from her home, she promised the neighbors and selectmen that it would not occur again. If the dogs were ever seen unleashed outside her property, she would involuntarily remove them from the town. Selectmen then agreed to allow the dogs to remain, as long as they were leashed on her property.

Music circus changes

Here are the latest additions and changes to the South Shore Music Circus 1983 line-up.

Manhattan Transfer, originally scheduled to appear Sunday and Monday, July 31 and Aug. 1 have withdrawn because of the illness to singer Janis Siegal.

Saturday Night Live's Joe Piscopo, originally scheduled to appear July 31, has also withdrawn.

Filling the Aug. 1 date will be the Preservation Hall Jazz Band. This band recently appeared at the request of President Ronald Reagan as part of the entertainment presented at the Summit Meeting of World Economic Leaders held in Williamsburg, Virginia, May 30.

A new addition is Aug. 16, Bobby Vinton.

The popular band, "Air Supply" was canceled last weekend because the lead singer was ill. The 4 p.m. June 19 performance has been rescheduled to Saturday, Sept. 10 at 5 p.m., The 8 p.m. June 19 performance was rescheduled to 9 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 10.

The Monday, June 20, 8 p.m. performance was rescheduled to Sunday, Sept. 12 at 4 p.m.

The Tuesday, June 21 performance of Air Supply was rescheduled to 8 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 11.

Those ticket purchasers who want a ticket refund for the missed performances should ask for a refund at the ticket office by Aug. 1 if they do not want to attend the rescheduled performance.

For further information, call the Music Circus at 383-1400.

Firefighter overtime

Town Counsel Richard Henderson will again review a grievance filed by firefighter Robert Silvia stating he wasn't paid overtime by the town while he attended Emergency Medical Technician school.

Henderson told selectmen last week he was not aware that seven previous firefighters had been paid overtime for the time they spent at the EMT school. A final decision on the grievance will be made at Wednesday night's selectmen's meeting.

Henderson said he would have to determine whether the town required Silvia to attend the school, or whether he had voluntarily agreed to attend. If the firefighter was required to attend the school, he would be entitled to the overtime compensation.

Firefighter Silvia said Acting Fire Chief Roger Lincoln asked him to attend the school in September, 1982, because there was not adequate personnel for the town's ambulance service. At that time, the acting chief informed Silvia he would be given overtime compensation for attending and successfully completing the school, he told selectmen.

The firefighter said seven previous firefighters were paid time and a half for the time spent in EMT school.

Overtime pay denied

The board refused Joseph Laugelle's request for overtime pay for William Barnes at the Cedar Street Dump. They said the dump had already exceeded budgeted sums and Laugelle had been warned against allowing overtime.

The board voted to have Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos open the bids for dump cover June 23 at 7 p.m.

The board decided three house lots on Fox Run must have full cellars, not just one sidewall built for septic connection to meet the January, 1984, completion permit deadline.

Septic system inspections

The board decided Health Agent Eliopoulos will make "visual inspections" of six household septic systems which are not tied into the central sewer system, although they are located on the sewer lines. This action was taken in response to an official request by the Sewer Commissioners.

Art Center land

The school committee rejected Monday night a request by the South Shore Art Center to build a new center on three acres of school and town owned land on Sohier Street. The School Facilities Committee voted against releasing the land. Committee Chairman Dick Conley said there also was a problem with a right-of-way and the proposed lot was irregulary shaped. Committee member Diana Kornet said there also were legal problems. If the school committee releases the land, it must be returned to the town, via town meeting, to decide if the land should be auctioned off and she added there were legal problems with a long term lease.

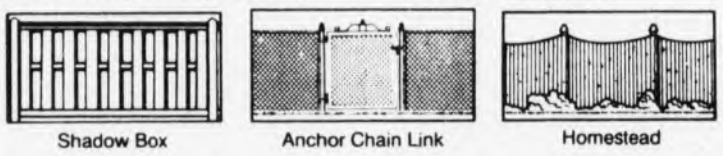
same request to the property owner.



In order to formulate a noise ordinance, a resident must gather the signatures of ten registered voters to have it included in the town meeting warrant. It would take the signatures of 100 registered voters to have an article submitted for a special town meeting.

Phone service disrupted . . .

same contractor, Guthrie Fence Inc. of Springfield caused the damage this week and last week.

The firm was contracted by the state Dept. of Public Works to install new guard rails on Route 3A.

Monday, the damage occurred at the Cohasset-Scituate boundary line near Beechwood.

Jung said not all Cohasset residents didn't have service. She said the break affected 2,000 customers in Cohasset which represents 60 percent of those people who have phone service.

Telephone crews have been working around the clock on a 24 hour basis to repair the lines but Jung said the earliest all phone service would be restored is 5 p.m. Wednesday. By late Tuesday, nearly 650 customers had service restored, Jung said.

At 8:30 a.m. Monday, Fire Chief Martin Dooley immediately called the area television and radio stations to report the damage. However, many residents told the Mariner they never heard about the damage.

There was no mention of the break on the Monday 6 p.m.television news or radio station news broadcasts nor in the Patriot Ledger.

At 11:30 a.m., the phone company had the emergency Fire Dept. number, 380-0260 working and the line was connected to the Police Dept.

Dooley said he also called the area fire stations to inform firefighters of the emergency and the need to stay in radio contact.

Another problem was the Cohasset Knoll Nursing Home because there was no phone service to the elderly center. Dooley told officials there if emergency service was needed, people should go to the nearest fire box number and pull it.

Dooley said in emergency situations, residents should realize it is better to pull a box alarm for any Police, or Fire Dept. matter rather than waiting or doing nothing.

Monday night, the Fire Dept. EMTs were needed at the Nursing Home for a woman who had fallen and injured her ribs.

A Cohasset Knoll official had immediately gone to the N.E.T. crews working nearby on Route 3A and the crews immediately patched in a call to the Fire Dept. The woman was transferred to South Shore Hospital and Fire Capt. James Lee Gurry said her injuries were minor.

Rescue

At 8:30 p.m. a Quincy jogger running down Black Rock Beach heard a radio blaring and a dog loudly barking.Paul Hajja of Quincy became suspicious and notified police.

Sgt. Robert Jackson notified the Fire Dept., Coast Guard and Harbormaster's office. The Coast Guard immediately sent a unit from the Point Allerton, Hull station.

Police Chief Joseph Kealey said Tuesday a man apparently swam out to a nearby island and decided to stay overnight.

At 11:20 p.m., rescuers found Joseph McLean, 25, of 31 Howe Road, who told police he was too tired and cold to swim back to Reed's Beach where he had left his radio and dog.

He said he had planned to sleep overnight at the island.

Regarding no phone service, Kealey said he was nervous when he heard the Police Dept. had no phone service. He immediately sent as many cruisers as possible to several key areas in town.

Jung said if Cohasset residents still have no service, they should call the area N.E.T. Repair Dept.

N.E.T. does have a standard rebate procedure for customers who are without service for 24 hours.

Those people who have been without service should call the N.E.T. Business office to arrange for an adjustment. The amount of the adjustment will depend on the type of service

Fifties night dance at CCC Friday night

Do you remember "American Bandstand," the Jitterbug, the Hula Hoop, "Greasers," Dance Contests and Poodle Skirts?"

Dance and laugh through that era again at the Cohasset Community Center, Friday, June 24 from 8:30 to 12:30 a.m. Mr. Music, a local DJ, will emcee a Fifties Night of dance, music and activities, dubbed "Rock N Bowl." The latest in a series of Center dances, this promises lots of fun and nostaligia.

All the public rooms at the Center will be opened for the event. Because of the cash bar, admission must be restricted to adults.

Tickets are on sale at the Center, 383-0088 from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

All board members will also have tickets, or call 383-0142 after Center office hours. The price of the dance is 1950's style; $6 per couple.

Rotarians are top fundraisers with $10,000 for scholarships

The Cohasset Rotary Club is known for publishing the little white telephone directory which some people like to call the "Communications Bible."

But the club is also known for its fundraising efforts and scholarship fund.

This year, on the 20th Anniversary of their telephone book, the club raised $10,000 for scholarships for the high school students. Fundraising is never easy, but the 35 members do it with spirit and enthusiasm.

The $10,000 amount is the largest amount ever raised by any organization in town for educational scholarships.

This year CHS seniors Tara Pompeo, Joy Pratt, Linda Sadler, Mark Gunville and Maureen "Alana" O'Brien were the recipients. O'Brien was the beneficiary of the South Shore Playhouse Associates (Music Circus) donation, given through the Rotary Club.

The Cohasset chapter is part of Rotary International, the largest service organization, and except for the Ford Foundation is the largest source of funds for education in the nation.

The President is Peter Logan. Vice Chairman, and President-Elect is John Sadler, who will assume his new position July 1. The club's secretary is John Lennon, and treasurer is Eugene Price.

At their recent dinner where the scholarship recipients and their parents were invited, three members were honored for their many years of work on the Cohasset Rotary Telephone Book. This book lists the telephone numbers of residents and businesses in a compact form with easily read type.

These members were Burtram Pratt, who manages the printing of the book; Fred Howe, who solicits paid advertisements, and Warren Pratt, who revises the lists of telephone numbers.

Each was given an insignia jacket.

Residents send in voluntary contributions after the book is distributed to all households. The book has become the largest source of scholarship funds.

Howe said the Rotary will furnish a second copy of the book to those who request it because homeowners have more than one phone. "Of course, we will also be happy to get a second contribution," he said.

Pratt said the book has grown from 48 to 128 pages this year.

COHASSET BY THE SEA ROADRACE

The roadrace was started by the former Jaycees (a former civic organization) by Rotary recently.

This year race drew 800 runners, and had to refuse about 200 others. The club tries to have 50 percent of the runners as Cohasset residents.

In addition to scholarships Rotary supports the Boy Scouts and supplies trash cans at the beach. They have also given awards and dinners to school athletes.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell said their total contributions to students is between $28,000 and $30,000.

This year under the leadership of past president Fred Johansen, the club sponsored Special Olypics for special education students.

Club member Edward Mulvey said about seven years ago, as a community service project Rotary invited all the elderly residents of 60 Elm Street to a Rotary dinner.

When the senior citizens wanted a piano for the recreation hall, Rotary connections were able to obtain the piano.

"When it was learned a few years ago that the senior shuttle bus was to be taken out of service, the Rotary Club started a fund drive to raise the money to purchase the bus," Mulvey said.

"But somehow our small generosity toward residents of 60 Elm does not go unrewarded. Each year since our first dinner, these residents have addressed and stuffed the Rotary Telephone Book. Anyone involved in that project could attest our generosity to them is more than paid back by their doing those tasks," Mulvey added.

One of the Rotary strengths is the great occupational variety of the members who sit down to dinner and exchange ideas

A school superintendent, bank president, house painter, accountant, printer, assessor, ships' chandler, and oil truck delivery driver, might all sit down at the same round table.

Another table might hold a contractor, auto repair shop owner, real estate salesman, former selectman, another accountant, an engineer, and other occupations.

This is a melting pot of American democracy in action.

Water dept. defends restrictions on reservoir

By Cindi Bondi

The Wompatuck State Park Advisory Council will seek legal advice from the state to determine if Cohasset Water Board Commissioners can prevent a fisherman's landing in the Cohasset Reservoir.

Part of the landing is in the park.

Robert W. Garvin, Advisory Council chairman, said at a park meeting last week Cohasset commissioners will not allow a landing.

They said a landing could be a source of pollution.

Cohasset Water Supt. Ben Curley said, "We made this decision because there are so many water pollution problems all over the state. Wompatuck State Park is too public for boating. We want to avoid trash thrown into the water."

"They certainly made a 180 degree turn. Let's investigate the rules on the (original) lease," said Lendrum L. Lee, a state Department of Environmental Management representative at the council meeting.

Curley said the Cohasset Water Department has an active 99 year lease with the state. He did not name the rules of the lease but he said "the Cohasset Water Department has the final say about the use of the reservoir."

John Hart, Park Supervisor, said, "The council wants legal opinion from DEM about the uses of the reservoir." He said the state Public Health Department has the final say.

ADMISSION FEE REFECTION

The council also discussed and decided against charging admission fees to the park, because fees would confuse well-water seekers, prevent children from free biking and discourage park users.

INSECT SPRAY

Lee said the DEM has decided to ban all insect spraying in the park. They would rather avoid spraying unless there is an emergency such as last year's gypsy moth problem

In other matters the largest building on federal property, adjacent to the park, burned down recently. Officials blamed vandals.

LOGO

Thirty-one entrants were narrowed to five finalists for the park newsletter logo contest. One logo will be chosen by the DEM in Boston.

Selectmen refer Roy family request to Appeals board

The attorney for the Roy family, owners of Cohasset-by-the-Sea motor inn, said the proprietors will take "whatever action they feel is necessary," after selectmen refused to participate in a decision to allow advertisement of a public swimming program.

Atty. Charles Humphreys last week requested that selectmen decide, as the town's licensing authority, whether the motor inn's alcohol and common victualler's license would be revoked if the owners publicize a swimming program sponsored by the Community Center, to be held at the inn's pool.

A zoning restriction was placed on the operation of the motor inn in 1976 by the zoning board of appeals which prohibited advertisement of the establishment for use by the general public. A lack of parking spaces at that time was cited as the reason for the restriction.

In a letter to selectmen, assistant town counsel John Slater III advised selectmen to refer the matter back to the zoning board. He said the Roy family should seek proper recourse with that board and ask that the restriction be lifted in order to advertise the swimming program.

Atty. Humphreys asked also that selectmen support the Roy family, should they decide to seek a repeal of the 1976 restriction before the appeals board. The lawyer has advised selectmen the owners have since purchased land on Pleasant Street for use as an additional parking lot. He suggested a prohibition on his clients' right to advertise was an infringment on their Constitutional rights.

Although the two attorneys had tangled before on the correct legal procedure to follow, Slater stood by his prior advise to selectmen that the matter involved the appeals board, not selectmen. Humphreys took the opposite stand and suggested selectmen had the authority to revoke the inn's licenses, should his clients advertise the facility for public use.

Selectman Frank England summed it up for Humphreys when he noted, "we're not going to go against the advise of our counsel. The quickest way for you to resolve the matter is to go before the zoning board of appeals."

Owner Mary Lou Roy told selectmen their original license contains no references to restrictions. Selectman Mary Jane McArthur recalled the restrictions placed on the license which is issued by selectmen annually.

When a copy of the license was retrieved from selectmen's office, it contained the restriction. But the owners produced several copies which did not include the zoning board of appeal's restrictions. They asked that selectmen investigate the discrepancy.

Selectmen suggested the Roy family appear before the appeals board to have the restriction removed, and then the licensing issue could be resolved.

The jubilation begins to break through as Deer Hill sixth grade students participate in their promotion exercises. (Rose Cundari photo)

Helene Lieb to lead OMNI class

Helene Lieb of Cohasset will lead a class, "The Woman Within," for the South Shore Center for Life and the Arts. (OMNI).

OMNI is a learning center (non-profit) dedicated to increase self-awareness, self-knowledgement, and self-understanding. The center offers a variety of services throughout the year (workshops, groups, Sunday evening introductory seminars, special events, films) which address universal physical, intellectual, emotional and spiritual needs.

Lieb, a college counselor with a M.A. and C.A.G.S. in counseling, will facilitate a self-exploration group for women.

Issues to be examined will include: independency-dependency, self-image, assertiveness, relationships and other concerns of importance to the group.

The group will meet on Wednesdays (five sessions), beginning July 13 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. A group fee is $35.

An Assertiveness Training class, "Take Charge of Your Life," will be held Mondays (five sessions), beginning July 11 from noon to 1:30 p.m. A group fee is $35.

For more information about the above sessions, call Helene Lieb at 383-6925. Make-up sessions will be offered for participants who might have to miss one week.

around town

☐The word that is Around Town this week is "Olympics." Ann Leonard was a participant (and big-time winner) of the first Annual Senior Olympics, held in Quincy.

The events were open to citizens 50 years and over, and the attendance was super. All events, which ranged from swimming, to bowling to walking and running, were done according to age groups.

Ann Leonard went to this event with walking in mind, something she just started recently. She ended up winning three gold medals and two silver medals; the golds were in the mile run, the shotput and the javelin throw; the silvers in the one mile walk and the half-mile walk (which she lost in a close contest.)

Ann's daughters and granddaughters were present to cheer her on through each event, and were delighted with her achievements.

☐Two other Olympic Stars are Brendan Mulcahy and Ann Chittam, who participated in the "Special Olympics," held at Boston University last weekend. Athletes were there from all over the state for the two-day events. Friday afternoon Brendan won his gold medal in the 50 yard dash and Friday night he ran in the 440 and received his silver medal, just barely missing the gold. Brendan had the biggest fan club of the night to cheer him on.

Saturday, Ann Chittam won a bronze medal in the frisbee throw. Her other speciality, softball throwing, did not take place.

Congratulations to all of Cohasset's winners!

☐Tom Wigmore received a surprise at school last week. The members of his phys. ed class held a going-away party for him in the upstairs gym. Refreshments were served and the students awarded Tom with a plaque. He will be missed.

☐Kirk, Torin, Shawn and David all awarded Dad, Bob Sweeney, with a cookout for being "Father of the Year" on Father's Day.

☐The new Sandy Beach stickers are out, be sure to get yours. It is $10 for the first car, $2 for additional ones. Be sure to go to the Town Hall, not the police station.

☐Steve Sinopoli and Scott Fone graduated from Northeastern University Sunday...welcome to the working world, boys. Here's hoping all of your efforts help you to land super jobs.

☐The town pool was hopping this weekend. The weather surely was in their favor. It was hot!

Gale Janesics, 10, butterflies through the water in Cohasset Swim Center's pool as she tries out for the Swim Team.

☐Dr. and Mrs. Nasser Tehranian of 39 Black Horse Lane sent to the Mariner several published articles about his nephew, Terry, who is now working in Honolulu. His father owns a home at 6 Deep Run in Cohasset and is now a professor at University of Hawaii.

Published in The Honolulu Advertiser, the article said:

Terrance Tehranian, 21, son of Prof. Majid Tehranian, is one of 32 winners from around the country whose names were announced in California. The scholars will receive two years of all-expense study at Oxford University in England.

The senior Tehranian, a professor in the UH communications department, said yesterday he was "thrilled" at the news. He said he moved here a year and a half ago.

His son, a graduate from Princeton University last year, went to high school in Massachusetts. He is now an economist and has been working lately on a study project on OPEC downstream operations, Tehranian said.

☐The hit of the day at the Common Saturday was the appearance of Channel 4's sportscaster, Bob Lobell. He was chatting with everyone. His wife works for Channel 5, that's the reason for his presence...he almost stole the show from the Channel 5 celebs!

☐Lisa Fauth receives her diploma from Dr. William Boyle, President of Curry College, at the 104th annual commencement exercises at the Milton College May 22. Lisa was the salutatorian of her class and graduated Summa Cum Laude. She received a Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in management.

☐Paul Buckley's back, wounded while at work, is definitely on the mend, something he is happy to report.

☐Gerald McNabb worked hard last Saturday, earning his way up in his Eagle Scout project. He supervised the fingerprinting of school-age children for their parents.

☐Emily Hart Koch, daughter of Mrs. Mickail H. Koch of 76A Beach St., Cohasset, received a diploma from the school's Principal, Stephen G. Kurtz. She was one of the 310 graduating members of the Class of 1983.

During the ceremony it was announced that she was awarded High Honors for Academic Achievement.

In her senior year, she was a photography editor on the Board of the Exonian, the Academy's weekly newspaper, a member of the student council, and sang in three musical groups on campus.

She will attend Dartmouth College in the fall.

☐James C. Kirk of Cohasset has been named Business Unit Manager at Ocean Spray Cranberries, Inc. Kirk will be responsible for Sauce, Fresh Fruit and Industrial Sales. Prior to joining Ocean Spray, Kirk worked at The Gillette Company, where he held positions in the Research and Development Department, and the Marketing Department, where he was Associate Product Manager. He received his M.A. in 1972 from Stanford University and his B.A. in 1971 from Harvard University. Kirk lives in Cohasset with his wife Rita and two daughters, Rebecca and Sarah. Ocean Spray Cranberries, Inc., is a Marketing Cooperative of Cranberry and Grapefruit growers with plants in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Washington, Texas, and Florida. The Co-op recently recorded sales of $361 million for fiscal 1982.

☐Assumption College awarded 484 degrees May 14 to graduates of the undergraduate college, the graduate school and the continuing and professional education center.

Cohasset graduates are: Polly J. Curley of 299 S. Main Street, who received a bachelor of arts degree in Biology, and Michael H. Sullivan of 708 Jerusalem Road, who received a bachelor of arts degree in Management.

☐June E. Robbins of 277 South Main St. recently received an associate in science degree at commencement exercises held at Dean Junior College. A retailing major at Dean, Robbins was a member of Phi Theta Kappa honor society and a Dean's List student. She was named to Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges and served on the Student Activities Committee for two years. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne H. Robbins, she is a graduate of Cohasset High School.

☐Laura Connor of Cohasset graduated recently from U.Mass.-Boston, Gerontology Program. She hopes to become an advocate for the elderly in Cohasset and has found the program in Gerontology most interesting and rewarding.

☐Karen Pompeo of Cohasset is a recent graduate of Archbishop Williams High School.

☐Now that summer is officially here, everyone should have a lot of news for this writer. Please report your "happenings" so that everyone may share in your fun. Also remember that this is the place to report any gripe that you may have. Could be you'll get a favorable response. Please call me at 383-0560.

School Board to review policy on absenteeism & tardiness

The School Committee is still not satisfied with its revised policy on absenteeism and tardiness.

School Committee member Jack Langmaid said another committee and public workshop is needed to "do a better job." He is not satisfied with the current revisions.

Langmaid opposes School Supt. Eugene Crowell who said the policy should be established as quickly as possible even though the revisions, he said, are not "cast in concrete."

But Crowell said teacher input would not be great in the summer because many teachers are away and he added teacher input is important to resolve several policy issues.

But Langmaid said a committee meeting is not the place to rewrite a policy.

The committee decided to establish a special subcommittee of Langmaid and committee member Diana Kornet. This special sub-panel will meet before the committee's regularly scheduled meeting, Wednesday, July 13.

At a workshop last week parents, teachers, the school committee and student representatives to the school committee discussed Cohasset High School's high rate of absenteeism and tardiness.

Many people agreed there is a problem with many students consistently arriving late to school and with many unexcused absences. Attendance clerk Pat Bowen said there is an average of 80 students absent each day.

Under the proposed policy, students will be allowed five absences from a course per quarter and on the sixth absence, the student will receive no credit in that course.

Excused absences for medical reasons will not be counted in the total number of absences leading to no credit.

This does not mean that a student must obtain a doctor's note every time he gets a slight fever or severe cold. A phone call from the parent to the school would be sufficient.

Some people raised concerns about whether they were being denied parental discretion. "I have two high honors students," a mother said. "It's because they are so conscientious that they want to catch up. To me, it's OK for them to stay home when they're feeling stressed."

Some parents and teachers spoke against that argument, saying that students should learn how to deal with stress while in high school because they will have to face it eventually. In addition, they said habits are formed now and bad habits will only hurt the child in the long run.

Marie Schleiff, a teacher who served on the study committee, said that it wasn't fair to the teachers or the other students for someone who has skipped school to be allowed to make up work. She said she has to repeat a lesson when someone is absent. Although she is happy to give extra help to someone who is legitimately ill, she said, "Anything that takes away from the 40 minutes that I have, interferes with the education process."

Student Representative Ginger Ralff, a junior, said there has to be a balance between what teachers, parents and students find best deals with the problem of students missing school or coming in late. She said, "Kids talk about what little gets done the day before vacation and that's why most people don't come."

Teachers said they didn't want to teach anything too important the day before vacation because they would have to reteach it when students returned from vacation. Most agreed that this wasn't fair to those students who attended school.

Chartis Langmaid, mother, said, "If consequences are severe enough, kids will be more responsible. It (tardiness and absenteeism) is a bad habit which will follow them in their later life."

One parent suggested identifying the chronic offenders and dealing with them specifically. But Student Representataive John Repogle, junior, and Ginger said absenteeism and tardiness has pervaded the system. Students know they can get away with it; so they miss classes, Repogle said.

Cohasset historical museums open June 25

by David Wadsworth

Saturday, June 25, will be the opening of the Historical Society, its three museums at Cohasset Center.

This will be the 55th year as a community organization.

The center museums will be open each day except Mondays until the end of September, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Opening day June 25 and Sunday June 26 will be Open House days at the museums, with the public invited to attend at no charge.

Tourists will be able to viewexhibits and displays of relics, documents and memorabilia from early Cohasset, ranging from the town's great "Age of Sail" at the Maritime Museum to early gowns and costumes at the nearby Independence Gown Museum.

Featured June 25 will be members of the 43rd Regiment of Foot, an authentically re-created Revolutionary War British Army unit, as well as society members and friends in olden garb. Light refreshments will be served.

The Cohasset Historical Society, founded in 1928, is the lineal descendant of an original Committee on Town History, established in 1894 by act of the town.

The earliest collecting of artifacts relating to town history dates from that time, and many of these exhibits displayed at the Center museums.

Each museum building stresses a different and unique part of the history of a typical Massachusetts coastal village whose early years found its townspeople dependent upon the land and the ocean for their survival and livelihood.

The society's library and hist orical archives are located to local and regional history and a selection of general American history books.

The archives specializes in local history, and there are seen hundreds of documents, pictures, prints and other memorabilia of early Cohasset.

The Lothrop House is open to the public each first and third Tuesday of the month during the summer season from 2 to 4 with hostesses in attendance.

In addition to the regularly scheduled visiting hours at the society's museums, pre-arranged group tours are welcome at special rates. For further information about group tours please call the society at 383-6930 or 383-0773.

Additionally, scheduled for August, are several weekend walking tours with guides to be provided by the society. Each tour will visit specific sites of particular historical interest to residents of our town. Further details concerning the summer walking tours will be announced soon.

Laugelle meeting . . .

said she knew from "personal experience" the A.G.'s office could act within two days on occasion.

She said the board had been "documenting their case" for a year. "There seems to be no understanding by the press or anyone else that this board has spent over a year trying to re-educate and inform the landfill superintendent that we have a new procedure," Sweeney said.

Sweeney suggested the health board might give the jurisdiction of the dump to the selectmen. McArthur said she knew of no case where selectmen had been asked to allow spending for a second opinion. She added the dump jurisdiction under town bylaws could not be changed again without a vote of town meeting.

Humphreys implied that the Board of Health could resign, if they wished, but "you do not have untrammeled authority."

Humphreys insisted that failure to set a meeting Monday night, would be viewed by him as abrogating the new town bylaw.

Sweeney argues that by granting the "informal meeting" they would be taking "the first step on the escalator" of following the bylaws.

Bliss argues again that holding a hearing made "no difference." Sweeney and Kern finally agreed to hold the meeting July 11 with Joseph Laugelle from 8:30 to 9 p.m.

Editorial

A duty

The news that the state's Office of Communities & Development is threatening to withhold discretionary funds to Cohasset because of what some addle-brained bureaucrat has determined are "restrictive housing regulations" has folks confused and outraged. Here follows an attempt to make sense of the problem.

We believe that "restrictive housing" is a problem on its own merit irrespective of the pronouncements of addle-brained bureaucrats. It is a problem because in an attractive town like Cohasset housing costs rise more and more every year that goes by.

But while the cost crunch affects us all, it affects the poor and elderly, many of whom are long-time residents, most decisively. Without some action on the part of the town some of our own people — both the elderly and the young just coming of age — probably won't be able to afford to stay in Cohasset in years to come.

"Restrictive housing" is also a problem because state law decrees that it shall be. Several years ago, in an attempt to restrict so-called "snob zoning," the legislature created the legal basis upon which the Office of Communities & Development can threaten to amputate hundreds of thousands of dollars of towns' state entitlements.

To our way of thinking, this sort of threat is exceedingly well-meaning — and outrageously unfair. It typifies the social engineering in government that only serves to take power away from people and localities and put it in the hands of bureaucrats and politicians.

But the bottom line about these threats is that they are quite legal according to the law of the Commonwealth.

Cohasset, therefore, had best take heed. Selectmen are obligated to come up with a plan that increases opportunities for low income housing in the town. The plan must be approved by all the appropriate aforesaid addle-brained bureaucrats. But everything is not woe. We aren't obligated to turn the South Shore into the South Bronx — yet.

Seriously, the specifics of the plan are ours to invent according to our own needs and capabilities. Only if we act addle-brained ourselves and fail to act on any plan will our bureaucratic "friends" have cause to declare a field day and deny the town state funds.

So we exhort our statesmen, otherwise known as selectmen: Get going! It is Cohasset's duty as a town to comply with the law whether the law emits a fragrant perfume or a rancid odor; and it is your duty to see that as a town we do comply.

NEWS ITEMS — Cohasset: (1) State agency says town 'too restrictive' hasn't done enough to provide low income housing. (2) Grazing lambs on posh Jerusalem Road sparks neighbor response. Some don't like the wooly things. Opinions differ. Regulations don't define sheep distance

"...What with the price of lamb these days we could never qualify for low cost housing anyway...so...why don't we just hang out here..."

LWV Convention

The Cohasset League of Women Voters sent several delegates and a large group of observers to the state league's biennial convention at Tufts University, Medford.

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis and Senator Paul E. Tsongas addressed more than 300 delegates from 100 local leagues.

During the convention, delegates voted a new statewide evaluation of day care needs and regulations.

Delegates from the Cohasset League included President Marie Caristi and Nancy Bettinger. Observers were Janine Broadhurst, Eleanor Thistlethwaite, Doris McNulty, Sherry Becker, Mary Larson and Debbie Cook.

Value of a bomb shelter

By Claire McDonough

"How come we never built a home bomb shelter?" I asked the Dragon. "We were seriously considering it back in the fifties."

"Right," he recalled. "That was when we honestly believed that 'duck and cover' would protect us from a nuclear attack, and if we changed our bottled water and canned goods regularly we'd be prepared to survive anything the enemy could throw at us."

Just then Tanya, known to her nearest and dearest as 'The Informer,' interrupted.

"Grandpa," she whined, "Breida's foot is in front of my side of the seat and she was just smiling at a boy in another car and every time I sing she listens and Skipper ate the last of the jelly beans and he opened the window and a bug came in and bit me in the eye and I could be blinded for life."

Skipper's own eyes narrowed. "Listen kid," he warned, "don't mess with me, or I'll fast."

Breida looked startled. "Somehow that doesn't sound very threatening."

Her brother shrugged.

"It worked for Gandhi."

Tanya rubbed her eye. "It's probably bleeding inside my head. And I think it gave me the red tide."

She sobbed tentatively.

Patrick turned and faced her. "Red tide is clams, not bugs. And if you rub your eye it'll get worse. And anyway, you're in no position to criticize anyone. When I was taking a shower this morning you turned on the cold water upstairs and nearly scalded me to death."

"I don't blame her," Breida sniffed. "You had already been in the shower for 25 minutes, and the rest of us wanted to shower, too."

"Not me," said Skipper. "When he's in the shower he isn't playing his guitar and using an amplifier that can be heard three counties away. I'll wait and take my shower when he's asleep."

"Sure," Pat snarled, "and you'll stay in for forty minutes and keep the whole family awake. Anyway, who says you can hear my guitar three counties away?"

"The Chief of Police from Barnstable. He called this morning."

"Very funny. Cute, Skip. Real cute."

"Sez who?"

"Sez me."

"My eye still hurts."

Breida sighed. "Children can be so trying."

The Dragon turned to me. "We are on the Southeast Expressway," he said, "confined to a vehicle. We are with four of the people we love most in the entire world, If all our children, their husbands or wives and our grandchildren were here we would be with the 17 people we love most in the entire world.

"Now," he continued, "I would like to conduct a little experiment. How long would you say we have been in this latest traffic jam?"

I considered briefly, "About 45 minutes?"

"According to both my watch and the dashboard clock, it has been four minutes and 12 seconds. How long did the federal government tell us we should stay in a bomb shelter following a nuclear attack?"

"I forget. But I just remembered why we decided not to build one."

Board of Health briefs...

The Board of Health recently approved the following actions.

The board approved Mary Casey's septic waste system for a dog grooming and kennel operation. Casey said she expects her daughter will groom (and bathe) five to six dogs a day using 10 gallons of water for each dog.

The board approved plans submitted by Tony Laugelle for a house lot on Howe Road. Laugelle has modified the plans to incorporate a study with the living room, so the house may qualify as a four bedroom instead of a five bedroom house.

CEDARLEDGE VILLAGE

The board accepted the revised plans of Cedarledge Village. The plans raised the septic system, built to accommodate all 18 units, by 1.3 feet.

Joseph Crossen of C & L Realty presented the board huge aerial photographs of the Cedar Street dump site and his property taken in 1977 and 1978.

The board and the Realty Co. have questioned the causes of the ponding at the landfill, and whether operations at the dump have been a factor.

OTHER ACTIONS

The board accepted the water table observations by member Michael Bliss at 207 Sohier St. for Robert Pape.

The board placed Recycling Monitor Stephen Leighton "off probation" status as a new employee at the Cedar Street Dump. He was on probation because he is a new employee.

The board told the Health Agent, Elaine Eliopoulos, to require owners of 14 Baybery Lane who have a spatub discharging 250 gallons of water several times a year into a drywell to have the site dug up so an inspection of the adequacy of the drywell can be checked. Board members said this site in the Veterans section of town was in a "fragile area," which might require sewage.

Report from the state house

By Mary Jeanette Murray

"REAP," Governor Dukakis' proposed "Revenue Enforcement and Protection" plan to generate more revenue to balance the state budget by increasing fees and the gas and cigarette taxes, and continuing Governor King's beefed-up collection program, took a new twist in the Senate last week.

While the House worked into the night debating the budget, the Senate Ways and Means Committee came up with its own REAP package.

The Senate proposal is significantly different than that passed by the House. So now, in the middle of deciding how the money will be spent next year, we still really don't know where the money will come from.

It's like buying a lottery ticket and going on a shopping spree before you know if you won!

The Senate Ways and Means version of REAP claims to raise $40 million more than the version passed recently by the House, bringing the total REAP revenues to about $118 million.

The two major changes in the Senate version are a repeal of the minimum pricing of cigarettes combined with a new 5 percent sales tax.

The House had approved a 4 percent excise tax but maintained minimum pricing. A proposed increase in the capital gains tax from 4.3 to 5.4 percent which would bring it in line with the income tax for wage earners.

In response, Citizens for Limited Taxation dubbed the Senate REAP package, "Restrict Economic Activity and Progress." The group criticized the Senate plan for eliminating the 1979 capital gains tax cut which, they say, helped create the favorable business climate that helped this state weather the recent recession.

We have to ask, yet again, whether we are being eased gently toward a broad based tax increase. Of course, we will carefully monitor the Senate as it debates the budget and the REAP program.

Other major features of the proposed revision include:

— Increasing from $3,000 to $5,000 for individuals, and from $5,000 to $8,300 for married taxpayers, the total amount taxpayers could make annually and be free from state taxes. The increases would be phased in over three years.

— Eliminating the Sales Tax Credit which can be used by those with incomes under $5,000. The committee said the credit only amounts to about six dollars a year, creates administrative costs, and, with proposed changes in income tax laws exempting low-income people from taxes would become irrelevant.

— Imposing a 10 percent sales tax on the wholesale price of all tobacco goods except cigarettes.

— Assessing up to $2 million Blue Cross and Blue Shield for state efforts in preventive health.

— Doubling all fines for speeding violations.

— Increasing from $5 to $10 the fine imposed for those renewing a license who have outstanding parking tickets.

— Exacting a $25,000 fee for banks petitioning the Board of Bank Incorporation for a change in charter.

AFS student Anne Koehrer bids goodbye

Before leaving Cohasset July 3 on a bus trip heading toward New York City from where I'll fly back to Paris, I'd like to thank all the people who have made my stay in Cohasset possible.

First of all the Ellises for opening their home and including me in their great and loving family; the entire AFS chapter (especially the Spooners, the Goedeckes, the Sandells) for being so helpful and thoughtful; and also the high school administration, the teachers.

Thanks to all these people my year in Cohasset has been more than great and totally positive despite the hard times I sometimes had. The beginning was rather tough: I had left my family, my friends, my school, my habits, my language, my country, to come to the States. I expected everything but Cohasset because the French always think of California, Texas or New York City when they think of "l'Amerique" but certainly not of New England (and they don't know what they're missing!...)

I think I've grown up a lot this year because I had to create a new life, to make some friends, to get involved, to adjust to a totally different school (my French school had 3,000 students and 1,000 seniors and was much more like college here,) to become part of a family I didn't know.

It was really challenging: I knew I had to rely on myself; I knew everything was up to me. And I gained so much: the love of a family, priceless friendships -I met so many caring people in such a short time- and Cohasset where everyone knows each other; my home city has 400,000 inhabitants and when you walk downtown, you always are in a crowd of unknown and indifferent people. I therefore appreciated the small size of Cohasset.

I also got the incredible opportunity to discover a country, its people, its customs, its differences. But I discovered that beyond the differences people are basically the same whether they are French, American or whatever. I think an AFS experience is very unique; you can't forget it; it gives you a different view of yourself but it also makes the world closer and more human. Then you realize bitterly how absurd it is to have all those wars going on all over the planet. What for?

I'm leaving very soon...too soon... I'll miss everything, everyone, Cohasset and the ocean... But I also can't wait to go home, see my friends, my family... and speak French! I know I won't be able to see everyone before I leave so...

Goodbye-Au revoir
Anne Koehrer, AFS Student from Dijon (France)

P.S. Thank-you Pam and J.T.! I couldn't have done it without you!

McArthur arbitrates Eliopoulis-Dennis debate

Selectman Chairman Mary Jane McArthur said she met with Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos and Building Inspector Robert Dennis last week in an attempt to resolve differences.

Eliopoulos had reported to the health board last week that Dennis had issued a permit for the owners of the property at 27 Summer Street to rebuild a structure in the rear as a "guest house," although she had not signed her approval. Eliopoulos said the building had been listed as a "tool shed" on the assessors' records since 1955.

The small 3 x 5 foot cesspool may not be adequate for more than intermittent use, she said. Dennis issued the permit based on affadavits that the property had been used as a guesthouse, rather than a tool shed.

McArthur said evidence showed the building had been a guesthouse for years, "despite what the assessors' records may say."

I feel it is important that employees of the town get along and respect each other, even though they work for different town boards, McArthur said.

The Board of Health voted to allow Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos to give her "technical opinion" of a proposed septic system on Hobard Lane.

Eliopoulos, who rents on Hobart Lane, said she would be swimming 76 feet from the septic system, and agreed she should not participate in the final decision making.

As CHS class president

Paul Johnson broke the mold

By Theresa Sullivan

He ran track, sang in the Barber Shop Chorus, counseled his peers, manned the lights in theatrical productions and was class president.

As at any high school, Cohasset students tend to place their fellow students in certain categories, said Paul Johnson.

But where does one place someone who is a cheerleader at a powder puff football game as well as a student representative to the school committee?

"I don't think I got put into a category," Paul said. "I was sort of in my own category."

Breaking down stereotypes wasn't necessarily easy for Paul. "When trying out for chorus, only four other boys tried out. I thought about that a lot."

But it didn't stop him from joining the organizations he was interested in — not by a long shot. "We used to stand up on the bus and sing. (after track meets). I didn't really care much about what people thought. I had a lot of fun in everything I did," he said.

He also said he learned a great deal from participating in extra-curricular activities. The Peer Counseling Program at Cohasset High School involves juniors and seniors working one-on-one with seventh and eighth graders to help them deal with the uncertainties and difficulties of growing up. Two guidance counselors run the program and interview applicants. Paul was one of 14 students chosen to be a counselor.

"I got a lot out of that program. I think it was one of the most meaningful programs I was in," Paul said. "I learned a lot about listening. I learned how to meet people and I learned counseling techniques.

"It was not just talking. It was a lot of caring and loving. It was more than just something an institution put together for helping kids."

Terminating the relationship at the end of the year with the student he was working with was extremely difficult, Paul said. "But you have to help them become independent."

Paul served as a student representataive to the School Committee for four years. That involves attending committee meetings and speaking on behalf of the students. "I thought it was important to have someone in the school, going to class day to day, expressing opinions," Paul said.

"I learned a lot about organizations. I learned how the school is either run or not run. I learned how to give my opinion when it was wanted," he said.

Paul was a co-captain of the cross country team and a tri-captain of the track team. But he "didn't really like running all that much. But after six years of running, I learned to like it. I made some of my best friends (through cross country and track). I think running is learning (about people) as much as it is getting into shape."

One would expect a person like Paul to receive many scholarships but he received none. He didn't apply. "I felt people thought I was in enough already," he said. But aren't scholarships intended for those who have contributed to the school? "I felt there were a lot of people who needed them more," he said.

Students don't apply for the awards; the faculty determines the award recipients. Paul received the Daughters of the American Revolution award and the August F. Peterson Memorial award.

He is the son of Paul and Virginia Johnson of 60 Forest Ave.

Paul plans to attend either Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y., or Worcester Polytechnic Institute in Worcester to study electrical engineering. He said he might work toward his masters degree after college or work for a large corporation.

He likes math and computers, but he likes people too. "In choosing a school, I was nervous about getting too involved in school and forgetting about people. I don't want to get impersonal," Paul said with intensity.

"If I do find myself going off too far into my own world, I'll think back (to high school) and come back." He doesn't want to stop working with people.

And he won't, at least for this summer. Paul will lifeguard at Sandy Beach as he did last summer. And swimmers will have one dedicated, concerned lifeguard watching out for them.

Basketball coach vote postponed

CHS Principal Richard Streeter, Athletic Director Clark Chatterton and School Supt. Eugene Crowell are recommending the school commmittee vote to appoint Kenneth Cisneros, a jr.- senior high science teacher as the new head boys basketball coach. This would replace current coach Ed Minelli. However, the committee voted to postpone the vote until committee chairman Dick Conley has a chance to study the issue. Streeter said he did not feel the team had sound basketball fundamentals. Crowell said he feels the position should go to a younger teacher in the school. However, some of Minelli's players and people affiliated with CHS athletics feel Minelli has done an outstanding job improving the team from a one-victory record two years ago to a season mark of 9-11 in tough South Shore League competition. Minelli is a regional director of the Bay State Games, a youth summer competition, and has volunteered many hours to help organize youth sports for the Recreation Dept.

Hart assigned extra duties

Special Education Director Stephen Hart was assigned extra business related duties by the school committee Monday and will receive extra pay. When John Raftery, former business director resigned last fall, the committee decided to intergrateRaftery's responsibilities among the executive administrative staff.

The committee also decided it would reassess the situation toward the end of the school year. A special subcommittee composed of committee members Joseph Nedrow and Diana Kornet was formed by the committee in executive session last week to review the situation.

They recommended that Hart be also named Assistant to the Superintendent - Financial Management.

Kornet and Nedrow said for the past several months, Hart has devoted "untold hours and weekends to learn and carry out" the duties of the former business manager.

The committee voted to increase Hart's salary by $1,774. Nedrow reported this "token" amount represents 5 percent of Raftery's projected 1983-84 base salary.

In addition, $300 was added to Hart's travel allowance of $800. Nedrow said $300 is one half of Raftery's allowance and is consistent with the increased travel associated with Hart's new duties.

The move was opposed by board member Martha Gjesteby who said the establishment of the subcommittee in executive session was illegal and she is not convinced the committee needs to establish a title for new business related duties.

Outdoor School plan studied

School committee member Jack Langmaid wants the Deer Hill Outdoor School plan studied as soon as possible so a program may be implemented in late September or early October rather than the traditional Outdoor School program in May. Langmaid said there are more benefits if the program is held in the fall such as class unity, better student-teacher relationships, better weather and better academic worth. Deer Hill Principal Kenneth Ekberg said the program could not be implemented this fall because much planning time was needed. School Supt. Eugene Crowell agreed and said teacher and parents input was also needed.

Light Up Your Life

by Lee Leavitt

Outside security lighting is considered a luxury by many people, but now, very often, it is a necessity. Many people do not realize the alternatives they have in this form of lighting, and would be amazed at the low cost of operating. Instead of a 150 watt flood light you have in front of your house, just change them to the 90 watt capsulite by Sylvania and you will still get 150 watts for a savings of 1½ cents per hour.

Also there is the high pressure sodium fixture which takes a 70 watt bulb and has the equivalent of a 300 watt flood bulb. These bulbs range from as low as 35 watts up to 1000 watts.

Also available are timers to automatically turn these outdoor lights on and off for you.

So, no longer should outside security lighting be a luxury. There are many styles available at Flagstaff Lighting Showroom at NORTH RIVER ELECTRIC, 433 Washington St., Norwell. We accept MC and VISA and are open 9-5 M-S; and 9-9 Th. Call us at 659-2272 or 749-5524 for help on your lighting needs.

Enjoy the great outdoors . . . without the bugs!

Make this the year you enjoy cool early morning breezes or the still of evening without annoying insects and other pests. Add a custom fabricated screen enclosure to your present home and enjoy summer living at its best.

Jeff Dodge makes 'awesome' music

By Theresa Sullivan

Jeff Dodge believes in teaching music the way Vincent Van Gogh believed in painting.

Three years ago, when Dodge began as the band director, there were 18 students in the Senior High School Band. Next year there will be some 58 members.

Trumpet player David Leptach, a freshman, wasn't even asked what he thought about his band director. But this is what he said: "Mr. Dodge is awesome. He's a really good conductor. Most people just care about how you play and not who you are. He actually cares about the people in the band. He doesn't really yell at you a lot, only when he has to. He really wants you to push on."

Dodge conducts the 18-member Jazz Ensemble and the 40-member Wind Ensemble. Twenty-seven of the Wind Ensemble members are freshmen. This past May, both bands placed first in the Heritage Music Festival held in Newport, R.I.

It's good for the kids to win, Dodge said, but the experience of participating in a band goes far beyond playing notes. "It's fantastic for them socially," he said. "For the kids who don't have an interest in sports, participating in a group is great for them. It (the band) is a dichotomy of society — people working together with one common goal."

Dodge was granted tenure two weeks ago and he is the first Cohasset band director in the last 15 years to receive tenure. He said knowing he will be in Cohasset for a while is encouraging. "It really makes you feel like recuiting for more kids and building the program. I'm looking forward to seeing the program take off into a more educational and diverse experience."

When the Jazz and Wind Ensembles were in Newport for the Heritage Music Festival, they also spent some time walking around the area. "Sight-seeing in Newport was a good social thing for the kids," Dodge said. "You want the band to bond together and get to know each other."

But kids don't join the bands just for the social aspects. It's hard work.

Most of the students participate in both bands. Classes run on a six-day schedule, and both bands meet every other day. In the course of six school days, each band meets three times as a class.

In addition, they practice for two hours one night a week and in one-hour sectionals (rhythm, trumpet, trombone, saxophone) once a week.

Each and every member isn't bubbling over with talent, but that's not the point, Dodge said. "Sometimes I'll rewirte a part for a kid and take out some of the harder parts if he's having a lot of trouble with it."

When they compete, he doesn't want one student faking it and not really playing because he's afraid to make a mistake. "Competition to me is good for the kids and helps them to be better educated," Dodge said. "The primary goal (of competing) is for the experience. It gives them more motivation to improve. It gives them a deadline to shoot for. It increases their belief in themselves."

Freshman John Kornet, who plays the saxophone, said he enjoyed competing and he likes winning too. "I thought it was great," he said with an emphasis on the word "great." "I was really surprised."

This past year, five Cohasset students qualified to play in the Southeastern Massachusetts School Band Masters' Association (SEMSBA). Dodge was chosen to conduct the 103 students selected out of hundreds to perform together after only 15 hours of practice.

As a preparatory measure for the SEMSBA audition, Dodge said he wants to begin a recital day one afternoon per week where each student performs solo pieces before a small group of fellow students. "By the time they audition for SEMSBA, they'll be comfortable with the piece," Dodge said.

Until next fall, he'll direct high school students in the south Shore Conservatory of Music Jazz Ensemble. The three other conductors, Frank Batisti, Doug Wauchope and Dan Riley will direct the wind ensemble at the music camp.

Swim program begins June 27

After a busy opening weekend, with pools full of happy, quenched swimmers, the Cohasset Swim Center began operating under their summer schedule Monday.

Programs begin the week of June 27. Mailers which describe the programs and outline the weekly schedule may be picked up at the Center.

Memberships at the Swim Center are open to all Cohasset residents, employees of the town and owners of local businesses. Fees charged for use of the pool, set at the minimum required to cover operating expenses, are $75 for family; $50 for individual adult; $35 for individual junior; and $2 for occasional use — single swim or guest swim.

No one will be denied use of the pool because of the inability to pay.

The Center's schedule for 1983 is:

Monday-Friday: 7-8 a.m., wake-up service — an early morning swim for lappers; 8 a.m.-noon, Red Cross, Cohasset Swim Team and Cohasset Recreation Department programs; 2-5:30 p.m., open swim; 5:30-7 p.m., adult swim; and 7 p.m.-closing (dark), open swim, except Thursday evenings for teen night.

Saturday and Sunday: 9 a.m.-closing, open swim; 1-3 p.m. for 20 minutes, if requested, adult swim; and 5-5:45 p.m., adult swim.

Saturday splash out takes place from 10-11 a.m. — an hour for games and splash time when everyone is invited.

Water sports — informal pick-up games — is scheduled for Tuesday and Thursdays from 6-7 p.m.

Senior Citizens swim is from 12-2 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursday.

Adult swim lessons, Monday and Wednesday from 6:15-7 p.m.; and adult fitness class, Mondays and Wednesdays from 6-7 p.m. complete the schedule.

Contact the swim center for more information, 383-9463.

Cohasset sailing club classes begin Monday

On Thursday, June 23, classes will be posted on the bulletin board at the Cohasset Sailing Club. Classes begin Monday, June 27.

Lifejackets are required for each individual taking classes.

An adult sailing class for beginners will be offered Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to noon. Applications for memberships and other sailing instructions are still available for children over 10 years of age.

Adults interested in a basic or intermediate course of sailing offered on weekends may still apply to the Cohasset Sailing Club.

Please contact Kevin Cooke at the clubhouse or call Joyce Conway, 383-1621. These programs are available for Cohasset residents only.

Sailing results

Here are last weekend's sailing results from the Flying Scots and the Cohasset 210's.

FLYING SCOTS

First place was won by Roger Porter, skipper, and his crew of Jack Houpes.

Terry Young, skipper, came in second with his crew of Jamie Carlson.

In third place was Peter Chapman, skipper, and his crew of Jeannie Baccari.

All the skippers and crewmates were from Cohasset.

The Flying Scots is an independent fleet not affiliated with any club. It is a member of the National Flying Scots Association.

Last Saturday's race was a parade.

Very few boats switched positions, except when Peter Chapman passed Dick Horn in the third leg of the race.

COHASSET 210'S

First place was won by John Keane, in his boat "Gezgu."

Stephen Sprohl was second in his boat, "Ibis."

Tom Hamilton in his boat, "Toucan," placed third.

Shumaker takes 1st in 100 yd. dash at Junior Olympics

The finals of the Massachusetts State Junior Olympics were held June 18 at M.I.T. in Cambridge for the second consecutive year.

David Shumaker finished first in the 100 yard dash.

David competed in the 12-13 year old age group against nine other finalists from across the state.

Boston Bruins player Brad Park presented David with his first place palque. Gov. Michael Dukakis attended the Olympic Games which were sponsored by the Massachusetts State Police.

David has completed seventh grade at Cohasset Jr.-Sr. High School.

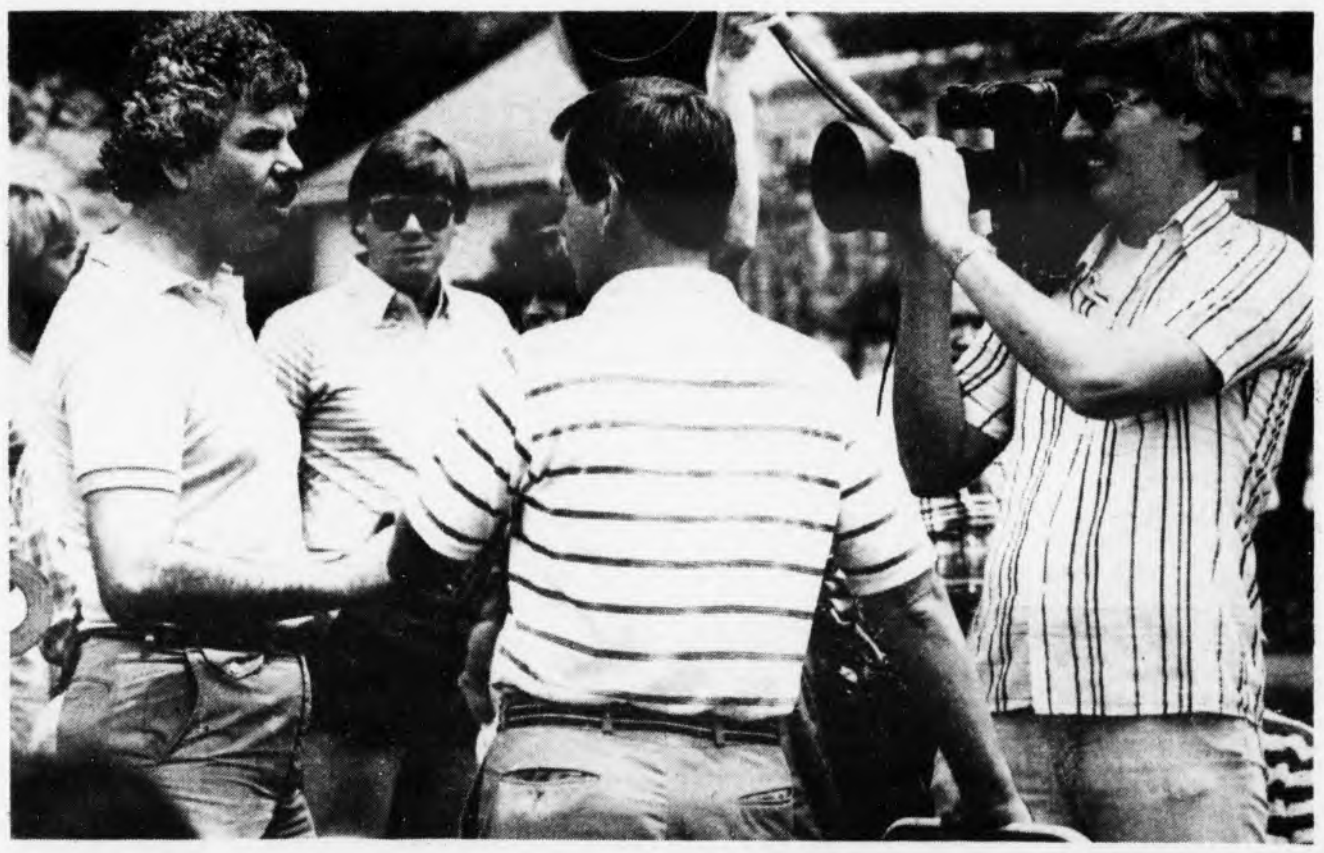
Channel 5 films special on Common from tree top level.

Colorful 'Show Biz' at Cohasset Common



State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray chats with Channel 5's sportscaster Bob Ryan during Common filming.

Behind the scenes on Cohasset Common: above, Chet and Natalie, Channel 5 news anchors, are filmed, and below, Bob Ryan and Peter Mehegan talk sports for the camera.

Another day on the Common for Channel 5 & you

By Patricia Anne Walsh

"Channel 5 and You" came to Cohasset Saturday and the station left Saturday night with everyone agreeing a good time was had by all.

The Channel 5 personalities, Chet Curtis and Natalie Jacobson, John Willis , Frank Avruch and Don Gillis mingled with the crowd and in many cases looked much different than their made up television appearances.

That was the consensus of many Cohasset residents as they observed Channel 5 stars in person, talked with them and asked for their autographs.

Television crews filmed at the Cohasset Common Saturday. A segment which was filmed from noon to 6 p.m , will comprise 20 minutes of a 90-minute special.

This special will include shots taken in Gloucester and other Massachusetts towns and the special will be aired during the evening hours of July 4.

The day seemed to pass without incident.except for two instances. A group of South Shore NOW women marched and picketed, protesting the court action concerning the Holbrook rape case.

A small boy ran off down Beach Street with two pieces of bunting cloth he snatched as "souvenirs."

It had been earlier reported that the picnic would be limited to Channel 5 employees and invited guests. However, 125 tickets were reserved for Cohasset residents on a first come, first serve basis. The caterers served all the Cohasset residents who appeared, even small children from 1 to 3 p .m.

Channel 4's sports anchor, Bob Lobel, who has claimed to make someone's mother-in-law a hockey fan had a warm personality. Lobel, who very much looks the part of an athlete, said he attended the Channel 5 picnic because "my wife, Susan, works for Channel 5."

By 7 a.m. the stage was erected, tables and chairs for 250 people were set up, flags and bunting were waving in the breeze and the large boom camera was assembled.

David Berwick, who has his own firm, "Great Gatherings" of Brighton said this is his second year setting up such occasions for the station. "I do it for banks and other companies also," he said.

Berwick, who graduated from Boston University in 1978, was responsible for asking for permission from Cohasset selectmen, furnishing the tables and chairs, hiring the caterer and arranging for the cleanup.

After employees had picked up the trash, he minutely went over the grass on the roped off Common area again for any cigarette butts overlooked as Selectmen chairman Mary Jane McArthur quietly observed from the sidelines.

Channel 5 had posted with selectmen a $25,000 bond. The only remuneration the town receives will be a "flag, like last year," McArthur said.

Director Bill Lowell positioned the four cameramen before the arrival of Producer J. Phil Miller. Miller later acknowledged the station had budgeted nearly $30,000 for filming expenses in addition to the bond.

"Don't worry," said one worker. "The station will take in a lot more than that from the sponsors."

Station celebrities had reserved up to six tickets for family members and guests. The menu which was served to Cohasset residents included chicken, hamburger, hot dogs, potato salad, cole slaw, corn on the cob, and watermelon.

"Don't forget to mention the Coke wagon," said one Jeruslem Road woman. "Those free drinks have been a lifesaver in this heat all day," she said as temperatures hovered around 90 degrees (Fahrenheit).

At the side of the serving area under foil were lobsters, clams and cherry pies planned for a scene where station stars would be shot eating them. The stars were so busy , they never got to eat them. The stage hands got those choice leftovers at the end of the day.

In addition to watching the television performers, a stilt walker, clown and pantominist Garry Krinsky entertained the crowd. Uniformed Boy Scout Edward Grafton of Hammond Avenue waited in line for two hours for artist Michael Bavaro of Hyannis to draw his colored caraciture.

Children were offered free face makeups and helium ballons, all arranged by Berwick.

Four bands each provided 45 minute musical and vocal performances in between other happenings. The bands included, "The Good Times Jazz Band," "Raz Ma Taz," "Contra Dance," and Jeanne Stahl and Mason Darling.

Volleyball games were staged between portable stands. Willis and Eileen Prose of the "Good Day Show" wound up the performances a little after 6 p.m.

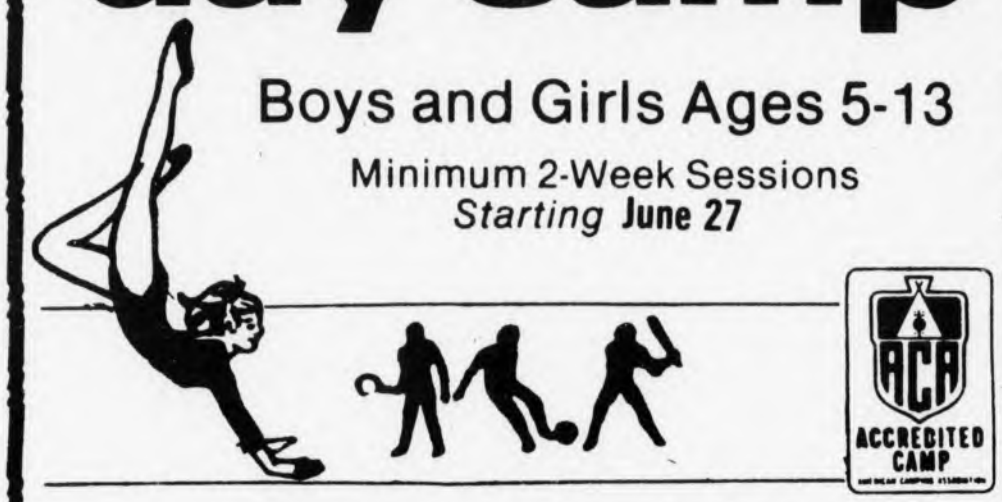
"See you Monday," Willis said casually as they walked away.

The boom Ikegami camera operator came down from his 18 foot perch and took off the brimmed flowerpot straw hat he had tied on with a bandana to withstand the sun on his head.

The NOW group had started marching around the Common with signs protesting the Holbrook rape decision but the television officials averted any problem by inviting them on camera for a short segment. The group then left.

A little after 7:30 p.m., a small boy weating a navy jersey lettered, "I'm a good sport," snatched two pieces of bunting before cleanup crews retrieved them.

"I'm too tired to chase him," one of the men said.



At 8 p.m., the last truck drove away, leaving behind only a string of ten helium ballons, high in a tree which a youth unsuccessfully tried to retrieve.

"My family enjoyed this last year also," said Joseph ine Vangel of 729 Jerusalem Road. "I loved seeing the stars in person. Some of them looked very different than on television. However, I think we should only allow this once a year," she said.

Municipal Garage Study

At its June 1 meeting the Selectmen adopted the charge for a Municipal Garage Facilities Study Committee. Applicants are urged to respond by June 22, 1983.

Here is the assignment for the committee:

There will be a Municipal Garage Facilities Study Committee which will consist of five members each appointed by selectmen. Members will include an architect and civil engineer.

The committee will determine the potential building space and facilities needs for the storage, maintenance, of all municipal vehicles and equipment including school buses, police cruisers and fire vehicles and apparatus.

The committee will determine the office space needs for all departments whose function is public works in nature including Highway, Tree, Parks, Cemeteries, Sewers, Wiring and any other departments.

The committee will search for existing buildings and land whether publicly owned or privately owned which may be used to meet the town's municipal garage facilities needs.

The committee will look for alternative sites whether publicly or privately owned to construct a municipal garage facility.

The committee will develop cost estimates for all potential alternatives explored to meet the town's municipal garage facilities needs.

The committee will explore alternative approaches to financing the purchase or construction of a municipal garage facility.

The committee will also assist selectmen in seeking the support of the Capital Budget Committee, Advisory Committee, and Town Meeting, to secure funding for a municipal garage facility.

The committee will compile all findings and recommendations in a written report to selectmen.

Garden club trip to Nursery

The Cohasset Amateur Garden Club has an interesting trip to Alan Haskell's, a large nursery and garden accessories company of New Bedford, planned for June 28. Members will bring a box lunch and meet at the town hall parking lot at 10:30 a.m. to car pool.

Ambrose Buckley

Ambrose Edward Buckley, 80, a retired service manager for the Old Colony Gas Co. in East Braintree, died Saturday at home after a brief illness. His wife, Margaret E. (O'Brien) Buckley, died in April.

Buckley was born in Quincy and worked as a shoe cutter at the Rice and Hutchinson Shoe Co. in Quincy while still in high school. After graduation from Quincy High School, he was a Quincy firefighter for a few years before going to work at what was then the Boston Gas Co. and is now Old Colony Gas Co. He retired in 1968 after 40 years' service. He was a member of St. Anthony's Church.

He leaves a son, Army Major Dennis F. Buckley of Newport News, Va.; a daughter, Margaret E. Buckley of Cohasset; a sister, Marie Hanlon of Quincy; and two grandchildren.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Wednesday in St. Anthony's Church. Burial will be in Woodside Cemetery.

Senior citizen trips

By Katherine McGrath

Cohasset Sixty Plus Club members are offered three interesting trips.

The first is a three day bus tour to Bar Harbor, Maine, Wednesday, Aug. 10 by Collette Tours.

Hospitality at the Anchorage Motel, a clambake, lobster included, and a cruise of Bar Harbor, are specials included in the trip's cost of $169.

Make a deposit of $25 before June 30. Call Connie Silipo, 545-3349, for more information on all tours.

Crimson Travel has a three day bus tour to the scenic Green Mountain state of Vermont, October 9.

It is Sugarbush Valley for two nights in a new condominium and the trip stops at many interesting and scenic villages.

The trip costs $179. A deposit is required with reservations.

Paragon Travel has a seven day cruise, special for Senior Citizens, leaving from Boston, Aug. 27 on the good ship "T.S.S. Mardi gras." The cost is $695.

There are reservations open for the Cape Cod Canal Cruise, Tuesday, July 19.

Blood pressure clinic June 24

The Cohasset Medi Mart Drug Store, 739 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, will hold a free blood pressure screening clinic Friday, June 24, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The screening will be conducted by a nurse. Anyone with an elevated reading will be advised to see a physician.

The clinic is one of a series of health screenings held regularly by the Medi Mart Drug Stores.

Children's fitness camp

The Camp Quonahasit staff has designed a program which can help young children to develop skills in balance, strength and agility as well as stretching and strengthening muscles which can cause postural deficiencies.

Children are encouraged to learn about their bodies, and what they are capable of doing, thereby developing a sense of confidence in the use of large equipment, as well as self-esteem in the accomplishment of new skills.

In addition to physical skills development, children from three to five years-old may participate in sand and water play, beginning games, ball, hoop and beanbag activities, and parachute games.

The camp program begins July 5. Three two-week sessions will be held at the Cohasset Community Center, and children will attend from 9 a.m. to noon daily. The program will be directed by Sandra Putnam, Director of the Community Center Nursery School.

Interested parents are urged to apply as soon as possible, as enrollment is limited. Please call 383-0036 weekday mornings for information, or 545-3002 after 5 p.m.

At the So. Shore Art Center . . .

Take a week and sharpen your skills in sculpture, pastel portrait or outdoor drawing and painting by participating in a South Shore Art Center one week intensive workshop.

The Center, 103 Ripley Rd., is offering intensive workshops for students wanting to concentrate on developing or improving a specific artistic skill in an intensive time frame. All workshops require advance registration.

The three-day pastel portrait workshop, led by portrait artist Constance Flavell Pratt, is geared to the intermediate or advanced artist. The course will meet July 6, 7 and 8 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Students will work directly from the model with teacher instruction and will learn to develop light, shade, color and likeness. The objective is to encourage students to produce a saleable portrait.

The instructor is a member of the Pastel Society of America, has studied at Mass. College of Art and has won numerous awards for her pastel portraits in Boston and New York. She is an instructor at the Copley Society and the Weston and Lexington Art Associations.

"Figure in a Landscape," a one-week workshop, better known as "Outdoor Drawing and Painting," will be taught by South Shore artist Rosalind Farbush. Meeting July 18 through July 22 from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., the workshop is designed for all levels of artistic ability.

The instructor will lead an intensive study of form using pencil and paint with the relationship of basic shapes to natural form. She will use the figure as part of the landscape. Students will explore different paint handling techniques plus creating form through color and values.

Rosalind Farbush is an award-winning exhibitor in Boston and New York and now teaches adult classes and is an instructor for the City of Boston High School classes at the Museum of Fine Arts.

"Sculpture Workshop in Wax," including preparation for bronze casting, will be led by nationally-known sculptor Dennis Kowal. Working independently, students will work in sculpture wax. The objective is to acquaint the student with the basic concepts of the lost wax method of bronze casting. A field trip to a foundry may be arranged.

The workshop runs July 25 through July 29 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., in addition to arranged time. The course will include a critique of the aesthetics of the work. Wax will be provided at cost.

Kowal is represented in over 50 private collections, 16 major public commissions and over 200 group exhibits. His public commissions include pieces at the Federal Reserve Bank Building in Boston, the National Fire Protection Association in Boston and the Ravina Pavillion in Chicago. He has served as artist-in-residence at Dartmouth College and the DeCordova Museum, has received fellowships t the MacDowell Colony and holds a BFA and an MFA from th Art Institute of Chicago.

Students participating in these workshops may apply for college credit, either graduate or undergraduate, through the Mass. College of Art Continuing Education Program.

For further information, call the Center at 383-9548.

OMISSION

Inadvertently omitted from the Cohasset list of South Shore Art Center artists participating in an exhibit at the Prudential Building, Boston, was Kerstin MacNeill.

Children's Activities

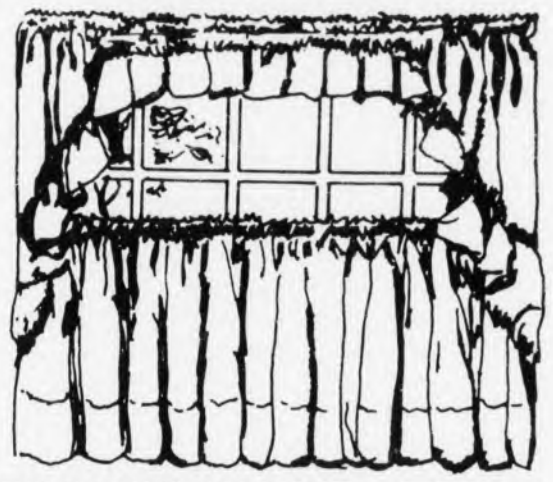
With the approach of summer vacation, children's activities are about to begin at the South Shore Art Center.

Heading the list is an intensive children's art workshop designed to aid students in improving their artistic talents. The workshop begins June 27 and will meet daily until July 1 from 10:30 a.m. to noon at the center, 103 Ripley Road.

Classes will meet outdoors and students will learn to work from nature.

The course is open to children seven to 11 years-old and will be taught by Serena Brundige. She will also teach a regular art center summer class, "Exploring with Paint and Pencil," Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 2 to 3:30 p.m., beginning July 5 and again Aug. 2. Both summer sessions are four weeks in length.

This course for ages seven to 11 will use an outdoor setting and students will learn to paint using ideas from nature and from their own imagination.



A class for older students is "Painting and Drawing Landscape" which will meet first session only beginning July 12 Tuesday and Thursday, 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. The course is for youths, 12 to 16 years-old, and will be taught by Susan Rodgerson. This course will include drawing and painting.
projects dealing with landscape, composition, color and form. Students may chose their own medium.

A fourth children's class, this one for six to 12 years-old, is Syma's Children's Clay starting July 6 and meeting Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 1:30 to 3 p.m. The course will work with handbuilding methods for pottery and clay sculpture with the pieces being fired and decorated with paints, stain and glitter.

The young artist classes are a part of the center's schedule of summer activities. Adult classes are available in drawing, painting, crafts, portrait painting, sculpture and photography .

Whale watch in the Bay

"He roams the seas in freedom. With no enemies save Man." Ted Sherman

Sightings of Humpback whales are plentiful at Stellwagon Bank. Sixth and eighth graders recently had field trips to the whales' feeding area. Whale watches are conducted daily from Plymouth Harbor.

Humpback fluke causes boils in the water around the whale much like a very large vessel.

Almanac of singles' stats

By Lois Martin

We got a funny catalogue at the office last week. It's like one of those want ad books. Only it's for used people, instead of cars or furniture. You know those quick print books. You can browse through them for good buys on second hand goods. Well that's it, a new market for second-hand beings.

And I don't mean that to sound disparaging. It's merely a commentary on how men and women advertise themselves. Amazing. I've promised to write about it quickly because someone here wants the catalogue by the weekend.

It's called "Singles." It's an almanac of sorts, but clearly an abberation from the Farmer's Almanac or the World Almanac.

PATCHES

It's a forum for people to advertise themselves with the thought of attracting an interested party (buyer?).

Anyway it's a sketch. I'm used to classified ads but these are a novelty. The men and women jot themselves down as one would real estate, citing the best features, ignoring the ones not considered marketable. There's no reference to any characteristic that would smack of loose shingles or a leaky cellar.

Each advertising person has a number. They hurry to say what color they are. And Jewish people add that. For example, F2081 says: "Jewish female, 38, shapely figure, a Libra." She was advertising for someone 27-40, mind you...with a good sense of humor

Singles are serious about a sense of humor because that's the characteristic they attribute to themselves and require of others most often. They are a riot or at least they intend to be.

They want to dance a lot and they're jocks. They cite mountain climbing and scuba diving, nothing easy.

Men list their weight often. Women don't. The matter of children is apparently important, though it has the smack of a stigma sometimes. It's addressed, confessed so that if someone doesn't like little people, he's forewarned. The old 'no pets' syndrome.

On the other hand a few advertisers are unremittingly straight-forward..."Marriage-minded," "Wife wanted."

The ads supporting the book feature dance places, counselling centers and athletic/beauty spas.

And the reader ought to watch for word clues: "Spry," "emotionally stable," "open-minded."

What they're saying to the shopper in clue words is that they don't want something that "needs work" or is even "serviceable," if we 're using car talk. The browsers are looking for a recent overhaul or a one-owner deal. Mileage is important.

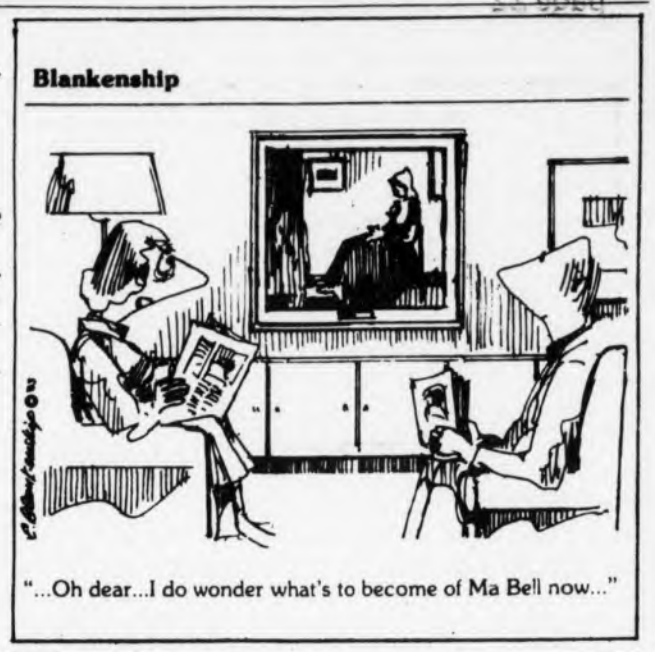
And there are caste systems visible among the advertisers: "Elegant Englishman, handsome, well-spoken, very well-educated...members of family live in Scarsdale & Manhattan."

That twerp wants someone from the North Shore. And of course that makes people on the South Shore defensive immediately, since the assumption is class responders would live north of Boston.

They all want a "Meaningful relationship." Heck they can have one of those when they read the book.

Thing is, I can't resist translating these ads:

"Tall handsome 40 year old male seeks attractive female at least 5'9" interested in the outdoors and adventure..."



Translation: Man needs strong woman to lug backpack on moose hunting trip to Canada.

"Is there still a man (white) around that thinks slightly old-fashioned, likes children, animals, sports, music or homelife?"

Translation: Weary woman with 12 toddlers needs immediate repair of blower on furnace. Supper provided after the cows are milked and the kids get home from little league and tuba lessons.

Frankly I think this book evolved from an old parlor game where husbands are asked to write classified ads of their wives as if they were the kitchen stove and wives are asked to do one of husbands as if they were cars. That always got a few laughs when someone said "Oven temperature dial is unreliable," or "Engine starts well in cold weather."

That's where all this personal classified practice came from. And it requires and supplies, as they say, "a wonderful sense of humor."

"...Oh dear...I do wonder what's to become of Ma Bell now..."

South Shore Vo Tech H.S. update

The South Shore VoTech High School budget has been approved by six of the eight member towns, nixing the Hanover Advisory Committee's attempt to lower the $2.3 million budget.

Town meeting votes in Rockland, Norwell, Scituate, Cohasset, Whitman and Hanson approved the budget reflecting a $300,000 increase from the current year, the regional school committee learned recently.

The Hanover advisory board, which was opposed to the school's expansion plans last year, recommended a reduced budget for next year. The committee also tried to convince other towns to reject an increase.

But with approval from six member towns, Hanover will be assessed the full budget request of $128,000 for next year.

Voke equipment gets priority over expansions

Supt. Clifford Easton informed the regional school board that further expansion plans will take a back seat to a five-year program to upgrade equipment for existing courses.

The superintendent said the school's advisory committees have submitted a rough draft for $275,000 to bring equipment up to par with today's industry's gear. The initial request, which Easton called a "dream sheet," was returned for further work, he said.

A budget line for capital expenditures for new equipment was placed in next year's budget to the tune of $100,000. There has been no budget for equipment for the past two years. Easton added that revenue from various courses, expected to reach $75,000, will also be used to offset new equipment costs.

State aid uncertain

State aid to the regional school is still uncertain, Easton told the regional committee, but probably will amount to $599,000, up about $100,000 from last year.

Easton said he hoped the state Legislature will approve Chapter 70-House Bill 77 which will distribute the extra state aid to regional schools.

The school plans to hire a replacement for retiring math and science teacher William Grout, but will wait until final work on state aid before hiring other teachers. The school also wants to hire an English-Social Studies teacher, an additional math/science teacher, a cosmetology teacher and a culinary arts instructor.

Computers for Grade 9

The VoTech School plans to introduce microcomputers in its ninth grade orientation program next year.

The committee granted permission to Easton to explore the cost of four new microcomputers to add to the seven at the school. The superintendent must return to the school board before granting a bid for the new equipment.

The South Shore Vocational Technical High School will offer a free summer course on Introduction to Graphic Arts (Offset Printing) to Grade 9 and 10 students.

The course will be held from July 18 to Aug. 26 from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Abington school campus. Students are not required to attend South Shore VoTech.

The program is designed to introduce students to the occupational opportunities for females and males in the graphic arts (printing) industry. The course will be comprised of the following aspects of the graphic arts industry: printing press operation, collation and binding of brochures, use of computerized typesetters, production of printing plates, use of camera and darkroom operations, and two field trips to companies.

Students must provide their own transportation and lunch.

For more information, contact the school at 878-0424.

A Beautiful Approach to Country Living.

You drive in through meadows strewn with seasonal wildflowers. But that's only your entry to the good life at The Meadows, The Green Company's new community of attached single family homes in Hingham. The architectural style is true to the farm-house heritage of the community. The construction and detailing have been accomplished with obvious pride.

The Meadows offers a selection of two and three bedroom homes with unexpected details like master suites with private fireplaced sitting areas, large country kitchens for informal entertaining, separate dining rooms for more formal occasions, hidden corners for quiet contemplation, and a mix of ceiling heights and styles. In addition there are large private courtyards, two-car garages, full basements, a swimming pool, whirlpool, tennis courts and a clubhouse. And best of all, this very civilized lifestyle is near major highways to the cultural delights of Boston and vacation areas to the North and South.

Prices range from $157,000 to $210,000 during this, our opening period. Furnished models are open every day from 9 to 5. Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street, one mile to our entrance. Call (617) 740-1500 for an appointment. When it comes to a good life in the country, The Meadows leads the field!

GRANDMA'S ATTIC
"A Country Shop"
The greatest collection of country handcrafts and collectibles under one roof!

Grandma's comment of the week:
Strawberries are in season now during June. All items that have strawberries on them — and many do — are on sale.
We have some new baskets in — just right to put a summer geranium in. Also, a good selection of antique trunks and chests to store away your winter linens.
Grandma's thought for the week:
If you are to understand others, and have them understand you, know the big words but use the small ones.

Shop Hours:
Tues - Sat 10 - 5

Angler's Corner . . .

By Greg Derr

Striped bass are starting to look like an endangered species more every week. Most local anglers have yet to hear of a striper being landed never mind catching one.

The Green Harbor Tuna Club held its annual bass tournament on the 11th of this month with about 25 boats entered in the two-day event.

At the end of the first day not one boat had hooked a fish. On the second day the only fish caught was weighed in at Huntress Tackle, the official weigh station.

According to Roger Jarvis of Huntress Tackle, Roger Patch of Beverly caught the winning fish which tipped the scale at 31 pounds, a good size but hardly gigantic. The bass was reportedly taken off Billingsgate Shoals.

Massachusetts has led the way in the regulation of striper catches. A 24-inch minimum for bass has been in effect for the past two years. Before that a keeper had to be 16 inches. Rather than going into great detail about an old story, all anglers who fish for bass, be they commercial or sport fishermen, have to agree that stripers have become more scarce and that further regulation is needed to avoid a total ban on fishing. Now the matter is out of the hands of fishermen and biologists and it's into the politicians' hands; no need to mention how long a solution could take.

Bluefish have been spotty of late, but it's still early. Commercial gillnetters have had some fish show up in their nets. The first place the blues usually are caught in our area are Billingsgate Shoal or Woods End (Herring Cove Beach) in Provincetown.

Mackerel are still the predominant gamefish in the area. Last week I had the rare chance to fish at Stellwagon Bank. The fishing was great although the variety was limited.

Stellwagon Bank is located about 10-12 miles outside Green Harbor to the east and just six miles off the tip of Provincetown. This area attracts vast numbers of fish each spring at the end of their migration from the south. The water that surrounds the "bank" is about an average of 165 feet deep. Stellwagon Bank is about 60-100 feet deep. This forms a large sandbar which attracts bait. The huge amount of bait subsequently is followed by larger fishes. This area is heavily fished by commercial and sports fishermen alike.

Large "horse" pollock weighing up to 30 pounds are still being jigged from the bottom where they're feeding on sand eels. They're hitting heavy silver jigs with single worm hooks on them.

Fluke, a flat fish related to the flounder and halibut, are moving into the shallow areas of the Cape from Sandwich to Race Point. Fluke are a cold water fish which feed on the bottom and travel in schools. They eat sea worms and clams as well as sand eels.

To catch fluke, try using either the real bait or a small bottom jig. Jigs such as bucktails or feather jigs slowly bounced on the bottom will work. To increase your chances attach a small strip of pork rind.

Sewer problems on Summer Street

A Summer Street resident who has 11 acres of land still needs to find a solution to his sewage problems.

"With over 11 acres of land around us, I'm amazed that no spot for a leaching field can be found - so I'm resigned to the cost of pipes and pumps to the Town Sewer System," wrote David Place of 63 Summer St. to Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos recently.

"We hope you and the sewer commissioners will recognize the need for us to have a tie-in to the street sewer line for our main house and the cow barn. I hope you will support this effort."

Both Architect Roger Whitley and Hugh Hurley of Perkins Engineering have written to Place suggesting a tie-in with the town sewer line on Border Street. Seven test pits were dug, Whitley said, and "in each case it was impervious clay and not suitable for a sewer system."

Eliopoulos wrote on April 29 that she observed a discharge of sewage to the surface of the ground in front of the main house. She said this problem "needs to be alleviated forthwith." She also noted it does not seem possible the barn can be occupied unless some approved method of sewage disposal is secured.

Health Board member Dr. Michael Bliss, also a Summer Street resident, said he recognizes Place has a problem. Peter Wood of 77 Summer Street has also been interested in a sewer tie-in according to Chief Sewer Plant Operator, Manuel Salvador.

Sewer Commissioner Chairman Charles DeSantis said a sewer tie-in might cost as much as $20,000 and added Place should consider investigating a mounded on-site system with engineers.

Sewer Commissioner Edward Guild questioned if a central sewer connection might open up the 11 acres to development.

EVELYN WOOD FUND ENDOWMENT

At a recent meeting, the Trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library voted to make the Evelyn Wood Fund an endowment.

The principal will be invested and the income will be used as the Trustees determine for library materials and services.

The fund was established by friends of Evelyn Wood, an assistant librarian for 32 years until her retirement due to illness in 1981. She died in March of this year.

Major donations of $500 to $1000 were given by eight donors, including Evelyn's husband, Joe Wood. The fund total at this time, from 47 donors, is $6,500. Many of the donors said the fund will be maintained as an endowment with the income being used over the years to improve library collections and services.

The Trustees voted to put a bronze plaque in memory of Evelyn Wood in the reading room, and to have a special book plate in her memory designed for the books purchased with the fund income.

In other business, the trustees voted:

— to use a bequest from former Trustee Emily Gleason to purchase the Grove Dictionary of Music, 20 volumes at $1,700;

— authorized Chairman David Chittim and Trustee Lucia Woods to consider investment of trust funds and bring a recommendation back to the board;

— voted to forward to the Town Personnel Committee some recommended changes in the personnel bylaw; and — agreed to vigorously support efforts of the Friends of the Library to increase membership this summer.

SHARE-A-CLASSIC PROGRAM

Share-a-Classic, a new adventure in reading will begin Tuesday and Thursday, July 5 and 7 at 4:15 in the children's room of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. This program is designed to whet the reading appetite of eager listeners, eight to 88 years old with a variety of listening experiences.

A sampling of Kipling's 'Just So Stories,' of Greek myths and legends, and poetry will be shared along with 'The Wizard of Oz' by Baun, 'James and the Giant Peach' by Dahl, Sperry's 'Call It Courage' and other tales of heroes and heroines.

The purpose of the series is to broaden reading interests and tastes by listening to the well read classics. All selections are for enjoyment only! Agnes McCann, Weezie Welz, Susan Shumaker and Linda Henderson are readers for this series. These volunteers are experienced in sharing books with children in other library programs and in the schools.

Studies show that children who are read aloud to show significant gains in reading comprehension, decoding skills and vocabulary development. But the child who learns to enjoy books and reading has also gained a renewable source of life-long enjoyment.

Tinory song on Today

The song entitled "Boston, the Only Place For Me," composed and performed by Rik Tinory will be used on a TV special to be aired on the Today Show, NBC, sometime between 7 and 9 a.m., June 16.

The segment, a special about Boston, will be shown that Thursday morning. The songs, "Boston, the Only Place For Me" and "Remember Ol' Scollay Square," were recently released in sheet music by the Boston Music Company, a division of the Hammerstein Theater Group in New York City.

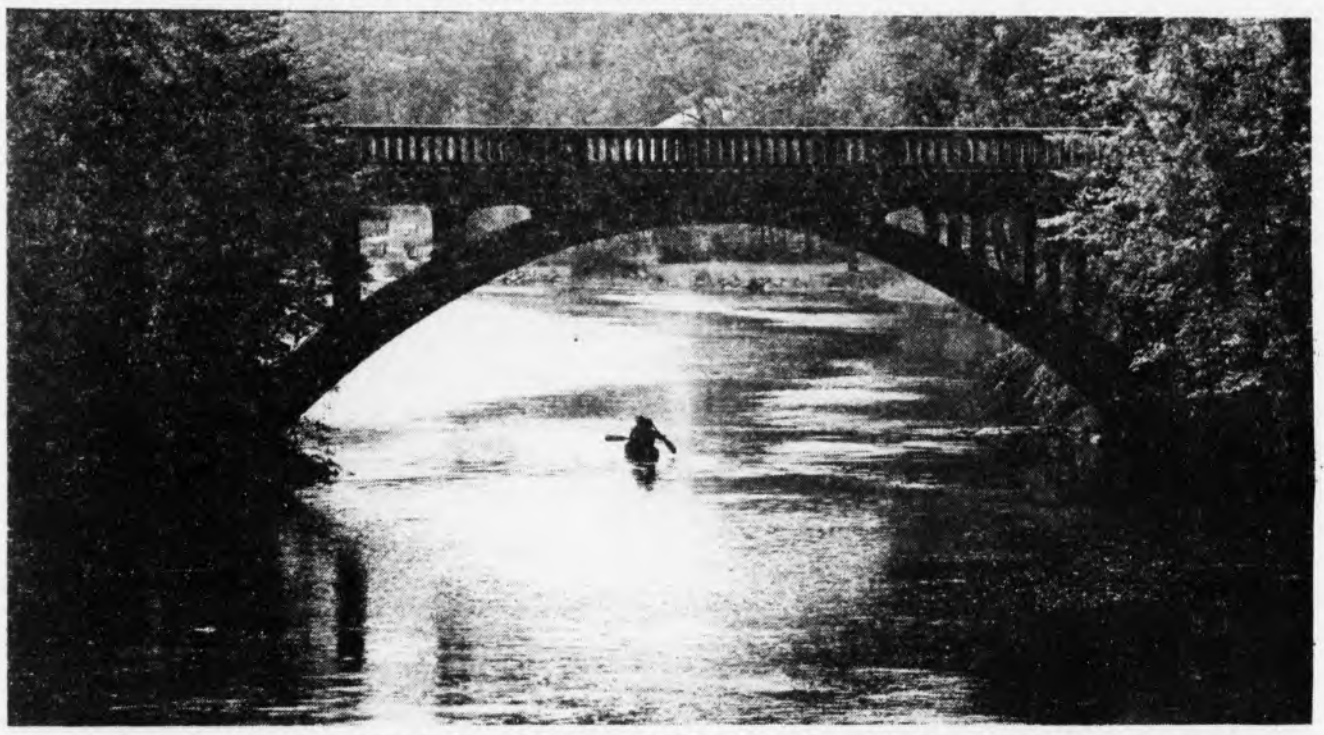
"Festival of the Arts" June 25,26

Marshfield Hills Village is again the place to be when the North River Arts Society holds its seventh annual "Festival of the Arts" on Saturday and Sunday, June 25 and 26.

A festival tour is planned in the same manner as last year's which drew over 2,000 visitors to the village area site of Old Main and Pleasant Streets. Village residents have for a second time offered the use of their vintage barns and properties for presentation of the various features of this event.

Society committees and individuals are gearing up to provide a collection of events which will be open to the public, free of charge, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. each day. Festival attractions will cover a walking distance along Old Main Street from the Marshfield Hills Post Office toward the North Community and Christian Science Churches, and along Pleasant Street from the Old Main intersection all the way up to the village scene, taking in the charm of the neighborhood.

The main events will be the juried art and photography exhibits, judged prior to the festival, so that winning entries may be indicated at the opening. New this year is an open show, which is non-competitive, offering works for sale by both students and professional artists. The GAR Hall will house these exhibits. Other exhibits, along with ongoing artist and crafts demonstrations, will take place in and around the barns nearby. An antiques display is an additional attraction this.



Gertrude Lynd and Eleanor Magoon will open up the turn-of-the-century country store which is a part of their home at the corner of Old Main and Highland Streets. The Clift Rodgers Library plans to hold its annual book sale and to open the upstairs consignment shop during festival hours on both days. Refreshments will be available at the North Community Parish Hall.

Activities for children will include songs and stories with David Northrup, craft tables, mural creations and face painting. There will be a pet show and bicycle parade, in addition to the Littlefield Puppets, a magician and a Children's Theatre.

Strolling minstrels, mimes and clowns will entertain along the route. The North River Arts Society Ballet Company will give periodic performances on the lawn of the Christian Science Church. The "Pro Arte Singers" and a barbershop quartet will round out the entertainment, with the exception of a Dixieland style concert by the "South Shore Windjammers," back again to mark an end to the festivities on Sunday evening, from 6 to 9 p.m. Families may bring a picnic supper, chairs or blankets for the enjoyment of this lively treat on the North Community Parish Hall lawn.

A portrait sketch to be done by Clement Micarelli, Marshfield portrait artist and instructor, is the prize which will go to the winner of a raffle sponsored by the Society during the festival. Seaside Gardeners will provide flower arrangements, and the Marshfield Newcomers Club will assist as hosts and hosteses for the occasion.

A complete program of events will be published nearer to festival time. Meanwhile, for further information contact Peggy Slade, general Festival Chairman, at 837-3438.

Cohasset comes alive with S.S. Arts Festival

Concerts, drama groups, carillon concerts, Renaissance music and dance, picnics, storytelling, puppetry and more highlight the 20th annual South Shore Arts Festival on Cohasset Common July 1 through July 4.

The Common will come alive with all the activities of the four-day summer celebration of the arts under the direction of the South Shore Art Center, 103 Ripley Rd. As the brightly striped tents go up and the summer sun warms the Common, a multitude of activities for young and old alike will begin.

The beginning of the Festival July 1 will be marked by a pops concert at the Common by the South Shore Concert Band, sponsored by the Cohasset Recreation Dept. The 30-piece band known as the South Shore Federation of Musicians is directed by Richard Whitmarsh. The concert begins at 7:30 p.m.

Joanne Lehr of Cohasset will lead "new games" for the whole family Saturday at 1 p.m. A physical education teacher with years of dance training, Ms. Lehr will demonstrate creative and active out-of-door games and activities for children and parents.

Ron Emmons and his award-winning Cohasset Drama Workshop will perform "Portraits in Verse," excerpts from poetry and music describing various life situations and "Folktale Collage," a collection of fairy tales adapted for theatre pieces.

Emmons' drama workshop, which is self supporting, is composed of Cohasset High School students, mostly juniors and seniors, and now the group is developing a story theatre type production based on Grimm's Fairytales.

For three out of the last five years, the group has been a state finalist in the Massachusetts High School State Drama Festival and in 1979 won the state award.

Ron Emmons, who is a Cohasset High teacher and drama director, and his Cohasset Drama Workshop will perform at 2 p.m., Saturday, July 2; at 1 and 3 p.m. Sunday, July 3; and at 12:30 p.m., Monday, July 4.

Bagpipes music will be heard at the festival Sunday, July 3. Marie Hosang Doland of Hingham will play a repertoire of traditional Scottish music on a Highland pipe beginning at 2 p.m. and lasting for an hour.

She has been playing the bagpipes for 23 years and has studied with Peter Kirk and Hamilton MacIntyre Workman. She plays with the Clan Sutherland Bagpipe Band, based in Framingham, and which travels extensively to compete in the United States and Canada.

Appearing July 4 will be a group of amateur and professional musicians and dancers better known as the Nonesuch Revelers. Their one-hour performance beginning at 1 p.m. offers a lively presentation of early music, period dance and readings from England of the 1600s and 1700s. To give flavor to its performance, the group also includes mime and puppetry without adhering to strict authenticity.

The Nonesuch Revelers have reveled for many local church and social groups including Heritage Plantation and the Daniel Webster Inn, both in Sandwich; King Richard's Faire, Carver; Harvard Medical School; and Blanchard's Tavern Museum, Avon.

Also appearing July 4 at 4:30 p.m. will be Adele Baruch, for an hour of poetry reading revolving around subjects of family, womanhood, creativity, nurturance and related themes.

Ms. Baruch, who has been writing poetry since 16 years old has studied poetry under Jim Krenner and Elizabeth McKin. Ms. Baruch has learned to better understand the relationship between movement, sound, breath and poetry, a knowledge which she now puts to use in her work as an expressive therapist with an adult psychiatric day treatment program.

Beautiful music from the 51-bell Bancroft Memorial Carillon at St. Stephens Church will be heard over the Common on Saturday and Monday from 11 to 11:30 a.m. and again from 1 to 1:30 p.m. Sunday, at 4 p.m. a special one-hour recital will be given by Todd Fair, carilloneur in Amsterdam, Holland.

The South Shore Conservatory of Music's Kinderchor (Children's Chorus,) directed by Margo Euler, will be heard July 3 at 11:45 a.m.

Puppeteer Judith O'Hare and her potpourri of puppets which make up the "You and Me Puppets" will combine story with song and music and include the audience in its production.

The aroma of good food will fill the Common Sunday and Monday, as the Art Center will make available gourmet picnics-in-a-basket.

July 3, from noon to 2 p.m., the picnics will be available on the lawn of the Unitarian Parish House and July 4, the picnics will be available on the grounds of the Second Congregational Church.

Juried art exhibits, crafts, artists demonstrations and an invitational sculpture exhibit bring the Cohasset Common to life for four days at the South Shore Arts Festival. For more specific information, call the Center at 383-9548.

A few rules for the berry pickers

By Lois Martin

It's the berries that are one of the best features of summer, one of the prime anticipations.

There are those who know berries only from commercial encounters in stores. But the rural dweller knows the berries first hand, from the bush or from the vine. And here's the schedule to which I adhered in the youth of the Maine bush.

First your strawberries. The goal of this portion of the berry season is to get a high-rounded pie. The crust must be browned and there should be spots of rich pink burbling juice that couldn't restrain itself in the cooking.

For a country strawbery pie, you must have field strawberries. You'll smell them in the hot sunshine before you spot them. And they're little so it's not a piece of cake to fill a quart box. But you will, swatting a midgie now and then in the interim, noticing the just burgeoning buttercups, avoiding squashing the fruit with your feet while stooping respectfully to pick the lucious bloom.

Your pie makings are in your hand. Do not compromise the gleanings with a store bought crust. Make it from scratch — couple cups of unsifted flour, bit of salt, 3/4 cup & couple tablespoons of shortening...all blended with cleaned pastry hands; quarter cup water merged with a fork...

Roll her out and put your four washed cups of berries in the shell, hurl on close to a cup of sugar, little flour, cinnamon, squeeze of lemon, top with the other crust...

Bake until done. The by product of this effort is that your house now is the most inviting in the neighborhood. Trouble with this recipe stems from the fact that no pie plate in the nation holds enough strawberry pie to satisfy the hankerings of more than three people at a setting. And they don't last well. A pie is a top priority to the rustic cuisine; strawberry shortcake's made from the next picking.

Next and seemingly forever, you've got a close run between the readiness of your blueberries and that of your raspberries and you also get with the latter an endurance test.

Never mind your high bush berries. Again I'm talking the smaller, more succulent variety, the kind that require stooped picking or raking, the low bush blueberries.

In cultivated blueberry fields, they're either prolific or not, kind of alternating years. Hit yourself a good year in blueberry ripeness and you'll fill your pail (attached to the buckle on your belt if you're authentic) in less than 20 minutes.

The object here is another pie, the kind whose telltale blue-teeth markings are seen on the smile of a satisfied consumer. See above recipe, substitute the blue for the straw and you've got it.

But the possession of blueberries has inherent options. You ought to make blueberry muffins. And you clearly can put together a quick brown-sugar blueberry loaf cake (brown is better then white with the blues).

Only the hardiest pick raspberries unless they're grown for the delicate pickers in backyard bushes.

If you want nature's truest variety, you hit the thunderbrush. And it's no sport for sissies. Put on long pants, never mind it's 87 degrees by that time of the summer. Boots would be a sensible move, shoes certainly, long-sleeves. It is no option here as to whether or not your pail's tied to your belt or a loop in your britches. If it isn't, when you lose your footing and go backward off a log or frontward into the puckerbrush, you've lost your berries.

Should you spot your raspberries off in the thicket, you're moving ahead. But getting to them, scratched, bitten by whatever insect you've offended requires caution. A true picker doesn't eat while picking. That's because the consumption diminishes the bucket, thus the objective, and lengthens the potential biting time. A raspberry outing is at least of two hour duration for the serious picker.

Your pie, though a shortcake would be a scintillating first consideration, is made the same as your others. This berry is my favorite, sweet/tart/lively/beautiful/not easy to come by...characteristics desirable in all of nature's products especially in the pickers of berries.

The blackberry is the finale of this type of bounty. I do not seek to address here the cranberry, the boysenberry, the huckleberry, you'll note.

The black one's grow big and fat and fill the pail quickest if you live through finding them. Tougher they are to reach then even the raspberry, the blackberries have long been overlooked for their own rich quality.

They aren't common. By the end of the season there are the pie makers who don't want to be teased into another crust. And the blackberry hasn't gained the favor for backyard planting as have the others.

But it's delicious. First do your pie and then you'll see. And tossed in with other fruit of the land for a compote, the blackberry is distinguished and unusual. It's juice on the crust of a fully browned pie runs blue-black. It lacks the twang of the others. But it's not missing distinctive fruit flavor.

So mark your summer, as ardent pickers do, by the seasons of your berries. And at least three of these sweeties will be available in time for your pie to be entered in the Marshfield Fair competition in August.

These are the makings of a shortcake, a strawberry pie, jam or one swell snack.

Marshfield Fair is August 19-28

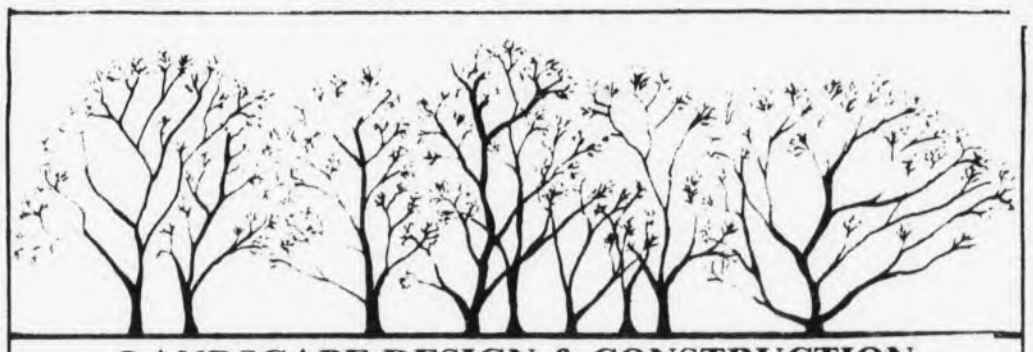
The oldtimer to summer specials, second only to the classic clambake, is the Marshfield Fair. That'll be Aug. 19 to 28 this year.

It's 10 days of August, replete with rides, games, food concessions and horse racing, animal exhibits, and downhome competition.

The country fair draws thousands of visitors each year. But there are hundreds who are part of the agricultural exhibit for more than fun. The 4-H portions are a draw for youngsters who want to see the animals and others who recognize the work behind the raising of the competitors for prize money.

The main exhibition hall is one of the original structures on the fairgrounds. The exhibits and entries in the flower and produce competitions are displayed there. Catch them the first few days for the best viewiing of South Shore green thumbery.

There are various displays and sales and booths on the main floor. And upstairs the women of the fair society put out the handwork and creations of participants who create quilts, homebaked goods and crafts in competition.



The fair, like those remaining of its class across the country, has a mixture of oldtime favorites, horse pulling with the newest of rides. Local organizations are among the concessionaries. There's a special Children's Day and nightly entertainment.

It's a blockbuster of an event attracting thousands from beyond the Marshfield shores. And it's a summer special that's been happening annually for about 116 years.

Local history in our back yard

By Judy Gilman

HISTORY

New England is well-known for its historical sites, and everyone who visits wants to go back home saying they "did" all the famous ones. But there's lots of history right in the Mariner back yard—interesting both for visitors who want to see something different and for residents who want to know a little more about the people who lived here 100 and 200 years ago. The South Shore isn't all Plymouth Rock, and town historical societies are active maintaining their own best-known sites.

Part of the exhibit in the Maritime Museum at Cohasset Village is shown above, as overseen by the Historical Society.

COHASSET

There are three separate museums in Cohasset Center specializing in various aspects of early life. The Maritime Museum traces Cohasset's seafaring history, as does the Captain Wilson House. The Independence Gown Museum brings home to all visitors how much smaller our ancestors were than we are, and how elaborate their clothing was. The museums are open 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday beginning June 25 and continuing through September. Admission is 75 cents per building per adult or 25 cents for children 6 to 12. Adults may also purchase a three-building pass for $1.50.

The Cohasset Historical Society also maintains the Lothrop House at 14 Summer St., which is open the first and third Tuesdays of the month from 2 to 4 p.m., other times by appointment. The house is furnished with 19th century furniture and paintings and also houses the society's archives and library. Admission is free, but contributions are welcomed. For more information, call 383-6930, or 383-0773.

HANOVER

The Hanover Historical Society maintains both the Stetson House, 514 Hanover St., and the historical room at the John Curtis Free Library next door.

Both are open Wednesday afternoons during July and August from 2 to 4 p.m. Guides to both are available in the resource room of the library. Admission is free.

HINGHAM

The Old Ordinary at 21 Lincoln St. is the focus of the Hingham Historical Society. Built in 1680 as an inn ("an ordinary,") the house has had ells and wings added since. It is furnished, for the most part, with 17th and 18th century antiques given by Hingham families. A special part of the display is "Seen But Not Heard," a collection of period children's toys, many of which were manufactured in Hingham.

Outside the Old Ordinary the Garden Club of Hingham maintains a traditional 18th century garden, complete with plants of the period.

The Old Ordinary opens June 22 in conjunction with the society's 59th annual house tour and will be open through Labor Day Tuesday through Saturday from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults, 50 cents for children under 12.

Old Derby Academy, Main Street, is open by appointment only.

The Old Ship Church, Main Street, is the oldest house of worship in continuous use in the U.S. Though no formal tours of it are scheduled, call the church office to make an appointment to see it.

MARSHFIELD

The Winslow House is the centerpiece of the Marshfield historical sites on Careswell Street in Green Harbor. The house and the adjacent law office of Daniel

Old Ship Church in Hingham has a bit of nature's decorating in flowers to set off the grand building. (Derr photo)

Webster will be open, beginning July 1, Wednesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., through Labor Day. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children under 12.

On July 23, the whole historical complex will have an open house. On that day, the Winslow School House, across the street from the main house, will be open, and a blacksmith will be working at the forge. From 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the house will come alive as it did in its heyday.

Work has been underway for the past 14 years to restore the Hatch Mill, off Union Street in North Marshfield. In several years it will be open to visitors.

Attention Sailors & Boat Buyers

Are you buying a sailboat but do not feel confident in handling it? Do you need to further refine your sailing skills. Now you can do this ON YOUR BOAT at reasonable cost and in very short order.

Unlike many schools where you pay for high overhead costs and canned instruction, receiving private instruction in the intimacy of your boat offers clear advantages. You develop further skills tailored to your needs on a boat and in surroundings most familiar to you. You do not waste your time and money learning about someone else's boats and gadgets or waiting for others to take their turn at the helm. You will receive personalized instruction from a mature and patient individual who

. . . Local history

Marshfield is also available to the adventurous. Pick up a map indicating all the sites at the town hall, the Ventress Library or the Chamber of Commerce building ing on Route 139. The historical society has placed over two dozen informational markers in all parts of town, and visitors can follow along in history's steps at their own pace.

NORWELL

In Norwell, the Jacobs Homestead on Jacobs Lane off Route 123, will be open after July 1 on Sunday afternoons. Admission is 50 cents. The Homestead itself is owned by the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities. The Norwell Historical Society has the use of one wing, and here they have an outstanding collection of tools and machinery of earlier periods, including the lathes that were used to build the ship "Columbia" in the North River.

July 10 will be a big day in town when a trolley from Plymouth comes to give trolley tours, bringing back a bygone era of transportation.

For those familiar with Norwell historical sites, a note: the Kent House on First Parish Road is not open this year.

SCITUATE

The Cudworth House, First Parish Road, on the grounds of the Gates School, is the main focus of historical sites in Scituate, followed closely by the Mann Historical Museum (Greenfield Lane and Stockbridge Road.) The two are open Wednesday through Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m. Admission is 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children 5 to 12. These two houses and their barns house a multitude of fascinating items, including the Lafayette coach, a sail loft, a real Spanish treasure (the pirate involved was hanged in Boston, according to the society's Kathleen Laidlaw,) and machinery from the age of the horse.

On July 10, August 13 and 14 (Scituate's Heritage Days) and September 11, these sites and more will be open for self-guided tours. Other sites to be open include the Lawson Tower, the Stockbridge Mill (1640 and the oldest water-driven gristmill still in operation in the country,) Scituate Light and the Old Oaken Bucket Homestead. Tours on these days run from 1 to 5 p.m.

Also of interest is the Men of Kent cemetery on Meetinghouse Lane, which includes stones dating as far back as 1628.

The First Parish Church in Scituate is among the picturesque worship places in our area. (Derr photo)

Scituate 100 power boat race

Saturday, July 2 and the Scituate 100 Classic power boat race is around the corner! Spectator viewing all along Scituate beaches will be ideal. The race will offer trophies, checkered flags for all winners, two cocktail parties, and an awards banquet.

Some 30 boats will race around the mouth of Scituate Harbor to a buoy near Minot's Light for nearly five laps.

Spectators can view the race from Lighthouse Point, Egypt and Minot Beach in North Scituate.

There will be four classes of boats based on horsepower and types of engines.

All boats must be 20 to 50 ft. in length, be equipped to pass Coast Guard inspection, and suitable to enter the the race at the discretion of the Race Committee.

All participants must be 18 years of age or older.

Here is the itinerary for Scituate 100 kilometer race:

Thursday, June 30, 1983: noon to 5 p.m., Early Registration at Cole Parkway; 5 p.m., Cocktails at the Satuit Restaurant, upstairs Lounge (Cash Bar).

Friday, July 1: 9 a.m., Registration at Cole Parkway; 10 a.m. Launching of boats available; Inspection of Boats all day until 6:30 p.m.; Registrations close at 6:30 p.m.; 7 p.m., Mandatory Driver's Meeting; 8 p.m., Cocktails at The Satuit Restaurant, upstairs lounge, live music, cash bar.

Saturday, July 2, 10 a.m., Mandatory Driver's Meeting, 12:30 p.m., Parade to Start; 1 p.m. Start of Race; 3 p.m. Race Ends; 4 p.m. to 10 p.m., Cocktails and Awards Dinner at The Knights of Columbus Hall, Rt. 3A, Scituate.

Security will be provided for all three nights.

Teamwork keeps the Music Circus a winner

By Mike Berger

It takes teamwork talented musicians and stagecrews to keep the South Shore Music Center open, alive and moving, says the Circus's chief producer Ron Rawson.

There is much work to be done before and after the show, he says, and that work begins in the fall after the summer season is completed.

Without the teamwork the shows performed by noted celebrities Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gormie, Rodney Dangerfield, Air Supply, Sammy Davis Jr., Liberace and Sha Na Na wouldn't be as smooth as they will be.

Ten years ago, Rawson says the Circus had 10 name titles and "that was the summer. But now the audience is so fragmented with different ages and tastes."

Even the media is fragmented with the advent of AM and FM radio and cable television.

The middle age market has changed to a younger market and that includes today's pop music acts such as Marshall Tucker and Air Supply.

The behind the backstage planning begins with Rawson after the Circus season ends. He is in New York booking the acts, checking the markets, the music trends, references and prices.

Booking for the next summer season is completed in the late fall and winter. "Some people think all I do is work in the summer," Rawson said, "but for me it's a year-round project. Sometimes you have to book people like Bob Hope and Steve and Eydie two to three years in advance."

"Right now there are more buyers than strong talent and you are competing against buyers from all over the world. You have to know the territory, the area, and what people are interested in," said Rawson.

He added he has been in the booking business for 30 years and says he has the feel and a balance for what will sell.

By June 18 Rawson says the payroll swells to include locally hired security people, 40 ushers, 30 musicians and six people whose expertise is technical, lighting and show production.

For each show there is four Cohasset police officers hired to augment the security force.

A typical day for the Circus crew begins at 8 a.m. when the maintenance staff arrives.

The office crew arrives at 9:30 a.m.and the Box Office opens at 10 a.m. and will remain open until 9 p.m.

Production crews begin arriving at 9:30 a.m. and begin the stage preparations for the evening show. The crews are due back at least two hours before the curtain falls.

After the performance, everyone waits until the audience has left the parking lot, usually 20 to 30 minutes after the show.

When a show has completed its stay at the Circus the technical crews must load out the old show and load in the incoming performa

This season will ma[illegible]ne 33rd season of the Music Circus and Rawson s[illegible].o one can really predict what will happen in the future. "We play it one day at a time," he said.

But Rawson added there is definitely a market for live performances because people feel "it is a thrill to sit so close to a famous performer and to see him up close up on the stage."

Rawson said he will see a show 98 percent of the time before he books it for the Circus. Box office figures will also indicate the future success of the performance.

Rawson will also review the shows as they appear in the Circus and if he can't, public relations and media spokesperson Bob Donovan will let him know how the audience reacted to the performance.

The idea of a outdoor Cohasset summer theater began in 1933 when the Town Hall Players wanted something more in summer theater.

An outdoor summer theater began in Lambertsville, New Jersey and its success was publicized in New England.

There are now three outdoor summer and "soft top" (tent) theaters left in the country. Two are in Massachusetts — Cohasset and Hyannis — and one in Sacramento, California.

There are still a good nucleus of area people involved in the operations of the Circus.

The South Shore Music Circus Playhouse Association Inc., a non-profit community trust fund, administers portions of the gate receipts as charitable contributions to 20 area agencies.

Will the Music Circus always remain in Cohasset?

"I suppose like people, everything has its lifetime. But I don't see the Circus moving in the immediate future," Rawson said.

Between now and Sept. 11, Rawson said the Circus is a pressure cooker. Each show has its own personality, temperment and crowd.

That's why a team-like atmosphere has to run at the Circus.

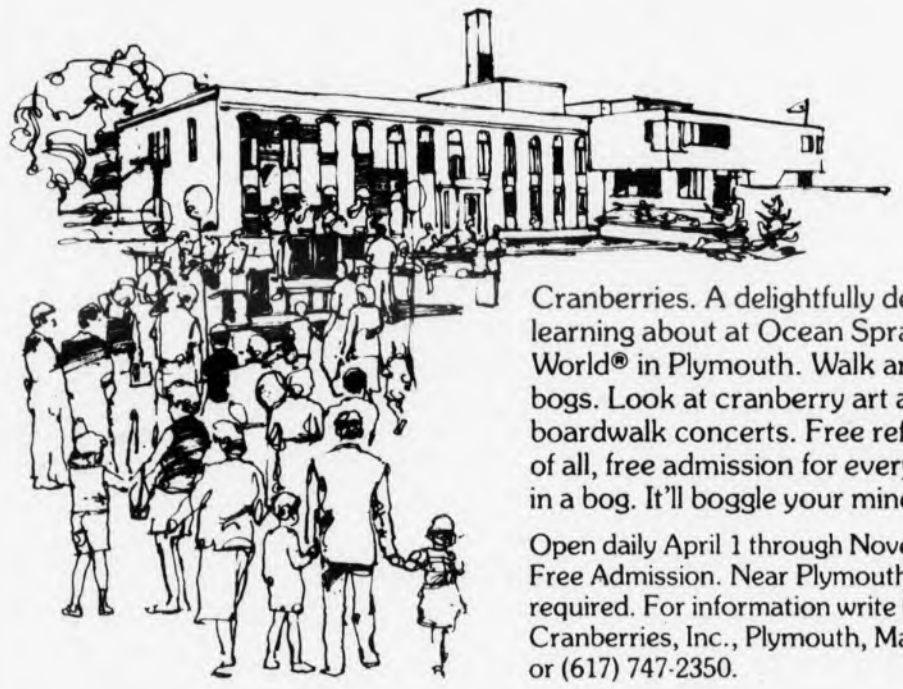
Roadside stands add to local character

There's a by-product to the South Shore summer that reaffirms a lingering rusticity for residents—the roadside stands.

In addition to the small scale agricultural enterprises of those who have the land and the soil to grow vegetables at home, there are a number of people who plant and harvest respectable size crops. And they put those up for sale by the side of the road.

Each community has at least one such free lance farmer. Their products have the advantage of being picked and sold within hours. Indeed the buyer can see the land from which the goods were gathered.

Right now, this week, the greens and the earliest of the summer squashes should be taking place for people who relish homegrown goods as fresh as can be.



Often the roadside gardener has his entire family involved in the enterprise. And the tomatoes, cukes, corn when it comes, are worth the wait.

Each community also has the commercial farmer's market business. Those have brought fresh flavorful goods to the South Shore in bounty.

The roadside stand businessman who carries only fresh South Shore crops is guaranteed customers who like the local character with the summer vegetables.

Children's theater abounds on the south shore

By Mike Berger

Besides the summer theater of the South Shore Music Circus, the Mariner area has four summer theaters with children and college youth as the main actors.

They are: Young People's Summer Theater, Priscilla Beach Theater, Young at Heart Theater and The Company Theater.

Young People's Theater

The Young People's Summer Theater is ready for its seventh season of musical theatre entertainment.

This year's large scale production will be the musical vaudeville, "Chicago," with music and lyrics by John Kander and Fred Ebb, book by Fred Ebb and Bob Fosse.

In addition to "Chicago" plans are in the works to perform a revue in early August. Membership to YPST is open to all area residents who are between 13 and 21 years old.

"Chicago" will be presented at Scituate High School July 28 through July 30 at 8 p.m. This will be the first year that YSPT has presented three public performances of its large scale musical.

The Thursday, July 28 performance will be presented as an "open dress preview" for a lower admission price and the audience will be able to talk with the cast as well as give comments on the production following the performance.

More information about this year's program can be obtained by calling Don Capen, YPST director at 826-4533, evenings.

Young at Heart Theater

Area college and high school youth will be performing "Good News" July 8, 9, 15 and July 16 at Hingham High School at 8 p.m. The play will be directed by Bob Harlow.

Tickets which can be bought at the door are $4 for students and senior citizens and $5 for adults. For further information, call 749-3258.

The Company Theater

This theater, based in Weymouth, will perform "Grease" Aug. 12, 13 and Aug. 14 at 8 p.m. at the South Junior High School in Weymouth.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens. For more ticket information, call 335-5481.

The theater will also produce "A Summer Revue," featuring songs and dancing at 7 p.m. July 27 and July 28 at the Elks Hall in Weymouth. Following the revue, there will be a buffet dinner dancing and a cash bar.

Ticket prices have not yet been announced but for more information and reservations, call 335-6995 and 335-5481.

Priscilla Beach Theater

Where have noted actors Paul Newman, Sandy Dennis, Dan Blocker and Rob Reiner performed during their early years — The Priscilla Beach Theater in Manomet.

Area youth from four to 15 years old come from Brockton, Boston and points south to enroll in a five-week acting program for $45. For more information, call 224-4888.

Here are the dates of the performances.

"Babes in Toyland," by Victor Herbert will be performed July 7, 8 and 9.

Performance times and ticket prices for all shows are Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. and $4.

The next show will be "Conference of the Birds" by Peter Brook July 14, 15 and 16.

The first of the triology, "Cinderella" by Geronimo Sands will be performed July 21, 22 and July 23.

"The Pink Panther Strikes Again," a film adaptation, by Blake Edwards and Frank Waldman will be performed July 28, 29 and July 30.

An original adaptation of the "Little Prince" by Susan Putnam will be performed Aug. 4, 5, and Aug. 6.

Sand's second trilogy of 'Cinderella," called "Cinderella After the Ball" will be performed Aug. 12, 13 and Aug. 14.

An original musical, "Shaggy Joins the Circus" by Ronald Moran, theater business manager, will be performed Aug. 18, 19 and 20.

The next show will be "The Bride of Frankenstein," Aug. 25, 26 and Aug. 27.

"The Last Judgement of Cinderella," directed by Sands, will be performed Sept. 1, 2 and Sept.3.

There will be two outdoor Shakespeare presentations at the Globe theater. "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be performed July 5, 6, 7, 8 and July 9 at 2 p.m.

"The Comedy of Errors" will also be performed at 2p.m. Aug. 9, 10, 11, 12 and Aug. 13.

For ticket reservations, call 224-4888. Priscilla Beach Theater is located off Rocky Hill Road, Manomet, three miles away from the Yankee Traveler on Route 3A.

July art events in Scituate

The Scituate Arts Association is planning a juried art show July 11 at the Scituate Public Library, 85 Branch Street, Scituate.

Prizes will be awarded in the following categories: oil, acrylics; watercolor casein; pastels; prints and drawings; wood bird carving and photography.

Entries are $4.00 each and will be accepted Sunday, July 10 at the library from noon to 5 p.m.

Awards will be presented at a preview gala Friday, July 22 at 7 p.m. at the Satuit Boat Club, 66 Jericho Rd., Scituate.

ARTS FESTIVAL

The 26th annual Arts Festival will be held at the Scituate Public Library July 28- 31 and its open to the public, Thursday through Sunday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Some of the planned attractions are:

Arthur Beale, Director of Painting Conservation at Harvard's Fogg Museum will address the techniques of Painting Conservation - a slide show.

The Boston Children's Theater will perform "Pinocchio" and "The Flying Boy."

North River Arts Ballet will perform "Chopin Preludes", "Rumble", and "Abstractions". Caroline Williams, Director.

Boston's Bob Guillemin, will create, "Sidewalk Sam", a pavement masterpiece.

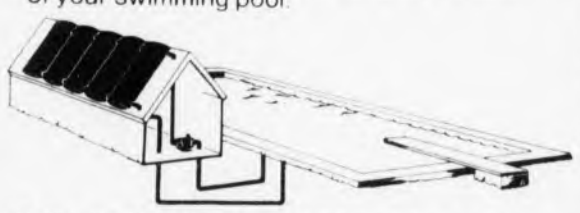
Tom Goux and Jacek Sulanowski will entertain with "Music of the Sea".

"RosenShontz" is a spirited blend of contemporary, folk, swing and humor.

Plimouth Plantation will exhibit various colonial arts throughout the festival.

David Dupee and Raw honey will play Bluegrass music for an outside concert

Jack Drummey a caricaturist will demonstrate cartoons and lecture.



Many special children's events and activities, such as sandpainting, seaweed painting and pressing wildflowers will liven up the day. There will be a panoramic view of the coastline by rides on a big blue hot air balloon.

Summer Recipes . . . cherry cheese pie, cajun chowder

By Joan Pinkham

June is...roses and brides, graduations and outdoor parties...when there's a thousand things to celebrate and a thousand and one if the sun shines on us. In a cool, secluded corner of the garden we can set up a picnic table and take our meals out of doors, sipping iced tea, munching on hearty salads, with cool desserts straight from the freezer. Should company drop in unexpectedly, (a frequent summer happening to which those who live near the beach can testify), a glass of lemonade, or wine spritzer would be just the thing with Marion Burros;

BUBBLY CRAX

Keep a mixture of 1 c. grated Parmesan cheese and 1 c. mayonnaise in a covered container in refrigerator. Just add 2T frozen chopped onions to each cup of mix, spread on melba toast or crackers and broil until bubbly-brown.

STUFFED MUSHROOMS

Stem 12 firm medium-size mushrooms. Stuff with 1 pkg. Boursin cheese (garlic-herb flavored) and dip tops in chopped parsley.

For the benefit of future generations reading this column on micro-film at the town library, this has been the rainiest May on record. Among the quaint things we of the 80's look forward to all winter long is the backyard barbecue when Dad cooks steaks on the grill, Mom makes potato salad and it's all very informal with paper plates and napkins and beer and tonic straight from the can. Well, this soggy spring, the rain has played havoc with our plans, as on Memorial Day weekend when 30 of us gathered and just as the last dish was placed on the outdoor buffet table, the heavens opened up. So, back inside we trooped, to gorge on all the delicious foods everyone had contributed to the feast. Here is the cookie recipe our Kathy asked for:

CHOCO-SCOTCH CLUSTERS

1 6 oz. pkg. semi-sweet chocolate morsels
1 6 oz. pkg. butterscotch morsels
2 T peanut butter
4 c. Kellogg's Rice Cereal Krispies

Melt morsels and peanut butter in top of double boiler, stirring constantly until well blended. Remove from heat. Add Rice Krispies, stirring until well coated. Drop by level measuring spoon onto waxed paper or well-buttered baking sheets. Let stand in cool place until firm. Makes about 4 doz. clusters 1½" in diameter.

Here, where ponds, tidal rivers and Atlantic waters lure the vacationing fisherman, it's always good to have a few fish recipes tucked away, just in case. For those who prefer the tennis court, or golf course to the tedium of fishing, our shore towns abound with quaint little fish markets. As Terri Long writes: "There's nothing like fish for delicious summertime meals. It cooks so fast and is ocean fresh for those of us on the South Shore. This recipe is different and fun to make."

SPICEY FLOUNDER FILLETS

2 lb. fresh yellowtail flounder fillets
1/2 c. vegetable oil
1/2 c. water
1/3 c. lemon juice
1/3 c. Worcestershire Sauce
1/4 c. grated onion
2 T brown sugar
2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. powdered mustard
1 clove garlic
1 tsp. Tabasco Sauce
Paprika

This recipe calls for a barbecue grill, or hot coals, open campfire or hearth, but you can do it just as well in the oven broiler.

Clean fillets. Combine sauce ingredients, except paprika and simmer 5 min ., stirring occasionally. Cool. Place fillets in a single layer in shallow baking dish. Pour sauce over fish and marinate 30 min., turning once. Remove fish and reserve sauce for basting. Place fish in well-greased, hinged wire grill. Sprinkle with paprika. Cook about 4" from moderately hot coals for about 5 min. Baste and sprinkle with paprika. Turn and cook 5 to 8 min. longer. If fillets are very thin, reduce cooking time accordingly.

You may have noticed that some tourists or vacationers in our midst actually think they're on the Cape. It's at Bourne that the Cape officially begins, but whether here or there, you may have noticed that most of the girls sunbathing on the beach, don't look the same as those we see in the ads. How could we, when faced with a dessert such as Millie Carr's

CHERRY CHEESE PIE

1 (1 lb. 5 oz.) can cherry pie filling
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
12 oz. softened cream cheese
3/4 c. sugar
1 tsp. lemon or orange rind, grated
2 large eggs
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1 c. sour cream
1 9" unbaked pie shell

Spread half pie filling in shell and sprinkle with cinnamon. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 min. Remove from oven. Turn temperature down to 350 degrees. Beat eggs with half cup of sugar, cream cheese, vanilla and fruit peel. Pour over hot cherry filling. Bake 25-30 min. Filling will be slightly soft in center. Cool completely. Spoon sour cream mixed with 1/4 c. sugar around edge of pie. Fill center with remaining pie filling. Refrigerate at least 3 hours.

Summer visitors may envy us our ocean views and rolling dunes, but we'd give them back to the Indians in a nor'easter. Way back when in 1851, Minot's Light, familiar to all boaters wishing to avoid the treacherous Minot Ledge off Cohasset, was demolished in a northeast gale and the two lighthouse keepers wept off the rock. The one you see now, was erected in 1859. Natives expect the worst even on a sunny, summer's day when the wind shifts to the east and the clammy, cold fog rolls in from the sea. That's when the beaches are deserted for the fireside and a bowl of Terri's chowder is welcome. She calls this delicious version of the New England favorite:

CAJUN STYLE FISH CHOWDER

1/2 c. each green onion, celery, bell pepper, chopped
4 large fish fillets, skinned, trout, or other white meat fish
1/2 tsp. each thyme and red pepper
Salt to taste
1 10 oz. can tomatoes
1 large potato, thinly sliced
Fish bones and tails
1½ qt. water

In an oiled, heavy enamelled saucepot sprinkle onions, celery and pepper. Arrange fillets on top and sprinkle with thyme, salt and red pepper. Cover with tomatoes and potatoes. Sprinkle with more salt.

Meanwhile, cover fish bones and tails with water and boil until reduced to 1 qt. of liquid. Strain broth and add to fish mixture. Cover pot and simmer one hour. Serve in large soup bowls with crusty French bread. Serves four.

Special crafts at Arts Festival

Carlo Conte demonstrates the intricacies of building "miniature chairs," Clement Micarelli paints the costumed figure and Bill Reed demonstrates the delicate art of scrimshaw.

What do these three have in common besides all being gifted artists? They will demonstrate their talents for the Center's 28th annual South Shore ArtsFestival, July 1 through July 4, at varying times on the Cohasset Common.

Festival watchers can also watch demonstrations of traditional Nigerian pottery making by Syma; of "dough figures" by Lynn Titleman; spinning by Pat Laliberte, "clay techniques" by Judy Rossman and "seeing values and color" by Judeth Wiers

These demonstrations will show how a particular artist works and how he or she achieves a finished work of art. Many of the artist demonstrations are by South Shore Art Center instructors who will be teaching during the Center's summer sessions.

The demonstrations by Judeth Weirs, Syma and Clement Micarelli, all instructors for the summer sessions, may give festival watchers a brief introduction as to the scope of the courses these instructors will be teaching.

Mr. Conte, who will demonstate his craftsmanship at noon Saturday, July 2, will have a display of his handmade miniature furniture which are copies of original early American styles. His miniatures are made from pine and maple woods at a scale of one inch to the foot. The decorations and seats on the miniatures are made by his daughter, Barbara E. Conte.

An added dimension to this year's festival is a special artist event described as "Painting the Festival." Four artists, all working independently, will paint, in various media festival scenes they choose to capture on canvas. Working in watercolor will be Virginia Avery and Ruth Ferrara. Working on a collage will be Susan Rodgerson; and painting in oil will be Rachel Kennedy.

Festival viewers may watch the artists at work Sunday, July 3 between 1 and 2 p.m. The works of art will then be raffled and tickets will be available Sunday and Monday.

The schedule for the artist demonstrations is as follows: Friday, July 1, Bill Reed, 3:30 p.m.; Saturday, July 2, Carlo Conte, noon, Judeth Wiers, 2:30 p.m. and Bill Reed, 3:30 p.m.; Sunday, July 3, Judy Rossman, noon to 2 p.m., Lynn Titleman Rizzotto, noon to 1 p.m., Syma, 3 p.m. and Bill Reed, 3:30 p.m.; and Monday, July 4, Judy Rossman and Pat Laliberte, both at noon and Clement Micarelli, 1 p.m.

SS kids can learn how to pitch & hit

Stephen Ferroli, head coach of the Hanover Braves semi-pro baseball team, is introducing a new idea in baseball schools in this area.

The Ferroli School of Hitting will be held at the Sylvester , Route 139, Hanover, with five two-week sessions for different age brackets.

Emphasis will be on the skill of hitting, and participants will hit each day, rain or shine, at the Pro Pitch and Hit Junction facility in Hanover. There will also be instruction and practice in other aspects of the game.

Sessions will be held Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. for the following levels: June 27 to July 8, ages 15 to 19; July 11 to July 22, ages 11-12; July 25 to Aug. 5, ages 13-15; Aug. 8 to Aug. 19, ages 11-12; Aug. 22 to Sept. 2, ages 13-15.

Hanover residents will be charged $50 per two-week session; non-Hanover residents, $90 per session.

For more information or to register, contact the Pro Pitch and Hit Junction at 826-3367 after 2:30 p.m. weekdays, or visit the facility on Center Street, Hanover.

Antique Auto & Auto parts show

What do antique automobiles and jet airplanes have in common? They'll all be on display at the South Weymouth Naval Air Station in South Weymouth, Massachusetts, Saturday, July 16, (raindate Sun. July 17.) The Rotary Club of Weymouth, MA will be hosting an Antique Auto Show and Auto Parts Flea Market. There will be dash plaques for the participants, auto parts flea market spaces, trophies and a BMX bicycle trick show for the kids. From Model T's to the more recent vintages, you'll see your favorite cars.

Also on that date, the South Weymouth Naval Air Station will be celebrating 200 years of aviation with an Open House. You'll not only get a first hand look at the base but there will be a schedule of events for the whole family including a road race around the base, (approximately 6 miles,) an underwater rescue show, and a jet fighter and airplane display.

All proceeds will go to benefit the handicapped and elderly. For further information call Paul Modestino at South Shore Medical Supply, (617) 335-8200.

There will be plenty of free parking, a picnic area and several mystery celebrities for the kids, all to benefit the needy. Plan to come early. This will be a day the whole family will remember.

In contrast to the gear worn by beachgoers behind them, these three scuba divers left Brant Rock Beach after a diving session and, from checking the bag, a successful pickup from the ocean floor. (Derr photo)

Want to take a gamble on snow?

Folks who stop into Dick's Chain Saw and Garden Center on Route 53 in Hanover these days to sharpen lawnmowers or pick out flowering shrubs and plants get an unseasonable reminder, to think about snow.

And maybe qualify for a free snowblower in 1983, in a manufacturer's gamble on the accuracy of the U.S. Weather Bureau.

Dick and Marie Giacobbe of Norwell, owners of the Hanover garden center, are participating in a unique promotions program as this area's only authorized Toro sales and service center.

Toro is getting ready for next winter's snow early this year with a "S'no Risk" sales campaign offering rebates of 50 to 100 percent, depending on how close the actual snowfall in this area next year matches the average New England snowfall.

If between July 1, 1983, and May 31, 1984, the recorded snowfall in the area does not reach at least half of what normally falls, Toro will refund from 50 to 100 percent of the selling price of the snowblower.

"We're calling it 'Las Vegas in New England' because it's a real gamble," Marie Giacobbe said. "This is the first time I've seen any offer like this in 20 years in the business."

Anyone who buys a qualified gas snowthrower (several models are included) between May 1 and Dec. 10 gets into the bet.

The program started six weeks ago, and Marie said they've already received lay-aways and orders for Father's Day.

She's going so far as to order a truckload of Toro snowblowers, expecting this to be one of the biggest sales promotions in the firm's history.

"It's a good idea," Dick agreed. "If someone plans to buy a snowblower this year, they can't lose. If it doesn't snow, they don't pay."

Marie said other firms have tried different types of promotions to offer rebates, but the dealers have been stuck dishing out the money. In this campaign, the distributor, Turf Products, handles all the refunds, giving shopowners like the Giacobbes more incentive to pass the savings gimic on to customers.

Toro, it seems, has a great deal of confidence in our U.S. Weather Bureau's statistics.

If the actual snowfall this winter is less than 20 percent of the average level as compiled by the weather bureau, Toro will refund 100 percent of the purchase price. If the snowfall is 30 percent of the average, the refund is 70 percent; if less than 40 percent of the average snow falls, 60 percent will be refunded; less than 40 percent, the buyer gets back 60 percent of the cost, and if the snow measures less than half of the average, the customer gets the snowblower at half-price.

So while folks are out battling the crabgrass, they may want to think about the snow.

La Maison de Notre Père
Pembroke Center (Route 14) Pembroke

An elegant French Restaurant where memories are made

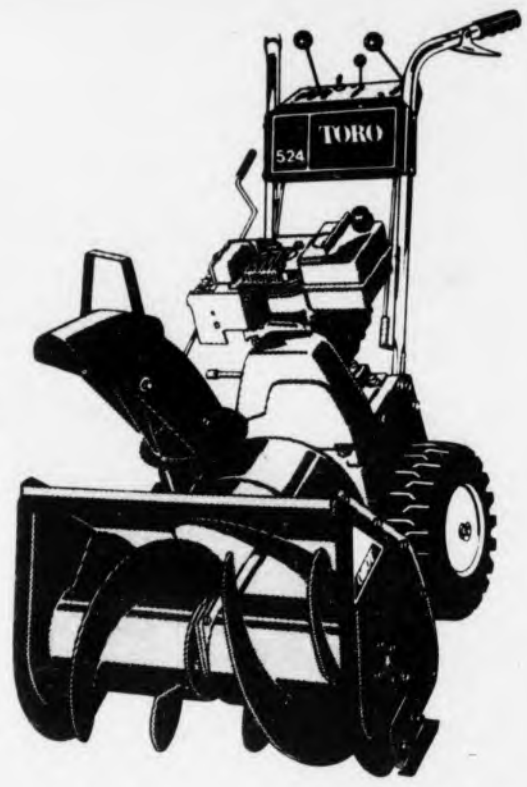
Amid the tree-lined streets of rural Pembroke Center rests an old two-story home which has been tastefully redecorated and made into an intimate, elegant French restaurant. If you have ever dined in fine old continental hotels in Europe, Quebec, or on board cruise ships . . . then you will enjoy this unique dining experience even more, for the elegance is only surpassed by the sincerety of this family's hospitality.



La Maison de Notre Pere has been designed for those who like to spend the entire evening in an unrushed, relaxed atmosphere where the dinners set the pace for the 8 course meal around breaks in adjoining casual rooms for leisure relaxation and conversation. We are the only restaurant that offers you the table as well as the rest of our home for the evening. We offer a private place to escape in the quiet, unhurried atmosphere of candlelight and soft music. Come — partake and allow our home to be yours for the evening.

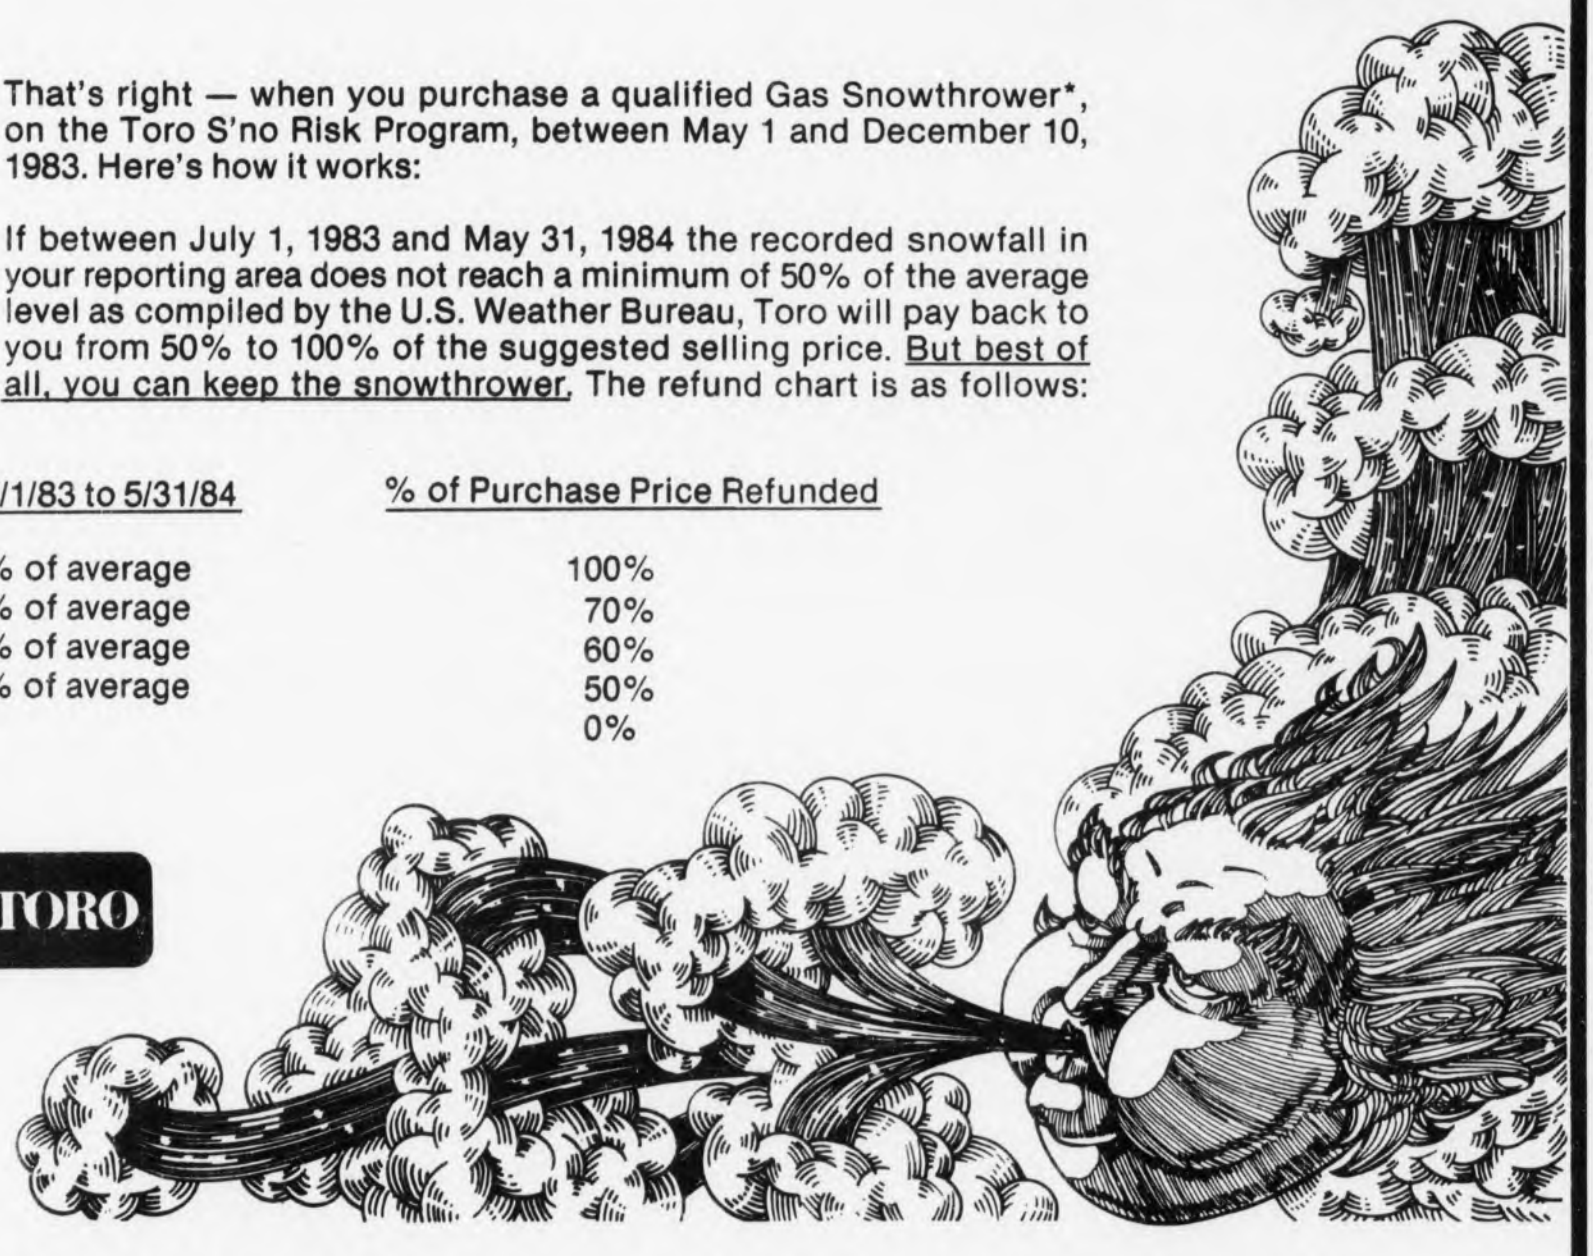
LAS VEGAS IN NEW ENGLAND
NEW ENGLAND WEATHER IS A GAMBLE

YOU COULD HAVE A TORO SNOWTHROWER FOR "FREE" in 1983



That's right — when you purchase a qualified Gas Snowthrower*, on the Toro S'no Risk Program, between May 1 and December 10, 1983. Here's how it works:

If between July 1, 1983 and May 31, 1984 the recorded snowfall in your reporting area does not reach a minimum of 50% of the average level as compiled by the U.S. Weather Bureau, Toro will pay back to you from 50% to 100% of the suggested selling price. But best of all, you can keep the snowthrower. The refund chart is as follows:

Snowfall from 7/1/83 to 5/31/84	% of Purchase Price Refunded
Less than 20% of average	100%
Less than 30% of average	70%
Less than 40% of average	60%
Less than 50% of average	50%
50% or more	0%

We believe in making things better. TORO

Cohasset will develop low income housing, officials say

In order to maintain state grant money appropriated for water and sewer projects, the town will attempt to demonstrate a good faith effort to develop a low income housing plan.

Executive Secretary Mark Lanza said he and a selectman, housing authority and planning board officials will meet early next month with representatives of the state office of Communities and Development.

At that time, the town will try to convince the state that implementation of low income housing within the town will be a reality. Without that sign of good faith, Lanza said, money for two water and sewer projects will be withheld by that state office.

In a letter earlier this month to selectmen, the state office notified the town that sewer and water rehabilitation grants are in jeopardy unless selectmen agree to sign an agreement for low income family housing development. The office informed the selectmen that "the town appears to be unreasonably restrictive regarding low-income development."

According to Lanza, the state will request that town officials sign a memorandum of agreement which stipulates that the town will make a good faith effort toward resolving its lack of low income family housing.

Lanza, who has dealt with this state office during his tenure as assistant executive secretary in Wayland and in Yarmouth, said as long as the town displays its intention to develop this type of housing program, the grant money should not be withheld.

The state has informed the town that unless the housing program is defined, state monies will not be appropriated.

That action would jeopardize the $500,000 state planning advance for the sewer systems, and more importantly, the $174,612 grant for the water mains on Atlantic Avenue. Lanza said the engineering work for that project is on hold until this housing issue is resolved.

The design of the water rehabilitation project is almost underway, Lanza said, but has been delayed until the fate of the state grant is decided. The town has appropriated the remainder of the $395,000 water main project.

Lanza said the state might expect Cohasset to apply for Scattered Site Family Public Housing Funds, and to carefully scrutinize the zoning bylaws so as not to exclude low income housing development.

"The town intends to take this notice from the state very seriously," Lanza said. "In a time of fiscal constraints, state monies are necessary. It's not a good idea to jeopardize state funds."

The executive secretary added that as long as a good faith effort is demonstrated by Cohasset, and the town does not "drag along," he does not foresee the forfeiture of state monies.

He noted that the town was advised of this possibility by the state in the fall of 1982. Although some communication was made between the town and the state at that time, the issue was not resolved to the state's satisfaction.

Lanza said the two project grants are the only state funds in jeopardy, although future grant applications could also be affected. If the state was not assured of Cohasset's attempt to develop a low income housing plan, applications for Economic Development Assistance grants, Conservation Land Grants and Open Space Recreation Funds will also be in jeopardy.

Phone shutdown could happen again

By Mike Berger

The saddest aspect to last week's near telephone shutdown in Cohasset is it could happen again and there would be no advance warning to Cohasset phone customers.

Service gradually was restored to 60 percent of affected Cohasset phone customers by 5 p.m. Wednesday although some residents including state Rep. Mary Jeannette Murray say their telephone service wasn't restored until Thursday.

When a major telephone cable was cut Monday, June 20 at 8:30 a.m., phone service was immediately cut to the Police and Fire Departments for nearly three hours.

This meant residents had to pull a fire alarm if fire broke out or travel to the police station to report an incident.

Fortunately, both the Police and Fire Depts. reported no major emergencies during this three-hour break.

This three-hour non-telephone service to the town's emergency departments greatly concerns Executive Secretary Mark Lanza who is calling for development of an internal Civil Defense communications systems.

"What last week proved is there is no definite Civil Defense system or plan and there should be. There has to be something worked out between our emergency departments and New England Telephone," said Lanza.

He had earlier sent a letter to N.E.T. officials from selectmen criticizing the telephone company's planned rebate system for no phone service.

Jackie Jung, N.E.T. spokesman discussed the matter with Lanza Monday but she still maintains the N.E.T. policy will be followed.

She said the policy is customers are entitled to a rebate procedure for customers who are without service for 24 hours.

Those people who have been without service should call the N.E.T. Business office to arrange for an adjustment. The amount of adjustment will depend on the type of service, she said.

Lanza wrote to Gerald Freche, N.E.T. president after a letter was drafted and presented to selectmen last week by Cohasset resident Peter Pratt.

The letter, sent to N.E.T., says, "Regarding the recent telephone service outages of large scale, which have occurred, for periods in excess of 24 hours in the American wins cable license

By Theresa Sullivan

Selectmen approved a provisional cable television license for American Cablesystems last week.

A final 15-year license will be granted to the company in a year or less if all regulations are met and approved by selectmen and Town Counsel Richard Henderson.

Within this time, the company must rent space for its cables to run between telephone and electrical wires on telephone poles and the company must set up a local office.

American Cablesystems General Manger Steve Farquhar said they intend to locate their cable office in Cohasset Village but the exact location has not yet been determined.

American was the only firm to apply to Cohasset for a cable license.

Anne Berman, American Cablesystems representative said, it would be poor business sense for another company to locate in Cohasset because the company has received preliminary licenses in Scituate, Norwell and Hull.

In addition, the firm has received a recommendation from Hingham's Cable Advisory Committee as the town's cable operator.

The company owns final licenses in Quincy, Milton, Randolph, Arlington and Newburyport.

If the final license is granted by Cohasset select-

Ripley reflects on 'fulfilling and worthwhile' times

by Moira McCarthy

Former Cohasset School Supt. William Ripley has seen a lot of changes since he graduated from Hingham High in 1920. He has seen most of them from first hand experience.

After attending his 63rd class reunion last Saturday, he paused to reflect.

"I don't think parents give teachers the support they used to, as far as discipline goes," he said, "But I don't think education today is as bad as the public, and Reagan, make it out to be. It's up to the individual, just as it used to be. Those who are there to learn, learn. Those who are there for the ride go through too."

Ripley began teaching in 1926, right after he graduated from Brown University with a major in chemistry.

"I came home from college, and Orvis Collins (then superintendent of Hingham and Cohasset schools) called me and said he wanted me to teach, so I said OK."

Ripley went to work at Cohasset's Osgood High School, which has been torn down since then.

In 1942, Ripley was named high school principal and Cohasset school superintendent. The jobs were so small, he said, they were considered one in the same.

But in 1952, the jobs were split and he became superintendent alone.

There were some things that happened in those years that aren't so different from the struggles that teachers face today.

During the depression, he said, all their jobs were in danger, so each teacher took a five per cent cut. Ripley's starting annual salary as a teacher, was $1600.

"There were no teachers unions back them," he said, "In fact, teachers unions were not prominent until after I was a superintendent, in the late 60's."

While teaching, Ripley took a summer job in a boys' camp in Maine to suppliment his income. He was paid in room and board for the entire summer. But although the financial struggles of teaching have remained through the years, Ripley says education has changed.

"Education has really stiffened up and advanced since then," he said. "It's much more specific now. It has to be because society is much more complex today."

Ripley said the advanced technology of computers has a large part in that change.

That seems amazing to him, especially when he looks back on bringing the first televisions into the Cohasset grammar school.

"We thought it was a big deal then, and now everyone has two or three homes, with computer hook ups for them."

Back when Ripley was a student in Hingham, things wer e even less complicated than that.

He remembers having a radio, and barely getting the Colors approved

The Cohasset Common Historic District Commission unanimously approved Tree and Park Superintendent Peter Laugelle's request for green as a new color for the trash barrel receptacles around the common, and a light gray paint for the bus stop.

The Commission is authorized to rule on color changes in the neighborhood of the Common under town bylaws.

Acting Chairman, Charles Wheelwright, in the absence of Chairman Peter Wood, and Vice Chairman Barbara Weisenfluh, said he observed considerable rusting on the iron parts of the receptacles.

Peter's goldfish

Tree and Park Superintendent Peter Laugelle has quietly seeded goldfish in the pool at the town common the last few years. The number of the goldfish number in the hundreds.

"I can see the schools of goldfish from my second floor window, and they are just beautiful!" Elizabeth Stevenson of 13 North Main Street said as she complimented Laugelle last week.

Laugelle says the goldfish hide under the leaves on the bottom of the undrained pool in the winter, and are apparently breeding successfully.

Although the mallard ducks which frequent the pond are visible to a driver in an automobile passing by the common, the goldfish are not. Stop a few moments on a sunny day and walk over to the pond to enjoy Peter's surprise. But the fish are less visible under cloudy skies.

Cedar St. health complaint

The health board received a complaint from Eleanor (Cooney) Smith of 62 Cedar St. regarding a sample of soil found on the site of the septic system. Briggs Associates, a Norwell engineering firm, tested the sample and found severe limitations."

Smith said she had retained lawyers, and could start a ten taxpayer suit in court, if the matter was not investigated. She did not say who took the sample, or who paid for the analysis.

The health board agreed if the site showed more clay than sand, Eliopoulos should order a cease and desist order.

But if only pockets of clay were found an order would not be necessary.

Construction is continuing on the community septic system at the 18-unit Cedar ledge, condominium project.

Health Agent Elaine Eliopalus and engineer John Modzelewski determined last week there are only isolated pockets of clay at the site.

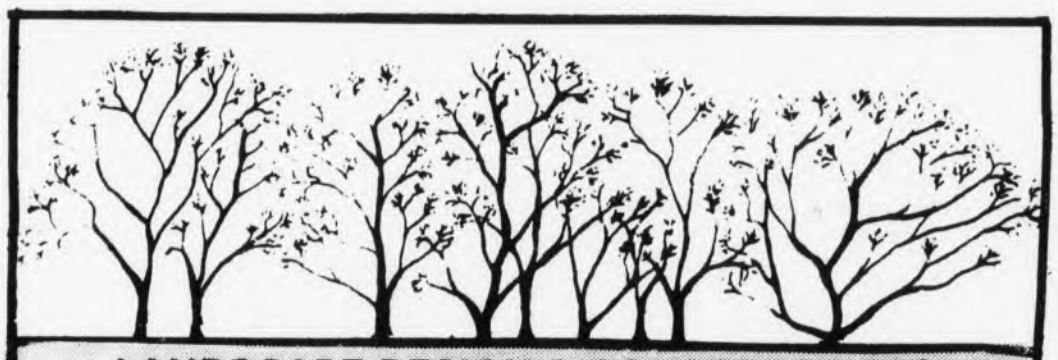
Cards for committeemen

Selectmen have issued identification cards to newly appointed members of town committees.

Cohasset Common Historic District Commissioner Thomas Atkinson had questioned whether under the town bylaws a new appointment was valid unless the nominee had accepted the membership in writing.

Stephenson says the letters to all new nominees from selectmen advise them to accept their appointments in writing, and be sworn in by the town clerk.

Acting Chairman Charles Wheelwright said Executive Secretary Mark Lanza had also sent them a letter with suggestions as to how their meetings should be conducted.



Committee member Elizabeth Stevenson asked if the committee should meet monthly on a regular basis, whether or not they had appeals on which to rule.

Wheelwright said this was suggested by Lanza.

It has been proposed the new committee, which will take effect after July 1 could meet the second Tuesday of every month. Another proposal is updating additions to committee regulations, when members do not have other business to consider. More committee meetings might improve relationships between members, since they would know each other better, if they met regularly.

Early 4th deadline

The Fourth of July means an early deadline for the Mariner.

Advertising copy and news releases should be in hand at the Mariner office, 58 Main Street, Marshfield or P.O. Box 682, Marshfield by Friday at 2 p.m.

The staff will be among those deviling eggs (or other events) in celebration of the nation's birthday. Ordinarily the staff works during Monday holidays. Not this one, however. The early deadline means we can see you at the beach during the holiday and still put out the news.

The Mariner next week will be a July Fourth festival, featuring special events on the South Shore, including the Scituate boat race, a Fourth parade and a dog show.

Band concerts

The first of four scheduled Band Concerts on the Common will be sponsored by the Recreation Department Friday evening, July 1, at 7:30 p.m. Performing will be the 30-piece South Shore Concert Band, directed by Richard Whitmarsh.

Murray favors bill

State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R) attended the Joint Transportation Committee recently.

Murray, who represents Cohasset, Hingham and Hull, discussed a bill which calls for a bond issue to improve transportation throughout the Commonwealth.

She spoke in favor of the bill, but stressed that money from the bond issue should be used to construct a monorail from Boston down Route 3.

Town Hall Study Committee

A Town Hall Study Committee has been established, consisting of five members including an architect and an engineer.

The committee, which will meet as often as necessary but not less than monthly, will accomplish the following;

1) determine the office space needs for all town departments and offices currently located in Town Hall and other departments except the water and sewer.

2) determine whether the current Town Hall can be renovated to meet the office space needs of the Town for the offices mentioned in C 1, above.

3) look for existing buildings and land whether publicly owned or privately owned which may be used to meet the town's municipal office space needs.

4) look for alternative sites whether publicly or privately owned to construct a Town Hall.

5) develop project cost and time estimates for all alternatives explored to meet the town's office space needs.

6) explore various alternative approaches to financing the purchase, construction, or renovation of a Town Hall.

7) assist selectmen in seeking the support of the Capital Budget Committee, Advisory Committee and Town Meeting to secure funding for the proposed contract.

8) submit written progress reports to selectmen at least quarterly.

Correction

P.S. Correction. Last week a "p.s." appeared on the wrong letter on editorial page 9. It incorrectly followed Anne Koehrer's letter when it should have been after Erin O'Brien's letter thanking the Cohasset Swim Center's staff for helping to open the facility.

Our apologies to Anne and Erin. Ed.

Telephone shutdown

town of Cohasset, the Cohasset Board of Selectmen hereby requets that the New England Telephone Company take certain measures outlined below."

"Such measures are put forward with the intent of 1. seeking a fair rate adjustment for Cohasset residents thus affected, 2. avoiding such outages, with the attending threats to the public safety of the town, in the future.

" Acting on behalf of the residents and businesses of the town of Cohasset, the majority of whom lost telephone service within the last several days, we seek a 'mass rate adjustment," so called, which shall credit Cohasset rate payers in an equitable manner for service interruption.

"Rather than have each rate payer thus situated petition your firm for a pro-rated crdit for service loss, we request that New England Telephone award credits and rebates on customer billiings for the period in question."

"It is our belief that the telephone customers of Cohasset have suffered enough inconvenience in recent days without having to be further burdened with the time consuming process of seeking rebates after receiving your next scheduled billing.

"Further we request that an officer of the New England Telephone Company deliver to our board, no more than 60 days hence, a written policy, promulgated by your firm which details the manner in which the company shall attept to avoid such service outages in the Town of Cohasset in the future."

The letter also says N.E.T. and state subcontractors should have better communications and N.E.T. officials should not publicly be discussing the effect of the telephone outage on home and business burgular systems.

Jung was asked how a phone outage could be prevented in the future. She said she could not guarantee it won't happen again but N.E.T. officials are serious that the correct installation procedures be followed by all contractors involved.

She said N.E.T. is concerned about its customers and also its workers too who had to work around the clock to fix the cables.

N.E.T. has blamed Guthrie Fence Inc. of Springfield for causing two power outages withint two weeks. Guthrie Fence was contracted by the state Dept. of Public Works to install new guard rails on Route 3A.

But the Guthrie Fence president denied these claims and said the cable cut was caused by N.E.T. workers.

Whenever underground construction is begun, the state has ordered all contractors to call "Dig Safe" to arrange final construction plans.

Ron Hastie, Guthrie Fence president, said N.E.T. representatives did not attend a pre-construction and were late when Guthrie workers were ready to begin construction.

Hastie said Guthrie workers waited until N.E.T. workers arrived. The cable markings were noted but Hastie said N.E.T. workers marked the wrong ones.

This, he said, was done two weeks in a row. As a result he pulled his workers off the job and he won't send them back until "this whole situation is straigtened out and the telephone company gets themselves together."

Jung responded that Guthrie Fence officials did not give the mandatory 72-hour notice of Dig Safe to N.E.T.

She added, "N.E.T. did everything possible and then some to avoid this. We unequivocally told Guthrie Fence where our cable lines were."

Murray said nothing from a legislative standpoint can be done to prevent a telephone outage from happening again but she acknowledged she is disappointed in the way "things were handled."

men, installation will begin within a year. Cable installation will be free for the first 60 days and there will be a $20 charge after that.

Subscribers will have a choice between purchasing Focus at $4.95 a month and Supercable at $7.95 a month.

Focus programming includes local programming and off-the-air channels. This will mean better reception for television Channels 56, 12 and 5 etc.

Supercable offers Focus services, video rock and roll, local channels and satellite channels.

Premium channels such as Home Box Office, Show Time, Walt Disney and Bravo (a culture channel) and a sports channel will cost the cable customer between $4.95 and $8.95 a month.

The advent of cable also means changes to the School Dept which will have the ability to televise live local school events, sports and school committee meetings.

Ripley reflects on 'fulfilling and worthwhile' times

message through, because technology hadn't advanced enough.

And he remembers going for Saturday afternoon rides in his grandfather's Maxwell (the car of the times).

"People didn't drive everywhere in those days. A car was something to take for a ride on a Saturday afternoon. It was that much of a novelty. Nowadays, you don't even go for rides. You just go."

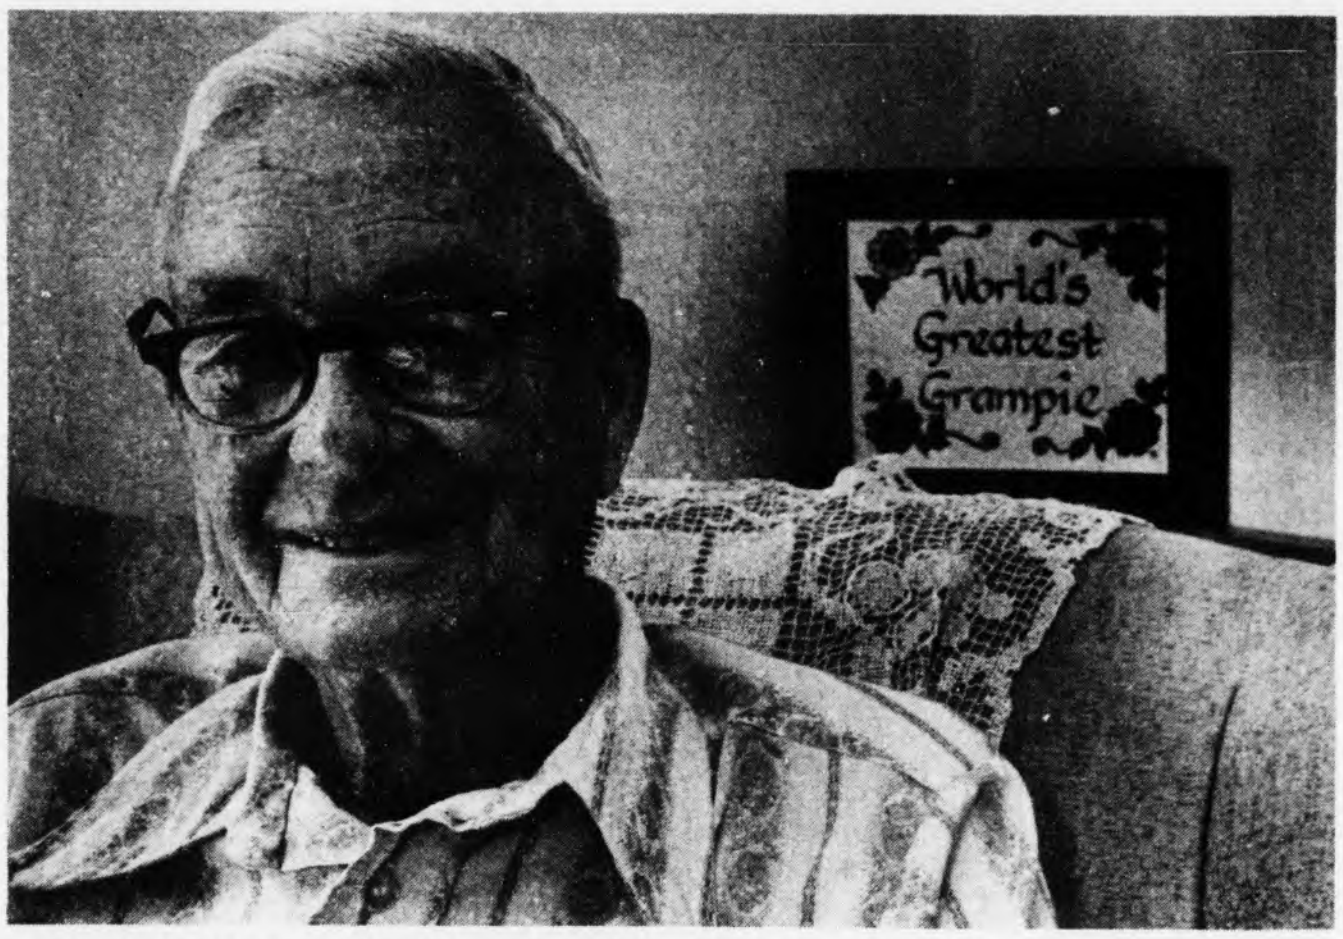
"And everytime you got home from a ride, the question was, 'how many flats did you get?"

Social activities in those days seem tame compared to todays high school events.

There were Red Sox games (Ripley saw the Sox capture the penant in '16') and of course Saturday night dances. They all danced to 'Margie,' well chaperoned and youths were usually home by 9:30 p.m.

Daytime was usually spent playing ball or going skating.

"But you had chores to do around the home that kept you busy. You were usually all worked out by noontime."



As Ripley looks back, all seemed fulfilling and very much worthwhile. There were actually some ways in which society was more lax back then.

"We used to have a bonfire at midnight on the fourth of July, right in the middle of the Common. Do you think people would stand for that today?"

Vacations however, were a bit different.

"On our February vacations, we'd go to Boston for day. That was a big deal. Now high schoolers go to France for the week. If we went to Boston, it was a big deal."

"But we didn't know any better. We thought we were having fun. We enjoyed simple things, and thought we were having a grand time. Maybe we were. Yes, I do believe we were."

Former school superintendent William Ripley, known to some as the "World's Greatest Grampie," shares his reflections on the past and thoughts about present. (Derr photo)

Health board slide show on water management

July 14, the Board of Health will have a short slide tape show, "Out of Sight-Not Out of Danger." The show addresses groundwater management and protection. Further, it will discuss information on groundwater movement, contamination, and protection techniques.

The film was photographed and written by Laurie Mazerov a D.E.Q.E. staff person. Sandy Mullaney of D.E.Q.E. will attend July 14 and answer questions. The location of the show will be announced the week of July 10. Please call the Board of Health office for those who are interested in attending. The board needs an estimate of interested people so they can arrange an adequate location.

around town

☐Herb Crehan has been enjoying his 41st birthday since June 28 when he celebrated his 40th birthday. Happy Birthday, Herb!

☐Ray Kasperowicz will end his 40th year July 9 when his 40th birthday arrives. He'd like everyone to know that he didn't win last week's race because of his brand new sails. Happy 40th, Ray!.

☐Chris Bartow will be celebrating his 9th birthday July 9. He isn't "into" which year is ending or beginning; he's just into birthdays. Happy wishes, Chris, on your day!

Spencer S. Briggs, formerly of Cohasset, was awarded a bachelor of Business Administration degree in June from the University of Oklahoma. He lives in Norman, Oklahoma, where he is the manager of a restaurant.

☐Barry Tufts received his degree from Tufts Dental School on June 10. Jim Lonborg, former Boston Red Sox pitcher, was another of Barry's class to receive his degree.

☐Harry Ritter was spotted on Channel Four a couple of nights ago, warning all of the residents of the dangers when youths jump off Mill River Bridge. The recent drowning at the quarries prompted Channel Four to investigate some of the bridges that are known, alerting everyone of the dangers. As they were filming, some of the kids were on the news too...jumping from the bridge!

☐The next time you see Steve Keating, Barry or Paul Buckley, be sure to ask them to show you their latest acquisitions. All three received beautiful rings for being on the University of Maine, Orono, football team. Maine won the championship in the Yankee Conference last fall. There was a lot of hard work involved, but that ring had to have made it all worthwhile.

☐Scott Daniels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Daniels of 112 Beach Street, received his Architecture degree recently from the Boston Architectural Center.

☐Patty Johnson reports that she had a fabulous year at Syracuse University, and can't wait to go back in the fall. Meanwhile, Patty is having a busy summer as one of the lifeguards at Sandy Beach.

☐The reason that you haven't seen Mike Casey performing his waterskiing skills this summer is one that I hate to report. Mike injured his knee during a lacrosse game at school and had to have extensive surgery to have it repaired. The doctors say he will be out of commission for a long time, but...if you see a waterskier with a cast you won't have to wonder who it is!

☐Happy Birthday to Chrissie Pompeo, who will be sweet sixteen on July 4, Independence Day!

☐Eleanor Pozatek of Surrey Drive recently received her bachelor of science degree in Psychology-Rehabilitation Counseling from Emmanuel College's Division of Continuing Education in Boston.

☐James Froio, Jr., of Cohasset was named to the Dean's List at Salem State College recently.

☐Two Cohasset students graduated from Connecticut College recently and were awarded Bachelor of Arts degrees. They are Martha Marie Bitsberger, daughter of Rev. Donald E. Bitsberger of Hammond St. and Eva F. Bitsberger of Boston, MA. Major: Psychology based Human Relations. Honors: Phi Peta Kappa, cum laude.

Elisabeth Anne Sheehy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel P. Sheehy of 57 Jerusalem Drive also graduated from Connecticut College. Her major was Psychology.

Dina Sestito and Torin Sweeney try to push over Betsy Calvi and Dave Rourke during "chicken fight" in the water at Sandy Beach.

☐Gordon Flint of Cohasset was elected president and director of the Northeast Bank N.A. of Farmington, Maine.

He started his banking career with the Old Colony Trust Company in Boston in 1968, and joined the Trust and Investment Division of Northeast Bank in Lewiston, Maine in 1973, where his most recent position was vice president and trust officer.

Flint, a Cohasset native, graduated from Cohasset High School and Bowdoin College. He also attended the National Graduate Trust School held at Northwestern University.

He is currently a director of the Maine Bankers Association and the Maine Estate Planning Council.

Active in Bowdoin Alumni affairs, he was selected as an Outstanding Young Man of America by the Jaycees in 1971. He is married to the former Patricia Skehan, also of Cohasset and are the parents of three children, Andrew, Peter and Sarah.

☐Navy Lt. James Brackett, son of Dr. and Mrs. Philip Brackett of Atlantic Ave., reported for duty aboard the guided missile frigate USS Wadsworth, homeported in Long Beach, Calif.

☐Had a favorable comment last week ..the condition of Sandy Beach is much improved (parking lot-wise). Whether it is due to the bottle bill or the kids caring to clean up or a combination of both, it's working! Keep it up, everyone!

☐Only Joe Hoffman would ask Joseph McLean how the water was after he returned from the island swim last week.

☐Jeff Steele is grinning from ear to ear lately. Her daughter Nina, complete with two grandchildren, has moved to Hingham. Now Jeff can visit Nina and her husband without having to travel to Maine to do so. And need I add how much she loves having her grandchildren around?

☐Hope everyone caught the Today Show last week, where Rik Tinory performed in a special about Boston. His song, "Boston, the Only Place For Me," was written and sung by him.

☐Congratulations to the recent Deer Hill School grads, and here's hoping they all love the junior high. Not to worry, though, everyone gets lost once, then it's a "piece of cake."

☐The Cohasset Sailing Club gets underway this week and memberships are still available. The only equipment that you need to provide is a life jacket! It's great fun, as well as being a good learning opportunity (for both adults and children over 10 years-old). Join up by calling Kevin Cooke at the clubhouse or Joyce Conway at 383-1621.

☐A sure sign of summer is the Carillon Recitals, which are held every Sunday afternoon from 4 to 5 p.m. It's really nice to see the people surrounding the Common with their chairs thoroughly enjoying the music.

☐Dan Bowen leaves for "Boot Camp" this week, part of his West Point program. He will certainly be missed.

☐Last week it was the telephone, this week the electricity was out during the thunderstorms. Makes one realize how much we depend on "modern conveniences."

☐Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Perroncello returned recently from Washington, D.C., where they spent five days at the Crystal Gateway Hotel. They went to attend the eighth bi-annual reunion of the 66th Infantry Division of World War II. Ralph was one of 780 members of the Division, and reports that he had a grand time and it was great to see everyone again.

☐Another Keating "bit the dust" last Saturday, leaving just one for Mom, Margaret, to worry about. Good luck and best wishes to Tom and Denise. May your future be a bright and happy one.

☐Try Joan Pinkham's "Choco-scotch clusters" if you want to be an instant hit in your family. They are yummy and easy, too!

Festival a celebration of the arts

A juried selection of crafts booths will ring the Cohasset Common during the South Shore Arts Festival, Friday, July 1 through July 4.

The South Shore Art Center's 28th annual celebration of the arts has included a section for crafts among its juried shows.

Prior to this year the craft entrants were not juried. This new dimension to the craft section should make for an exciting selection of crafts.

The Arts Festival is open to the public from 10 a.m. to dusk each of the four days.

An array of activities includes the juried shows, performing groups, an invitational sculpture show, children's activities, gourmet picnics and artist demonstrations.

Pottery entries in the craft exhibit include Judy Rossman of Scituate; Lesli Scott of Amherst; Anne Appleton Clarke of Rindge, New Hamshire; Gail J.L. Kass of Waterboro, Maine; and Toby Goldstein of Hingham.

Lynn Tilden of Scituate will bring her stained glass and Kristi Furbush of Newton Centre will bring painted barretts. Scrimshaw jewelry will be shown by Marilyn Hassett of Marshfield. John Hunter Wetmore of Duxbury will bring his silver buckles and belts.

Nancy Latady of Scituate will come with her weaving and knits and Amiee Constant of Quincy will bring her hand-painted shirts.

The quality and variety of this year's craft booths will give viewers an opportunity to see the workmanship.

The South Shore Art Center's own gift shop at 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset, will also be open during the festival. The gift shop carries handmade items by its artists.

For more information call the Center at 383-9548.

CHAMPAGNE PREVIEW

Preceding the Arts Festival the South Shore Arts Festival Champagne Preview of the winners from the juried shows will be held Thursday, June 30, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The Champagne Preview will be held on the Common grounds and the awards will be made to the winners of the juried shows.

Guests attending this gala event will also view the Invitational Sculpture Show of works by three Boston artists — Obie Simonis, Jessica Straus and Robin Shores.

The winners from the juried shows in paintings, prints, drawings, sculpture and photographs represent a quality of work reaching an international level. The jurors for the exhibits feel the quality of works will make the Festival most exciting and enjoyable.

Music for the Champagne Preview will be provided by the Pro Arte Consort. A small donation will be taken at the door for the preview. Call the Center, 383-9548 to RSVP.

Here is the schedule of the 28th Annual South Shore Art Festival from July 1 to July 4:

The Minelli Case

We don't make a habit of second-guessing the school department's handling of personnel questions. Hiring and firing is the prerequisite of good management, and neither education nor professionalism is served when as a matter of regularity personnel decisions become subject to the vagaries of public opinion — ours included.

But the school department's case in terminating Head Basketball Coach Ed Minelli seems so powerfully vacuous that unless there is a sudden windfall of credibility on the part of the school department, we will urge the school committee to vote to retain Minelli.

Let's look at the record.

The record shows that Minelli took a team that no one wanted to coach in 1981-82, stuck with that team while it won only one game, then led the 1982-83 team to a much-improved 9-11 record.

The record shows that, although, as we shall see later, there is a small faction of parents and others who don't support Minelli, the man is liked and respected by the great majority of his players, their families, and the growing number of Cohasset basketball boosters.

The record shows that Coach Minelli tends to do extra little things that show good citizenship and lead by example. He volunteers his time at the Recreation Department. He drives kids home when they need rides and he takes his players to college basketball games in Boston. He has arranged for a Cohasset-Hanover game next year to be played at Walter Brown Arena as the preview of the Boston University-Penn State game. That'll be a once-in-a-lifetime thrill for many of his players.

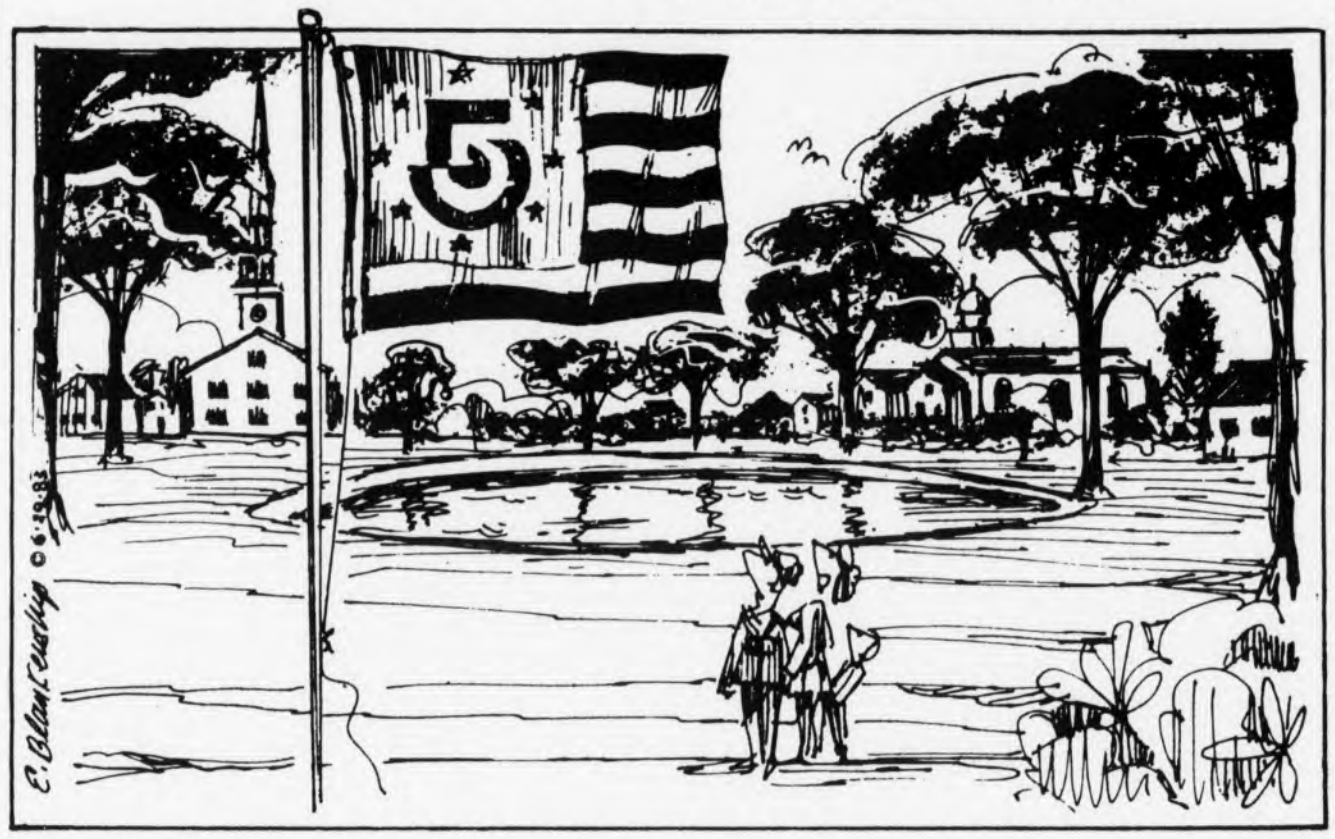
But the record also shows that Superintendent Eugene Crowell and high school Principal Richard Streeter have stated that they do not believe Minelli has taught sound fundamentals. Asked by the Mariner to elaborate, Streeter cited an instance during the season when an opposing team (as he reports) ran off a dozen consecutive points without Minelli's calling a time-out.

If that's as far as "fundamental" inadequacy goes, to the Mariner it's the sort of comment that has a barroom as its natural habitat. You can hear similar comments any night of the week around last call. We'd hardly know if the criticism contained in the comment is correct, but even if it is it hardly seems the criterion on which the issue of the leadership of our youth ought to be decided.

Furthermore, the record also shows that Minelli's "fundamental" inadequacies were only raised after-the-fact of his being dumped by school administrators. In this regard we can't help but recall the effort to dump Mr. Streeter himself a number of years ago. In that case Streeter argued successfully (and in our view, correctly) that he had not been notified of perceived inadequacies in a timely manner that would have allowed him to correct same. When his case was finally settled, Streeter was reinstated with a full year's back pay.

It is true that part-time coaches do not have the same legal protection from administrative vagaries that tenured teachers do. But isn't the principle the same even if the structure is not? Isn't a man who serves the youth of Cohasset for a relative pittance entitled to simple courtesy from the town and its representatives? Doesn't Minelli have a right to be told if his time-out timing is poor in time to save his scalp?

It all frankly smells like a bag-job, by which we mean an action taken for reasons that have little or nothing to do with what our administrative officials would wish us to believe.



The record also shows that many people close to the situation rightly or wrongly suspect that this termination came about as the result of an influential parent's deciding that his own child would get more playing time under a coach other than Minelli.

The Mariner does not necessarily believe that this is why Minelli was dismissed, but the fact that many do believe it is reason enough not to dismiss Minelli on the flimsy case thus far presented by the school department. Nothing could be more destructive for Cohasset schools, for Cohasset basketball, and for every one of our kids, than for an impression to be left — even if it is inaccurate — that athletes with influential parents can garner playing time they don't really deserve based on the current development of their skills.

That's exactly what people are going to believe if the school committee votes on July 13 to approve Mr. Minelli's dismissal as requested by the school administration. What the committee ought to do July 13 is to afford the administration one more opportunity to put some credible reasons on the record for terminating Minelli. There may be valid reasons that haven't yet been heard.

NEWS ITEM — Cohasset: Another day on the Common for Channel 5 and you.
TV personalities mingled with the crowd with everyone agreeing a good time was had by all. Station promo budgets $30,000 in addition to $25,000 bond. Town's only remuneration to be 'a flag like last year'

"...Well, they did say they'd give us another flag this year..."

These are the best years

By Claire McDonough

I remember when the Dragon and I had four youngsters under four years old.

Someone's diapers always needed changing. Peanut butter was smeared on everything. For the fifth consecutive year I wore maternity clothes.

Every morning I put flouride drops in orange juice and gave it to the kids. They poured it on the floor.

We speculated that any day our floor would start to grow a perfect set of teeth. Every piece of furniture we owned was a G.I. (Generous Inlaws) benefit.

We dreamed of the candlelight dinners we enjoyed in the early months of our marriage, as we finished up the strained carrots and soggy bread crusts in our children's dishes.

The handwriting was on the wall—in unwashable crayon.

At least once a day my mother would visit. "Enjoy them while they're this age," she would say. "These are the best years of your life."

Then she would go home.

I would gnash my teeth behind her back. "It gets worse than this?" I would moan.

Some days I would literally snarl. "Her and her one kid."

And yet—has time distorted memory, or did those kids actually believe we were the two smartest people in the world? Did a kiss really cure everything short of bubonic plague or a burst appendix?

O.K., so they told the neighbors everything including my weight and age and the Dragon's average weekly take-home pay. Actually, they were bragging. They thought everything we had or did had to be the best in the world.

Could my mother have been right?

When they started school they became more critical. Other people's parents were richer, or smarter, or more charming. Our oldest son once told me it was all right for me to attend a meeting for parents of second graders, but I was not to talk or try to be funny, and I should bring something to do with my hands.

I surpressed a wild mental image of myself shelling peas in respectful silence while Sister Mary Hilarian and Everyone Else's Mother discussed Important Things.

I knew what he meant. He was terrified that I'd embarrass him.

Yet—and I'm certain of this—the testing of our home and our values was less a rejection of what we were as a searching for what they would be. They would test the waters in the outside world, then return to the known safety of home. Their parents weren't, after all, completely hopeless.

Even when the kids were in high school they were able to recognize a certain value in the old folks.

The Dragon's mother doted on the teenagers. "Enjoy them," she would say. "These are the best years of your life. Right now."

We would moan. Either her memory was faulty, or teenagers had changed since the years when she had to cope. We recalled the days when the worst thing to disturb our sleep was a hungry baby. We dreaded a midnight phone call.

And yet—the older children have moved away. Patrick is in college. Skipper and Breida are 15 and 16. We look around us, and we wonder. Is the best yet to be? Or are these years the last, the very last, of the best years of our lives?

An Anti-noise bylaw?

To the Editor and Neighbors:

The attached, written by Executive Secretary Mark Lanza, indicates what progress has been made in "the battle for peace and quiet!"

We had good support at the Selectman's meeting June 15th, and they were all unanimously sympathetic.

The police department is supporting us in this, so you may call them and report any equipment noise you hear before 7:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Don't hesitate.

Thank you for your support in this matter. It's nice to

Murray's Memos

Report from the State House

By Mary Jeanette Murray

A "Better Budget" for Fiscal 1984 would have to be a "Balanced Budget."

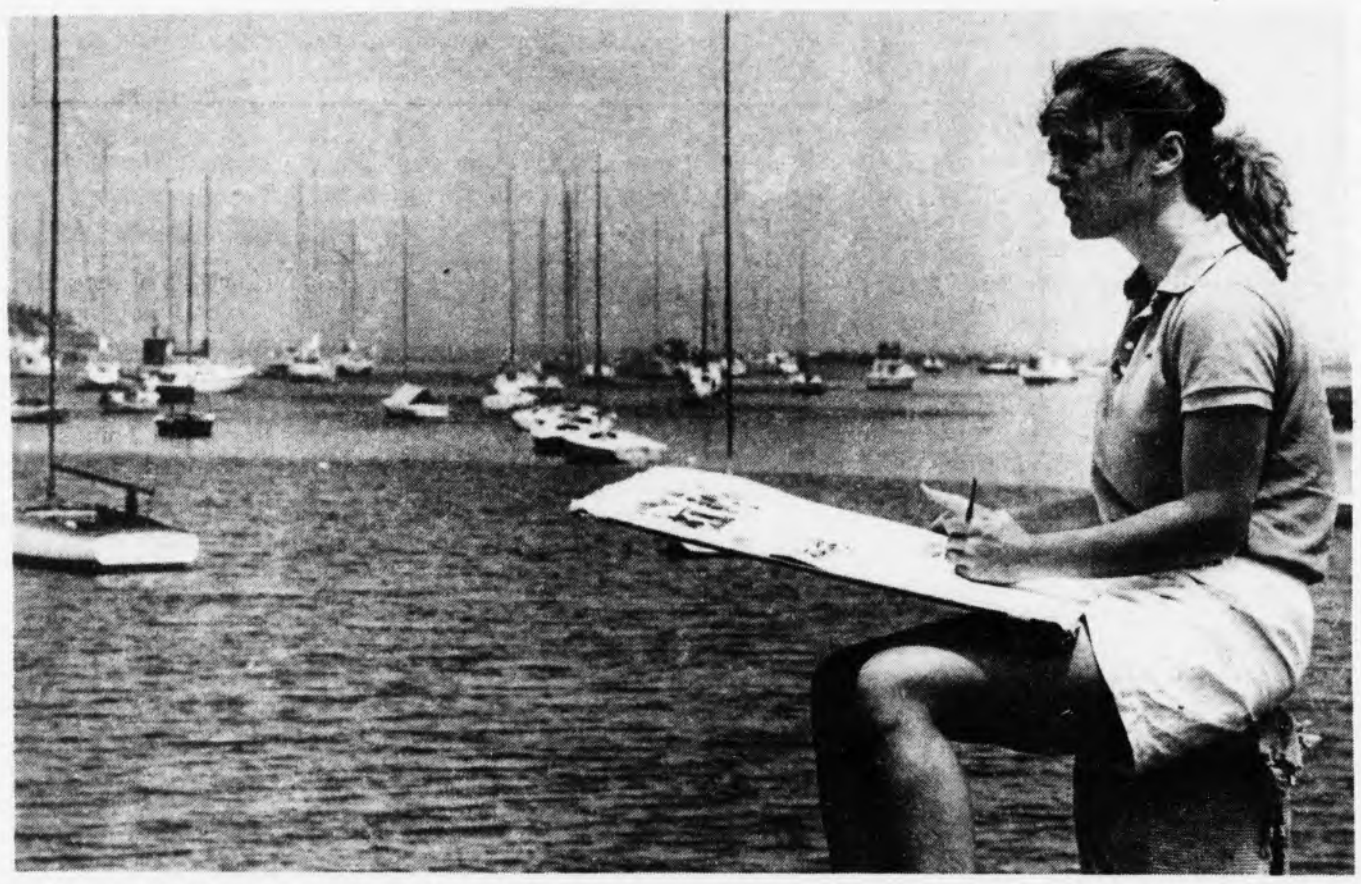
The "Balanced Budget 'Amendment," offered by Republican legislators during budget debate, essentially addresses the best case, worst case problem of not knowing how much revenue sources to match the amount spent by the state thereby balancing the budget.

Faced with a state budget that some fiscal experts estimate $140 million out of balance, House Republicans looked for a reasonable and responsible solution.

A "Better Budget" for Fiscal 1984 would have to be a "Balanced Budget."

The "Balanced Budget Ammendment," offered by Republican legislators during budget debate, essentially adresses the best case, worst case problem of not knowing how much revenue would be generated during the 1984 fiscal year.

In the worst case just enough money would be raised through taxes and other revenue sources to match the amount spent by the state thereby balancing the budget.



At best, if revenues amounted to more than current estimates, the state could start 1985 with a healthy balance.

How it would work:

State spending is up six and one-half per cent; the rate of inflation was four per cent; the difference between these is two and one-half per cent. Therefore, the "Balanced Budget Amendment" called for two and one-half per cent of the money appropriated to each agency and department to be placed in a reserve account.

If, toward the end of the fiscal cycle, an agency could prove through the governor and the state comptroller that some or all of their department's two and one-half requirements is strong and healthy. Moody's Investor Service cites Delaware as one of only two states in better financial shape now than in the mid-1970s. Debt service has been reduced from almost one per cent of the state budget in 1976 to 12 per cent in 1982, and Delaware is the only state to have had its bond rating improved five times since 1977.

The "Balanced Budget Amendment" did not pass in the Massachusetts Legislature this year, but like several of the key "Better Budget" concepts which have been incorporated in subsequent state budgets, we may see a move toward such fiscal discipline in coming years.

Officials educated on the Open Meeting Law

Over 30 town officials and committee members including selectmen, were advised on the legal pitfalls of the Open Meeting Law and other other public matters recently.

Town counsel Richard Henderson, his associate Deborah Thaxter, John Slater III and Stephen Rider discussed procedures for obtaining the services of town counsel, the Open Meeting Law requirements, conflict of interest laws and Freedom on Information statutes.

The school committee may retain general counsel, and selectmen may retain outside counsel for labor negotiations. But no town officer, board or town committee, may retain other counsel at the expense of the town.

Under town bylaws the selectmen approve any town agency retaining town counsel.

In cases where town counsel may have a conflict of interest, such as having represented one of the parties on a private matter, special town counsel may be employed, Henderson said.

Hendersosn said his office gives "advice only." It is up to the board member seeking the advice to accept it, but he said, "no one is under legal obligation to follow the advice."

Henderson wants boards to notify selectmen through the executive secretary when they want to use town counsel since the selectmen "pay the bills,"

Except in emergency, his office wants written notice seven days in advance of any request of opinions.

He wants to be notified within 24 hours of receipt of any notifications of boards being sued because they have only 20 days to answer.

The majority of a board must vote to start anay litigation.

Deborah Thaxter, who handles courtroom proceedings, said minutes of meetings should be made public within 10 days, even if approval has not been voted.

Minutes of executive sessions can be kept secret as long as their publication would defeat the purpose of the meeting. She explained seven reasons to go into executive session.

Slater will be representing the board of health, planning board, school committee, school superintendent, and conservation commission.

Rider will be representing the water and sewer departments, appeals board, and building inspector.

Once litigation begins, individuals are not to talk about the case to anyone, he stressed.

On the matter of conflict of interest law, Elaine Eliopoulos, health agent, said she received two bottles of liquor from a contractor at Christmas time. "He seemed surprised that I objected to his practice and returned them," she said.

Henderson said she was correct to return the bottles.

The Minelli case

But if good solid reasons aren't forthcoming on July 13, we believe the committee has no choice but to reappoint Minelli.

A couple of final points. The administration's choice to succeed Minelli is science teacher Ken Cisneros — a fine teacher and a fine man. But the record shows that the last time Cisneros coached basketball at any level was six years ago when he coached the junior team. On the face of it his credentials for coaching varsity basketball in a tough league don't come close to those of Ed Minelli.

It would appear that Cisneros is a draftee, not a volunteer, for it is improbable that a man who is primarily a science teacher, and who hasn't coached in six years, would suddenly develop varsity coaching ambitions. Rather, it seems, the school department first decided to get rid of Minelli, then in an after thought fell on Cisneros as the guy to throw into the breech. In our view Ken Cisneros is too good a man to be used in such a manner.

Finally, it is not on the record, but it is a fact, for we have heard it ourselves, that there has been some grumbling about Minelli's handling of Metco students. The gist of distinctly unrecorded comments is that Minelli gives these non-resident black students too much playing time, time that comes at the expense of local boys.

We shall not debate here the merits of the Metco program. We shall only state the obvious: Once accepted at Cohasset High School Metco boys and girls have the same privileges and obligations as the rest of the student body.

To state it as it is, a small few hold it against Minelli that he recognizes that one or two of the Metco students are a little more talented at basketball at this juncture than some of the teammates with whom they compete for playing time. These small few hold that since the Metco kids have had the "advantage" of growing up in the inner city where basketball is ubiquitous, they ought to get less playing time than their pure talent would dictate...all in the interest of giving some good ol' local boys some minutes.

The school department is not to be held responsible for such vestigial bigotry. But the fact that the racial issue has been raised (off the record, of course) against Minelli, is all the more reason why the school committee will open a can of worms if it approves the dismissal of Ed Minelli on the feeble and incredible grounds thus far presented on the record by the school administration.

Letters

The noise problem

(Executive Secretary Mark Lanza sent the following letter to the owner of 100 Pond Street. Ed.)

Dear Mr. Thayer:

It has been brought to the attention of selectmen tha. heavy construction equipment has been operating in the early morning hours (at approximately 7 a.m.) at your Pond Street Condominium project and continuing sometimes until after 6 p.m.

The Selectmen were also informed that during discussions between you and Police Chief Kealey, that you agreed that a reasonable starting time for the heavy equipment would be 7:30 a.m.

The Selectmen request that you and/or your subcontractors restrict the operation of heavy construction equipment to the hours between 7:30 and 6 p.m.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Mark J. Lanza, Executive Secretary

Anti-noise bylaw

know that when people assist each other as a team, they are able to protect their rights against a large business conglomerate.

I have had supportive phone calls from other people in town, as well as several from Scituate, all of whom wanted information about proceeding for their own "noise" campaigns (or should I say "anti-noise!") and one interesting call from someone (who wishes to remain nameless) who explained some of the unhealthy effects of continuous noise: high blood pressure, headaches, irritablity, depression, etc.

Next Town Meeting, perhaps we should try to get an ordinance put on the books. . .it would be a milestone for the South Shore. . .Please feel free to share your thoughts. Call me anytime with questions or suggestions.

Firefighters at Music Circus down to two

By Patricia Anne Walsh

The number of firefighters stationed at the Music Circus theater has been reduced from six to two men each performance, according to Music Circus Director and fire officials.

Fire Chief Martin Dooley, on the advice of the State Fire Marshall, sent six men and a Cohasset Fire truck to the tent theater beginning June 18 (because of the carpeting, manufactured by Diamond Rug and Carpet Co. in Georgia.)

After the Fire Dept. tested a sample of the theater rug, Dooley said the flamability test showed "a lighted cigarette would melt the carpet."

The carpeting was laid on concrete on the aisles, the stairs, the ramps and around the outside perimeter of the theater.

"The officers told people to put their cigarettes out, or refrain from smoking. When the Circus is having performances there are 2,700 to 2,800 people attending or living in the neighborhood — that's equivalent to the population of one-third of this town," Dooley said.

Dooley said it was difficult to find enough regular officers on the first Saturday afternoon (June 18). He used two firefighters from Hingham, and one from Scituate.

"The Music Circus will reimburse the Fire Dept. for our expenses, and the money will be turned over to the Town Accountant and credited to our overtime account," said Dooley.

Rawson said it would cost the Circus about $600 per day for two performances with six firefighters attending.

The Circus has received a letter from the quality official of the manufacturer of the carpeting, (Diamond Rug and Carpet Company of Georgia). The official says the carpeting passes the Flamability Test of Georgia.

Rawson said the carpeting is undergoing further testing at the University of Georgia.

Building Inspector Robert Dennis, and Acting Fire Chief, Mark Trask (Chief Dooley attended an out-of-town training seminar June 26-29), said the number of firefighters stationed at the Circus had been reduced to two men, after the manufacturer's letter arrived.

They are awaiting the results off the further testing, and the issuance of a "fire retarding compliance certificate," Dennis said, before the fire detail is rescinded.

Two locals to compete in powerboat race

Cohasset's Alan Swiman and Dick Morse are two of the organizers and competitors in Saturday's Scituate 100 Classic Powerboat Race. More than 20 competitors will race around Scituate Harbor. The race will extend from as far north as North Scituate Beach to as far south as Southern Humarock Beach. The course for the race has been moved out from land, one half mile because lobstermen fear the boats may have done damage to their pots. Scituate Harbor will be closed off to all traffic beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday. There will be a safety zone marked off in and around the race course, including the entrances to the North and South Rivers. Spectator fleet areas will be designated by the Coast Guard. At 12:30 p.m. Scituate Harbormaster John Simons will proceed out of the harbor with the pace boat and the racing boats will follow. The boats will race at the mouth of the harbor, toward North Scituate Beach, circle around and head toward Humarock Beach and then race back to the mouth of the harbor. After 3 p.m., the harbor waters will be reopened to traffic. Racing boats will be displayed in Cole Parkway, Scituate, Friday and Saturday nights. The 55-mile race will feature four racing divisions, based on engine size. The least powerful boats are in Class A and the most powerful are in Class D. Morse said the location of the race was moved from Plymouth to Scituate because "they have built a restaurant complex in Plymouth that covers the waterfront." He said response to the race has been "very good and there has been a positive reaction from town officials (selectmen and Scituate Chamber of Commerce).

Cohasset may deal for Hull sludge

If preliminary test results are correct, Cohasset may not be able to swap septage in return for accepting Hull's sewer plant sludge.

The Board of Health has only three days to find a site to dump the septage waste, since the MDC has refused to accept the septage after July 1, even if payment is offered Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos said.

Preliminary required testing of Hull's sludge by Briggs Associates, revealed the presence of chemical cadmium, lead, molybdenum, and selenium in large amounts.

Eliopoulos said samples of the sludge showed 12 to 27.02 parts per million of cadmium, while drinking water requirements will not allow an excess of .01 parts per million.

Lead was present in from 107.3 to 301.2 parts per million. Drinking water limits, she said, were .05 parts per million.

Molybdenum ranged from 180.2 to 105.6 parts per million, but she could find no drinking water standards.

The results are surprising since Hull's sludge was not expected to contain industrial wastes. Only safe household wastes were anticipated.

Health Board members feel the results, if confirmed by further testing, may indicate the presence of garage or basement metalworking operations in Hull, although they conceded the lead may come from the 90 year-old sewer pipes in the five hills of Hull, or from old water pipes.

Hull samples are to be retested. If present results are confirmed, Health Board Engineer Fred DeFeo has advised against accepting Hull sludge into the Cohasset Dump site, Eliopoulos said.

Health Board members instructed Eliopoulos to appeal to State Senator Allan McKinnon, the MDC, and DEQE (State Dept. of Environmental Quality) for relief. She was also instructed to find out if Hull will accept Cohasset's septage at its sewer plant on an emergency or temporary basis.

Recreation Dept. report

YOUTH BAND PROGRAM

Registrations will be accepted by telephone for the Summer Youth Concert program taught by Kathryn Fox of the Deer Hill School Music Dept.

The program fee will be $10 per person payable at the first class on Monday, July 11 at 6:30 p.m., Deer Hill School.

Classes will meet Monday and Wednesday evenings, at Deer Hill School from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., through Aug. 17.

Thursday evening, Aug. 18, the group will perform a concert on the Town Common at 7:30 p.m.

The program is designed to provide continuity for music lessons during the summer months and allow the students to participate in a youth band.

If interested in this program, please call the Recreation Office or see Mrs. Fox at the Deer Hill School.

BEACH-DUMP STICKERS

A new facility permit should be purchased by June 30. Hours of issuance at Town Hall (first floor) are Monday through Thursday, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m.; and Saturday mornings from 9 a.m. to noon.

Here are the facility permits procedures:

They may be purchased Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m.; and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon.

Permits may be purchased through Saturday, July 16, excluding Monday, May 30 and Monday, July 4, and Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., July 18 through Aug. 5.

Applicants will need: registration(s) of vehicles, and if no registration, proof of residency (tax bill, rental lease).

Checks should be made payable to the town of Cohasset. While cash will be accepted, checks are preferred.

Permits are issued to vehicles of residents. The first vehicle will cost $10, subsequent vehicles will cost $2 except for seniors 65 and over. Registrations of each vehicle must be presented. Please make every effort to register all vehicles at one time.

Each permit issued will, (for vehicle owners), have a plate number printed on the permit. If a new permit is needed because of a sale of automobile or change in plate number, applicants will have 10 days in which to do this.

Replacement permits are $2 each.

Any questions regarding facility permits should be directed to the Recreation Department Office, first floor, Town Hall, 383-6791.

MUSIC CIRCUS REGISTRATIONS

The first Music Circus registrations will be held Thursday morning, June 30, from 9 a.m. to noon at the Recreation Dept. Office, first floor, Town Hall.

This week's registrations will be for "Cinderella." The show date is Thursday, July 14. The cost for this, and all performances, is $2.45 per child. Registrations for performances will be held every Thursday. Each registration is two weeks prior to the show date and will be as follows:

Show Dates: Thursday, July 14, "Cinderella," (payment date: Thursday, June 30); July 21, "Pinocchio," (July 7); July 28, "Hansel and Gretel," (July 14); August 4, "Aladdin," (July 21); and August 11, "Wizard of Oz," (July 28).

YOUTH WRESTLING PROGRAM

Registrations will be accepted for youth wrestling from June 20 to June 23. The program will be seven weeks long and open to students entering Grade 6 through Grade 12 this Fall. The fee for the program which will be instructional, is $10 per person, and a 50 percent family discount will be offered for two or more participants from the same family. Grades 6 through 9 meet Monday and Wednesdays and Grades 10 to 12 will meet Tuesday and Thursday from 8:30 to 10 a.m.

Should program fees represent a financial burden to any family or individual, please see Jack Worley, at the time of registration.

DEQE landfill study asked

The Water Commission, and its chairman William Montourori have written to the state requesting an investigation into what is being dumped at the privately owned Cohasset Heights landfill. The commission wants to know if Lily Pond, Cohasset's drinking supply is threatened. The land fill off Route 3A is used for commercial refuse and when Cohasset Heights Ltd. took over operations of the landfill, they were permitted by the Board of Health to dispose of general refuse except for hazardous waste, flammable, explosive or poisonous material. The health board has filed suit against Cohasset Heights Ltd., because the board demanded a list of everything disposed at the landfill.

Montuori wrote, "We believe that there is no choice except to assume that the facility leachates (pollutants leaking into ground water) will ultimately affect our water supply unless determined otherwise by detailed studies." It has been reported that a DEQE (state Dept. of Environmental Quality Engineering) engineer said the town is responsible for monitoring the dump and DEQE will not be responsible for the study.

However Water Commissioner Peter Pratt said it is wrong for the state only to respond to emergencies such as the PCB's in Norwood or incidents in Holbrook or Woburn. Pratt said the commission was never informed about a meeting recently between Cohasset Heights Ltd., and the health board and DEQE officials.

Appel is "President's Choice"

Cohasset artist Joan Appel has been selected by Sheldon Ripley, South Shore Art Center President, for the "President's Choice" show.

Her work will hang in the Center's invitational gallery, 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset, July 2 through July 30 with the opening reception Saturday, July 2 from 3 to 5 p.m.

The opening coincides with the second day of the South Shore Art Festival on the Cohasset Common, the Center's four-day celebration of art with exhibits, artist demonstrations, children's activities and performing groups.

Joan describes her art as an extension of herself, "as I work through my life, and am affected by the heights and depressions which life offers, my experiences are reflected in my art and my poetry."

She primarily works in monotypes, an art form which offers her the ability to work spontaneously. Working with monotypes means "I must work very fast. My most profound thoughts come to light if I do not have too long a time to think, plan, shape and control them."

Trained as both an artist and a classical musician, Joan always works to the accompaniment of music.

"The execution of a painting therefore becomes a personal performance as were my recitals when I was singing professionally," she said.

She is a graduate of Syracuse University and has studied at the New England Conservatory, Paier School of Art in Connecticut and the University of Maryland.

She is a member of the Copley Society, Boston Visual Artists' Union, Artists Equity, South Shore Arts Council, Guilford Arts League in Connecticut, Art Directors Club of Connecticut and the Scituate Art Association.

She has exhibited at the Staircase Callery, Hingham; Copley Society; Benjamin's Art Gallery, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Munson Gallery, New Haven, Ct.; Anderson-Marsh, St. Petersburg, Fla.; and Frame-Up Gallery, Cohasset.

Cohasset artist Joan Appel creates one of her monotypes, not piecrust. Her work will hang in the South Shore Art Center July 2-30.

Her exhibit will be open to the public Monday through Friday, noon to 4 p.m.

ST. JUDE:
O Holy St. Jude Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, Faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present and urgent petition, in return I promise to make your name known, and cause you to be invoked. Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and Glorias. Publication must be promsied. St. Jude, pray for us and all who invoke your aid. Amen. This Novena has never been known to fail. This Novena must be said for 9 consecutive days. E.A.F.

Engagement

McCarthy - Stanford

Moira McCarthy

Walter and Janet McCarthy announce the engagement of their daughter Moira to Sean Stanford, son of Joseph and Florence Stanford of Cohasset.

Miss McCarthy holds a BA in English from Southeastern Massachusetts University and is employed by Mariner newspapers in Marshfield.

Mr. Stanford, an accounting major at University of Massachusetts at Boston, is employed by Atlantic Container Company in Braintree.

A July 7, 1984 wedding is planned.

Ice cream lovers eat their mistakes

By Lois Martin

They started in at it last Thursday, two addicts of a shared delight, swapping the delicious memories of indulgences allowed to run rampant.

It was one of our scalding hot days. The conversation was precipitated when one walked into the room with a nearly devoured Dairy Cream cone. She didn't offer to share.

But she and another woman burst into their favorite consumer topic — ice cream. It was a meeting of soul mates, two confessors of an addiction to that frozen sweet.

They were transformed in discussing the product into gleeful experts. They know the product. They're sold on it as often as their consciences allow. One said the best job she ever had was her summer in an ice cream parlor in Rhode Island. She began work weighing 118 pounds and concluded her employment weeks later at 132 pounds.

It was really her mother's fault, she thinks in retrospect, because her mother had promised her she'd be bound to get sick of ice cream, serving that and nothing else all day.

That hadn't happened. What did evolve, however, was a growing sophistication at creating 'mistake' sundaes. There was her first marvel, a banana split, contrived of every kind of ice cream except what had been ordered. In a flash, she discovered the impact of her error.

She either had to eat it or throw it away. And she's not a wasteful person.

Ice cream freaks are clever. These people buy the good kind and leave it on the sideboard as they put other groceries away, pretending not to notice its vulnerability to melting. Then, that mishap discovered, you see, they eat all the soupy part on the sides before stashing the diminished contents in the freezer. That's done as a favor to the family because soupy ice cream is no good when it refreezes into offensive crystals.

And they're fussy, snobbish about their expertise on ice cream. They argue for and prefer elitist brands. But like the wino who's tasted the best, they're sports about accommodating their taste to what's available.

Peppermint patty without the candy, says one, is her favorite, though you can't beat vanilla if it's top notch. The other says she'll take butter pecan, followed by a black raspberry.

They nearly squabble, the two of them, about the best ice cream outlets they've known. According to one that was a James McManus brand. But the other declares she says that only because she never was privileged to have ice cream from the Consumer's Dairy.

Fancy dishes are not a prerequistite. In fact a sturdy generous mug would be better because no one can see how much is in it, especially the eater.

I've known an ice cream addict who has delicately refused an opportunity to have a dish of it, saying she'd just have a spoonful instead, please. Now her idea of a spoonful of ice cream calls for two strong men to lift the spoon. But the thing is, since she's only had a spoonful, there'd be no harm really in having another.

Unless I'm on an outright binge, ice cream isn't one of my addictions. But when it is, I want it topped with a minimum half cup of hot fudge, the wet nuts and whipped cream is a welcome option.

I've let my mind run loosely about a few things. And one of them has been the wild night I might have were I to be mistakenly locked in a supermarket overnight when I happened to have my electric frypan with me. But that's strictly a winter fantasy, a seasonal addiction for a side of beef or sitr-fry oven roasters.

Right now I'm waiting to be set free in a farmer's prime patch of peas, snow type will do it, for a full-handed batch of those, each cooked and glistening in real butter. You can save the cream old-timers require for them, since that would only slow me down. I don't do cream.

The thing is these dratted studies, federally or privately funded, would deny us all delighting sins of society. So we need to harbor, protect and seize on every addiction that they're late studying.

And you've been denying yourself a treaty indulgence too long. If I know you, you're still concentrating on cutting down salt or other white stuff.

It's not too late to catch my friends. They figured they better get a little glucose in their systems because the energy is in need of replacement what with all this hot weather. And they tell me a smart dieter eats her ice cream early in the day so as to have the stomach more empty by bedtime. Bless the warm addictions. There are too few of them and ours shall be the first FAT (Free Addiction Together) chapter in America.

Concerned Citizens for Drug Prevention unify

In an effort to expand its statewide program to combat the use of alcohol and illicit drugs among youth, a South Shore organization has called upon former Mass. Gov. Edward King to serve as honorary chairman of the group's board of directors.

Concerned Citizens for Drug Prevention, Inc., a non-profit organization launched 10 years ago by Lucy Forti of Norwell, is currently expanding its board of directors and scope of operation. Forti serves as the executive secretary.

As part of the drug prevention group's expansion program, it will serve as the statewide coordinating arm for an extensive statewide effort to prevent the use of alcohol and illicit drugs among youth.

The Citizen's Action group for Drug Free Youth, the Plymouth County Mothers Against Drunk Drivers, Prisoner Spiritual Ministries, Tough Love and S.E.E.K., Inc. (Serve Each and Every Youth), will use Concerned Citizens for Drug Prevention for unifying their combined activities.

"We feel this is a major move in the direction of impacting the young people of the state," said Kevin Tedeschi, chairman of the board.

Among the goals of Concerned Citizens and its members are efforts to have an effective drug education program in the state's schools and to develop a legislative program.

Summer programs at Science Center

The summer months of July and August are full of programs and activities for all ages at the South Shore Natural Science Center.

Children ages 4 through 6th grade can attend a summer nature camp;

Admission to the Science Center and trails is free. For further information call 659-2559.

The South Shore Natural Science Center is located on Jacobs Lane in Norwell.

Ode To Our Favorite Fire Cracker

Cherry bombs & charred hot dogs
Were used in revelry
When fireworks burst all about
In July of '43

That fiery Fourth did serve as fare
Far from a stranger's view
For woman to imbue on earth
Not one child, ah, but two.

So fair, so soft the maiden was
To warm a mother's heart
The second, though, was full a male
Marine-like from the start.

His lot was cast on football field
On car, and girls and then...
The lad turned round in new manhood
And found himself a pen.

Type flew to paper, then to press
A reporter learned his bag
Ambition set itself aglow
He'd start a Marshfield rag.

Henceforth & on the papers grew
With Mariner as his name
Yet new ideas must now be due
To further David's fame.

And so with 40 years of life
We'll see the best unfurled
We'll fly the Cutler flag for all
With a Mariner for the world.

With apologies for a laugh
The irreplaceable Mariner staff

A Beautiful Approach to Country Living.

You drive in through meadows strewn with seasonal wildflowers. But that's only your entry to the good life at The Meadows, The Green Company's new community of attached single family homes in Hingham. The architectural style is true to the farm-house heritage of the community. The construction and detailing have been accomplished with obvious pride.

The Meadows offers a selection of two and three bedroom homes with unexpected details like master suites with private fireplaced sitting areas, large country kitchens for informal entertaining, separate dining rooms for more formal occasions, hidden corners for quiet contemplation, and a mix of ceiling heights and styles. In addition there are large private courtyards, two-car garages, full basements, a swimming pool, whirlpool, tennis courts and a clubhouse. And best of all, this very civilized lifestyle is near major highways to the cultural delights of Boston and vacation areas to the North and South.

Prices range from $157,000 to $210,000 during this, our opening period. Furnished models are open every day from 9 to 5. Take exit 14 from Route 3 and follow Route 228 toward Hingham four miles, turn right on Free Street, one mile to our entrance. Call (617) 740-1500 for an appointment. When it comes to a good life in the country, The Meadows leads the field!

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

Summer is here, with the screen door slamming, the refrigerator thudding, radios blaring and empty peanut butter jars. "What's to eat," "there's nothing to do," or "can I ask someone over?" are old familiar phrases that will sound like a broken record before vacation ends. Men may orbit in space, women master the complexities of computers, yet no one can invent a cookie jar that isn't always on the brink of being empty. No use hiding freshly baked cookies, but it does help to double the recipe and freeze half. Making your own popsicles from fruit juices can stop a few hunger pangs and raisins and fresh fruit are always filling. Here's a marvelous recipe from Betty Carr called

OATMEAL REFRIGERATOR COOKIES

1/2 c. soft shortening
1/2 c. granulated sugar
1/2 c. brown sugar
1 egg
1½ tsp. grated lemon rind
1½ T molasses
1/2 tsp. vanilla
7/8 c. sifted all purpose flour
1/2 tsp. soda
1/2 tsp. salt
1½ c. rolled oats

Mix first seven ingredients together thoroughly. Sift flour, salt and soda together and stir into creamed mixture. Mix in oats. Mix thoroughly with hands. Press and mold into a long, smooth roll 2½" in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper and chill until stiff (several hours). With thin, sharp knife cut in thin slices 1/8 to 1/16" thick. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in a 400 degree oven for eight to 10 min., until lightly browned. Makes about four dozen 2½" cookies.

Cooks hungry for something besides charred burgers and franks and yet another serving of potato salad, look forward to a rainy day, if only to prepare an oven meal. Slip in a few potatoes for baking and nothing could be easier than Ann Grasie's

LUNCHEON MEAT IN ORANGE RAISIN SAUCE

1 can (12 oz.) luncheon meat
4 orange slices with peel, halved
1 T cornstarch
2 T sugar
1/2 c. orange juice
1 T lemon juice
1/2 c. raisins

Cut meat into eight slices and arrange in 9" pan. Alternate each slice with orange slice. In saucepan, mix cornstarch and sugar and add remaining ingredients. Cook, stirring until thickened. Pour over meat and bake in 350 degree oven about 30 min. Serves 4.

John and Abigail Adams who lived not too far away in Quincy, felt that the first glorious Fourth was a good day for a dinner party. Turtle soup, salmon with egg sauce and apple pan dowdy were a typical American meal, substantial and hearty, a fine summer celebration. Somehow I don't think you'll find many of us spending the upcoming holiday weekend in the kitchen while everyone else is having fun, but if you're so inclined, Myra Waldo's recipe goes like this

APPLE PANDOWDY

3 c. peeled, sliced cooking apples
1/3 c. molasses
1/4 tsp. each of nutmeg and cinnamon
3/4 tsp. salt
1½ c. flour
2 tsp. baking powder
4 T butter or margarine
1/2 c. sugar
1 egg
1/2 c. milk

Mix together first four ingredients with 1/4 tsp. of the salt. Turn into greased 9" pie plate. Bake in pre-heated 350 degree oven 10 min. Cool slightly. Meanwhile, prepare the batter. Sift together flour, baking powder and remaining salt. Cream butter, gradually adding sugar. Beat until fluffy, then beat in the egg. Stir in flour mixture alternately with milk until batter is smooth. Pour over apples, return pie plate to oven and bake 25 min. longer, or until top is browned and set. Serves six.
